The swells crashing against the crippled freighter forced a halt in all attempts to get a new line aboard. Carlsen and Dancy, clinging like monkeys to the almost vertical deck, had hacksawed away the remnants of the towline that broke early today.

The Enterprise was drifting northeast at slightly more than half a mile an hour. Its early list of 60 degrees had increased to 70 degrees, indicating that her main cargo of pig iron had shifted more early today. The ship also had a part cargo of coffee. The freighter was riding visibly lower in the water than Tuesday, but the exact amount of sinking was hard to reckon.

The Flying Enterprise, en route from Hamburg to New York, ran into a Christmas hurricane and suffered a deck crack Dec. 27. The passengers and crew abandoned ship Dec. 28, but Carlsen insisted on staying aboard.

$500,000 Fire Destroys Pembroke Block

PEMBROKE, Jan. 9 (CP). — A spectacular fire, punctuated by a series of explosions, razed a business block on Pembroke's main street Tuesday night and unofficial estimates of the damage range as high as $500,000. Tenants of five apartments were forced to flee as the fire broke out in a two-storey brick block and raged out of control for three hours. Fire fighting equipment was called from nearby Petawawa, Renfrew, Beachburg, Cobden and Deep River.

An exploding oil furnace is believed to have caused the blaze. One tank of fuel oil exploded even before Pembroke firemen reached the scene. Two others went up as they fought the flames, spraying burning fuel oil in all directions and spreading the fire.

At the height of the blaze the roof of the block collapsed and two firemen barely escaped with their lives, leaving just before the collapse.

None Injured

No one was injured, but some firemen were overcome by smoke as the blaze raced through Doran's Ladies' Wear shop, the largest of its kind in town.

The fire then ate through a shoe store and a specialty shop on the ground floor and shot up through the second floor.

The ground floor businesses were destroyed or heavily damaged. Also damaged were the second-floor offices of the Victorian Order of Nurses, a dental office and the apartment of Bert Harvey and his wife who fled to safety when the fire broke out.

Four other apartment tenants in a building next door also evacuated. A meat market and the business offices of the Bell Telephone Company in the next-door building were damaged by smoke and water, but the flames did not reach them.

Pembroke fire officials said the blaze was the worst in the town for several years. The explosions of the fuel oil tanks made it almost

Ford Offers Increase Of 15 Cents

WINDSOR, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Ford of Canada has offered its production employees an across-the-board wage increase of 15 cents an hour, President Rhys Sale said today.

He said the offer was made on Tuesday to officials of Local 200, United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL), at a wage-contract meeting.

Other elements of the offer included an increased premium for night shift work and a liberalized vacation-with-pay plan.

During 1951 wage contract negotiations which proceeded intermittently for seven months—the union asked for a 30-cent "package" increase on a basic hourly rate of $1.32. Tuesday's meeting was based on the Conciliation Board recommendation of a 13-cent increase.

Local 200 officials have been discussing the offer and made no comment on Mr. Sale's statement.

Mr Sale said the 15-cent increase would be extended to 9,000 members of the Local 200 bargaining unit effective the date the proposal is accepted by the union membership. The 15 cents would include 8 cents now being paid to employees as a cost-of-living allowance. This would be incorporated into the basic wage rate.

Basic rate at the Ford plant under the company offer would be $1.47. For factory employees who have completed a 320-hour probationary period the rate would be $1.50.

Other elements of Mr. Sale's proposal:

1—The premium for night shift work, now five cents an hour, would be increased to seven cents.

2—Employees having three, but less than five years of service would be given 1½ weeks' paid vacation a year instead of the present one week.

International Co-operation Keynote Of Truman Speech

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (CP)—International co-operation was the keynote of the "state of the union" address delivered today by President Truman at a joint session of the 82nd Congress. "Our allies are essential to us," he said. The President's traditional address outlining the country's progress in the last year and presenting the administration's program for the year ahead, was delivered against the political background of a presidential election next November.

He proposed that Congress join him in an election-year armistice on political fights that might endanger the national interest at a time when all men walk "in the shadow of a third world war."

"The United States and the whole free world are passing through a period of grave danger," he said.

"Every action you take here in Congress and every action I take as President must be measured against the test of whether it helps to meet that danger."

Must Keep Friends

The President stressed the importance of the United States clinging to its friends in this critical period.

"Peace depends upon the free nations sticking together and making a combined effort to check aggression and prevent war," he said.

He came to the House of Representatives where Senators had gathered with their colleagues of

Russia Fails To Win Point

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United Nations' Political Committee today smothered a Russian attempt to force Korean truce negotiations to be taken up by a special high-level meeting of the security council.

The vote was 40 to 6, with 11 abstentions.

The 60-country committee agreed, however, to recommend the holding later of a special security council meeting — with delegates of foreign minister or similar rank—to discuss world tensions.

It knocked out the Soviet-bloc demand that the meeting be called "without delay."

Brazil, France, Britain and the United States offered an amendment proposing the high-level meeting only when the security council itself decided that such a meeting would have some effect. The vote on the amendment was 43 to 5, with 8 abstentions.

The action to insure that the Korean truce negotiations will be kept on a purely military level was also taken on the four-power amendment.

20-Block Chase Brings Arrest For 5

BRANTFORD, Jan. 9 (CP)—Four men and a 20-year-old Windsor girl were arrested today after a 20-block chase by police and five taxi-drivers who joined in after police raced by a taxi office with guns firing. Ten shots were fired before the men and girl were captured.

Frank Zigmond, 21, Walter Czach, 23, both of Brantford; Russell Horrocks, 20, Paris and Andrew Reinbold, 23, of Petawawa army camp, were charged with breaking and entering and car theft. The girl, Doris Farr, was charged with vagrancy.

The girl and two of the men were arrested when police cornered a stolen car in which they were riding. The two other men were captured a number of blocks away by police with drawn guns.

Police said the stolen car is owned by Morland Alton of Burford and is believed to have been used by thieves who broke into a hardware store in Burford.

Ship Reports Crack In Side

SEATTLE, Jan. 9 (AP). — The Japan-bound freighter Pennsylvania reported a crack had broken down her side early today during a North Atlantic storm. Forty-six men were reported aboard.

The ship's report was received by the US coast guard here and by British Columbia stations.

The Coast Guard said the ship's message was a "report of condition," not an SOS, although it did ask for information on other vessels in the area.

The Coast Guard placed the ship's position about 600 miles off the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Hold Out Little Hope Now Montreal Wife Still Alive

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP) — Hope waned Tuesday night that Mrs. Hughuette Lemay, the French - Canadian beauty who vanished Friday night in the Florida Keys, is still alive.

"It is almost inconceivable that a person alive and able to walk around would remain undetected so long," said deputy sheriff James O. Barker, who has directed the search for the Montreal woman.

Barker said it could be considered "significant" that the hunt for a body along the Keys is being intensified.

But he added that if Mr. Lemay fell into the sea, the possibility of recovering her body near the scene of the accident would be remote now, because the tide might have swept her miles away.

Earlier Tuesday, Barker said discovery that Mrs. Lemay left her purse and cosmetics behind seemed to support a theory of foul play.

Found In Car

The purse and cosmetics were found in the Lemay car after her mysterious disappearance while fishing from a bridge with her husband, George, 26-year-old Montreal real estate man.

The pretty 21-year-old girl, daughter of a prominent Montreal family, left her husband on the bridge while she went to the car parked 150 yards away to don warmer clothing.

"I can't imagine her leaving voluntarily without her purse and cosmetics," Barker said. "We are now acting on the assumption that there may have been foul play."

At Miami, the missing girl's brother, Raymond Daoust, conferred with FBI and said he planned to telephone Gov. Fuller Warren at Tallahassee to send detectives to aid in the investigation.

Fund Goes Broke

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP)—Ontario's unsatisfied judgment fund, set up to aid traffic victims, was left virtually moneyless at the end of 1951 by claims made against it during the year. Some 1,500,000 motorists contributed $750,000. The claims, a department of highways official said, amounted to just about that.

Allies Reject Counter-Offer

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 9 (AP) The Communists today submitted a new counter-proposal agreeing to all Allied terms for supervising a Korean armistice except a ban on rebuilding Red airfields. The United Nations command promptly rejected the compromise.

The future of Red airfields is the basic point of dispute.

"There is no major disagreement still existing except that of airfields," said Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Turner, UN negotiator. "That has been the major disagreement throughout."

The Communist counter-proposal formally accepted Allied demands for troop rotation, replenishment of supplies, and supervision of the truce by neutrals.

Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang called these "great concessions."

Dewey Pledges Last-Ditch Seaway Fight

ALBANY, NY, Jan. 9 (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey pledged a "last-ditch" fight today against the Truman administration's refusal to approve New York plans to develop the St. Lawrence and Niagara River power projects.

In his annual message to the State Legislature, Dewey contended that the national administration was trying to grab all hydro-electric facilities for a "federal power network."

Dewey said the state power authority's proposals were "still being blocked by a stubborn group of Washington officials," some of them, he added, seem determined that "all hydro-electric power developments in the country must belong to the federal government."

"Needless to say, we shall fight this scheme to the last ditch and I believe we will ultimately win."

Costly Delay

He claimed the inaction "of just one year in these developments has cost the people not less than $50,000,000 in power bills."

The state power agency has urged that New York be permitted to develop the power phase of the St. Lawrence project jointly with Ontario. It also has urged a "public redevelopment" at Niagara Falls, where power now is handled by private utilities on the US side.

The Federal Power Commission has rejected New York's plan for the St. Lawrence, but the state has challenged the ruling in federal court.

Both Truman and Dewey have favored the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project for years, but Truman wants them developed together by the federal government. In the face of stiff Congressional opposition to the seaway, Dewey wants New York to go ahead with Ontario on the power phase alone.

Dewey said "our opposition has been revealed for what it really is—a stubborn scheme on the part of a group of empire builders in the Department of the Interior to prevent the development of hydro-electric resources by the northeastern states and to impose a federal power network on our section of the country."

Farm Exodus Worries Juniors

TORONTO, Jan. 9 — (CP) — Ontario's young farmers, worried over the 97,000 rural youths who headed for the cities during 1951, Tuesday devoted much of their Ontario Junior Farmers' Association sessions to discussing what is wrong with life on the farm.

Prof. A. C. Robertson, of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, told delegates that youth was leaving the farm because of a lack of capital, family trouble and social climbing. He was in favor of young farmers having a small stake of their own before starting out on the land "to keep them on the farm when the going gets tough."

He also advised farmers to marry young and raise their families when they are young. He claimed it would avoid later conflicts between the young and old ideas when the sons begin taking over the farms.

The Association passed a resolution asking the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, which meets here today, to seek some formula of financial assistance for the qualified young farm couple.

Say Churchill Achieves Talk Objectives

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (CP)—Tight-lipped official statements on the Churchill-Truman talks which ended Tuesday night carry the implication that they achieved the objective of a more closely-knit Anglo-American effort to bring security and economic progress in the world.

Prime Minister Churchill leaves for New York this afternoon and the feeling here was that he was convinced his talks with President Truman had been valuable and significant.

He will spend two nights in New York with his old friend, Bernard Baruch, adviser to successive United States presidents, fly to Ottawa Friday for a long weekend visit at Government House, and return Tuesday to address a joint session of Congress.

Churchill will deliver a broadcast address at a state dinner Monday night when Prime Minister St. Laurent will be his host in Ottawa.

First Public Address

That will be his first public address since he came to this side of the Atlantic. It is believed it will deal mainly with Commonwealth affairs.

The primary purpose of his trip was to visit the United States and it is expected the international aspects of his public statements will be reserved for his address to the joint session of the US Congress Jan. 17.

He has held no press conferences here and his frequent brushes with reporters have brought only typically Churchillian wisecracks or platitudes such as Tuesday night when he left the White House at the concluding meeting.

There was a battery of lights, television and newsreel cameras outside the door of the executive wing.

Asked to say something about the concluding meeting Churchill said:

"We must hold firmly before our eyes, faith, hope and charity."

Then he turned to his associates and seemed to be saying the remark was something less than what might be expected.

the window just as the entire house caved in. Had he hesitated a few seconds longer, spectators said he would have been buried in a fiery mass of wreckage.

Officials of the Campbellford Emergency Relief Fund immediately began an investigation to see how they could aid the stricken family.

The fund was recently established to aid the seven families who were left homeless when a $200,000 fire destroyed a three-storey apartment block and three stores on the west side of the town shortly before Christmas. The families of this fire have now been provided for but officials say the fund will remain in existence in order to help out should another emergency arise.

The fund has swung into action now to aid the Ellis family, and the group have been established temporarily in a room in the St. Lawrence Hotel here. Salvation Army officials are also making some provision for the unfortunate victims.

No organized fire protection or fire fighting equipment is available in Seymour township where the blaze occurred.

Campbellford town council has urged Seymour authorities on several occasions to take steps to provide fire protection for residents of the township, either by purchasing its own equipment or by supplying a pumper which can be left in Campbellford, when the Campbellford equipment is out fighting a fire in the township.

There was a protest meeting of township ratepayers after a disastrous fire last summer but no further action has been taken to provide fire protection in the township.

Barriefield Soldier Killed In Accident

SARNIA, Jan. 9 (CP)—Francis Waghorn, a soldier stationed at Barriefield was killed early today in a traffic accident near a railway crossing. Frederick George, 25-year-old Sarnia man, was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death.

Waghorn was a member of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers at Barriefield, near Kingston.

Levy $100 Fine On Guilty Plea

LINDSAY, Jan. 9 (ENS). — It was all or nothing at all in police court here today when police chief Arthur Webster requested that a residence at 9 York Street be made a public place.

The chief made the request after the accused, Mrs. Minnie Hutchinson had pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of liquor. He asked that the premises be made a public place even though only two cases of beer were found that had not been purchased by the accused.

Defence counsel Bill Richardson stated that the amount of liquor found was not unusual and suggested that only part of the rooming house should be made a public place since another man had previously been charged and found guilty of a breach of the liquor act in the rear of the premises occupied by the accused.

Chief Webster stated that only part of the building would serve no purpose and again asked the magistrate to place the building as a public place. Magistrate E. A. Gee ruled that it was first offence and that leniency should be shown. A fine of $100 plus costs of $5 was levied. The accused did not appear in court.

Support Weakens On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 9 — (CP) — Steadily weakening support today extended yesterday's declining prices into early afternoon dealings.

Western oils resisted the downward pressure during the first hour but turned sharply lower by noon.

Trading picked up as industrial activity broadened from leading issues and a wide list of western oils, base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest.

Volume for the first three hours reached 1,345,000 shares.

Western oils losses outnumbered gains about four to one. Anglo-Canadian, Canadian Southern, Okalta, Canadian Williston and Western Leaseholds posted declines to about 25 cents. Scurry, a recent feature, edged upward in active trading.

Base metals dipped. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, Hudson Bay, International Nickel and United Keno Hill showed losses ranging from pennies to $3.50. Sherritt-Gordon, Mackino, United Asbestos and Yukeno eased.

Senior golds showed three declines against two advances in slow dealings. Secondary issues sagged.

the larger chamber, and spoke before a distinguished gallery.

Of the United Nations he said: "The UN, the world's great hope for peace, has come through a year of trial stronger and more useful than ever."

Three Issues

Before going into domestic issues in which he promised a realistic tax policy and a house cleaning of those in office who proved unworthy of public trust. Truman asked the legislators to keep before them three prime issues:

1. "The threat of world war is still very real."

2. "If the United States had to stand alone against a Soviet dominated world it would destroy the life we know and the ideals we hold dear. Our allies are essential to us."

3. "We have the great responsibility of saving the basic moral and spiritual values of our civilization."

He said the United States must go on helping its allies to build their military strength.

The President left open the question of how much, if any, new increases in taxes he will ask in his economic and budget messages.

He said only that the country must have "high taxes" over the next few years and that they must be "shared among the people as fairly as possible."

Truman said he will recommend shortly—presumably in his budget message later this month, "some increases" in the size of the armed forces which he said now total nearly 3,500,000 men.

Two Charged After Testimony In Liquor Case

Two men were charged with wilfully perverting justice after their testimony in police court today blew up the crown's case in a bootlegging charge against Norman Manley, 306 Lansdowne St.

In court today, Neil Paudash, RR 2, Keene, and William Sorg, 524 Bronson Ave., Ottawa, testified for the crown and both said they had not paid Manley any money for beer they drank in his home on the morning of December 2.

After both men had denied paying Manley for "one pint of beer" which they said they had consumed in Manley's house, crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said there was no further evidence and he suggested the case be dismissed.

Later Charged

Later, Paudash and Sorg were charged with wilfully perverting justice by giving a statement to Sergeant Gordon Puffer and Constable Douglas Farthing that they had purchased three pints of beer from Norman Manley on December 2.

Paudash pleaded not guilty and elected summary trial by Magistrate W. R. Philp. Sorg did not enter plea or election. Both were remanded on $200 bail until January 14.

Constable Farthing testified that 21 dozen pints of beer, 16 bottles of wine, two 26 ounce bottles of liquor and one 12 ounce bottle of liquor were seized at Manley's home at 7 o'clock on the morning of December 2 by himself and Constables Grant Gillespie and Dennis Traynor.

Sorg and Paudash were charged with causing a public disturbance on Queen St., the same morning.

W. J. Arthur Fair objected when Mr. Bradshaw produced a statement and asked Paudash if it was his signature, at the bottom. Paudash examined the signature and said it was his.

Mr. Bradshaw again asked Paudash "what if anything he and Sorg had paid for the two pints and Paudash replied "No money while I was there."

Sorg was then called, and Mr. Fair repeated his objections when Mr. Bradshaw confronted Sorg with a written statement and asked him to identify the signature.

Again, Magistrate Philp overruled Mr. Fair's objection and Sorg said the signature on the paper was his.

Asked if he had written the statement, and if he recalled the circumstances under which it was made, Sorg answered Mr. Bradshaw with "I did not write the statement and I did not read it over."

"There is no further evidence," said Mr. Bradshaw, "and the accused is entitled to a dismissal."

Before court recessed for lunch, Paudash and Sorg were placed in the prisoners' dock and charged with wilfully perverting justice.

Give US Chance To Share In Plan

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Tuesday night Canada can and will take the St. Lawrence Seaway in stride, but the door is still open for the United States to participate in the development.

He coupled that statement with a warning that it's going to cost the US money to use a completed all-Canadian seaway's facilities because they "would not be a gift to anyone, least of all to the United States."

Both the initial cost of the construction of the navigation channel and the operating expenses would be covered by tolls on shipping, Mr. Chevrier said in a speech prepared for delivery over the CBC's free-time political lecture "The Nation's Business."

The joint navigation and power project offered "incalculable promise for the economic development of Canada."

BETHANY, Jan. 9 (ENS). — Henry Wake, 60, died suddenly in Ottawa on December 31.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wake of Bethany, he lived all his early life in the village. On completion of his school years, he was employed as a clerk in T. J. At the time he was awarded a medal for distinguished service. Following a period at home and several months in the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, he was employed at Niagara Falls and Toronto, and for the past several years had been in the Savings Department at the Post Office in Ottawa.

A funeral service was held in that city on January 2, largely attended by many friends, his fellow post office employees, and members of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Legion. The body was brought to Toronto for further service, with burial in Prospect Cemetery.

Towline Breaks

New Difficulties

Last Saturday the tug Turmoil, out of Falmouth, after getting Dancy aboard the Enterprise, started towing the freighter toward Falmouth. The two proceeded perilously at times, but well for the most part, until the new ocean swells, 20 to 25 feet high, began beating in Tuesday night and today.

When not on deck, Carlsen and Dancy stayed inside one of the deck rooms—using one wall for a floor and the opposite wall for a ceiling.

Except for an occasional rain squall, weather at the scene was clear and visibility unlimited. This afternoon the barometer was rising, The Associated Press staff on a tug at the scene reported. They gave hope that the heavy swells soon would die down.

The Enterprise was about 30 miles from Lizard Head.

The US destroyer Willard Keith radioed from the scene on their efforts to clear the main shackle of the snapped towline.

They worked frantically with a hacksaw to clear the shackle from the chock used to secure the tow cable.

The destroyer said the tow cable parted "at or near" the bow check—a two-horned steel casting used for towing or mooring. It was necessary for Carlsen and Dancy to cut the twisted end loose from the chock before a new line could be made fast.

The Keith said the Enterprise was rolling 80 degrees to port at the time—nearly flat on its port side—and pitching sharply with spray from the high seas.

At one time during the morning, watchers aboard the Englishman feared the ship had rolled its last. It was almost turned over by a huge wave, but eased back to its 60-degree list.

Can't Believe It

"I see it but I don't believe it," declared an old salt aboard the tug.

Capt. J. B. Greenglass of the trawler Excellent, which returned from the scene this morning, said he cruised fairly close to the port side of the freighter and found her rolling over so far that he "could have spit down her funnel."

A later report said Carlsen left the slanting deck to avoid being swept overboard by crashing waves.

Shipping circles say the Enterprise and her cargo — mainly coffee — are valued as high as $4,000,000.

There were conflicting estimates as to the distance the convoy must travel to reach the safety of Falmouth harbor, ranging from 46 to 57 miles.

The present position of the Enterprise, 30 miles from the offshore rocks of Lizard Head, means the Turmoil must detour to avoid being swept aground with her awkward tow by the treacherous currents.

The varying estimates apparently reflected differing calculations as to how wide a berth the Turmoil must give the rocks in order to stay out of danger.

The five-inch steel towline by which the Turmoil had dragged the Flying Enterprise 250 miles through the waves snapped at 1:30 am (8:30 pm Tuesday) after the vessels had ridden out a fierce squall that struck in the night.

Until the cable snapped, the Turmoil had expected to make the safety of Falmouth harbor by noon today with a crippled hulk.

At the start of the storm Carlsen and Dancy saw the end of one chance of survival if the Enterprise should go down—the only usable lifeboat aboard broke away and vanished into the crashing sea.

Greatest menace is that the wind will shift to the south and send the Turmoil crashing onto the rocks.

In Falmouth, shipping circles set Thursday morning as the earliest possible arrival date for the Enterprise.

The Cornish coast has claimed many a ship. One of the most famous to go aground there was the Royal Navy battleship Warspite. She broke her towlines while being hauled to shipyard and was pounded to pieces by a storm in April, 1947.

STOP DRAGGING

Police and firemen temporarily discontinued dragging early today for the body of five-year-old Sharon Littlefair, 53 Edgewater Blvd. Sharon was drowned late Sunday afternoon when she fell through thin ice on the east shore of the Otonabee river at Burnham's Point. Tuesday afternoon a large section of ice at the entrance to Little Lake was broken up with blasting powder and police and firemen dragged the area, but without success. Fire Chief Geo. Smith said today that it was unlikely dragging would be resumed unless a sudden mild spell came in the weather.

TTC Strikers Refuse Frost Mediation

TORONTO, Jan. 9 —(CP)—A proposal that Premier Leslie Frost arbitrate Toronto's transit strike was turned down today by striking street-car and bus operators who also charged the Canadian National Railways with strike-breaking.

W. C. McBrien, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, said the premier would be "most acceptable as an arbitrator." But Syd Hare, secretary of the striking union, reiterated the men's opposition to arbitration.

The CNR, which Tuesday announced a special commuters' service for east-end residents, was charged with strike-breaking by union president George Wilson who said: "It's strike-breaking pure and simple. If it keeps up we may set up picket lines at the points where passengers get on."

Denies Charge

A spokesman for the CNR denied that the decision to provide special service constituted strike-breaking. He said the train operates daily for railway employees and the service merely was extended to the general public during the emergency.

In the middle, meanwhile, was Mayor Allan Lamport who sought unsuccessfully Tuesday to get the participants in the wage dispute together. The TTC informed him he would have to accept the responsibility for a 10-cent fare should negotiations reopen on terms he proposed.

The Mayor was hopeful Tuesday that his talks would bear fruit. After speaking to union leaders he said signs "pointing to a possible settlement" were evident. But his optimism evaporated after further talks with Toronto Transportation Commission heads.

The Street Railway Union (AFL-TLC) offered no new proposals and the TTC stood by its original offer of $1.45 an hour for operators. As an alternative the Commission would submit the dispute to arbitration binding on both parties. The Union held to its demands for $1.55 an hour.

Slippery Driving

While the discussions went on, the city's residents prepared for another day—the sixth—of no street-car or bus service. A two-inch snowfall overnight, which the weather bureau said might reach three inches, promised slippery driving conditions for the thousands of extra motorists who have taken up the slack in transportation.

The Canadian National Railways announced Tuesday a special service for east-end residents, with the train halting at several level crossings to take on passengers on the way to Union station downtown.

But for many citizens the (by now) customary ritual of stepping into the roadway and thumbing a ride provided transportation to and from their jobs. Thousands of others walked, while company car pools operated efficiently for other thousands living at greater distances from their jobs.

Police said that rush-hour traffic conditions Tuesday were so satisfactory that most of the 90 officers engaged in expediting movement of cars were able to quit at 6.30 p.m. instead of 7.

Mayor Outlines Busy Program

COBOURG, Jan. 9 (ENS)—An ambitious program for 1952 was outlined by Mayor Jack Burnet Tuesday night at the inaugural meeting of the 1952 town council. The Rev. A. G. McDowell of Calvary Baptist church, opened the meeting with prayer.

The mayor in his list for the coming year referred to new sidewalks, town planning, efforts to get a boat service from Cobourg to Rochester; hard road surfacing, adjustment of civic salaries, rebuilding of the centre pier (government), completion of west end sewer system, ordnance depot problems, housing, market regulations, completion of the re-organization of the fire dept., amending of parking bylaw, improvement of town offices in the town hall and betterment of conditions out at the dump.

Council was advised by Councillor Charles Johnston, chairman of the fire, water and light committee, that K. R. Baird of Collingwood had been selected as the new fire chief to succeed Jim Campbell, who is retiring. The new fire chief takes over on Jan. 16.

A letter from the local insurance agents association pointed out that the town hall was only insured for $165,000 but was worth $400,000 and that there should be at least $250,000 insurance on it. The matter was laid over to a later meeting. A letter from the health unit informed council that the town hall public lavatories were dirty, needed paint and were poorly lighted. Council will look into it.

Driver Fined After Accident

Kenneth Tanner, Apsley, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $10 and $14.80 costs in police court Tuesday.

Tanner was charged with careless driving after he was involved in an accident with a car driven by James C. Commiskey, RR 10 Peterborough. The accident occurred on a narrow bridge on the Warsaw road when the two cars, going in opposite directions collided near the eastern end of the bridge.

The rear of the truck driven by Tanner who was going east, was in collision with the left front corner of Commiskey's car, then scraped the south railing of the bridge and overturned.

4th Garage Breakin Nets Thieves $200

LINDSAY, Jan. 9 (ENS)—For the fourth time in less than two years, Miller's service station on the Peterborough highway just across from the Lindsay Riverside cemetery has been robbed.

Last night the door was jimmied again for the second time this month. An employee, Mrs. George Robinson, noticed fresh marks on the door as she opened up Tuesday morning and the OPP were summoned. Thieves had taken cigarettes and tobacco as well as some canned goods and total loss is estimated at close to $200.

Lindsay Fire Losses Lowest In Five Years

LINDSAY, Jan. 9 — (ENS)— Lindsay's fire losses in 1951 were the lowest in five years according to Chief Alex. Wylie. He is not expected to say whether it is an all-time low since earlier figures are not available. Loss this year has been set at $40,000. Most was done by water damage in a fire at Horn Bros. woollen mills totalling $25,000.

Thieves Grab Bologna In Campbellford Store

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 9 — (ENS) — Thieves entered Kellaher's Meat Market in this town for the third time in recent months on Monday night. They got away with two 100-pound bags of sugar as well as a sizeable amount of ham and bologna.

The thieves limited their taking ways to the beef department in previous raids, but this time entered the grocery department and made off with the sugar. The store was gutted by fire recently and clerks are still engaged in transferring stock to a new locationn, where much of the stock is being disposed of at reduced prices.

Chief Constable George H. Hardy of Campbellford is investigating.

TWO SERVICES will be held tonight on the second night of the Week of Prayer sponsored by the Peterborough Ministerial Association. Three of the four speakers are shown here: (left to right) the Rev. C. G. Boyd, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; Dr. D. Bruce Gordon, Trinity United Church; and the Rev. H. D. McCormack, St. James Church. Also speaking is the Rev. C. J. Muxworthy, of the Church of the Nazarene. Dr. Gordon and Mr. Muxworthy will speak at Mark St. United Church and Mr. Boyd and Mr. McCormack will speak at St. George's Anglican Church.

Closed-Door Diplomacy In Style Again

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Jan. 9—(CP)—Closed door diplomacy may be coming back into vogue.

United Nations attempts to throw at least a footbridge between east and west have so far proved fruitless and statesmen are seeking other methods. In the present UN assembly the west's attempts at conciliation towards Russia have been rejected.

When this became evident, smaller countries pushed the four big powers into a private meeting to see if they could get better results than in open meetings of the 60 UN members. Results didn't prove to be much but there was agreement that some clarification of the two positions was provided.

President Vincent Auriol of France has asked for more of the old type of diplomacy—not secret diplomacy but diplomacy reached in secret sessions. At the opening of the UN assembly, he made a veiled bid for a meeting of the big four leaders.

He followed this up in a New Year's statement that the chances for peace would increase if the world's statesmen did more private negotiating.

Step In Direction

The appointment of George Kennan as United States ambassador to Russia is seen as a step in the direction which Auriol and others urge.

Kennan's appointment represented a break from the former US policy to appoint ambassadors to Moscow from among men who had little previous training as diplomats.

Kennan is the leading US expert on Russia. If any American is capable of formulating policy on the spot in Moscow, he is believed to be the man.

Western statesmen including External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson of Canada have said they hope negotiation with Russia will be possible when the west builds sufficient defensive strength.

With the west's strength growing daily, some observers believe the days of negotiation may not be far off. They see in the US move a realization that the best negotiators should be available for the work.

The often-expressed desire by Prime Minister Churchill of Britain for a meeting of the three top chiefs of state is seen as part of the same trend. It has been reported he might broach the advisability of such a meeting during his visit with President Truman.

Churchill's Aims

Mr. Churchill has arrived on this continent, and despite some ill-wishers in the United States and advice from some of his own senior advisers against making the visit at this time, he has been warmly received. (Old Senator Langer of North Dakota, an anti-British isolationst, wrote to the Vicar of the old North Church in Boston. It was from this church that Paul Revere got the warning that the British were beginning hostilities—two lights burning from the tower were the classic signal. Senator Langer asked the vicar to hang two more lights so that the American people could be warned of this new British attempt to enslave the American people. The vicar refused.) Mr. Churchill has been cordially received and is now getting down to his mission, first in Washington, next in Ottawa. What is the purpose of his visit?

* * *

It is not alone to get money. Nor is it merely a hands-across-the-sea gesture. It may be partly an effort to re-establish the wartime pattern of personal diplomacy, but Mr. Churchill is aware, and both the Canadian High Commissioner and the American Ambassador have let it discreetly be known, that Mr. Truman is not Mr. Churchill, nor Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. King. What Mr. Churchill seeks is a fundamental understanding on great world issues, the kind of understanding from which all other understandings must come.

* * *

Outstanding issues which trouble the western world may be discussed point by point—and communiques issued have indicated this—but it is the soundness of the Trans-Atlantic link with which Mr. Churchill is chiefly concerned, and an atmosphere of complete frankness and trust which he wishes created. His aim seems to be to set an example of frankness in dealing with the United States and Canada, and secondly to knit the United States into a cohesive North American organization in which Britain's European nature and commitments are recognized. Mr. Churchill is too deeply a European and too great a student of British history to be attempting in Washington and Ottawa to form an exclusive Anglo-American link. In fact, part of the motive for his visit to Washington may be to make the United States conscious of the strain that wavering American politics put on European loyalty in President. l election years, and the necessity to the United States of keeping that loyalty, rather than tossing it about in the domestic rancour of electioneering.

* * *

Mr. Churchill arrives in Ottawa Friday, breaking his Washington conferences for the visit. There is reason to believe that he attaches great importance to the visit, considering that Canada is able to speak loudly and intelligently to the United States. It is a flattering belief.

* * *

Despite the smoke-screen laid down by Downing Street, the White House and Capital Hill, the Churchill mission is considered in all three capitals to be very important. The size of the entourage surrounding Mr. Churchill shows the importance which Britain gives to it. Without United States' aid the British and European economies face a choice of collapse or abandoning re-armament. Without complete frankness and understanding, the entente can be scarred by suspicions and frustrated by conflicts of aims and actions, a condition which Russia is avidly cultivating by its attempts to create discord between western Europe and the United States.

New Grass At Flinders

Australia has had an unheralded immigrant of some importance: pleuropogon Californicus. In English it is called Californian semaphore grass. It made a surprise appearance, being found growing sturdily in a dairy farmer's garden on Flinders Island off the Victorian coast. A specimen was sent to the Victorian National Herbarium for identification. It was identified for what it is, to the surprise of the Herbarium which had no record of seeds of grass being sent to Australia from its country of origin, the U.S.A.

The institution told the farmer that the grass was good for fodder and could be made into hay and chaff. The seeds are being kept, to multiply Californis semaphore grass in Australia, where, as the Flinders farmer has found, it is growing lustily.

Such casual migrations as these change the flora and fauna of a country, not always for good. Canada has suffered from sparrows, starlings, Russian thistle and other pestiferous weeds, bugs, birds and beasts which properly do not belong here at all, but just came. Russian thistle, (a tumbie-weed related to flying pig-weed—note its animalistic relationship) is thought to have come to Western Canada in the chaff of grain shipments from Russia, the seeds leaking across the prairie from box-cars.

Let us hope that Australia will not find pleuropogon Californicus as bad an immigrant as Russian thistle which spread to plague the West; as unwanted as Japanese or Chinese immigrants. Rather, may it be as beneficial as the stray seeds of grain which came out of a Baltic ship in the last century into a Scottish port, and thence to Peterborough to become, under the tutelage of an Otonabee farmer, the Red Fife which grandsired Western Canada's fortune in Marquis wheat.

In Again, Out Again—Canadian

The 1951 census tells us that Canada's present population is 13,893,000. This is not as high a figure as most of us expected. We had talked lightly of something upward of fourteen millions. Nor was our talk sheer guesswork. It was based on the fact that our 1941 population was 11,507,000; since 1941 our natural increase—that is to say, our record of births with the record of deaths subtracted from it—was 1,982,000. And in addition there was the inclusion of Newfoundland in the Confederation, which brought in 348,000 people, and an immigration record of 591,000. Our population ought to have been 14,428,000 when the count was made last year, but it was only 13,893,000. Where are the missing 400,000 people?

They have gone—chiefly, we suspect, to the U.S.A. For every six people who came into Canada, five left us.

And who are they? We see no reason to believe that a considerable number of them were not the class whose abandonment of Canada is so graphically and factually set forth in John Bartlet Brebner's pamphlet called Scholarship For Canada, written in 1945; they are our best-trained, most promising young men and women, who have turned elsewhere for the opportunities which do not exist—or which they believe do not exist—in their homeland. They have gone out of Canada for the rewards and the appreciation which they feel do not await them in Canada.

This exodus is partly owing to our nearness to the most powerful and wealthy country in the world; just as young Scots go to England, young Canadians go to the U.S.A. But that is not the whole answer; there is enough truth in the belief of many young people that they will have a poor chance of doing well in their own country to make us all think about their situation. We Canadians are not an easy people to impress, and we are not quick to reward unusual ability. Not only are we slow with money; we are also slow with praise and honour. We are not too pleased to see our children rising above us; we are apt to be scornful of their new ideas; when they want to liven up the country we are too ready to sneer that they are getting too big for their boots. Is it surprising that so many of them leave us?

The pity is that to a great extent we take in immigrants who have had limited education and whose abilities lie in humble work, and we export highly-trained, intellectually superior young Canadians. And it must be said also that too many Europeans regard us as a depot on their long journey to the U.S.A.

It is up to the government to give some thought to these matters, but it is not a problem for the government alone. Every Canadian who cares for this country would do well to ponder the fact of our slowly increasing population, and the bleeding away of our young people, whom we desperately need at home.

Peterborough Bonds At A Premium

A bag of debentures to pay for the new Collegiate and various civic works totalling $811,767.29 was marketed yesterday morning at a price above par: $100.06. The rate of interest comes to slightly less than 4½ per cent. (4.4973). This is a satisfactory transaction, showing the confidence investors have in Peterborough's financial soundness and future.

As everybody knows, interest rates have risen sharply in the last year, and some municipalities are having to pay more than five per cent interest, and even then their bonds are selling at discounts. Peterborough is fortunate in getting such a good price at the relatively low rate of interest; and doubly fortunate that the bulk of her major new municipal building is completed and financed. Much of this was floated at 2¾-3½ per cent. The days of low interest rates have gone, as economic conditions and government regulations are now—but Peterborough got into her main building program before the rates rose.

A Parisian artist is now producing pictures in fur. They will be remarkable for their "tactile values," at least.

Popularity is pitifully short-lived. So often it is a case of "Hear, hear" today, and "Garn!" tomorrow.

King Idris Of Libya

IN fulfilment of a United Nations decision on the disposal of Italy's former colonies, the United Kingdom of Libya entered the ranks of the world's independent sovereign states on Christmas Eve.

The new state is a federation of the provinces of Tripolitania, Cyrenaica and the Fezzan, formerly under British and French military administration, and will have a dual capital of Tripoli and Benghazi. Its first hereditary monarch is King Mohammed Sayyed Idris el Senussi, formerly Emir of Cyrenaica and leader of the Senussi religious sect.

PERHAPS through a sublimation of repressed republicanism, the English are curiously suspicious about other people's kings. So perhaps it should be said straightaway that the Libyans themselves decided to have a monarchy and chose King Idris as the founder of the dynasty. Monarchy is in the Arab political tradition and King Idris, who is the most eminent living Libyan and the acknowledged secular and religious leader of the people of Cyrenaica, was an obvious choice for the throne.

In any case, King Idris is not the kind of monarch even English radicals need have on their conscience. He will be a constitutional ruler with a parliament and a council of ministers responsible for administering the country. The parliament consists of a federal senate, appointed in the first instance by the King, and a directly elected House of Representatives. Moreover King Idris is a modest and pious man who combines a disinterested devotion to his country's welfare with a friendly attachment to the British and their ways.

KING Idris will rule a kingdom four times the area of France but containing little more than a million people. Most of his realm is a vast desert stretching from the fertile Mediterranean coast down towards the heart of Africa and from the frontier of Egypt to the borders of French North Africa—a desert grimly familiar to this generation of the British Commonwealth. Most of his subjects are poor peasants and nomads with a few score thousand city dwellers on the coast where a series of magnificent ruins records past settlements of Phoenicians, Greeks and Romans.

But poverty is no bar to a love of one's homeland or to feelings about the kind of rulers one prefers. The long and bitter struggle of the Libyans, especially the Senussi tribesmen of Cyrenaica, against the ruthless rule of Fascist Italy, is proof of that. The return and enthronement of King Idris after thirty-two years of war, negotiation and exile thus has something of the romantic quality of a fairy tale intruding into history, an unusual and satisfying instance in international affairs of justice being manifestly done and the rights of the weak vindicated.

THOUGH now a constitutional monarch, King Idris is by ancestry and birth a religious leader. He is a descendant of the founder of the Senussi movement which began as an orthodox religious revival of a puritan type in the late eighteenth century. A Spanish-Arab Emir who had settled near Jebel Senus in Algeria gave it its name. In 1842 the movement came to Cyrenaica and gradually spread among the nomad tribes there. International politics forced it out of its patriarchal ways. In 1911 the Italians attacked Libya, then part of the Turkish Empire, and the Senussi were forced into leadership of their people.

Sayyed Idris became head of the Senussi in 1916. He was not a warrior but a man of simple convictions, of piety and peace. In 1917 he began his efforts to negotiate honourably with Italy. The Italians recognized him as Emir in 1920 but when the Fascists came to power they swept this agreement aside. So in 1922 he was obliged to start on his twenty-one years of exile, while his brother, the famous Omar Mukhtar, stayed to carry on guerrilla warfare against the Italians until he was captured and brutally executed in the enforced presence of thirty thousand of his tribesmen.

IN exile, Sayyed Idris, lived in what, even for a private person, would be poverty, on the desert fringe of Egypt or in Cairo, with a faithful servant, a horse and a few pieces of poor furniture in a small and unpretentious house. Here he bore exile, sickness and the sad news of his country with the same benevolent, courteous detachment that he shows in prosperity today. He still lives by preference in a small house in the country, with his wife, his garden and his friends, and prefers the high uplands of Cyrenaica where his order first settled and the sea air is cool in summer.

He still keeps to traditional Moslem dress, he wears the white woollen Libyan jerd or plaid, the ancestor of which is the ancient Roman toga, or sometimes a rich hooded cloak, over a dark green robe, and on his head the red, tasselled skull cap of Western Islam. He is of middle height, has the long Arab face and wears glasses. An air of gentleness pervades everything about him, his pose, his smile, his high, kind voice and the quiet movements of his hands.

WHEN Mussolini brought war to the Mediterranean in 1940 Sayyed Idris and the then Emir Andullah of Transjordan were the first of the Arabs to offer active support to Britain when few in the Middle East saw victory on our side. His friendship meant the friendship of every Senussi in the Western Desert in the dangerous years that followed. From his house in Cairo a network of messengers spread towards the West and alliance with Britain was confirmed by continued secret intercourse, a commerce of arms, news and resistance, landings on the Axis-held coast, raids inland with the tribes, help for lost airmen and soldiers and our long-range desert patrols, and the formation of Senussi battalions. This is all long over now but the tribesmen's faces still light up at the mention of many an English name.

Sayyed Idris returned from exile to a half depopulated country whose ruins then outnumbered its houses, and found the labours of his ancestors destroyed. The Zawiyas, as the Senussi centres were called, corresponded closely to the monasteries of Christendom in the Dark Ages. In a simple community they acted in the same way, as centres of civilization, prosperity and piety. Almost every one of them had been deliberately obliterated by the Italian Fascists. But King Idris has an impressive absence of rancour and he bears little vindictiveness in spite of the long Italian persecution.

IN 1942 Mr. Eden, then Foreign Secretary, gave Britain's pledge that the Senussi would never again be subjected to Italian rule. But a decision on the future status of the former Italian colonies was held up after the Axis defeat by disagreement among the Great Powers. It was not until November, 1949, that the United Nations Assembly adopted a compromise declaring that Libya should become an independent state by January 1, 1952—a rare example of Great Power bargaining over a territory resulting in the fulfilment of the wishes of the population concerned.

A United Nations Commissioner, a Dutchman named Dr. Adrian Pelt, and a United Nations Advisory Council, composed of representatives of Britain, France, the United States, Italy, Egypt and Pakistan, and delegates from the three provinces and the minorities of Libya, were appointed to supervise the preparation of the country for independence.

MEANWHILE the British Government, tired of waiting, had given Cyrenaica internal self-government and empowered the Emir Idris to enact a constitution for that purpose. In June, 1950, the Emir opened his first parliament, the country's first freely elected assembly since the days of the Greeks and the Romans. In the same month he and his wife paid a visit to England as the guest of the British Government, an experience which he enjoyed and hopes to repeat. Six months later he was formally proclaimed King of united Libya by the inaugural session of Libya's first National Constituent Assembly set up in consequence of the United Nations decision.

As ruler of united Libya, including the more developed province of Tripolitania with its minority of 45,000 Italians, King Idris faces a more complicated task than he had in the compact, largely nomad, State of Cyrenaica, where no Italians were left, and his position as secular and religious leader of the people was unchallenged.

He will, above all, need for his kingdom continued technical and financial help from the United Nations and friendly countries for some time to come if it is not to sink back into a primitive pastoral economy. But he faces these new problems and adventures with the same freedom from anxiety and personal ambition with which he has faced the many vicissitudes of his long life hitherto.

An American Opinion: STATE OF THE UNION

Education Needs The Enquiring Mind

(CALGARY HERALD)

THE Calgary Branch of the University of Alberta is holding an interesting public forum on education and the school curriculum during the winter. M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the C.C.F., was the speaker at the opening meeting.

The sponsors intend to have prominent educationists and laymen, speakers like Andrew Stewart, president of the University of Alberta, and A. H. Gillson, president of the University of Manitoba, appear at these meetings. Open forums of this nature are all too rare these days and when the subject is education, we feel every support should be given to this undertaking.

Mr. Coldwell presented the Socialist view of education in his talk. Education under Socialism becomes the chief means for perfecting a better society. That was his thesis. Now in general terms that is the aim of education under any democratic system, to develop young minds which can cope with the world and improve it. Whether Socialism can do this any better is a questionable proposition. And it is a questionable proposition whether the extreme emphasis on progressive or "democratic" education that we now have, is developing the enquiring mind.

The C.C.F. leader pointed out how in Hitler's Germany and Stalin's Russia education had to conform with the nationalist and materialist aspirations of their hierarchies. Canada, he said, looked to education to reflect the values of a competitive society, and this was not good.

Now this competitive aspect of Canadian education has been attacked before by the progressive educationists who prefer that competition and initiative should be superseded by group action and social-intergation. Lacking this competition of spirit, schools soon reject the competition of ideas, too. Witness what has happened in the breeding ground of progressive education, the United States. The ultimate in this idea-less, uncompetitive view of education was the order issued by the Superintendent of Schools for the state of Indiana, reported in a recent Manchester Guardian.

Explaining that indoctrination of youth as practised in the totalitarian states has not been endorsed in the United States, the official goes on to say that similar indoctrination of "American youth for American Democracy" is needed today for self-protection and to combat the un-American influences at home and abroad. To do this, the superintendent says that "boys and girls in American schools should understand the American meaning" of words and terms relating to government and "should discredit definitions and descriptions used by foreign governments." Further it is "essential that we teach our young people that American democracy is the best government in the world...."

Which kind of education would Mr. Coldwell prefer, our competition of ideas and spirit, or that passive pseudo-progressive acceptance of The Word of Officialdom?

Largest Man-Made Forest

(UNESCO)

The world's largest man-made forest—Kaingaroa, in New Zealand—will shortly supply newsprint under a $30,000,000 project. Planted since 1920, the forest covers 1,000 square miles. In New Zealand's sub-tropical climate, its pine trees have matured more rapidly than in their native California and Oregon. A large pulp, paper and saw-mill to be built at Marupara will have an estimated capacity of 100,000 tons of newsprint, 10,000 of other printing paper and 10,000 tons of pulp. Two-thirds of the output will be available for export.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover? And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. (Matt. 26: 17, 18.)

And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer: for I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God....

And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you. (Luke 22: 14-16, 19, 20.)

The Sleighs Succumb To Traffic

(Montreal Gazette)

One of the most picturesque and attractive features of the downtown city streets in past years has been virtually eliminated by "progress," in the shape of congested traffic and snow-bare asphalt pavements. The horse-drawn sleighs, with harness bells jingling merrily and passengers enveloped in buffalo robes, which took people on drives up the Mountain roads, have largely disappeared.

There used to be a number of stands—at Park and Mount Royal Avenues, outside the McGill gates on Sherbrooke street, and around Dominion Square — where appreciative patrons could climb in for enjoyable drives over snowy streets and through the crisp winter air. Now only a few continue in operation, mostly from the top of Remembrance Road.

Their passing is a matter for regret, and must be especially lamented by older citizens who knew them so well. In other days, children were allowed to choose the colour of their sleigh—scarlet, blue or black and gold—in which they were to be taken for a ride as a "treat." For them and for their elders, an expedition in a sleigh, up the Mountain or to some city destination, had elements of sparkling adventure which cannot be matched by a fast trip in even the most sumptuous taxi.

In these days of constant rush and turmoil it is too bad that the sleighs have had to go along with other more tranquil things of life.

Six Candles Or Two?

(London Observer)

The legality of having six candlesticks rather than two on the high altar in Anglican churches were questioned when the Consistory Court of London met in St. Paul's Cathedral to hear an application in respect of St. George's Church, Southall, Middlesex.

The application was for a faculty for the placing of six candlesticks and a crucifix on the altar at St. George's.

Mr. G. Wigglesworth, for the vicar, said that the altar was destroyed by fire. Certain works had been carried out, including the placing of the crucifix and six candlesticks on the altar. It did not occur to the vicar that there would be any legal difficulty. The Bishop had dedicated the whole scheme.

Mr. Wiglesworth cited the case of St. Saviour's, Walthamstow, where, he said, the Court had proclaimed it legal to have six candlesticks.

The Chancellor recalled that in 1939 six candlesticks were said to be illegal in a case afecting St. Hilary's Church, Cornwall.

The vicar, the Rev. William Jenner, said he had always worked in a church where there were six. It was a question of dignity

The case was adjourned.

"I told you that's what it would be this year. Hundreds of 'em."

Layton Awarded Main Bout Against Bobo Brazil When Negro Butts Referee

Using his head did not pay off for Bobo Brazil in the main mat bout at the Brock last night. The popular colored grappler butted himself into a disqualification but butted Lord Athol Layton, his trainer, Referee Bunny Dunlop and a few others into semi-consciousness before it was over. Layton was awarded the deciding fall in six minutes when Referee Dunlop disqualified Brazil who, enraged at repeated illegal judo slashes by Athol, started butting — even bumping the ref's beano when he tried to interfere. After the gong, he continued to butt all and sundry for several minutes as the big crowd cheered.

Layton had won the second and equalizing fall in nine minutes with his "English Octopus" hold, after throwing Brazil into the ropes and slashing him on the throat as he bounced off. He used a mean softening-up process previously, working in slashes, knees, roughing along the ropes and shaking the protesting referee loose as the fans booed. The colored husky, who scaled 247 to Layton's 260, got in some early licks, but took quite a beating later as the Englishman went for his judo slashes to the jugular at every opportunity. A mild rhubarb developed when the Lord's trainer tried to interfere as Dunlop was untangling Brazil, and Bunny promptly flattened the trainer.

Took the First

Bobo took a popular first fall in 14 minutes when he looked to be in trouble. He had been slashed and pounded right outside the ropes on the ring apron. As Layton went for him again, Bobo shoved his head over the top strand and butted his nibs hard on the forehead. Layton went down and Brazil soared over the ropes and pinned him to the delight of the fans. He was faster and got in some neat grappling at times, but his bigger opponent preferred to rough it from the start, especially with those vicious slashes.

The semi-final between 226-pound Timothy Geohagen and Zorra, scaling 232, went to a 30-minute draw, a hand-shaking draw. They were two nice guys and dished up an interesting but rather boring display of mat science, featured by bridging, feats of strength and some solid armlocks. It was a cold match and the fans could not catch fire, though they liked both grapplers and gave them a hand after the bout. Dunlop got caught in the middle of a few of their pretty even flurries to cause some sadistic chuckles.

Steve Stanlee, 238, and the well-liked 241-pound Bill Stack fought it out to a lively prelim draw. Stanlee was rough from the start while Stack surprised the customers by tearing into his rival and playing it wide-open and rugged, too. Dunlop got a dandy from Steve in the midriff but evened that later when Stack had him tied to the ropes, the pair getting in a few kicks. Bill showed a lot of improvement and the crowd liked this speedy and exciting opening bout.

TORONTO PLACES HIGH HOPES in this trio to cop one or more of the coveted Canadian Figure Skating titles at Oshawa next week. Peter Firstbrook, centre, will defend the men's singles honors and is considered a strong bet for the Olympic squad at Oslo next month. The attractive girls are Barbara (left) and Elizabeth Gratton, two popular sisters who have been prominent in skating in the Queen Ctiy.

Barons Clip Syracuse 8-2

By The Canadian Press.

Cleveland Barons and Pittsburgh Hornets, who clashed in the finals of last season's American Hockey League playoffs, have resumed their hostilities by battling for first place in the western division race.

The Barons captured the final playoff series from Pittsburgh, four games to three, but when the current season began the Hornets turned the tables on Cleveland and got off to a flying start.

However, the resurgent Barons are not to be denied. They sliced Pittsburgh's first-place advantage to eight points Tuesday in defeating Syracuse Warriors 8-2 for their eighth victory in nine games. It was the only game of the night.

Steve Wochy spearheaded the Cleveland attack, scoring three goals to bring his season's total to 22. Gerry Couture registered two tallies and Ken Davies, Eddie Busch and Ike Hildebrand also found the range for the victors. Mike Narduzzi and Bronco Horvath scored for the Warriors.

Toohy May Play For Hamilton Cats

MONTREAL, Jan. 9—(CP)—Ralph Toohy, lantern-jawed end for Montreal Alouettes, may play his football with Hamilton Tiger Cats next season.

Toohy announced Tuesday night he is moving to Hamilton where he will replace Jake Gaudaur as a salesman with a trucking firm. Gaudaur, Tiger Cats centre, has been named sales manager for the Hamilton district.

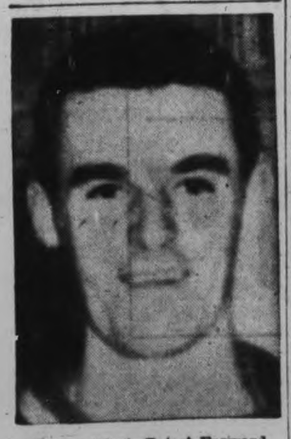
Toohy said he will turn out for Tiger Cats next season and will play for them if he can obtain his release from the Als.

Bancroft Winners

BANCROFT, Jan. 9 (ENS). — Bancroft Timbermen won their first game of the West Hastings-Lennox Juvenile Hockey League when they defeated Madoc Kiwanis by a score of 9 to 0 in Bancroft Monday night. Two hundred fans were present.

Just before the game Madoc lost their regular goaltender, Shaw, who moved with his family to Peterborough, so they had to use the trial and error method to find a suitable replacement. Four goals were scored against Blakely in the first and five against Vindacew in the second. Their third goaltender, Knott, successfully held the fort in the final frame and won for himself a permanent position.

Glen Andrews in the Bancroft net was the star performer of the evening and earned his shutout the hard way. On at least four occasions Nickle made sensational solo rushes, out-distancing the forwards and tricking the defence, but could not get the rubber past Glen.



Bancroft goals were by Severin 3, Coe 3, Bruce 2, and Wiggins. There were only four minor penalties, three of which were given to the local team.

The lineups:

Madoc Kiwanis — Goal, Blakeley, Vindacew and Knott; defence Reid and Smith; centre, Holmes; wings, Cassebo and Mahar; alternates, Billings, Nickle, Gabel, Knott, Fox, Devolin and Vindacew. Manager, Cal Kincaide. Coach, B. Taylor.

Bancroft Timbermen — Goal, Andrews; defence, Whyte and Adams; centre, Severin; wings, Vance and Coe; alternates, D. Martin, G. Martin, Landon, Griggs, Wiggins, Bruce, Agnew, Sprackett, Parnell. Manager, G. McKelvey. Coach, Jack Stuckey.

Tommy Bolt Wins Playoff

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9 (AP).—North Carolina's Tommy Bolt won the rich three-way playoff of the $17,500 Los Angeles open golf tournament Tuesday with a brilliant score of 69 that cracked par by two strokes and the hopes of his rivals, Jack Burke, Jr., and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, for the $4,000 top money.

Turning what had been a tight duel for nine holes into a rout on the way home, the 32-year-old Bolt from Durham wound up two strokes in front of Burke and his par 71, and five ahead of the veteran Harrison's 74.

Bolt, whose first major tournament victory came last October in the north and south open at Pinehurst, uncorked five birdies in a dazzling display of golf on the last nine holes.

He had finished in a tie at 289 with Burke and Harrison at the end of the regulation 72 holes Monday.

Burke and Harrison got a measure of consolation—and even division, by agreement, of the $2,500 and $1,600 second and third place money, or $2,050 apiece.

Lakefield Victors

Mercurys Wallop Dutchmen 6-1 In Sixth Straight Victory

By The Canadian Press.

The hottest team in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A circuit, Owen Sound Mercurys, racked up their sixth straight victory Tuesday night when they trimmed Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 6-1.

In last place less than a month ago, the high-flying Mercs now have a firm grip on fourth place in the six-team group. They are five points back of the third-place Hamilton Tigers and only seven behind the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo club.

Hamilton Tigers and Sarnia Sailors played to a 2-2 overtime tie in the only other Senior A tussle while Kitchener Greenshirts pulled a surprise 6-5 overtime game from second-place Guelph Biltmores in the lone Junior A clash.

At Owen Sound, defenceman Bill Allum led the Mercurys to their 6-1 win with two important goals while Ray McCallum, Roy Leckie, Buck Forslund and Andy Grant added the others. Jim Peraffuss scored the lone Kitchener-Waterloo tally.

Two Come Through

At Hamilton, it was Murray Dunnette and Murray Comfort who came through for Hamilton in the first period while Gus Gosselin and Don Emms scored in the second and third stanzas to give Sarnia their 2-2 deadlock. An overtime session failed to break the tie.

Orv Tessier collected three goals for Kitchener Greenshirts in their 6-5 overtime victory over Guelph. Duke Edmundson, Frank Toyota and Jack Higgins divided the others. Dean Prentice was Guelph's three-goal man while singletons went to Chuck Henderson and Harry Howell.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The Petes, leading the Central Ontario senior "B" puck group nearly all season so far, suddenly find themselves in second place, two points back of Belleville. However, they can climb into a top-place tie tonight here by beating Kingston. Though a win for the K's would hoist that team into lone possession of third spot o'er the Eagles. So, it shapes up as a hard-fought fray with both clubs most anxious to grab off a victory. The race is still plenty close at about the halfway mark, and Kingston and the Petes dish up some dandy hockey of the pattern-play type. The Ellis outfit is a smart passing pack of puckists. Should be quite a crowd on deck for this 8.30 duel.

Al Harvey, a Canadian Press writer in England, last week sent back a story on Bob Greenlaw. Says Bob never knows whether he'll be on hand to play for Harringay in London or not. "That's because versatile Bob, an RCAF flying officer, is always on call for flying duties," writes Al. "He's a radio operator aboard the big RCAF plane used for top Canadian Government and service personalities travelling in Britain and on the Continent. In his spare time he plays right wing for Harringay Racers, an English league composed almost exclusively of fellow Canadians. Up to Christmas, Bob had scored seven goals and assisted in as many others—not bad for a fellow who played in only 11 games.

Robert Gets Around

"Bob is probably the commutingest player in British hockey. He lives with his British wife Olive in a beautiful old house in Oxford, some 63 miles by rail from London. On a hockey trip to the city he makes it in a small English automobile. He is stationed six miles south of Oxford. One recent assignment was to take Defence Minister Brooke Claxton and party from London to Bonn and Hannover, Germany, and then to Rotterdam. Greenlaw, 28, learned his hockey in Perth, and also played for Stratford Kroehlers, Peterborough Eagles and Sydney Millionaires. He served in the RCAF during the war and saw service in France with Mosquito fighter-bombers."

* * * * * *

Yeah, we recall when Bob came here shortly after the war to work for his uncle (Harley Keefer) and play hockey with Legion, later, the Eagles. A fine puckster and a really nice chap to know. Clean-living, popular and very able in athletics. Went in for football, too, here and was a good enough softball pitcher at the Bowl to win the most valuable player award three years ago. But he liked hockey best and probably would have made the NHL after his junior "A" days except for enlisting for war service. Harvey concludes his piece thusly: "So now Bob combines his two favorite pastimes, hockey and flying, and Mrs. Greenlaw, formerly of Watford, Herts, sighs and says: 'I guess I must be his No. 3 love'."

PMHA games at the arena tomorrow eve, starting at six: Lions bantams vs. Otonabee Wolves, SPS midgets vs. Snowbirds, Lakefield juves vs. Marines, Trojan bantams vs. St. Peter's, Trojan midgets vs. Martin-Hewitt, and juvenile Trojans vs. Oddfellows. We note where the OMHA is checking into a recent juvenile free-for-all on Lindsay ice where spectators got into the act when there was no police on hand. Secretary Jack Christie of the provincial body has issued three-point instructions regarding such an occurrence: (1) No games should be played there unless police protection is available; (2) a sign must be posted in the arena warning fans that they will be prosecuted if they go on the ice; and (3) a similar warning will be given over the loudspeaker before the game and during one intermission. Such rules should apply to all hockey games.

Possibly a Negro's head is harder than anyone else's noggin on account of cocoanuts falling from trees in Africa, or something. In any case, they do wear a hard head on their shoulders. Bobo Brazil used his freely toward the end of the main pro mat bout here last night—when angered over repeated slashes by Athol Layton—to down everyone who approached him. But Referee Bun Dunlop (also on the receiving end) took a dim view of it and awarded the bout to Layton. Whilst a large crowd booed. They liked Brazil, as who wouldn't at this time of year? The semi-final and prelim bouts ended in a pair of draws, which sounds quite suitable for January, at that.

Beauty Queen Dies

ATLANTA, Jan. 9 (AP). — Betty Thompson, 19-year-old high school beauty queen whose shattered romance with sailor Tom Amburn touched the heart of North America, lost her battle with cancer Tuesday. She died after a valiant four-year fight against the disease which forced amputation of the leg and caused cancellation of her marriage to her sailor sweetheart of Sioux Falls, SD.

Lach Leading Scorers With 37 Points

Montreal Canadiens won three out of four games during the past week and climbed into a second-place tie in the NHL standings with Toronto Maple Leafs. Each club had 40 points on January 6. Sporting a 12-point lead over Leafs and Canadiens are the front-running Detroit Red Wings with 52 points. The Wings didn't have a particularly good week, however, losing two out of three tilts. New York Rangers, playing inspired hockey under the capable guidance of Bill Cook, won three games during the week and are now located in the fourth spot with 34 points. Boston Bruins are fifth with 31 while Chicago is sixth with 25 points.

Elmer Lach picked up three points and linemate Maurice Richard acquired four to show the way in the National Hockey League individual scoring race. Lach has nine goals and 28 assists for 37 points, while Richard has 21 goals and 15 assists for 36 points. Gordie Howe, of Detroit, is back of the Montreal twosome with 35 points made up of 20 goals and 15 assists. Don Raleigh, of New York Rangers, is next with 33. Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy, of Toronto, are grouped together with 31 points apiece. Johnny Peirson is high scorer for Boston with 11 goals and 18 assists for 29 points. Ted Lindsay, of Detroit, has 28 and Chicago's premier marksman, Bill Mosienko, follows with 27 points.

Leads In Goals

The 21 goals scored by Richard is tops for the season and the 28 assists piled up by Elegenat Elmer Lach rates No. 1 in that division.

Chuck Rayner racked up his second shutout of the season on January 2 as Rangers blanked the Red Wings, 1-0. Gerry McNeil, of Canadiens, garnered his first horse collar of the '51-'52 campaign when he shut out the Chicago Black Hawks, 3-0. Detroit's Terry Sawchuk has the least goals scored against him—66 in 37 games for a 1.78 average. He has seven shutouts, high for the league. Most penalized player is Gus Kyle of Boston with 87 minutes. Most penalized team is Toronto with 379.

Quinte Cagers Take Win Over Marines By 42-36 To Hand Them First Loss

The Marines suffered their first setback in the Bay of Quinte Eastern Ontario intermediate basketball loop when Belleville Glen Roys hustled them throughout the game to eke out a 42-36 victory in the second half.

The loss was the first in four starts for Marines who won the first three in pre-Christmas games with Trenton, Belleville and Picton.

It was also the first game under the new system since Clapper's Bruins, last year's intermediate "A" players, joined hands with Marines. The game was disappointing, as Peterborough cage fans believed that the Marines, since the amalgamation, were one of the strongest intermediate cage teams in Ontario.

An Early Lead

Joe Stewart and Ted Payne in the early minutes broke loose for a barrage of points, building up an 11-point lead for Marines. But the Glen Roys with Soule and McClay leading the way hustled Marines, breaking fast with the result the Roys were 26-23 at half-time.

On the poorly-lit Belleville Collegiate floor, the Roys and Marines see-sawed the lead back and forth in the second half until the Roys again pulled away, this time for 10 points.

Marines then shifted to man-to-man play and cut the lead down to six points. "If we had changed earlier," said coach Gord McIntyre, "perhaps the result would have been different."

Marines suffered their worst loss in the second half when Ted Payne, who has been averaging 20 points a game crashed into the wall, injuring his back. "Payne's out for about three weeks, I guess," said McIntyre today.

Smooth Shooting

No one was sensational on either team but the Roys had their shooting down smoother than Marines to take a slight edge.

Soule, Belleville's star in the first meeting here at the YMCA gym again led the Roys' parade with 10 points with field shots from just outside the keyhole area. His teammate, McClay, a high school student, worked well under the baskets, racking up eight points, generally when most important.

Joe Stewart topped the Marines with his usual colorful style, especially working for rebounds on which he collected most of his points, 10.

Lineups:

Belleville (42) — Hayman 4, Muirhead 2, Summers 6, Soule 10, Batchelor 2, McClay 8, Ketcheson 3, Garrow 5, Watson, Lockyer 2, Dudley.

Marines (36) — Grafstein 4, Trimm 1, Dibben 3, Burns 4, Dadson 1, Northcott, J. Stewart 10, Payne 7, A. Stewart 4, Gillespie, Thompson 2.

Jean Castle Hits 311

Jean Castle rolled high single of 311 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League, as F. Kokesh led in triples with 746. Collis took top single honors for teams with an 1,153 mark, while Outboard Marines were high in pinnage as they hit 3,030. The blind score of 538 went to E. Rishor, who hit it on the button.

Good triples included: L. McClelland and M. Cunningham with 703 each, and P. Hawthorne with 700; neat singles were: M. Cunningham 297, L. McClelland 285, H. Hunt 281 and B. Pogue 276. Marines blanked Dickson's at 2-1 wins were chalked up by Sevenaires over Bassel's, Black's against Collis, Aces over Cardinals, and Curtin's over the Arcos.

Dressen Says Dodgers Start From Scratch

By TED SMITS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP). — Says Chuck Dressen, manager of Brooklyn Dodgers:

"With Don Newcombe out we gotta start from scratch. He won 20 games and we won 96 games, so you take him out and that makes 76.

"We're gonna have all our minor league pitching prospects down at Florida spring training. Maybe we can find two of 'em who can take Newcombe's place. Oh, no one as good as Newk, but with spot pitching maybe two of 'em can do it. Our scouts say Ben Wade is one of those guys.

"Did I make a mistake last year?

"Jackie Robinson says everybody on the club made a mistake. I don't think mistakes were made. We just had lots of bad luck those last five weeks of the season.

"What can we do this year?

"Well, if nothing happens to guys like Robinson, Duke Snyder, Andy Pafko, Roy Campanella and all the rest of those fellows we can field, I don't think anyone can match us.

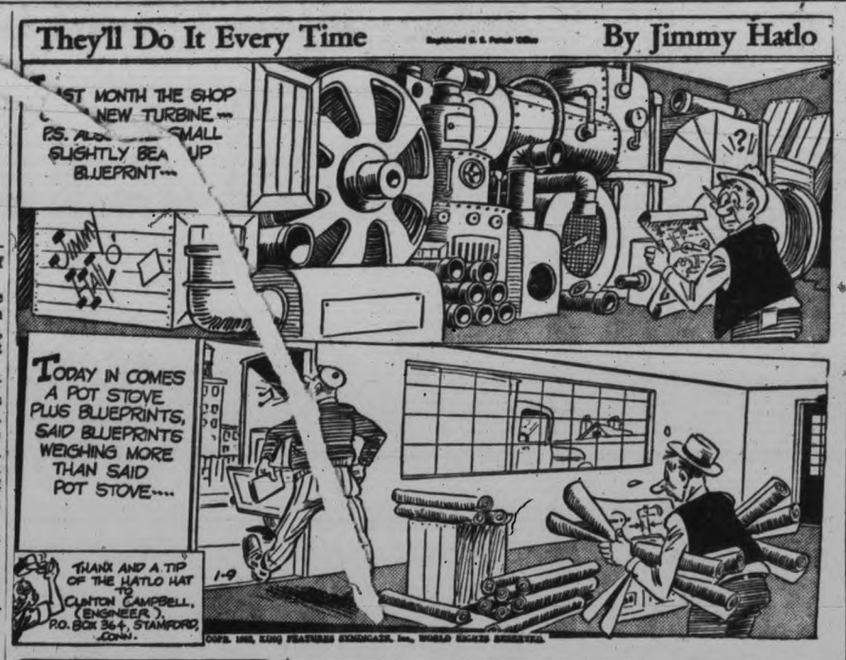
"Sure, I think Campanella ought to have that operation for bone chips, sure, I'm gonna tell him so.

"Am I gonna make predictions like last year?

Got The Blame

"Listen, lots of those predictions last year about the Brooklyn Dodgers weren't made by me. They were made by somebody else. I just got blamed for 'em, that's all.

"Nope, I didn't make any New Year's resolutions about not talking. I just want to go on being myself.



"How are the Dodgers gonna do? I can tell better after spring training. If Newk was in there, it would be a race between two clubs, the Giants and Dodgers — without Newk. . . Who knows?

"Yep, I think Newk can improve. I think he can win 25 games some time."

This was Chuck Dressen, amiable and easy with everyone he knows—Chuck Dressen, who was awarded the New York Press Photographers' Association's first sports award Tuesday night as the most courteous and co-operative person in the field of sports —Chuck Dressen, who didn't win the National League pennant but managed to win a lot of affection in the process.

Bow To Boston Bruins 7-2 Hawks Looking For Corner

By The Canadian Press

Before the National Hockey League season started, Coach Ebbie Goodfellow said that his Chicago Hawks were a 25-per-cent better club than last year. Ebbie must have been speaking with tongue in cheek. Here it is past the half-way mark of the 70-game schedule and Hawks are in that old familiar position—last. They should have stayed in bed Tuesday night instead of going to the Chicago stadium because they lost another, 7-2, to the surging Boston Bruins.

It was the 23rd loss in 37 games and left the inept Hawks with only 25 points and last place, six behind the Bruins who appear to have found the range after a lapse of a couple of weeks which dumped them from a contending spot to an also-ran.

Hawks probably will reach the 36-point total they amassed in the 1950-51 season. And, from this date, the only thing certain in the league appears to be that the Hawks will watch the Stanley Cup proceedings from the sidelines.

Tuesday night's game was a walkover for the Bruins. The Hawks tried desperately and went into the second period in a 1-1 tie but Boston added three each in the second and third stanzas to make it a runaway.

The veteran Woody Dumart, who hasn't seen much action this year, scored twice for the Bruins to bring his lifetime major league total to 199 goals. Other Bruins' goals were scored by Milt Schmidt, Ed Sandford, Jack McIntyre, Bill Quackenbush and Dave Creighton.

Bep Guidolin and Gus Bodnar were Chicago's marksmen.

Only one game is on tap for tonight with Toronto Maple Leafs at New York. The Leafs, in a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens, haven't won a game on New York ice this season and the way Rangers have been behaving of late, it could be the fourth-place Blueshirts might add a couple of points to their 34-total.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Boston Bruins' 7-2 victory over the hapless Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday didn't change the standings of the seven top scorers in the National Hockey League significantly. But, two assists garnered by the Bruins' Johnny Peirson did put him into a three-way tie with Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy of Toronto for fifth place.

Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens continues to lead in points scored, with nine goals and 28 assists for 37 points, closely followed by teammate Maurice (The Rocket) Richard with 21 goals and 15 assists for 36 points. Lach leads in assists and Richard in goals.

Gordie Howe of Detroit follows with 35 points, made up of 20 goals and 15 assists. Don Raleigh is in fourth spot with 33 points, 13 goals and 20 assists.

Currie Charges Railroaded Out Of Job

EDMONTON, Jan. 9 (CP). — Frank Currie says he feels he was "railroaded" out of the job of coach of Edmonton Flyers of the Pacific Coast Hockey League and spokesman for the players said a petition is being circulated to protest Currie's dismissal.

An earlier announcement that Currie handed in his resignation and that he was sick was proven erroneous at a meeting of the Edmonton Exhibition Board, operators of Flyers.

The new facts were disclosed Tuesday night when the board was told that at an afternoon executive meeting the directors had agreed Currie's salary would be paid in full until his contract expires May 30. Currie said he is not sick, refuting an earlier announcement that a stomach ulcer influenced the decision of the former Montreal amateur player.

The full board Tuesday night named James Paul, Exhibition manager, and Lawrence Rye, association president, as temporary co-managers.

It was revealed that a telephone call was made to Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings, of the National Hockey League, and Adams suggested defenceman Doug McCaig be appointed temporary playing coach.

McCaig, who has played for Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks has been team captain.

The spokesman for the players said they are "100 per cent" behind Currie.

Dismissal of Currie (from Guelph), made Flyers the fourth PCHL team to change coaches since the start of this season. It was Currie's fifth season as manager-coach of Flyers.

Every Fight Is A Big One For Boy Now In Top Form

By JOHNNY McCALLUM

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Gil Turner was asked if he believed he was ready to go after Kid Gavilan's world welterweight championship.

"I'll fight anybody," replied the phenomenal 21-year-old Negro from Philadelphia's north side.

"When you get in the top 10 they're all alike.

"You don't worry about any of them.

Gil Turner Kid Gavilan

"But every fight's a big one then."

And so is the money.

After only 18 months, Turner is rated fifth by The Ring magazine. Ahead of him, to editor Nat Fleischer's way of thinking, are Gavilan, Charley Humez, Billy Graham and Johnny Bratton. Humez, a Frenchman, is the European champion.

Turner, one of the more-exciting tigers who has come along lately, gives promise of brighter days in the division.

He made large scores when he dismantled such veterans as Ike Williams, Charley Fusari, Beau Jack and Bernie Docusen.

He is a steely-muscled operative about as skillful as a maddened longshoreman, but he can throw a punch and take one, and he is accustomed to brawls which don't slow down until somebody falls down.

Against plucky Vic Cardell in his Madison Square Garden debut, boxing's rookie-of-the-year looked like one who could be fooled, outboxed and outpointed, but who might stiffen any opponent either by number of punches or with that southpaw hook.

Turner Has Lot To Learn

Turner, youngest of three sons, fights three minutes per round, hits from all angles at all times, and chews up his opponent with the ruminative deliberation of a cow working over yesterday's meal. He hit Cardell with everything but Al Weill's cigar winning nine of 10 rounds.

Gil admittedly has much to learn, but he cannot be too bad. He is unbeaten, has tabulated 22 knockouts in 27 starts. He won 37 straight amateur bouts before turning pro.

Turner is an amiable young man with the marked gentleness of manner characteristic of so many fist fighters, mostly friendly guys who never slug anybody except for pay.

"Gil is deeply religious," confided Willie Reddish, who has been with Turner from the start. "In the dressing room before a fight, he kneels and prays. He asks for strength to put up a good clean fight."

Queried about himself, Turner rambled on, reminiscing, talking slowly, meandering back to an afternoon two years ago.

"I put on the gloves for the first time when I was 18," said Gil. "I had walked into a Police Athletic League gym on Philly's north side.

Reddish Makes Discovery

"Willie, now my trainer, was the instructor there. He took one look at me and kinda laughed.

"'So you think you can fight, eh?' he said. I was kinda flabby, but I weighed about the same as I do now. I told Willie I would fight anybody. He put me in with a guy named Alfonso Capers. I found out later Alfonso was one of Willie's pet prospects. He cleaned my stack good."

Reddish, a large, affable man who used to campaign among the heavyweights, was impressed by Turner's gameness and physical equipment.

"Gil didn't exactly create a sensation," Reddish recalled, "but the fighting instinct was there. And when he wound up from deep left field and socked Capers on the head with that wild left, I knew I had uncovered a real prospect.

"When he won the national AAU welterweight title, we decided it was time to turn pro."

So they went to George Katz, Philadelphia picture-frame man, and asked him if he would manage Turner. Fatz agreed to handle the masterminding.

George Katz had a live one dropped right into his lap.

Roth Leading Scoring Race

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP). — Mickey Roth, the league-leading Stratford Indians' sharp-shooting centre player, continues to lead the Ontario Hockey Association Senior race.

Roth has 35 goals and 45 assists for 80 points in his 33 games to date. Seventeen points behind him is his linemate, Dinny Flanagan, with 19 goals and 44 assists for 63 points.

Ed Stankiewicz holds third place with 60 points from 30 goals and 30 assists in 30 games played with his Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Stratford's Bruce Dale continues to lead the goalkeeping department with a goals-against average of 3.31 in 26 games this season. He has allowed only 86 pucks behind him in scheduled play.

Drew Thinks Canada Should Make Greater Use Of Natural Resources

TORONTO, Jan. 9 — (CP) — Canada stands on the rim of a golden age which could zoom her population to 100,000,000 over the years, George Drew said Tuesday night.

But, said the Progressive Conservative leader, Canada can only fashion that future if she makes the greatest possible use of her own natural resources—particularly iron ore—for industrial development at home rather than shipping them elsewhere, notably to the United States.

He singled out iron ore and its use in greatly-expanded steel production as the crucial factors. The US should get all the Canadian iron ore she needs for common defence purposes, "but every ton of iron ore we export means the export of that much employment, population and wealth at the same time."

In prophetic mood, Mr. Drew told Toronto's Junior Board of Trade Canada has everything necessary to support 100,000,000 people—she has 14,000,000 now—yet five Canadians have left the country for every six immigrants entering in the last 10 years.

Use Own Raw Materials

"The best way to keep Canadians in Canada and at the same time provide profitable employment for those who want to come here is to . . . assure the greatest possible use of our own raw materials in our own country. It is not only employment, but employment at a high wage level which will keep the most ambitious of our young people in Canada."

A self-styled "unrepentant optimist," Mr. Drew said "what is important is that we decide we can support a larger population and make plans accordingly."

He criticized those who scoffed at his earlier prediction that Canada could multiply her steel output four times in 10 years as a key foundation move for the future.

The critics said it would cost $3,500,000,000 to do so, but that didn't discourage him when one considered that Canada's national income last year was six times that.

Iron and steel were the keys to industrial might. Almost limitless discoveries of iron ore beckoned Canadians and confronted them with the challenge of what they would do with it. It was a challenge such as Canadians had never faced—if they accepted it.

One big reason given for constructing the St. Lawrence Seaway was to ship Canadian ore to the US steel mills.

"When it comes to the production of machinery, of steel for construction and of all the other industrial uses for steel our aim should be to produce as much of it in its finished state as is possible right here in Canada."

FO JOSEPH RIVEST, inset, died in this jet fighter wreckage yesterday at St. Hubert airport. Air force accident investigators from Ottawa and from Air Defence Command searched through the wreckage of a jet Vampire aircraft at St. Hubert Airport in Montreal, following the crack-up of the twin-tailed fighter just as it took off last Sunday. The pilot of the plane, FO Joseph Rivest, was instantly killed in the mishap. No information has been given out from the investigating parties.

Vishinsky Losing Some Of Color Also Speaking Little Out Of Turn

PARIS, Jan. 9—(CP)—Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia appears to be losing his sparkle.

One of the first questions visitors to the United Nations Assembly still ask is "Where's Vishinsky?" But the 68-year-old, white-haired veteran Soviet leader isn't putting on that show that brought him into the UN spotlight.

While there is no confirmation from Russian sources, some observers believe his health is slipping. He stayed away from several meetings of the top political committee before Christmas and declined to speak once when his turn came up because he wasn't feeling too well.

And on a couple of occasions, it is believed that Vishinsky wishes he had not spoken when he did. One of these was his now-famous "laughter" at the western disarmament proposal. Vishinsky's original sneering attitude toward that plan was widely regarded as one of the worst recent blunders in Soviet propaganda attempts—and this view was borne out by Russian papers' deletion of Vishinsky's remarks on this topic from their accounts of his speech.

Besides, Vishinsky in subsequent statements toned down his attitude and tried to give the impression Russia seriously studies all western proposals.

The old Bolshevik may also have been speaking out of turn as far as the Kremlin is concerned when he hinted that Communist China might take action in the near future along the borders of Indo-China and Burma. Vishinsky was accusing the United States of building up Nationalist Chinese forces on those borders and the Russian spoke as though he expected there will be military action in that area soon which would resemble the Korean war.

Even in the field of proverbs where Vishinsky has always excelled, he now slips into pitfalls which allow his debating adversaries to get in a few digs.

External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada caught the Russian up when he referred to the people of Canada preferring buffalo to horses for pulling carts. And Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd of Britain gave Vishinsky a hard time when he revealed that a proverb that Lloyd had quoted and Vishinsky had branded as not Russian and stupid besides, was in fact of Polish origin.

THE LAST ROUNDUP—Sanitation department trucks and men today began the one-day task of collecting the more than 4,000 used Christmas trees from the city homes. From 7 a.m. until late today the trucks, piled high with trees, will be heading towards the North Monaghan dump where they will be burned. A small mountain of trees (above) was collected by 10:30 a.m. and smoke began to bellow from the mass. But then only a small portion of the total number had been collected; the streets were still spotted with trees. —Examiner Staff Photo

Plans Studied For New School

Preliminary plans for the MacFarlane Avenue school in Ashburnham were approved by the accommodation committee of the Board of Education on Tuesday night. The architect J. B. Perkin was present and instructed to prepare working drawings and specifications. Tenders will be called in March and it is hoped that the building can be started in May.

The plans call for an eight-room school, kindergarten, play-room and administration space. The eight rooms will run on the north-south axis along McFarlane Ave. while the kindergarten and play-room will be on the east-west axis and to the north end of the first section. Advantage is being taken of the slope in the land on the site and the playroom will be placed under the kindergarten. The rest of the building will be of one-storey construction without basement. The playroom will serve as a place for the children to gather on stormy and wet days before school and during recess.

Radiant heating will be installed and oil will be used as fuel. For some years the committee has been studying radiant heating in schools and it has from investigation found that installation and maintenance are both less than for the ordinary type of heating Schools have been visted and it was found that in them there was a more even heat and the whole atmosphere was fresher.

Four of the classrooms will be for juniors and each of these will have separate toilets, while the other four will be for the intermediate grades.

Christmas Trees Collected Sent To Dump For Burning

Trucks piled high with old used Christmas trees wound their way through the city streets today, similar to a picture a month ago when trucks piled high with freshly-cut trees filled yards and lots in the city for Christmas sales. Today's trip was the finale to the Christmas season for the Christmas trees because the trucks were headed to the city dump where more than 4,000 were expected to be burned today in the sanitation department's annual Operation Christmas Tree.

Unhampered by garbage collection (Wednesday is a free day for the department, only the restaurant and hotel garbage collected) the sanitation department, began to collect the trees at 7 a.m. The streets then were dotted on both sides with trees out for collection.

Eight Trucks

A fleet of eight trucks, two belonging to the parks department, were handled and loaded by 24 men as they circulated throughout the city. Soon the first loads began to arrive at the North Monaghan dump and since then the trucks have been streaming back and forth.

At noon today, although the trees were beginning to form a small mountain at the dump, the city streets, especially in the south, west and central districts, still were spotted with Christmas trees.

Operation Christmas Tree meant a 12 to 14-hour day for the department's men.

Despite several days warning to have the Christmas trees out for the special collection today, many people didn't have their trees out in time. In some cases where the trees had been dumped out or stood up on lawns, the trees were taken anyway.

The practice of standing the trees in snow resulted in one humorous incident early during the collection on north Water St.

A resident had placed his old tree at the side of the entrance into his home; it was opposite another tree firmly rooted to the ground. The men picking up the trees, easily scooped the old Christmas tree out of the snow, but had some difficulty with the other tree before they realized that it wasn't meant for collection.

The practice of collecting the Christmas trees all on one day was started several years ago when the increase in the number of trees caused confusion during the general garbage collection.

PRESBYTERY MEETING.

The Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church of Canada is being held today in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Approximately 18 ministers from Colborne to Bowmanville and north to Lakefield are attending the morning and afternoon sessions.

Expect Excess Of 74 Pupils

With a present enrolment of 914 children at the Prince of Wales public school the accommodation committee of the board of education has been advised by Superintendent K. S. Wightman that crowded conditions will exist in September.

At present there are 22 classrooms with an enrolment of 777, there are 121 children in the kindergarten and 16 in the auxiliary class. In June 84 will graduate from Grade VIII and 121 students from the kindergarten will move into Grade 1. There will also be a transfer of 30 children from May's school who will be entering Grade VII. May's can only accommodate the kindergarten and first six grades. This will give an attendance in September at Prince of Wales 844 or with 35 children to the classroom an excess to be accommodated of 74.

At the Confederation school Mr. Wightman has indicated that the present enrolment in the 11 classrooms is 401 with an additional 84 in the kindergarten to form a total of 485. There will be 34 graduated in June from grade VIII and this will leave an expected attendance of 451 without kindergarten. The new addition to the Grove school will permit 40 pupils to be transferred to that school leaving 411 at Confederation or an excess of 26.

City Takes Middle Course

Progressive Or Old Style Education Best For Child?

By DAVE WHITE

The big educational controversy in Toronto about the new type of public school report card has no echo in Peterborough. But it's the No. 1 topic of conversation among teachers at the moment.

Criticism broke out recently at the annual convention of Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. George Roberts, president of the OSSTF, said the report cards were the result of "pseudo psychology gone mad."

This all came out against a larger background of dissatisfaction by some educationalists with the present trend of teaching in Ontario. They feel that the child is being sheltered more and more from competition with his schoolmates and will ultimately find it hard to adjust himself to the harsher dog-eat-dog existence of the workaday world.

The Toronto-type report cards are a case in point, argue the dissenters.

These report cards do not give percentage marks on a subject. Instead the pupil is marked in one of three alphabetical categories—O, S or U (Outstanding, Satisfactory or Unsatisfactory).

Judged On Capability

Instead of a single yardstick for measuring the pupils' progress there are as many yardsticks as pupils. In other words, each pupil is judged according to his own capabilities.

A pupil who can coast through arithmetic problems might get 80 marks on a paper out of 100 but still be classed as "U" by the teacher who feels he can do better. On the other hand a slower learner might get "S" for 50 marks. This would indicate the teacher feels he is doing as well as he can.

Pupils are also given the O-S-U grading for personality development, social attitude and a sense of responsibility.

"The apparent theory behind the system is to eliminate classroom competition through comparative marking and thus remove the feeling in a child that he is a success or failure in relation to his fellows," said the Toronto Secondary School Teachers' Federation, backing up the parent body.

Dr. William Blatz, child psychologist at the University of Toronto, gave an opposite view last week when he advocated abolition of report cards, prizes, competition and corporal punishment from schools.

That whipped the controversy up anew.

William Rogers, Sarnia's education director, said report cards are a must in Canada's educational system.

Must Face Failures

"If a child doesn't learn to face up to failures and successes in school, he'll never be able to cope with them when he gets into the workaday world," said Mr. Rogers.

The new report cards are used in Toronto, East York, St. Thomas, Western Canada and the United States.

However they have not been adopted in Peterborough.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said that in educational matters Peterborough is neither ultra-conservative nor ultra-progressive. The judgment here is pragmatic: if a teaching experiment is successful, and beneficial to the pupil, it is adopted; theories come and theories go but the everyday work of teaching Peterborough's 4,600 public school children must go on.

Some Experimenting

There has been some experimenting with report cards here, said Mr. Wightman.

Some years ago the listing of pupil standing on report cards and their percentages on various subjects was abolished. Instead a system of grading—A-B-C-D—was introduced.

The catch here was that many of the parents didn't understand the alphabetical symbols. So about six years ago the Peterborough public schools went back to listing the marks each pupil got on a particular subject.

However there was this difference: the relative standings were done away with and a much larger space was reserved for the teachers' comments.

In that way the parent could see his child's percentage mark, based on achievement," said Mr. Wightman, "and at the same time the substantial place for the teacher's comment let him see whether the child was doing as well as could be expected."

The comment section of the report gives the teacher ample scope to point out that even though Johnny made 80 marks in arithmetic it is no case for parental satisfaction; the lad could probably have got 90 or more if he had worked a little harder. At the same time it allows another parent to know that, just because young Freddy got 40 marks in arithmetic, the remedy isn't an angry slap across the backside. Freddy may be a slow learner, or the work may be beyond him.

In both events the parents have the basic facts and their interpretation by the one best qualified to know.

Personal interviews between teachers and parents supplement this written report on the child.

Favors Competition

On the more general subject of classroom competition, Mr. Wightman says he is all for it. But the problem is to get genuine competition.

First of all, children in the primary grades don't understand competition so they are out.

And beginning with Grade IV, Mr. Wightman finds, there is a spread in learning ability that covers several grades. Is it true competition for a child (finding it hard going in Grade V) to match percentages with another pupil who is capable of doing academic work in Grade VII?

Mr. Wightman stresses that there is more than just academic work to be considered when competition is discussed. Writing and arithmetic are important, but not more important than the all-round development of the child: the forming of his character, his ability to work with and get along with others, his progress toward maturity; in short, his education for good citizenship.

Learn Limits

"We want the pupil to learn to the limit of his ability. Just because he is slow we don't want to disguise the fact; we don't mark him on effort alone. But there is more to schooling than academic achievement.

"If a child is doing his best we don't want him pilloried as a failure," said Mr. Wightman.

Mr. Wightman doesn't think that the "good old days" of teaching were better. Nor that pupils are now more pampered.

"We're getting, in most departments, just as much effort and application and just as much achievement as we ever did," he said.

31 Old Age Pensions Paid By Government Will Save Peterborough $3,200 Yearly

The government's old age pensions which came into effect Jan. 1 will relieve the city's welfare account of an estimated $3,200 a year. This is the immediate prospect, Welfare Officer A. G. Metheral said today.

The number of persons whose names are being transferred from the city's welfare list to the government's dispensation was last counted at 31. There may be a few others.

"The advantage to the city is not $3,200 net," Mr. Metheral said. "Circumstances of illness and disability have added a few names to our list, and also the welfare allowance has been increased with the cost of living.

The welfare total for December was $5,000. That is the first month in years since we have disbursed that amount."

Veteran Guide Thomas Curvin Dies At Home

One of the best-known guides in the Kawarthas, Thomas Elmer (Tom) Curvin, 747 Water St., died suddenly Tuesday at his home.

He was one of the early boosters of the Kawarthas, and it has been said that he was responsible through his guiding for the capture of more large muskies and bass than any other guide in the district.

He often told anglers of the last salmon caught in the Kawarthas —in Clear lake about 1922. And he claimed salmon were still in the lake.

Top Bowler

Tom Curvin was well known also for his bowling prowess, having once bowled a perfect game and won many trophies. He was a member of the Peterborough Bowling Club and of several championship bowling teams.

Born in Fenella, he was a son of the late Ethan Curvin and Amy White, and had lived in Peterborough for the past 35 years, coming here from Campbellford.

In tourist season, he operated Clearview tourist camp at Young's Point, and trapped in fur season.

Surviving are his widow, the former Orpah Frederick, one son Allenby, of Peterborough, three sisters and four brothers.

Funeral service will be held Friday at 2 pm at the Kaye funeral home. The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian church will officiate and burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

$1,000 Raised For Air Cadets In Radio Show

The Peterborough RCAF Association's present project of raising money for the city's air cadet squadron received overwhelming support as a result of a full evening's radio show Tuesday night.

The association is raising funds for cadet activities this year by raffling off a two week all expense trip to Miami, Florida, with the draw to be made at the Air Force Ball Jan. 18.

Tuesday's radio show took the form of a request program with each request to be paid for by a dollar which also brings a chance for the Florida trip.

Russ Baer, CHEX manager, who is in charge of the project, said today that the radio show was a much greater success than expected. More than $1,000 was raised through the program.

The air cadets were organized in Peterborough last fall. At present there are 110 cadets in the squadron.

Tuesday night's radio show also included draws for prizes. The following were the prize winners:

Frank Marino, George St.; Donald Manley, RR 5, Peterborough; Mrs. Max Ramsy, 620 Monaghan Rd.; A. PeopleMustPray With Humility

Capt. J. D. Sharp of the Salvation Army and the Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints Anglican Church were the special speakers at the first service of Peterborough's week of prayer held in George St. United Church, Tuesday night.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church conducted the service.

Capt. Sharp gave an exposition of the parable of pharisee and the publican to illustrate his theme—the spirit of prayer. The speaker stressed humility as the main requisite of prayer.

Must Have Quiet

Mr. Poole gave a short address on how to pray or the practical methods of improving prayer. He said that a quiet time was essential in the life of a Christian and that prayer must take place in quiet away from the business and strain of every day living.

Mrs. James Goldie was soloist accompanied by Charles Allen, organist.

The week of prayer is sponsored by the Peterborough Ministerial Association. Two services will be held tonight, one in Mark St. United Church and the other in St. George's Anglican Church.

New Canadians' Art To Be Shown In City

The collection is sponsored by the Gallery.

Fifty-six of the 106 paintings selected for the exhibition now are showing at Hamilton Public Art Gallery. The full group will appear in Toronto in February and the smaller collection then will go to Peterbobrough and Oshawa.

City Bonds All Sold In One Hour

Happy Transaction Says Treasurer; Brought City Premium

The syndicate of brokers that purchased Peterborough's $811,767.29 debentures Tuesday disposed of the entire issue in an hour, City Treasurer C. S. Couper said today.

"So, it was quite evidently a happy transaction all around," Mr. Couper remarked.

City council authorized acceptance of the top bid at $100.06 shortly after 11 o'clock, Tuesday. Later in the day, Mr. Couper in a long distance conversation learned that the debentures were all taken up in an hour.

"I think the bond houses know pretty well beforehand where to find buyers," he said. "And, in this case unless you had an order in beforehand, probably you couldn't get any, or only little of it."

Wanted More

Some Peterborough people like to buy their own city bonds. One man had $15,000 to invest for a small trust. He managed to get $10,000 of the issue.

Mayor Waddell had an earlier engagement than usual at his office today. He was there at 9:30 am. His comment was that the resale of the debentures afforded additional proof of the soundness of Peterborough's credit. His Worship said he was sure all the citizens appreciated that fact, and would continue to do their part in maintaining it.

The list of works for which the debentures were sold, as published Tuesday, inadvertently omitted a Board of Education item of $65,000. That sum was the extra amount the Board found to be necessary for the new Kenner Collegiate. The main part of that work cost is estimated at $585,000. So, the total money borrowed for the Board is $650,000. Then there is $100,000 for the Utilities Commission, and two small sums for the council to make up the rest.

TB Seal Returns Disappointing

The returns from the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association Christmas seal campaign are very disappointing, Robert Arnold, treasurer, said at the association meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. Arnold reported that only $4,800 had been received so far—$500 less than what was received at this time last year.

"I estimate that our total receipts won't be more than $5,200," he said.

The treasurer went on to explain that the budget for this year's TB prevention activities was set at $6,600 and as a result the association would be faced with a considerable deficit at the end of the year.

Despite this threatening deficit, the members decided to proceed with prevention plans. Most important will be the mass X-ray survey of Peterborough county to take place in the spring.

It was announced that the Junior Chamber of Commerce had again agreed to organize the survey.

Laughton Brings Classics Closer To Public

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9—(AP)—Many people complain about the lack of morality in American life, but few do anything about it.

One of the exceptions is Charles Laughton. It seems strange casting the portrayer of Henry VIII and Captain Bligh as a moralist in real life. But it is true, even though Laughton would deny it publicly.

In fact, he won't allow a reporter to quote him about current reports of immorality in the US social make-up. A cautious fellow, Laughton dislikes controversy and does not want to offend anyone. About the only thing he will say is, "People are learning that dollars do not mean morals."

While he refuses to preach, Laughton is putting his beliefs into action. In the last three years, he has travelled throughout the United States, bringing classics and their moral values to all kinds of audiences.

Laughton is playing a film role (in "The Full House") in between engagements with the classics. He just concluded a triumphant one-month stand in New York with George Bernard Shaw's "Don Juan In Hell," along with Charles Boyer, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Agnes Moorehead. And he leaves soon for another tour on which he reads the Bible, Shakespeare and other ancient and modern classics.

Laughton feels his tours may have demonstrated a widespread thirst for the classics and the moral values therein. The "Don Juan" tour of American and Canadian cities has been a great success.

"Don Juan" is delivered before microphones with the players supposedly reading their parts. "There are no sets, no costumes and no action," Laughton explained. "Everything depends on the voice. For that reason, it is one of the most exhausting roles I have ever played."

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Jan. 9 (CP)—Survival of the sterling area as one of the world's great collective economic systems wil be a major objective of Commonwealth finance ministers at next week's conference.

The meetings open Tuesday. They represent another effort by Britain and associated countries, under circumstances perhaps more urgent than any yet encountered, to prove that the pound sterling really can stand up on its own hind legs.

Although British officials naturally discourage suggestions that the fate of the sterling bloc may hinge on this conference, it is clear that some constructive action may result from these or subsequent talks. Things cannot go on as they are. As Britain has just announced, the gold and dollar reserves dropped more sharply in the last months of 1951 than ever before. They now are near the danger level.

Thus the conference has been called, as Whitehall says, "to produce a pattern of action which will convince the outside world that the sterling area is going to solve its problem and that sterling is going to remain a sound international currency."

That statement, less interesting for what it says than for its implications, has been accompanied by some worried editorial comment. The Manchester Guardian, although saying there will be little talk of the sterling bloc breaking up, admits that if the deficit were to continue at the late-1951 rate the gold reserve would disappear within nine months.

The Weekly Economist takes so serious a view that it feels compelled to raise the extremely delicate question of individual Commonwealth contributions to the common cause.

"If some of the Dominions carried a more adequate share of the rearmament burden," says the Economist, "there would be less likelihood of an undesirably-rapid running down of the sterling balances."

This is a reference to the sterling credits which Britain, as banker and middleman in the sterling system, holds in London for other countries. India, for instance, has a large credit in London but steadfastly refuses to enter on an elaborate armament program.

One of Britain's main appeals at the conference will be for countries such as India to go easy on their claims for sterling. Coupled with this will be a request for the sterling countries as a whole to cut their spending and increase their earnings.

Times Change

Historically, the conference is a reflection of an economic climate that has changed considerably since the days of British commercial supremacy. The sterling system, which includes all Commonwealth countries except Canada, plus Iraq, Iceland, Jordan, Burma and the Irish Republic, grew up informally in the 19th century, when the pound was paramount at home and abroad.

Now the outward manifestations of Empire remain but the financial foundations are unsteady.

Canada may enter the conference with a superb detachment, as the only dollar country present (and one whose reserves are rising instead of falling) but there will be no lack of appreciation of the British, and to a lesser extent the sterling-area, problem.

237,100 Jobless In December Jumps 29,100 In Two Weeks

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 — (CP) — Though December employment remained at record levels, the number of jobless moved up 237,100 at Dec. 13 the Labor Department reported Tuesday. The unemployment rise was 29,100 in a fortnight.

The department attributed the rise to customary winter layoffs, largely a slackening in construction work. It was accompanied by strong demand for labor in the logging industry, entering its most active period.

The mid-December unemployment figure—based on applications for jobs on file with National Employment Service—was 30,000 more than a year ago. At the same time, there were 37,000 unfilled vacancies registered with NES.

Applications for employment in Ontario increased from 72,900 to 79,200 in the first two weeks of December. The total at the end of the period was about 28,000 above 1950 levels, due chiefly to layoffs in manufacturing industries. There was a good demand for clerical and sales workers. Some loggers were being taken on, although the larger part of the labor force required had already been hired.

Continued unemployment among workers laid off from consumer goods plants was augmented by seasonal staff reductions from the construction industry. However, vacancies for qualified machinists, toolmakers and die setters continued to outnumber applications for this work. The main occupational groups in which large labor surpluses existed at Dec. 13 were construction workers, 10,200; service workers, 8,800; primary textile and clothing occupations, 5,400 and workers with no specific skills or experience 11,500.

Following is a breakdown showing figures for Nov. 29, 1951, in brackets:

Adopt New Law

QUEBEC, Jan. 9 (CP). — The Quebec Legislative Assembly on Tuesday adopted a law which, through interprovincial agreements, will make it possible for a woman to seek maintenance from her husband although he resides in another province.

Withdraw Charge

WHITBY, Jan. 9 (CP).—A woman who said her husband had threatened to kill her with a butcher knife and tried to bury their five-year-old daughter in a snowbank Tuesday persuaded Magistrate Frank E. Ebbs to withdraw a charge of threatening against him. Frank Woodall, 26-year-old bricklayer, volunteered to be placed on the prohibited list for liquor and beer after police chief L. W. Trinnell said he had "acted like a maniac" when arrested by officers following his wife's complaints.

In Critical Condition

DETROIT, Jan. 9 (CP).—Police in suburban Royal Oak Tuesday held 59-year-old Sam Kekaha, whom they accused of strangling his estranged wife and then trying to commit suicide by swallowing a mixture of rat poison and lye. A Hawaiian, he is in critical condition in a Detroit hospital.

Suspended Sentence

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP)—Norman Fisher of nearby Alderwood, charged with assaulting his 20-year-old daughter because she read the Toronto Daily Star, Tuesday was given suspended sentence. Fisher testified he banned the reading of the newspaper in his home prior to the Nov. 22 provincial election because he wasn't in sympathy with its editorials.

Mayors To Meet

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 (CP).—The 1952 conference and annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities will be held in Calgary June 29-July 2, it was announced Tuesday.

Gas Strike Danger Ends, Get Agreement

TORONTO, Jan. 9 — (CP). — Residents who heat their homes with gas were breathing easier today.

The threat of a gas strike, which hung over Toronto for nearly a month, seemed all but gone. A strike of 700 gas workers in the city was averted by an agreement reached Tuesday between the Consumers' Gas Company and the International Chemical Workers (AFL-TLC).

It remains now for the union membership to ratify at a Sunday meeting the settlement to which its negotiating committee has agreed.

Labor Minister Daley and Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer for Ontario, who conducted the negotiations, gave no details on the terms.

The disputants appeared far apart when they started the talks Monday. The union had demanded a 10 per cent wage increase (about 13 cents an hour), a cut in weekly working hours from 42 to 40 without loss of pay, and additional increases for tradesmen and skilled workers.

The company had refused to move beyond the majority report of a conciliation board which rejected the wage increase demand, but suggested that half the cost-of-living bonus now paid be incorporated into the base rate.

A strike would have cut off gas for cooking and heating from 175,000 homes and closed many restaurants without alternative means of cooking.

Won't Take Action

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 9 (CP).—City council, in its first business session of the year, Monday night, in effect, refused to take action on a resolution by 1951 council requesting Judge A. H. Dowler to conduct an investigation of circumstances surrounding finding of fake ballots on a downtown street a few days after the Dec. 10 elections. But councillors did not cancel the 1951 request, thus leaving Judge Dowler with instructions to hold a hearing, but with no help from the city.

Woman Leaves Party May Give Red Data

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 (CP). — The Gazette says today in a news-page story that police may obtain information about Communist underground activities here following the resignation of a woman, said to have been a prominent party member for six years.

The woman, Mrs. Doris Groulx, is reported to have been expelled from the suburban Verdun Labor-Progressive Party Club, the paper says, for anti-working class activity.

Mrs. Groulx said only: "I was not expelled. I resigned."

The story says Mrs. Groulx fell under suspicion of being a police agent and was "tried." She was threatened with physical violence if she did not reveal details of the police spy net.

Police, meanwhile, had no comment on the report.

Ordered Acquitted

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP). — Three Brantford men, convicted last Oct. 25 on three separate charges of keeping common gaming houses, were ordered acquitted Tuesday when the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled evidence insufficient to warrant convictions. Ross Papple, operator of the Brunswick billiard parlor, Hartley Fulcher, who owns the Devon Lunch, and Steven Comicky, who runs the Sunset Inn, all had been fined $100.

Adjudicator Says Theatre Can Strengthen Unity

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA, Jan. 9 (CP) — The play is a costly thing, but it can be a bond to strengthen national unity and friendship.

So believes Pierre Lefevre, veteran British actor and stage director, making his initial appearance in Canada in the role of adjudicator of Canada's 13 regional drama festivals.

He starts his three-month, cross-country tour tonight. And he begins with the feeling, he said in an interview, that Canada, in her desire to promote national unity, would do well to concentrate on development of a national theatre movement.

The 37-year old former member of London's famous Old Vic theatrical group, as does Vincent Massey, in his massive royal commission report on arts in Canada, believes that it would do little good to build a structure in Ottawa and call it the national theatre.

What should be done, he said, is to concentrate small local companies in various comunities, subsidized if need be, but subsidized sparingly and only to produce "what is good."

Once trained, these companies should be given the opportunity to tour the country, to spread the breath of understanding and community feeling among Canadians, to bring French plays to English ears and English plays to French ears.

A veteran actor who has toured the European continent with English plays, and a bilingual whose French is as excellent as his English, Mr. Lefevre said that sometimes a well-trained act and well-turned comical gesture can bring laughter even from those who do not understand the language.

"And it brings with it, too, a guage and to become better acquainted with the people who speak it."

He said he realized, of course, that Canada's geography provided a financial barrier to cross-country tours, but it is not an insurmountable barrier. The "splendid development" of the Dominion Drama Festival movement was an example of what could be done.

National tours not only promoted national unity and comradeship but broadened the outlook of the actor and gave him more confidence.

Mr. Lefevre leaves for Vancouver tonight to adjudicate his first Canadian stage performance there Jan. 16. Later he will judge festivals at Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Peterborough, Hamilton, Toronto, Moncton, Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Charlottetown, St. Stephen, NB, and Cornerbrook, Nfld.

He plans to return to Britain and new theatrical adventures after the tour.

BC Coalition Break To Be Delayed Indefinitely

VANCOUVER, Jan. 9—(CP)—Manoeuvres aimed at terminating almost immediately the coalition of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives which has guided British Columbia since 1941 were defeated here Tuesday.

But Premier Byron Johnson promised those who want the Liberals to stand alone that the party's fate within the coalition will be threshed out at a full-scale general convention to be held before June 30.

The meeting of the Liberal Party executive was climaxed shortly before adjournment with the resignation of Harry Perry, of Victoria, as president of the BC Liberal Association.

The resignation, which Mr. Perry said was "primarily" for health reasons, followed a bitter verbal battle with the Premier.

Premier Johnson left little room for doubt that his party is in favor of divorcing the Conservatives, but not before the session of the legislature which begins Feb. 19 is concluded.

Will Be Separate

"There is no question but that we are going to the country in the next election as Liberals and Progressive Conservatives," he said. "The voting machinery is set up for it."

He refused to accept a resolution calling for the termination of the coalition "immediately following" a convention to be held before the end of February.

He said if the party decided to break coalition before the legislature session he would call a general election because it would be "impracticable" to do anything else.

The Premier attacked Mr. Perry for making statements to the press that he (the Premier) was selling out BC and that the Liberal cabinet ministers were "weak-kneed."

Another advocate of an early break in the coalition was Fisheries Minister Mayhew, who said: "Coalition has been a good government, but now we have a fast horse and a slow horse together, and the fast horse is tired of carrying the load for the slow one."

Must Speak Out Women Advised

TORONTO, Jan. 9 (CP).—Agnes Macphail says if women are going to take their places alongside men in public life and organizations "They will have to stop being shrinking violets and speak up."

Participating in an Ontario Federation of Agriculture panel discussion Tuesday on "Women's Place in Farm Organizations," Miss Macphail said women will have to think and express their convictions honestly, without fear of what others may say.

Canada's first woman member of parliament and in public life for more than 30 years, Miss Macphail said issues that used to be considered only women's are now coming to the fore and are "being hogged" by men. She cited welfare work as an example.

Kingsley Brown of Toronto said there is great need for women in farm organization work and they have made a substantial contribution where they have served. But "the difficulty is they are generally counted upon to look after more mundane matters. When it comes to sitting down to discuss farm policy, the women just aren't there."

League Scolds Princess At Hunt

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP). — The League Against Cruel Sports went gunning for Princess Margaret again Tuesday—because she likes to take in the occasional fox hunt.

The Princess, now holidaying in Scotland, went to a meet of the Buccleuch Hounds Monday. Tuesday the league's executive committee passed a resolution regretting that she should "grace with her presence a form of amusement which a larger and ever-increasing number of British people hold in detestation."

Last year—almost to the day—Margaret was scolded by the league for watching another hunt from the back seat of an automobile.

St. James' WMS Reports Fine Year

A good attendance marked the new year meeting of St. James WMS held Tuesday afternoon in Wesley Hall.

Mrs. G. Hewitt presided and opened with an appropriate poem. This was followed by a hymn of consecration for a new year of service. Mrs. E. M. Davis led in prayer.

Being the annual meeting the work of the past year was reviewed in the secretary's report.

Treasurer Mrs. R. B. English announced $406.86 had been sent to the Presbyterial treasurer. From gift boxes and the associate members' department, $60.20 was realized, as reported by Miss M. Morton.

Early in the year, the Auxiliary responded to a call for good used clothing from Thornloe, and three valuable bales were sent. Later six new sweaters, several gifts and a quantity of good used clothing was sent to an Indian girls' residential school. At Christmas 13 pairs of mittens and some gifts were sent to the Church of All Nations, Toronto. Mrs. W. K. Sloane was supply secretary.

Mrs. G. H. Rowe, reporting for community friendship, said 106 home and hospital calls had been made and 78 cards of remembrance sent out.

The Rev. H. McCormack conducted the installation of officers for the coming year.

Considerable new business then called for attention. Mrs. L. Bird and Mrs. H. F. Doig were appointed delegates to the annual Presbyterial meeting in St. Andrew's Church Jan. 22.

The offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. Hewitt who then closed the meeting with a hymn and benediction.

Calls Fashions "Hysterical"

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP). — A housewife told a gathering of top retail merchandising experts today that contemporary women's fashions are "hysterical."

And that the legwork involved in shopping is "terrific."

In a speech prepared for delivery at today's session of the National Retail Dry Goods Association annual meeting here, Mrs. Dorothy E. Swenson of Great Neck, NY, said:

"There is no development of style in the grand manner of the storied past. We don't have historical fashion any more; now it's hysterical."

The speaker who said her present housewifely status followed a 30-year career in fashion advertising and merchandising, said the fun of shopping has been spoiled because there's too much legwork.

What women want, she added, is a central merchandise market, where they can find out where they can buy the clothes they want in the right size and color.

Business part of the meeting occupied most of the time but the Club's year projects were discussed as well. The annual Spring Tea and Clothing Exchange is to be held but no dates have yet been set.

February meeting will be held on the 12th at the home of Mrs. Eric Johnston, 296 Aberdeen Avenue, and will be in the evening.

The lucky draw prize was won by Mrs. E. Henwood.

DOROTHY DIX

Finds Too Many Home Duties When Sister Has Freedom

DEAR MISS DIX: Everything in our house was fine until my older sister quit school and got a job. Now I must take over all the responsibilities of the house including the care of a 9-year-old brother whom I can't manage. I am 15. I don't mind the work, but since my sister has been earning money she doesn't have to do anything at home at all. I must always be the one to stay at home and mind the younger children at night, even if I had a previously planned evening. My sister doesn't even pay board. Do you think this is fair? JOAN L.

ANSWER: Your sister isn't to blame for shirking her home responsibilities; this is her parents' fault. The mere fact that she has a job is no excuse to avoid all other work.

A wage-earner does, undeniably, enjoy more prestige (and consequently more privileges) in most homes than does the student. Your sister, being but newly arrived in the ranks of the salaried, is taking more advantage of the situation than is just. In due time, when her chosen lot has lost much of the glamour it now holds, she'll come down to earth. About all you can do, Joan, unless your parents are willing to co-operate with you, is wait until big sis realizes how unfair she is.

Parents Wrong Here

Parents make a big mistake when they exalt a wage-earner to high station. What they are doing is making very apparent the fact that in their home the most important thing is to bring in money. Such an attitude induces the younger members of the family to rush out to work as soon as possible, abandoning all attempts to acquire an education. This may be the very result for which the parents hope; if they are more interested in financial gain than in their children's welfare, no effort will be made to keep youngsters in school as long as possible. Of course, as each child in turn takes his place in the business world, he, too, will relinquish participation in the home routine. Family solidarity itself suffers as a consequence.

The proper family interchange of give and take will see that a tired member is relieved of tasks onw and then; though never should it be accepted as a general practice that any one child be exempt from all household work. As long as a son or daughter remains under the parental roof, a contribution towards the family welfare in the shape of regularly assigned tasks should be expected of him. To see that such stints are meted out and executed is a prime parental responsibility.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 20, and about seven months ago was going with a boy 21. We were in love, and planned to be married, but I started to look at things in a matter-of-fact wey. He wasn't too friendly with my family, and I also realized that when the dizzines wore off I wasn't going to be satisfied with his financial status. So I broke off, and haven't seen him since. I am still determined to forget him, but wonder if I was foolish to be so practical!

DONNA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is sometimes possible to be too practical about love! It's doubtful, however, if any young romance could stand a cold, caluclating analysis of all practical facts. Since you found fault with your erstwhile sweetheart on the two major points of family relationship and finance, you probably were quite right to cancel the friendship. Regrets will avail you nothing, anyway, as he is probably beyond recall now. Men have their pride, too, and seldom like to be sent away, then whistled for.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in my early 20's. The man I love is in business with a woman. They are very friendly, and naturally spend a great deal of time together. He is only mildly interested in me, a situation I am desirous of overcoming. Would this partner stand in the way of a romance between us?

LINDA D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Aren't you rather reaching for the moon? To yearn for a man who has shown no serious interest in you, and who is probably in love with someone else, is surely a great waste of time, and emotion. Whether your friend is really in love with his partner or not is beside the point. He is not particularly interested in you! You might try furthering the acquaintance with an invitation to a dance or something of that sort, but don't hope for too much.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Plan Barbecued Pork Chop On Special-Purpose Menu

Orange Juice
Barbecued Pork Chops
Carrot and Potato Chunks in Covered Casserole
Spinach with Lemon Butter
Butter Tarts Cheese Coffee

Note to Nutrition Students

You will notice that in these months when fresh food supplies are imported into Canada I will stress consumption of fresh green and yellow foods. Do not prepare or soak vegetables ahead of mealtimes. Prepare all fresh fruits and vegetables which you have paid a fortune for, at the last possible moment before the meal is served, cooking vegetables as short a time as possible in as little water as needed. Save any left-over waters for soup or gravy. Squeeze fruit juices or prepare fresh fruits like sliced oranges, bananas and grapefruits for fruit cups the last thing before dinner is announced.

All of these precautions conserve and preserve priceless minerals and vitamin content.

Directions

Barbecued Pork Chops: For six people place six 1-inch pork chops in small roaster and top with 2 sliced onions. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Brown ¼ cup chopped onion in 1 tablespoon fat. Combine these with ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, and 1 cup (or ½ cup) chili sauce, teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika. Simmer 20 minutes to make sauce. Bake chops at 325 degrees Fahr. for 1 or 1¼ hours, basting frequently with the sauce until it is used up. Use same method for Barbecued Spareribs, using 4 pounds ribs.

Carrot and Potato Chunks in Covered Casserole: Other root vegetables such as parsnips and turnips may be added to this dish as long as they are not overcooked or baked at too high a temperature. Butter a casserole for which you have a cover. Add quartered or halved potatoes, large 2-inch chunks of carrots, parsnips or turnips or use all four. Dot with 2 or 4 tablespoons butter, sprinkle generously with salt and pepper, add 2 tablespoons boiling water, cover and bake until tender, turning over once. Do not attempt to brown them or they dry out. This method conserves all of the minerals — for none are soaked out in the cooking water as they would be if boiled.

Banbury Tarts

Crumbly Pastry: Two cups of sifted pastry flour, 2-3 cup lard or best quality shortening or half butter and lard, 1 teaspoon salt, ice cold water. Blend shortening into flour and salt with the finger tips or pastry blender, until it resembles coarse meal. Add just enough ice water to barely moisten the paste, pack it together without kneading, and roll out on floured board. Cut out with cutter that will make the rounds large enough for your tart tins and line tart tins.

Banbury Tart Filling: One cup currants, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon very dry breadcrumbs, finely ground and sifted, juice of one-half medium lemon, grated rind 1 lemon. Mix all of the above ingredients together and fill pastry-lined tart tins. Bake in hot oven of 450 degrees Fahr. Tart shells should not be filled more than 2-3 full.

I hope Mrs. Ivan B. sees this Banbury Tart recipe.

Pencil-Slim Skirts Newest In Dior Collection

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Christian Dior, the canny Frenchman who has been making fashion history on both sides of the Atlantic for the last few years, accents slim lines, nipped waists and cummerbunds in suits shown today in his American collection for spring.

Previewing spring styles for fashion editors in advance of his Paris showings, Dior presents a restrained and wearable collection.

His suits almost without exception have pencil-slim skirts and rounded jackets snug at the waistline with discreet softness above and below. Often the midriff is accented by a wide cummerbund, or crushed belt, extending well above the waistline.

He shows again a number of his beloved Dolman-sleeved short coats and jackets, like these wrappy affairs over sheath dresses.

Lots Of Color

Color runs riot through the collection, covering the full range of the spectrum in dramatic combinations. And in contrast he shows a number of stark black and white costumes—black trimmed with white or vice versa.

Also showing today was Tina Leser, the talented Philadelphia young woman who made a designing reputation in Honolulu and returned to restyle America's sports, beach and play clothes.

As usual, her 1952 collection is casual, gay and colorful, with strong influence from the lazy lands of the South Pacific, and a seasoning of the Oriental.

Others previewing spring styles today included Paul Parnes, known for slightly ornate suits and dresses that appeal to a wide segment of the female population, and Oleg Cassini, strictly in the fabulous class.

PRECEDED COLUMBUS

Leif Ericson, the famous Norse navigator, is believed to have landed on the Newfoundland shore in 1,000 AD.

To End Annoying Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Here is the well known old recipe which thousands of housewives have found to be a dependable means of breaking up winter coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs very little, but it does give quick relief.

From any druggist, get a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup water, stirred until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's easy. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Thus you make 16 ounces of medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This home mixture soothes the irritated throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the phlegm and eases soreness promptly.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a well known and reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if it does not please you in every way.

—Ever remembered by husband and sister.

Raise Minimum Fare For Train Sleepers

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 — It was announced Monday by J. A. Brass chairman Canadian Passenger Association, that because of the increased costs of operation, the Canadian railways and the Pullman Company have found it necessary to increase the minimum fares for standard and tourist sleeping car accommodation between stations in Canada.

Effective on Thursday the minimum fare for standard lower berth accommodation will be advanced from $3 to $4 and for the tourist lower berth acommodation from $2 to $2.70, with corresponding advances in minimum charges for other units of sleeping car space. These increases will bring the minimum fares in Canada nearly to a parity with the fares in effect in the United States.

Fares for distances beyond the minimum fare area will not be increased.

Recall Actions Of Suspect Man

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 9 (CP) —The actions of Richard Monette, 28, on the days before and after the Nov. 16 death of 83-year-old Harper Harris were described Tuesday at Monette's trial on a charge of murder.

James Balfour, a partner with Richard and Patrick Monette in a roofing business, testified that the three visited Harris Nov. 14, two days before his death.

Harris went to the cellar to get some money to pay them for a chimney repair job. "I bet he has lots of money down there," Balfour quoted Richard Monette as saying.

Nov. 14 Balfour visited the house again in spite of objections by Richard. He saw Harris's body, clothed in long underwear and spattered with blood, lying at the foot of the cellar steps.

Grantham Police Chief Norman P. Fach testified that the stairs were covered with footprints and a bloody heelprint was found in the kitchen. A rocking chair in the dining room had been struck by a blast from a shotgun.

A week later police found a shotgun in the yard, partly covered by earth and long grass.

Carlsen Saves Firm Million

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — (AP) —By sticking with his battered ship, the Flying Enterprise, Capt. Kurt Carlsen may be saving his company more than $1,000,000.

Maritime authorites here made that estimate today on the basis of International Maritime Law.

They said that if the captain had abandoned the vessel when it was in trouble, the Flying Enterprise would have been a big salvage prize for any crew that happened to come along and throw a tow line onto it.

In such cases, where someone other than the ship's own crew saves it from impending disaster, salvage awards often run up to 50 per cent or more of the value of the ship and its cargo.

Shipping circles said the value of the Flying Enterprise and its cargo is reported as high as $4,000,000.

The captain, however, has a responsibility to save the ship if he can, before turning it loose on the high seas to face possible salvage claims.

The captain has no salvage claim himself, but the owners might award him a bonus.

WI Discusses Branch Reports

HAVELOCK, Jan. 9 (ENS)— A report, given by Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, district convener of home economics of the Women's Institute, at a meeting of the Havelock branch on Monday afternoon was an interesting item during the program period.

The report contained the highlights from all reports received from the various branches of the society in this district, for 1951. From them all the aim seemed to be not just nourishing food and balancing budget but rather learning to live together and the need of more religious observance in the homes. Mrs. Hoffman read some of the mottos used last year, roll calls and achievements.

Mrs. Hoffman also conducted a health quiz entitled "We call it Human Nature" which brought up the following questions for consideration: Is mental ill health as critical as physical ill health? Is mental ill health always or usually inherited? Are people who become mentally ill, weak characters? Do people who become mentally ill ever become successfully adjusted individuals afterwards. The decisions reached on the first and last questions were "yes" and on the second and third "no".

A cancer film will be shown at the next meeting, February 4, an invitation is to be sent to the Belmont and Trent River branches to attend.

It was decided to hold a St. Patrick's tea and sale of home baking on March 15, the committee to make the arrangements to be appointed at the next meeting.

Pollock was the accompanist for a sing song, and presided for the meeting. Tea hour hostesses were Mrs. J. Hoffman, convener, Mrs. G. Rigby, Sr., Mrs. R. Brown and Mrs. W. Bullied.

More Recreation Plan In Plants

OTTAWA, Jan. 9—(CP)—A blueprint for greater recreation in Canadian factories and business was drafted here Tuesday.

The plan emerged from the first national conference on employee recreation. The 21 delegates, representing management, employees and federal and provincial governments, recommended that a special course be established on a national basis for the instruction of volunteer leaders to carry on employee-recreation programs in Canada.

The trainees would be chosen from plants across Canada, one or two representatives from each province. Following the course they would return home to teach others. Eventually Canadian factories and business would have competent men to assist in employee-recreation programs.

The meeting ended a two-day session with the recommendation that the convener, the National Council on Physical Fitness, prepare and put into operation such a course.

Pleads Guilty To Carelessness

Bernard O'Brien, Coe Hill, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was fined $10 and $15.50 costs in police court Tuesday.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said he would offer no evidence on two other charges against O'Brien, of leaving the scene of an accident and driving without a chauffeur's licence, after O'Brien pleaded guilty to the careless driving charge.

Followed Truck

William Larkman, Apsley, testified that he was driving south on Highway 28, on December 1 when a truck loaded with lumber passed him. Mr. Larkman said the back rack of the truck sideswiped his car. He said he blew his horn but the truck failed to stop. Mr. Larkman said he kept following the truck for two miles but the driver would not let him pass and kept weaving all over the road.

Giving up the chase after his wife had obtained the licence number of the truck, Mr. Larkman said he notified OPP Constable Bert Howden at Apsley. Constable Howden radioed ahead to Burleigh Falls where the truck was stopped, with O'Brien at the wheel.

J. D. Millar, deputy minister, said today that the department intends to construct a four-lane traffic artery on the new right-of-way. "It will link us with the 32 miles of highway already built west of Brockville and will be part of the Toronto-Montreal four-lane highway."

Drunk Driver Jailed Month, Second Offence

Convicted of drunk driving, Douglas Andrew Stenner, 23, 496 Park St., was sentenced to one month in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Tuesday.

Stenner admitted being convicted of having care or control of a motor vehicle while intoxicated on August 15. The charge was treated as a second offence.

OPP Constable Roy Feeley said that Stenner's car was found overturned in the ditch on Highway 28, near Langton St., just outside the city, the night of December 15.

He said Stenner was unable to locate his driver's licence in his pocket when asked for it and he was unsteady on his feet. Constable Feeley also said Stenner's eyes were bleary and when informed at the county jail he would probably be charged with either drunk driving or driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol, Constable Feeley said Stenner broke down and started to cry."

500 Feet On Wrong Side

Constable Feeley said the car travelled for 500 feet on the shoulder of the wrong side of the road and in the ditch, hit a culvert, broke off a telephone pole, then overturned on its side.

In describing Stenner's condition, OPP Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick who arrived at the scene shortly after the accident on his way to work, said Stenner was definitely drunk in his opinion.

Stenner said he had had two draughts of beer at an Aylmer St. hotel a short time before the accident but denied he was intoxicated or that his ability to drive was impaired.

He said his windshield was frosted up and he had scratched a hole in itt with his finger nail. As he nearest the place where his car went out of control, Stenner said the hole was steaming up and he reached into the glove compartment to get a cloth. Unable to locate it, he said he took his eyes off the road and when he looked back a second later, saw that he was on the wrong side of the highway.

Rear End Skidded

Stenner said he pulled hard on the steering wheel to bring the car back on the road, but the rear end skidded and the car went into the ditch, snapping off the telephone pole.

Claiming that the crown had not proved his client was intoxicated to a sufficient degree to be found guilty, W. J. Arthur Fair urged Magistrate Philp to dismiss the charge.

"The evidence of the two officers as to why they believe he was drunk is clear," said crown attorney John A. Bradshaw.

Magistrate Philp agreed and found Stenner guilty. "The two experienced officers should know what amounts to intoxication," he said.

New Building Replaces Burned Machine Shop

COLDSPRINGS, Jan. 9 (ENS) —The men of this community have been busy for the past month, helping Paul Harris erect a new machine shop. The former shop, built by T. F. McBride, the former owner, and backsmith, was built in 1921, but was completely demolished by fire on the evening of Dec. 5. Defective wiring was thought to have been the cause.

Work was started immediately on the new building, but the men have been hampered by much snow, and bad weather.

The new building is a one-storey structure 30' by 60', and is built completely of cement blocks, with aluminum roofing. Except for the show windows, and some inside partitions, the building is nearly completed and Mr. Harris will soon be able to start work again.

Jerry Coughlin Re-elected Head Foxhound Club

Jerry Coughlin was re-elected president of the Kawartha Foxhound Club for the current year at an annual meeting on Monday evening.

Other officers elected to the new slate were Hector Latchford, vice-president, Robert Runnett, secretary and Herb Routley, treasurer.

Directors of the club are Harold Roach, William Jones, Lionel Brown, Gordon Simmons, Robert Lacey, Frank Millard and Bud Lloyd.

The club has been advised that secretary of the Canadian Fox Hunters Association, F. D. Boomer of Ottawa, will visit the Peterborough club to assist in drawing up operations for the new year.

He suggested that it was quite likely that a general meeting will be held this month, possibly in Peterborough, to elect officers to the Canadian association. One or two members from each association in Ontario will send members to the meeting, including one from St. Eustache, P.Q.

Another probability suggested by the club executive is that the Peterborough group may become the central body incorporating Bowmanville, Cobourg and Port Hope.

Both Drivers Blamed; Court Dismisses Case

Stating that he was not sitting in a civil court and that one driver was as much to blame as the other, Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissed a careless driving charge in police court Tuesday afternoon.

Defending Percy H. Grant, 1210 Avenue Rd., Toronto, on the charge, W. J. Arthur Fair claimed that "under the circumstances, there was no occasion for calling a defence" when the crown's case was completed.

Grant was charged with careless driving after he was involved in an accident on Highway 28 at the junction with Highway 7A, with a car driven by William Ashton, 49 Hilldowntree Rd., Islington on November 7.

Both cars were proceeding north, when the car driven by Ashton was in collision with the rear end of Grant's car.

Magistrate Philp disagreed with Mr. Fair's argument for a dismissal before entering a defence and asked if the other party (Ashton) had been charged. "There is undoubtedly negligence on Grant's part and negligence on the other car's part too," Magistrate Philp said.

Refused Dismissal

When he was advised Ashton had not been charged, the magistrate refused Mr. Fair's request for a dismissal.

Grant said he was travelling north on Highway 28 and had considered turning around at the junction of the two highways but seeing the entrance to 7A "clogged full of snow," he started up again, after stopping. He said he heard a horn blow and looking in his mirror saw a car "coming sideways out of control." He said he shifted his car into low gear, and was moving when struck from the rear.

Ashton said he had been travelling north on Highway 28 at between 45 and 50 and was going at about 40 or 45 when he broke over the brow of a hill, a short distance south of the highway junction. He said Grant's car was at the intersection on the west side of the road and was beginning to "creep back to the east side." Seeing the car pulling over to its own side, Grant said he pulled over to the west side gradually to pass the Grant car and when he was about 40 or 50 feet behind it, the car suddenly stopped at an angle, facing north-east in the middle of the road. Taking a quick look at the deep ditch, Ashton said he squared his car around and hit the Grant car "as squarely as I could."

Needs Head Examined

After Ashton had testified that Grant told him he was turning around at the time, Magistrate Philp commented that anyone attempting to turn around there needs his head examined.

Called in reply by crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, Ashton denied that his car was out of control at any time prior to the accident.

After presenting defence evidence, Mr. Fair argued that in collisions where one car strikes another, the "onus is on the man travelling behind to establish there is no negligence on his part."

Mr. Bradshaw said that Ashton had been led on by the actions of Grant.

Magistrate Philp said he had not changed his mind since refusing Mr. Fair's first request for a dismissal in regard to the negligence of both drivers but he would dismiss the charge, leaving the question for a civil court to decide.

"There is no question the accused was negligent but Ashton was negligent as well," the magistrate said.

Doctor Gives Death Testimony

HAMILTON, Jan. 9—(CP)— Dr. F. B. Overend of Hamilton is expected to give further details today in the water death of Doris May Kenyon. The Crown contends she was killed by being held against a kitchen tap until her organs were ruptured.

Dr. Overend was called to the Kenyon home last Nov. 24, the day of the woman's death. He testified Tuesday that Frank Kenyon, the woman's husband, told him: "I filled her up with water."

The 41-year-old painter sat impassively while the doctor gave evidence at Kenyon's trial on a murder charge. He said Kenyon met him at the door and told him: "I think my wife is dead."

Kenyon took the doctor to a back room where the woman was lying naked on a bed. Dr. Overend said she looked as though she were five or six months pregnant.

Dr. Overend said he found no heart beat, no pulse and no breath sounds. Her abdomen felt very tight and tense, as if it were distended. There was also an abrasion on the left upper lip and one bruised area on the left temple.

After completing his examination Dr. Overend asked Kenyon what had happened. He said Kenyon replied, "She stayed out late. I waited up for her. We had a terrible fight. I filled her up with water."

Lakefield Man Admits Takin Orders To Purchase Liquor

After hearing the evidence on one of four liquor charges against Eric Anderson of Lakefield in police court Tuesday, Magistrate W. R. Philp adjourned all the cases until January 15.

Anderson who operates an undertaking and taxi business in Lakefield is charged with:

(1) keeping liquor for sale and selling liquor
(2) soliciting orders for the purchase of liquor
(3) having possession of liquor not obtained on his own permit
(4) having liquor in a place other than his residence.

On December 4, Anderson pleaded not guilty to the charges. His counsel, W. C. Grant entered an application for particulars on the ground that the charge of keeping for sale and selling alleged two offences in one charge and therefore void.

The legal arguments were heard December 12 and the charges were adjourned until Tuesday.

Evidence on the charge of soliciting orders was heard and Magistrate Philp said he was adjourning the case in order to examine some of the judgments cited by Mr. Grant.

Anderson is charged with soliciting orders for the purchase of liquor between September 1 and October 3, 1951.

OPP sergeant Stanley Palmateer testified that he and OPP constable Aimey Gaudry went to Anderson's home the night of October 3 and found two bottles of rye whiskey in the accused's car. A bottle of gin in the Anderson home, belonging to Miss Florence Orr of Lakefield was seized the same evening.

After he was given the usual police warning and advised he was likely to be charged with several breaches of the Liquor Control Act, Sgt. Palmateer said Anderson admited taking orders for beer, liquor and wine "sometimes in writing and mostly by telephone". On the day provincial police searched his home (October 2), Sgt. Palmateer said Anderson admitted purchasing "five or six cases of beer, five bottles of liquor and a case of wine" which had been delivered to the purchasers. Sgt. Palmateer said Anderson told him and constable Gaudry that the case of beer would be delivered to a patron in Lakefield for $6, the $2 extra being for taxi service.

Two liquor permits, belonging to Anderson and his wife Irene were seized and Sgt. Palmateer said Anderson asked him "What's going to happen to my business in the meantime? I will be unable to make enough to pay my expenses and make payments on my mortgage."

Under cross examination by Mr. Grant, Sgt. Palmateer agreed that Anderson did refer to the "publicity" likely to result from the charges hurting his business. However, Sgt. Palmateer replied with an emphatic "No", to Mr. Grant's suggestion that this was his "principal worry." "He seemed more worried about the payments on his mortgage," said Sgt. Palmateer.

Constable Gaudry said that Anderson told them he had "carried on this business for quite a time", and that while he and his wife consumed some of the liquor purchased on their permits, the majority had been distributed to people who phoned in ordering liquor on various occasions.

Sales slips were introduced, bearing the signatures of Anderson, his wife and Mrs. Pearl Goodall, who drove taxi for Anderson on several occasions. In court, Mrs. Goodall said she purchased three cases of beer, a bottle of gin, a 26-ounce bottle of whiskey, a "mickey" and a bottle of scotch the afternoon of October 2 in Peterborough. She had driven a fare to Peterborough in Anderson's taxi. Then she said, she purchased the liquor, locked it in the car trunk and returned to Lakefield, leaving the car in Anderson's yard. She said she had used her own money to purchase the liquor but had bought it on Miss Florence Orr's permit. Miss Orr said she had met Mrs. Goodall in Peterborough and Mrs. Goodall asked her to buy a liquor permit. She said she did and that the bottle of gin, later picked up at Anderson's home when the police were there, was hers.

Both women were charged with having liquor in a place other than a residence and pleaded guilty to the charges some time ago.

Original sales slips bearing the signatures of Mrs. Goodall, Mrs. Anderson and Anderson were introduced, showing purchases made by them between September 1 and October 3.

Constable Gaudry said that Anderson's permit showed that the equivalent of 100 26-ounce bottles of whiskey had been purchased on his permit between March 22 and October 2, 1951. Mrs. Anderson's permit had been used to purchase 16 26-ounce bottles of liquor between July 22 and October 3.

Anderson said he did take orders for beer, liquor and wine over the phone as well as signed orders but insisted that he only charged the regular retail price plus the taxi fare from Lakefield to Peterborogh $2.50 if "he was sent on a special trip". Otherwise he said he did it as a favor. Anderson replied "I did not", when Mr. Bradshaw asked him if he did not have a flat rate of $6 in Lakefield and $8 for any deliveries outside the village.

Mr. Grant argued that is was "quite common for people to pick up liquor for friends" and cited a judgment which supported a defence argument that the section "relates exclusively to orders solicited of a commercial nature. The object of this section is to prevent anyone from "pushing liquor sales," Mr. Grant said.

The act prohibits the taking of orders and the accused admits taking orders," stated Mr. Bradshaw in his submission.

Mossadegh Fears Assassination

TEHRAN, Jan. 9—(AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh has charged in a letter to parliament that armed plotters planned to assassinate him on his last appearance in the Majlis, the lower house.

In reply, Majlis President Reza Hekmat told Mossadegh he had investigated and had found armed persons never had been admitted to the Majlis. Hekmat promised that no incidents would disturb the security of the house.

Mossadegh's letter said that "only by chance their plot against my life was not carried out and I left the session safely."

The premier has not gone to the Majlis since the riotous session of Dec. 11 when fighting broke out between the opposition and government backers.

Opposition deputies who have been camping in the Majlis the past month under the right of sanctuary for members announcing they had been threatened with violence drafted the bill for election supervision. They charge the elections are being rigged by the government.

Wins Fight With Mouse Blacks Out Area, Risks Life

DRAYTON, Jan. 9—Dutch immigrant W. I. Hendrick, nearly knocked himself out Monday night while succeeding in knocking out a small fieldmouse plus this community's hydro system.

It happened this way: Hendrick was driving alone in his car. He spotted the mouse calmly making a supper of feed grain on the floor of the car, and attempted to eject the unwanted hitchhiker. His one-armed driving wasn't accurate enough and the auto sliced off a hydro pole. He climbed out unhurt to explain things to PC Charles Hunter.

Results: A wide area in darkness for an hour, $40 bill to Hendrick for a new pole plus damage to his car, and a fieldmouse who paid with his life.

Extend Credit Law To 18 Months, Ottawa Announces

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—The government today modified consumer-credit restrictions by extending the time in which the customer must pay the bill to 18 from 12 months. The modifications become effective Monday, January 14. The down payment—one-half the purchase price for new and used automobiles and one-third for all other consumer goods—is unchanged. The minimum payments, $10 a month or $2.50 a week, also remain unchanged.

Other modifications in the restrictions first imposed in October, 1950:

1. The regulations on longer will apply to pianos and other musical instruments.

2. Customers may rent consumer goods such as refrigerators and washing machines for 12 months. Previously, the goods could only be rented for six months.

3. All goods—with the exception of automobiles and motorcycles—when rented for use exclusively in a business trade or profession will not be subject to the restrictions.

Inflation Threat Eases

Finance Minister Abbott, in a 350-word statement outlining the modifications, said the reason for the changes is an easing in inflationary pressures. If this trend continues, he said, the restrictions will be relaxed still further.

However, he added that the underlying current of inflation is still strong and restraint in the use of credit is still essential. He could not see clearly what will happen in the future, but if inflation is intensified, rather than eases, "the government would not hesitate to tighten up again."

Though Mr. Abbott made no mention of it, various delegations representing manufacturers of automobiles and electrical appliances conferred with him in the last few months, urging relaxation in restrictions.

Many plants were forced to cut production and lay off employees as a result of reduction in business.

Tougher Than In US

The restrictions still are tougher than in the United States where the down payment on consumer goods, with the exception of automobiles, is 15 per cent and time limit for payment 18 months. On automobiles the down payment is one-third and the time limit also 18 months.

Extension of the payments to 18 months, places the restrictions back to where they were before they were tightened in March, 1951.

45 Men Forced To Abandon Ship In Pacific

VANCOUVER, Jan. 10—(CP)—Forty-five crew members of the disabled American freighter Pennsylvania abandoned the ship Wednesday night and today ships and airplanes sped to a spot on the storm-rolled waters of the North Pacific where they hope to find the seamen.

The seamen and their officers left the split-open, water-logged jinx ship at 4.30 pm PST (7.30 pm EST). They apparently preferred fighting mountainous seas and high winds in their frail life boats to remaining on the wallowing 7,800-ton vessel.

Four terse messages in the space of 25 minutes told of the dwindling hope after 10 hours battling the elements and the hopeless task of regaining control of the ship which was down at the bow and shipping tons of water through a 14-foot crack on its port side.

It was 6 am Wednesday when the ship's master, Capt. George P. Plover, of Portland, Ore., radioed the vessel was in trouble. At noon he sent an SOS reporting the crack in the hold and that the ship was taking water.

At 4.05 pm the radio reported the steering, which had been out of order, was fixed but useless—the stern was completely out of water.

"It looks like our only hope is for the weather to moderate," the Pennsylvania's radio said.

At 4.22 they sent another SOS and said: "It looks like we have to abandon ship."

Five minutes later: "Forty-five persons aboard. Four boats."

And at 4.30 the final dramatic two words: "Leaving now."

Meanwhile, seven ships — the closest some 180 miles distant—began churning toward the spot 465 miles northwest of the northern tip of Vancouver Island and 600 miles south of Central Alaska's southern coastline. It is one of the roughest areas in the Pacific Ocean, mariners say, and the weather yesterday and today is among the worst in three years.

Red Riflemen Stop US Raiders

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 10—(AP)—Communist riflemen stopped a United Nations raiding party which stormed up the slopes of a hill northwest of Yonchon in snow-covered western Korea before dawn today.

The United States Eighth Army said the raiders failed to reach the top of the hill. They pulled back after 2½ hours under heavy mortar fire.

Only light contacts were reported elsewhere on the 145-mile front as snow and fog blanketed Korea.

With targets shrouded, Allied planes were mostly grounded.

Police Seek 2 Men Said Carrying Body

HAMILTON, Jan. 10 (CP) — Police early today scoured the north-east end of the city tracking two men whom they believed to be carrying a body.

The chase began after two men stole a car from the Westinghouse employees' parking lot and drove it south to an intersection where the car skidded and crashed into a parked vehicle.

The sound of the crash was heard by Roy Savage, a CNR employee in the crossing box near the intersection. He saw two men get out of the car carrying what appeared to be a third man and head across the tracks.

Tighten Controls On Steel To Prevent Stockpiling

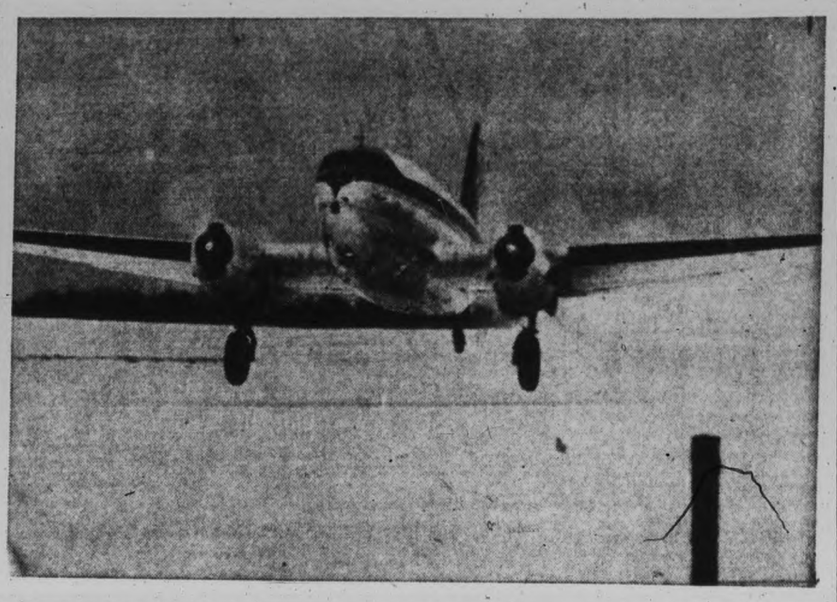
OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—Canada's steel controller, foreseeing continuing shortages of steel in 1952, has issued new orders tightening control of the metal vital to the country's defence program.

The orders, issued Wednesday by the defence production department, are designed to prevent stockpiling of steel and place a further restriction on the use to which it may be put in construction.

Canada put controls on steel a year ago to ensure adequate supplies for defence purposes. The controls apply to the country's annual 3,200,000-ton production and to steel which Canada gets on a priority basis from the United States.

It now is virtually impossible to get steel for ordinary construction without a permit from the steel controller. And there are penalty clauses providing fines up to $5,000 or two years imprisonment for breaches of the regulations.

Under an order issued last March the steel controller placed strict permit control on steel for any non-essential construction such as for theatres, amusement places, office buildings and certain personal service business establishments.



Under the new order these prohibitions remain. No new classes of building are added, but the order prohibits steel purchases for use in construction of buildings to be sold, leased or used even in part for such non-essential purposes, unless by permit of the controller.

The second new order sets inventory limits and relates permissible steel stocks to past consumption or future needs. Effective April 1 inventory limits will be kept either to two-thirds of the amount used in the calendar quarter preceding the placing of the order or an amount not more than the "reasonably anticipated requirements for 60 days from the date of delivery of new supplies," whichever is the lesser.

The controller can permit an increase in the limit in cases where necessity for stocking greater amounts is shown to his satisfaction.

Skipper Loses 2-Week Duel With Sea

Two Men In Water Four Minutes Before Picked Up

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 10 (CP)—The gallant freighter Flying Enterprise sank in the stormy Atlantic today after a mighty two-week duel with the sea.

Heroic Capt. Kurt Carlsen and his companion, first mate Kenneth Dancy of the British tug Turmoil, were snatched to safety.

Carlsen and Dancy leaped overboard when it became evident the 6,711-ton freighter was going down. The stand-by rescue fleet closed in. The tug Turmoil threw over a rope ladder and the two men clambered to safety. They were in the water only four minutes.

Carlsen refused to give up until the stricken freighter was heaving her last. He battled since the Christmas Day hurricane to save his ship. His solitary duel with the Atlantic began Dec. 28 after he ordered all hands to abandon his ship, which carried a crew of 40 and 10 passengers. Dancy joined him last Saturday.

Disappears Under Water

The big United States freighter thrashed about in its final agony for 40 minutes and then disappeared. Aboard the tug Turmoil Carlsen and Dancy, bearded and exhausted, climbed into dry clothing as the tug hurried in the direction of Falmouth; about 40 miles away.

Decides Keep First Husband

ATLANTA, Jan. 10 —(AP)—A 22-year-old bride, whose first husband "came back to life" with recent publication of Korean prisoner of war rolls, Wednesday sought annulment of her second marriage.

She filed a petition with Fulton county (Atlanta) Superior Court in the name of Mrs. Agnes Dixon, asking that her marriage to William S. Sasser last September be declared null and void.

The petition set forth that she is the legal wife of Walter B. Dixon whom she married April 5, 1950. In June, 1951, she was notified by the defence department that Dixon was killed in action in Korea in May, 1951.

His $10,000 military service insurance policy was paid in a lump sum by the government.

Believing herself to be a widow, the petition recounts, she married Sasser about three months later.

US PLANE TAKES OFF FROM COBOURG

Fog Halts Proposed Flight To Malton Airport For First Leg Of Trip Finally Given Permission To Land At Trenton For Repairs

COBOURG, Jan. 10 (ENS)—Blowing a blizzard of snow into the faces of the watching crowd, the C-46 airliner that crash-landed here December 20, took off at 4:20 Wednesday afternoon. Fitted with new propellers, a new rudder, and some minor parts, the plane lifted easily off the 2,500-foot makeshift runway on the farm of Charles Wilson just west of Cobourg. The crowd of 500 cheered the take-off. Not long after the take-off, the C-46 landed safely at Trenton RCAF airport, where further repairs will be made. Originally, the plane was due to land at Malton, near Toronto, but bad weather ruled out the westbound trip. Other landing fields were ruled out as the customs clearance papers were made out for Malton, but permission was finally given for the Trenton landing.

Pilot for Thursday's take-off was Charles Rector, 42-year-old director of operations for North Continent Airlines, Burbank, Cal. He was assisted by Gordon McBride, superintendent of maintenance for Major Airlines, also of Burbank.

Blown Off Course

In her wheels-up landing five days before Christmas, the C-46 landed safely with 44 passengers aboard. Blown off course over Lake Ontario, the plane had earlier lost radio contact over Toledo, Ohio.

In the murky light of a stormy day, on the morning of December 20, around 8 o'clock, pilots Bruce

College Grants Now Decided

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP). — Finance Minister Abbott announced today that the Canadian government has reached agreement with all provinces—with the exception of Quebec—as to which universities will be eligible for grants under the $7,100,000 voted by parliament last year.

In Quebec a joint federal-provincial commission will be set up to determine the allocations to institutions within the province.

No reason was given for the move. However, under the regulations disclosed today, the option of a joint commission to determine which institutions would get the grants was open to any province. Quebec was the only province to resort to that method.

Share In Grants

Altogether, in other provinces 82 universities will share in the grants, approved as a means of averting a financial crisis threatening higher schools of learning.

The grants were recommended in the Massey Commission report tabled in parliament last year. Payments likely will be made in the next few weeks. They must be made before March 31 when the parliamentary grant lapses.

The payments will be made to universities on the basis of 50 cents a head in provincial population. The 1951 census figures will be used to calculate population.

Ontario, with the largest provincial population, will get the biggest part of the total. She will receive about $2,300,000, split among 29 universities on the basis of student registration.

17 Hurt In Fire

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP) — Seventeen persons, including two firemen, were injured today when fire broke out in a mid-town building housing a clothing factory.

Fast rescue work by firemen, who ran up ladders to the top floor of the three-storey building, was believed to have prevented loss of life.

The injured, suffering from various degrees of burns, were taken to hospital.

Flyer Derailed In Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 10—(AP)—The New York Central's passenger train, the Wolverine, jumped the tracks at 60 miles an hour in a spectacular wreck with a freight train at Dexter, Mich., Wednsday night.

Railroad officials reported five passengers were hurt. Several hundred passengers were badly shaken up. The injured include Douglas Davis, Montreal, with a possible fracture of the left knee.

Witnesses said it was amazing no one was killed.

The Wolverine, bound from Chicago to New York by way of Detroit, sideswiped the rear section of a fast-moving westbound freight train and was derailed. But the two Diesel engines and 13 cars of the Wolverine remained upright after leaving the tracks.

The derailment, railroad officials said, was caused by a box car in the centre of the freight train jumping the tracks and bouncing against the Wolverine.

Mossadegh Stays Away From Parliament After Paper Reports Assassination Plot

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 10 — (Reuters). — Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh stayed away from the Majlis (Parliament) today after morning newspapers reported discovery of a plot to assasinate him.

His supporters also failed to appear, so that lack of a quorum prevented holding a meeting.

Mossadegh did not show up in spite of a letter he had sent the Speaker promising he would state the government's stand on an opposition-sponsored bill for supervision of forthcoming elections.

Local papers said only that police discovered that someone would try to throw a hand grenade at the premier while he spoke in the Majlis. Tuesday, government members of the Majlis circulated reports of "British plots" to assassinate Mossadegh.

Lt-Gen. Ali Razmara, premier just before Mossadegh, was shot to death here in the Mosque of the Shah last March 7 by Iranian extremists.

See No Break In TTC Strike

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP) — Toronto's street-car and bus strike today entered its seventh day with no break in sight.

The Street Railwaymen's Union (AFL-TLC) stood firm on its refusal to submit its wage dispute with the Toronto Transportation Commission to arbitration. The commission was equally firm in refusing to negotiate, although it was willing to have the issue arbitrated.

Mayor Allan Lamport planned to confer with both sides today in a continued effort to end the tieup. He said Wednesday he will keep on "prodding" both union and management until a settlement is reached.

Meanwhile, the 1,300,000 residents of the Toronto area relied on emergency transportation measures to get them to work or business. Company buses or trucks, trains, taxis and private automobiles shared with car-pool members or with hitch-hikers again carried workers to and from the downtown area.

The Canadian National Railways Wednesday started a special commuter train service for residents of Scarboro township and other eastern suburbs. There were reports the strikers would try to stone the train at a bridge but it made its trips without incident.

COLEMAN DRAFTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Jerry Coleman, utility infielder with New York Yankees, today advised the Yankees that he had been called up by the United States Marine Air Force. He said he was ordered to take a physical examination on April 2. Ted Williams, ace slugger of the Boston Red Sox, was recalled on Wednesday.

Reds Anxious To Use POW's

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 10 (AP) —Allied negotiators today accused the Communists of scheming to strengthen their forces in Korea by "forced repatriation" of prisoners-of-war.

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby said the Reds are "scared to death" of giving war prisoners freedom of choice as to whether they want to be repatriated.

The United Nations again rejected the Red compromise truce supervision plan because it failed to ban construction and repair of military air fields.

As the armistice talks entered the seventh month, sub-committees on truce supervision and prisoner exchange appeared tightly deadlocked. However both scheduled meetings for 11 am Friday (9 pm EST Thursday) in Panmunjom.

Libby told reporters all Communist objections to the six-point Allied exchange plan could be narrowed down to four points:

Keen General On Job

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman said today he will keep Gen. Dwight Eisenhower on the job as Supreme Commander of Allied forces in Europe as long as Eisenhower will stay there.

Truman said he has the utmost confidence in the general and had showed it by naming him to one of the most important posts it was within his power to give.

There has been speculation that Eisenhower might soon return to the US, now that he has made it plain he would accept a nomination from the Republican Party for the presidency if it should be offered to him.

Board Speeds Up Plans For Freight Equalization

OTTAWA, Jan. 10—(CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners today laid down plans for a sharp speed-up in putting into effect country-wide equalization of freight rates.

At its first session dealing with equalization since parliament late last year ordered such a scheme, the board indicated that tentative new rates will be drafted in the next few months.

Official estimates up to now have been to the effect that it would take several years to equalize rates and the board's announcement today indicated this time would be cut down considerably. However, it did not say specifically when the equalization plan might be completed.

Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney, chief commissioner, said that after preliminary conference with interested parties early this year, the board would draw up proposed rate scales to conform with the directions of parliament.

After that, the board would make a country-wide tour to receive regional complaints or suggestions concerning the draft-equalization plan.

He did not say when the tour would be made, but it was expected to be sometime during the summer.

The plan might be put into effect piece-meal, without waiting for the whole case to be decided, and Mr. Justice Kearney suggested that the first step to be taken might be the equalization of 'commodity mileage scales.' These are rates on specific articles which do not vary greatly as between different parts of the country.

Talks Result In Solid Front On Aggression

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill, resting in New York today before his Ottawa visit, seems to have justified his four-day conference in Washington.

He and President Truman issued a joint statement Wednesday indicating a solid British-American front against Communist aggression.

But they hastened to add that they saw no necessity of assuming that war was inevitable.

Before he left for New York for a two-day rest before going on to Ottawa, Churchill sat in the President's box in the House of Representatives and heard Truman deliver his address to a joint congressional session on the state of the union—the equivalent to the speech from the throne in Commonwealth parliaments.

Paid Tribute

That address reflected the results of the President's talks with Churchill but he had other reasons for gratification.

The Representatives and Senators rose as one in tribute to Churchill when he, with Mrs. Truman and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden entered the enclosure.

Obviously affected by the reception Churchill stood and bowed so deeply that watchers feared his rotund figure might come tumbling down into the chamber. Churchill followed the speech intently and afterward told a companion it was "masterful."

Earlier he and the President had issued a statement, held for release until after the President's address, in which they revealed what they wanted the public to know of their four days of talks.

They said the United States and Britain are in harmony on main issues and particularly in the objective of countering Communist aggression.

Write off Differences

It appeared evident they had written off any differences that might have existed because the United Kingdom has resognized Communist China and the United States has not.

One interpretation of their carefully-worded communique was that Churchill had achieved his purpose of personally impressing Truman with British sincerity and the practical necessity of putting first things first.

Then they brushed aside any possible differences of opinion as to the desirability of getting Premier Stalin into their confidence and the possible American criticism of British handling of the Iranian and Egyptian situations.

Age Uncertain

BELFAST — (CP) — John McKeever, dying here after a long illness, was believed at least 92 years old. He served in early campaigns in Egypt, India and Canada, the latter believed to have been the Riel uprisings in 1885.

Extend Credit Law

Restrictions on rentals were tightened last year to halt attempts by the trade to by-pass regulations. If a customer held an item for more than six months on a rental basis, the government considered it in the same category as goods actually purchased and the customer had to pay regular credit payments.

However, if the customer still held the goods on a rental basis at the end of the credit term, the retailer could refund the difference between the rental and the actual purchase price. Now the goods can be rented for a year and neither the retailer nor the customer will become subject to the regulations.

Plane Takes Off

Smelser and Eddie O'Leary, the latter a Marine Corps pilot, both of California, spotted the welcome sight of land over the white caps of Lake Ontario. They swung about and through a rift in the clouds saw a snow-covered field just on shore.

They set the plane down and the 44 passengers aboard, including some half dozen children, felt a gentle bump as the plane, wheels retracted as a safety measure, slid to a stop on the belly of the fuselage. Earlier, Stewardess Sandy Daine of New York, her face masking the realization that tragedy might not be far off, told the passengers to fasten their safeyt belts—and pray. They came in safely on two wings, two dead engines and a prayer.

Within minutes after landing, the passengers and ship's crew were in the farmhouse nearby of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson where plenty of hot coffee and sandwiches and the warmth of a rural welcome restored everyone to normal. Soon all that remained was the ghostly, snow-draped plane out on the lonely pasture field. The passengers later in the day took other transportation to their destinations.

The air line company immediately got to work to plan removal of the ship. Earlier reports that the plane would be dismantled and taken to Trenton to be re-assembled and flown back to California turned out to be premature. Mechanics from Sanderson Aircraft, Malton, began the task of getting the aircraft ready for a takeoff. This past weekend, pits were dug underneath the wheel bays and the wheels lowered, and then a bulldozer pulled the plane up the slope to level ground. New props arrived on Tuesday morning and by nightfall both engines were operating.

There were more than 500 people out in the chilly morning Wednesday. They hung around, some going but more coming, until early afternoon. The plane's props were whirring. Up at the controls were Rector, his co-pilot, McBride, and Flight-Engineer John Weaver, of Newark. The motors were revved up and everybody felt that the plane would be rolling out on the prepared air strip levelled in the snow by a bulldozer. Officials of the Department of Transport were checking with Malton, first lap of the trip home to California, and at 1.30 pm word came through that fog had closed Malton in. DOT officials said that the plane could not take off.

All Off

Rector wondered about Ottawa but was told that the immigration and customs papers were made out for Malton. Rector was a worried man. The weather called for a rise in the temperature and that could mean soft ground and indefinite grounding of the plane. Provincial police, who kept the highway clear of traffic, told the crowd it was all off until next day, on the authority of the Department of Transport, and hundreds went home.

Rector and his crew envisioned the plane bogged down for an indefinite period in the mud when the temperature rose. They considered several alternative fields but they were ruled out because the customs clearance was made out for Malton. Finally after much enquiry, permission was received to land at Trenton airport and the plane took off for Trenton at 2:40 Wednesday afternoon. Incidentally that cemented international friendship.

Large Gallery

Most of the original crowd had gone home but others took their places and there was a large gallery when the plane taxied out from its resting place. The slipstream blew a blizzard of snow into the faces of the crowd. Out on the west fringe of the takeoff strip, three photographers, one of them from The Examiner, stood with cameras ready. Brakes on and flaps down the plane's engines roared as the power came on and then broke away. For about 250 to 300 yards the wheels rolled along the snow and then the plane rose. Due to the hummocks in the field, the plane had kept well to the west and the left wing overhung the west ridge of the air strip. News photographers shot their pictures and ducked for safety as the plane roared scant feet overhead. Later at Trenton, Pilot Rector said he was worried about the people on that side of the field but had to keep to the west because of the condition of the takeoff strip. A bump and a wingover might have spelled disaster, a warning which provincial police uttered before the takeoff in urging the spectators to keep well clear of the takeoff strip.

The plane took off easily, headed west, banked lazily and then flew easterly over the heads of the crowd. And thus came to an end, as far as Cobourg was concerned, the big event in local aircraft history. Never before had such a large plane landed in Cobourg and never before had the town been so close to what might have been another major tragedy in aircraft history.

2 Weeks' Defence Orders Total $23,500,000

New Wing At Radar School Costs 2 Million

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP). — A $2,000,000 contract to build a new wing to the RCAF radar and telecommunications school at Clinton was announced on Wednesday by the defence production department.

The contract, which went to Ball Bros. Ltd., Kitchener, was included among $23,500,000 worth of defence orders issued by the department for the period Dec. 1-15 last. The list includes contracts of more than $10,000 each.

Another large one was for $1,055,000 which went to Frs. Jobin Inc., Quebec City, to make changes to a commercial plant purchased by the Crown-owned Canadian Arsenals Ltd.

The plant, formerly owned by the St. Lawrence Metals and Marine Co., will be used to make cartridge cases.

Quebec City also will benefit from a contract for $1,101,250 awarded to Master Craft Uniform Co., Quebec, for the manufacture of uniform blouses.

Sperry Gyroscope Co. of Canada, Montreal, was given an order to produce $1,019,766 worth of marine radar equipment.

A new departure for the military medical services was noted in the listings. They're going in more for aluminum stretchers instead of the old wood-and-canvas ones.

Skipper Loses

For more than 24 hours the vessel had been virtually on its side.

At 3.08 pm (10.08 am EST) it became obvious to the US destroyer Willard Keith, standing by, that the Enterprise was about to go down. It and other boats began the long-planned rescue operation at once. The motley assortment of boats which scurried about the freighter for days heaved close in to the writhing vessel as the Turmoil's lights flashed the signal "C-l-o-s-e."

The wind was blowing fiercely, pitching the rescue tugs about like chips.

Water poured into the funnel of the dying Enterprise.

Leap Overboard

The two men leaped overboard, even as the Enterprise heaved to port and began slowly to keel over. Part of her cargo—more than $1,000,000 worth of coffee, pig iron and furniture—was strewn about the surface.

By 3.34 pm, the Enterprise was fully on her side. Grimly Carlsen and Dancy, clad in life jackets and dripping with water, watched the last gasp from the tug.

In the last few minutes the tugs sounded their sirens. Only the bow of the Enterprise was visible. At 4.09 pm flares on the surface of the water near the ship were lighted, casting a weird light over the area as the Enterprise took her final lunge.

One minute later the Enterprise was below the sea.

Carlsen and Dancy were taken into the cabin of the Turmoil by its skipper, Capt. Dan Parker.

At Falmouth, the Enterprise's haven had she won the battle, terse ship-to-shore radio messages told of the end.

An earlier plan to rescue the two seamen by helicopter had to be abandoned because of the weather.

Ship Messages

The messages from ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore went this way:

3.08 pm—US destroyer Willard Keith to Land's End radio relay station: "Flying Enterprise is going down. Making attempts to rescue them now."

3.09 pm—Rescue tug Turmoil to the Keith: "We have just received word that the weather is too bad for the helicopter. She can't make it and is returning to base. It is up to us to take them off now."

3.10 pm—Lands End to Keith: "Until receipt from you that you or others have picked up the men we are taking full distress action."

3.12—Keith to Lands End: "Plenty of ships standing by to take Carlsen and Dancy off."

3:16—Keith to Lands End: "Flying Enterprise listing 80 degrees. Still afloat. Capt. Carlsen and Dancy standing on starboard side of deck."

3:20—Lands End to Keith: "Is lifeboat in sight?" Keith to Lands End: "No, lifeboat not in sight. Flying Enterprise now taking water down stack."

3:22—Turmoil to assisting vessel Dextrous: "Dancy and Carlsen are preparing to jump from the funnel. Stand by."

3:24—Keith to Lands End: "We see the lifeboat now."

3:26—Keith to Lands End: "Carlsen and Dancy have jumped from the funnel."

3:32—Turmoil to Keith: "We have got both off Enterprise."

3:33—Keith to Turmoil: "Congratulations."

3:38—Turmoil to Keith: "Both men are O.K. and are now in the captain's cabin changing clothes."

3:39—Turmoil to Lands End: "Flying Enterprise still afloat. Going down stern first."

Covered With Water

3:44—Turmoil to Lands End: "Flying Enterprise completely covered in water."

4:01—Turmoil to Lands End: "Starboard bow just showing above the waves. She is very brave. Keeps going down and coming up."

07——Turmoil to Lands End: "She will last only two or three minutes."

4:10—Associated Press tug English to AP bureau in London: "All gone."

4:37—Turmoil to Keith: "Both men seem fit, though exhausted, and are resting up. Headed for Falmouth at full speed."

Accepts Defeat

Carlsen agreed to abandon the listing freighter where he has kept a 13-day vigil after Capt. Dan Parker of the tug Turmoil pointed out that the Enterprise was in grave danger.

The originanl plan was to have Carlsen and mate Kenneth Dancy, who joined him last weekend after a leap from the Turmoil, climb up a ladder lowered from a helicopter.

However, the royal navy helicopter struggled against the mounting gale but could not get near enough to the ship. It turned back; its fuel supply running low.

Shortly after the plan became known, the RAF indicated that the weather was becoming hazardous for a helicopter rescue. An RAF message asked the Enterprise's convoying ships to relay to Carlsen the word that the weather for the helicopter was deteriorating and there might be only one brief chance to use this form of escape.

Weather Worse

The Willard Keith reported: "The weather is worsening. The Enterprise is listing 70 degrees and rolling to 85. The possibility of passing a towline in the next 24 hours is doubtful."

The freighter's position when she went down was about 40 miles from Falmouth, and about 32 miles southeast of Lizard Point, the southwest tip of England on the treacherous Cornish coast, graveyard for many a ship.

Moving in wide circles around the ship were vessels of a motley stand-by fleet, including the little Lizard Point lifeboat which often heaved in close to the stricken vessel.

It was ready to pick up the two men almost instantly when they quit the battle.

WHY?

Is it reasonable to suppose that you should pay less for cash than by saying "charge it" please!

We are not known as a "CREDIT HOUSE", BUT you can buy goods here without paying cash because your credit is based on your ability to pay within a certain length of time.

On that basis "OUR PRICES" are not any lower or any higher than any competitive retailer but "OUR PRICES" are legitimate and consistent with quality and service day in and day out.

Says Farm Hands Should Be Paid Overtime Rates

TORONTO, Jan. 10 — (CP) — The old-fashioned hired man who lived, ate and worked with the farm family may be replaced by an hourly-rated employee with time-and-a-half for overtime —if farmers take the advice of W. (Taffy) Davidson, chief employment officer of the National Employment Service.

Mr. Davidson told the 16th annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture Wednesday that farm workers in Britain have reached this stage and have no desire to come to Canada. Immigrant laborers leave Canadians farms for the city as soon as their year is up, he said.

Regulated hours, set wages and overtime pay were the answer.

Set and stable prices were discussed by J. C. Broderick, president of the federation. "We should consider marketing agencies as a means of insuring stable prices both to the producer and the consumer, of improving quality and leading to efficiencies in distribution."

Ken Betzner of Waterloo said unstable egg prices first rose too high then dropped too low and farmers suffered. He said an egg marketing scheme in Ontario would be followed by similar action by Saskatchewan and Manitoba farmers.

Discuss Compensation

At the day's sessions members also heard discussions of workmen's compensation by J. G. Beach, and heard Lawrence Kerr, of Chatham tell them there should be an adjustment in payments made by hydro and the department of highways for use of farm land.

R. S. Heatherington of Campbellville, discussing assessment, said the farmers are bearing the major load of taxation. He felt more thought should be given to taxation on the basis of services provided, rather than on land.

In some areas a county assessor's plan had worked well to equalize assessments between farms and suburban residences.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy said the diversity of farming in Ontario is one of this province's advantages.

A. D. Wilson, Chatham, reporting on wheat, said wheat growers had had a good year, and that next year's price was likely to start as $2 a bushel. He recommended storage space for wheat on Ontario farms to hold the crop for good market.

St. Paul's WA Starts With $357 Balance

BETHANY, Jan. 10 (ENS) — The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, Bethany, met at the rectory for their first meeting of the new year, with an attendance of 15. The president, Mrs. J. J. Hamilton, was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayers. The scripture lesson was read by the vice-president, Mrs. Allan Gribble.

The president expressed New Year's greetings to all members with the hope that they might be free from illness or trouble of any kind, also expressing sympathy for Mrs. Reginald Palmer in the loss of her brother, the late Henry Wake. Mrs. Joy Jarvis read the minutes of the previous meeting and the correspondence, which included several thank you notes for boxes received by the sick and aged at Christmas time.

The treasurer, Miss Winnifred Nesbitt gave a full account of the 1951 finances and reported that after all expenses were paid, a balance of $357 remained. Members paid their fees and subscriptions to "The Living Message". The sum of $150 was voted to be donated to the wardens of the church and $5 to the van workers in the western provinces. Mrs. Herb. Kennedy was appointed Dorcas secretary, with Mrs. William Phillips and Mrs. Charles Stevenson to assist. Work was planned for the mission bale of clothing. New committees were apopinted to cover the different phases of the year's bazaar work and in each case a newer member was put on committee with an experienced buyer and worker.

Mrs. William Phillips invited the members to meet at her home in February.

Mrs. T. S. Gault read a chapter from the new study book on mission work in South America and closed the meeting with prayer. During the social hour which followed, the hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Women Teachers Commend Equal Pay Law

"A forward step in attracting the highest calibre of women for the Ontario teaching profession has been made by the Ontario Government through its legislation providing equal pay for women who do the same work as men," said Mrs. Helen M. Ward, executive secretary of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, representing more than 13,000 public school women teachers in all parts of the province. Her remarks were in reference to the Fair Remuneration to Female Employees Act, 1951, which came into force January 1st this year.

The Director of the Fair Employment Practices Branch of the Ontario Department of Labour, Mr. Louis Fine, when asked about the relationship of the new Act to the Ontario teaching profession, said, according to Mrs. Ward, "There are no exceptions contained in the Act governing the teaching profession, so it must be assumed that the Act will apply to this profession."

Section 7, Sub-section 2 of the Act states "Nothing in this Act shall affect written contracts of employment and collective bargaining agreements that were made before the first day of March, 1951; but if any such contract or agreement is in force on the first day of September 1952, this Act shall apply thereto on and after that day. If there are written contracts of employment between the teachers and school boards made prior to March 1, 1951, they would fall within the qualifications noted in the above section."

Many Ontario municipalities have had the equal pay schedule in operation for a number of years. This step taken by Ontario is in line with the laws of 16 countries throughout the world who have in recent years either incorporated the principle of equal pay into their constitutions or have passed identical minimum wage laws for men and women.

In the United States more than 13 states and Alaska have passed equal pay laws, and the United States Federal Government accepts this principle in its Civil Service positions, just as Canada has implemented the principle in its Civil Service.

"Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario is gratified that equal pay for equal work is being accepted in all phases of business," Mrs. Ward remarked, "and the legislators of Ontario are to be highly commended on the passing of this Act which is now a part of the law of our province".

Dunlop Prefers Old Class Competition

TORONTO, Jan. 10(CP)—Education Minister Dunlop Wednesday made his first public comment on Toronto's controversial public school report cards. He said he did not see why competition should be taken out of the class room.

The new report cards, introduced here last November, show the degree in which the pupil is developing his own ability, rather than how he compares with his colleagues.

Dr. Dunlop told the Electric Club that youngsters would have to face competition when they leave school and should receive "a taste of it beforehand." Poor marks just meant that the pupil had to buckle down.

He said he was not a "progressive educationist."

More emphasis should be given to the three R s—reading, writing and arithmetic. Sports should be kept in their proper perspective so that they do not "crowd out the real academic education for which schools are built."

New Word

Dr. Dunlop, a life-long teacher, wondered where the word frustration came from. "We didn't know what it meant in our day," he said. "If we were given an academic blow on the nose, we backed up and tackled the problem again. But nowadays, we must not let the pupils be frustrated, whatever that means."

He added that when he posted the results of weekly tests every Monday morning in his little rural school, with marks that ranged from 80 to 40, he didn't notice any frustration. It just meant that some of he pupils had to buckle down.

"We worked hard in our day in school and didn't mind it, if we saw where it was leading," we said. "I don't see why we should take hard work out of the schools."

He added that many businessmen were complaining to him that graduates aren't as well equipped with the three R's as they should be. He said he intended to insist that these fundamentals were well taught, although suggesting they were already in most schools and that perhaps the businessman exaggerated.

Dr. Dunlop said an educator from Georgia, in Ontario recently to make a speech, was puzzled by the term three R's and asked what it meant. When told, he said they had three R's in his country, too, but they meant wrestling, racing and recess.

"That illustrates a certain tendency," the minister of education continued. "Sport and physical well-being are fine, but sometimes they crowd out the real academic education for which schools are built. I want to see that they are kept in their proper place."

As for citizenship and the teaching of democracy, he said teachers could do a great deal more teaching of this, not as a separate subject, but coincidental with other subjects such as history. This was as essential for native Canadians as it was for New Canadians.

"I want them to be taught that our democratic institutions are British and that they were hard won. I want them to remember our British connection and that we are part of the Commonwealth. I want to set the Union Jack in every classroom and to have them taught what it stands for."

Dr. Dunlop said that Canada now is, as the United States used to be, the melting pot of Europe. He expressed the hope that this country's 45 nationalities would be blended into the fabric of Canadian citizenship.

Liberals Want Rebuild Party

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—The eight Liberals elected in the Nov. 22 Ontario election want to see a rebuilding program started within the provincial party.

The members, meeting here Wednesday, urged that the Provincial Liberal Association call an annual meeting as soon as possible They also confirmed Farquhar Oliver as house leader and Aurele Chartrand of Ottawa east as party whip.

The annual meeting was originally scheduled for November, but was cancelled because of the election. It may take place during May.

Mr. Oliver said the meeting would take up "all matters of importance in the light of present circumstances." This would include consideration of a new Provincial Liberal leader.

Walter C. Thomson, who became leader in 1950 and led the party through the Nov. 22 election campaign only to go down to defeat in his own riding, has given no indication of his intentions.

The Budget Surplus

In the budget which the Minister of Finance brought down last Spring, the surplus was estimated at $30 millions. By the end of November the surplus had in fact reached the enormous total of $635 millions, with a third of the fiscal year still to be accounted. How big the surplus will be when the fiscal year ends in March can only be guessed at. Because of the increasing rate of defence expenditures and the usual last-month influx of annual accounts and supplements, the surplus may not be much greater than it stood at the end of November. However, a $635 million surplus is quite a different bag from a $30 million surplus ticketed in the budget. This morning, Mr. James Muir, President of the Royal Bank, addressing the annual general meeting of stockholders, warned that the surplus could be an inflationary "time bomb" unless wisely used.

* * *

For the first time in 23 months, the cost of living index dropped in November. It was a very slight decrease; nevertheless, it was not an increase. It seems therefore that the Government's anti-inflationary policies (of which the budget is being used as one instrument) are having some success. Higher taxes are preventing heavy personal spending, although personal incomes are rising. The budget surplus has withdrawn many millions of dollars from the buyers' market. But the end of rising costs may not be in sight, for the reason that the Government is committed to spending approximately $1,600 millions on armament each year in a three-year, five-billion dollar program. During the first seven months of the present fiscal year (ending March 31st) defence orders amounting to $1,326 were placed, but the actual expenditure was only $416 millions. As factories gear for the orders already placed, the rate of spending will rise; and the number of jobs in the factories will increase, along with wages and profits. This in itself will give another puff to inflation.

* * *

It may be that a lessening of world tension and an end to the war in Korea could temper defence spending—spread it out evenly—and thus not be inflationary. That is a possibility. But the 1951-52 budget surplus remains. It could be an inflationary "time bomb" as Mr. Muir said this morning. "This unplanned surplus is neither an effective check to inflation nor a reason for complacency and self-congratulation."

> "Tax revenue as well as the public's savings have risen as a natural result of the rise in incomes. In other words, the rise in both is in part the result of inflation, not the result of our anti-inflation policy. The danger here is that the Government with its increased surplus and the public with its increased savings are better able than ever to increase expenditure in the future. What really matters is the intention of those who own the savings and the intention of those who control the Government surplus."

The surplus (partly the result of increased taxes, partly of increased business and employment) will be anti-inflationary if it is made inert by impounding it as a deposit in the Bank of Canada or used to retire Government debt held by the Bank of Canada. But if the surplus is used freely; if Government departments eye it as a juicy orange to squeeze, and the Government itself encourages a spending spree so as to eat up the surplus and be able to say to the Opposition critics and heavily-taxed public: "See, we needed that extra money; we had to spend it after all"; if this happens then the surplus would be the inflationary bomb which Mr. Muir warns against.

* * *

If the Government itself sets an example of careful spending and strict economy (an example which the Parliamentary Committee on Defence Expenditures should force it to set), the taxpayers may be encouraged likewise to spend slowly, and to save as much as taxation allows.

Eisenhower Will Stand

General Eisenhower has said that he will respond to "a clear-cut call to political duty." This means that he will not actively seek the honour of the Republican nomination as presidential candidate, but if the Republican National Committee decide that he is the man they want, he will resign as Supreme Commander in Western Europe, and contest the election. There are other men who want that nomination and are working to get it: they are Harold Stassen of Minnesota, Robert Taft of Ohio and Governor Earl Warren of California. However, General Eisenhower has powerful supporters and the nomination may be his. The fact that he does not actively seek it may work in his favour; he is now in a position of the utmost importance, and his refusal to throw that up in order to enter politics will impress people of thoughtful temperament, just as it did in the case of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. The General has made it clear that he regards a presidential nomination as a call to the highest service of his country, and not as a political prize. This will carry weight in the Republican party, where Eisenhower will appear as the choice of the wing of the party which has international sympathies, as opposed to those Republicans who are isolationists, ranging from the lightest tinge to the deepest dye.

The international outlook which General Eisenhower has displayed in his position as Supreme Commander will lead the nations of Western Europe—and Canada, as well—to hope that the Republican choice will fall upon him. It seems very doubtful whether a man committed to isolationism could be elected to the presidency of the U.S.A. at this time, and as the Republicans greatly desire victory there is a very strong likelihood that General Eisenhower will be the chosen Republican candidate when the Republican National Committee meets in San Francisco later this month.

Peterborough Scholars

Although Peterborough is chiefly known for its industrial importance, it would be foolish for us to forget that the city has produced scholars of importance in the past, and continues to produce them now. We call special attention to Gordon Roper, now on the faculty of Trinity College, Toronto, and a widely-known authority on Herman Melville, and Hugh Kenner, who is making a reputation as a critic of modern literature, and particularly the work of James Joyce.

Not long before Christmas we printed an article in our Third Column by Dr. Roper, written by him to commemorate the centenary of the publication of Moby Dick; a volume in the definitive edition of Melville, edited by him, is expected to appear early this year. Professor Kenner has just published The Poetry of Ezra Pound, a work of criticism which has received far more than ordinary attention in the American press, special mention being made of the sympathy and insight with which it is written—qualities not always to be found in scholarly works.

These scholars are Peterborough men, educated in our schools and making their first aprpoaches to literature through local libraries. We hope that what they are doing is frequently brought to the attention of High School students here, for it is not so many years since Roper and Kenner sat where they sit now, and listened to many of the teachers who are teaching them. The achievements of these men, both at the beginning of careers in scholarship, are proof to Peterborough young people whose inclinations lie along academic paths that the academic life is by no means closed to them, that the more remote fields of knowledge and speculation are not beyond their reach, and that Peterborough is not so far removed from the world of scholarship as it may at times appear. The foundations of learning exist here, as these men, and others before them, have clearly shown.

They Will Come Back To It

Some of our contemporaries are angry with Patricia Stenz, of Hollywood, because she suggests that there should be beauty parlours for men, in which they would be made to look more personable than they do at present. She suggests that men should have their hair cut more carefully, that they should dye it when the colour fades, and that they should touch up their faces. As we said, this has made some editors angry. It does not make us angry. Men have done all these things before; some do them now; it will undoubtedly be the fashion in the course of time for men to do so again. Men are great slaves of fashion, and they will do what other men do. And it may not be long before men, moved by some whim of fashion, will reach again for the dye-pot and the rouge.

We base our remarks upon our knowledge of history. And let no irate male begin tearing the hair out of his chest by the handful until he has made some study of the history of fashion. Many a young officer who died on the field of Waterloo had artificially curled hair; the same might be said of many who died in the Crimea. The great Duke of Marlborough would not have dreamed of going into battle without his wig. Frederick the Great, who has never been despised as effeminate, used rouge. Napoleon was always painted before he appeared on ceremonial occasions. And although modern custom forbids us to name names, many a very eminent male this very day never appears in public without certain aids to nature to give him the glow of health and comparative youth.

Why not, after all? There is nothing intrinsically effeminate about dying the hair or painting the cheeks. The Red Indians did it. Europeans, all through history, have done it. Many eminent Americans have done it. It is not the fashion at present, but when it becomes the fashion once again—as it surely will—everybody will do it. Why fuss?

MEXICAN NOTEBOOK

A Clash Of Cultures

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

MEXICO is the only country, apart from Canada, which borders on the Continental United States. Unlike Canada, it is completely different from its neighbour in race, language, history, customs and religious background.

The United States is predominantly Nordic, English-speaking, and Protestant. Mexico is predominantly Indian, Spanish-speaking, Catholic, and to a considerable extent anti-clerical. In the United States newspapers make the tacit assumption that Free Enterprise holds the key to the future. Mexican newspapers, on the other hand, tend to regard Capitalism as slightly wicked and certainly un-Mexican, and to assume that Socialism is the obvious faith for normal people.

THESE two cultures clash along a frontier which stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and each spills over into the other. In Mexico there are drive-in movie-theatres, motels, supermarkets, bars with television, commercial radio programs, soap operas, United States automobiles, United States soft drinks, and what anti-North American Mexicans, using a French modismo, call Coca-Colonizacion.

But the traffic is not only one way. In the American States of Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and California live two and a half million citizens whose native language is Spanish. These areas were first settled by Spanish-speaking people, and the names of the cities—San Francisco, Los Angeles, Santa Fe, San Antonio — are witnesses to their origin.

THE Mexican, like the Puerto Rican and the Filipino, occupies a curious and awkward place in the North American social and economic hierarchy. Neither white nor black, but usually brown, he is not dismissed (in the South-Western States where he tends to live) as a "nigger" or a "darky," but he is not quite accepted as "one of us."

Among the Spanish-speaking people themselves—loosely described as "Mexicans," or rudely as "greasers"—there are considerable differences of caste and background. There are, for instance, the old inhabitants, who were there before the Anglo-Saxons came, who in turn are divided into those who go along with "los Anglos," and those who pretend to ignore the existence of such comparative upstarts.

THERE are the children and grandchildren of immigrants from Mexico, who refer to the English-speaking inhabitants as "gringos," but who are not quite accepted as equals by their co-citizens of Spanish background who were there before. Finally there are the braceros, migratory workers who come and go but sometimes stay, and, if they cross the Rio Grande del Norte illegally, are known to the Anglos as "wetbacks."

These three groups would be sharply divided among themselves were it not for two things—a common cultural heritage and the fact that all of them are regarded by the local English-speaking citizens as "Mexes." Even when a Spanish-speaking citizen of Texas, whose family lived there before the United States existed, wins a high decoration from his country, the English-language newspaper of his home town is liable to say "Mexican Earns Congressional Medal of Honour"—though the Editor's parents may have come from Czechoslovakia.

IT is hard to say where Latin America begins. For me, it began at St. Louis, Missouri, where the wife of my host was a "Hispano" citizen of the United States. In the train to San Antonio, Texas, almost all the passengers in my coach were English-speaking Negroes, but in the coach behind there was an almost equal predominance of Spanish-speaking people, many in uniforms of the United States armed forces.

The Negro couple sitting in front of me told me that about a third of the population of San Antonio was "Hispano," and when I changed on to the Laredo train there I could well believe them. The train—which travelled at a maximum speed of 35 m.p.h. and stopped at every station—consisted of an extremely grubby diesel locomotive of the Missouri Pacific Lines, an elderly box-car, two coaches marked "U.S. Mail," one marked Correos de Mexico, a baggage-car, a day-coach, and a diner. Most of the notices were in both languages, some only in Spanish, and the menu in the dining-car was bilingual.

LAREDO, Texas, on the United States bank of the Rio Grande, is 95 per cent. Spanish-speaking, and separated only by a short bridge from its sister-city of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. The architecture and the people in the streets are the same on both sides, and yet there is a sudden change of atmosphere. Nuevo Laredo is somehow more relaxed, less worried. There is more laughter and music in the air. Finally, in Nuevo Laredo there are none of the signs saying "White" and "Coloured," which offend the susceptibilities of even the whitest Mexicans when they cross the river (and, to be fair, of many English-speaking white North Americans).

The bus trip of two days and a night to Mexico City provides less evidence of the overlapping of cultures, because most North Americans can afford to travel by car, plane or train. There was only one gringo in the bus, a pleasant young sailor on leave from San Francisco. But many of the roadside signs are in English, and petrol stations owned by the Mexican Government announce "Estacion de Servicio PEMEX; English Spoken." When we emerged out of a thick fog on a winding mountain highway we came upon an enormous truck with Michigan licence plates, painted silver and bearing in Spanish in large black letters the legend: "God save us all; Jesus Christ and His Twelve Disciples: Made in Italy: First Time in Mexico." No one in the bus could guess what it was all about, but there was a general opinion that anything so bizarre "must have something to do with los gringos."

IN Mexico City itself there is a large floating North American population—businessmen, tourists, artists, and a considerable number of G.I. students. "English is spoken in most of the big stores, United States goods are on sale everywhere, there is an English-language daily paper, and the principal Spanish-language papers have an English section "for gringos who can't read," as one Mexican put it.

Few of the tourists take much trouble to learn the language or the customs of the country (I heard one woman in a shop selling Mexican folk-art complain, "These people are so dumb; I can't get anyone to understand me") and they tend to upset Mexican ideas of decorum by their casual manners and their even more casual attire. The students do try, on the whole, to adapt themselves to Mexican ways, but to a lesser degree they are liable to cause unintentional offence in the same way as the tourists.

INDIVIDUAL yanquis are popular and often have a wide circle of Mexican friends, but as a nation they are resented. Partly this is due to the proximity and size of their country, partly to lingering memories of 1913-16 when the United States invaded Mexico to enforce the collection of debts repudiated by the Revolutionary Government, partly to economic causes.

But even more important, perhaps, is something less definable, stemming only in part from economic causes: the North American's tendency to regard the Mexicans as "colourful natives," his (and, even more often, her) tacit assumption of superiority. It has the same effect on Mexicans as the attitude of the old-time British "memsahib" on Indians. It makes them curl up inside. It would be a useful education for North Americans who want to sell the American Way of Life abroad to spend six months in a Mexican household—on either side of the border.

UNCERTAIN SEAT

The Shaggiest Dog

by JAMES EDWARD HOLROYD (in the Manchester Guardian)

NEWS that London's Festival Year Sherlock Holmes Exhibition is to tour the United States next spring gives point to a notable anniversary. For it was in 1901-2 that "The Hound of the Baskervilles" first leapt across the pages of the old "Strand Magazine" and stirred the world with the faint promise that Holmes might indeed be less dead than dormant.

Although Conan Doyle had ruthlessly killed off his detectives at the Reichenback Falls some years previously, there can be no doubt that he enjoyed writing his earlier episode (the story is set in the eighties) of a ghost-hound which in the end is seen to be a creature of flesh and blood. "A real creeper" was how he described the adventure in a letter to his mother. To many who regard it as his finest story this will be no more than due praise.

The climax of the story, when the great hound emerges from the mist on the track of the unsuspecting baronet, is a "natural" which has attracted many illustrators, ranging from the flaming apparition by H. M. Brock to the slavering horror depicted by Frederick Dorr Steele, the American. Sidney Paget, whose original illustrations in the "Strand Magazine" contained some of his best work, nevertheless achieved several odd slips. In the drawings of the legendary hound, for instance, the costume of the horsemen belongs to the eighteenth century instead of to the seventeenth as required by the text. On the moor Holmes is given a soft felt hat, though the description demands a cloth cap. And Lestrade, who wears a cap as he hides behind the rocks, sports a bowler a couple of pictures later when he starts—a bad third—in pursuit of the huge beast. Perhaps the most curious touch of all is the manner in which Paget's drawing of Holmes and Watson in Regent Street continues to be reproduced in reverse, just as it appeared originally in the magazine fifty years ago. Yet the most casual scrutiny shows that Watson carries his stick in his left hand and that his coat buttons are the wrong way!

The Sherlock Holmes Exhibition also collected together other items which will indicate to American admirers the continuing interest in the Hound. Among them are an excellent copy of the "faded MS" which recounts the old legend, a plaster cast, supplied by Scotland Yard, of the pad of the largest police dog which guards Queen Mary's home, and stills from films of the story by Basil Rathbone and Eille Norwood. What the exhibition omitted to record was that in 1945 an American found a copy of a film, "Der Hund von den Baskervilles," in Hitler's private library at Berchesgaden.

The setting of the story is traditionally Dartmoor, and, indeed, there are several specific references to Princetown and the West Country. Dr. Maurice Campbell, the eminent Sherlockian of Guy's Hospital, has nevertheless edged a quiet doubt into the picture in recent months by noting that at Kingston, in Herefordshire, there is a gloomy-looking house with a sombre double avenue, a legend of the Black Dog of Hergest, and—as a clinching touch—a local pub called the Baskerville Arms. Controversy may well march resoundingly down that sombre double avenue for years to come.

ANY rereading of the "Hound" cannot fail to capture anew those magnificent strokes which bespeak the supreme story-teller—the clink of a stone as Watson waits in the lonely hut; the death of the convict on the moor (a scene "glimpsed by match-spurts and moonlight," as John Dickson Carr notes in his biography of Conan Doyle); and the unforgettably thrilling whisper of Dr. Mortimer, "Mr. Holmes, they were the footprints of a gigantic hound!"

There is also a fair sprinkling of what Christopher Morley has called "pure Victorian corn," and the reader will rediscover with affection such gems as the baronet's "By thunder," which is straight from Long John Silver or Holmes' "This time we have a foeman who is worthy of our steel," which somehow echoes all the author's preoccupation with medieval chivalry and remains my favourite quotation. "Evoe" once advanced the enchanting theory that the story was originally written in verse as a libretto. This was among the examples he quoted in support:

I stooped and pressed my pistol
To the dreadful shimmering head,
But it was useless to pull the trigger.
The giant hound was dead.

"There are moments," he wrote, "when one seems to hear the choir of a thousand voices."

A good deal of dogginess is scattered about the Holmes stories. It will be recalled that one of the most famous passages in the saga deals with "the curious incident of the dog in the night-time":

But the dog did nothing in the night-time
That was the curious incident.

In other places Watson not infrequently likens Holmes to a dog on the trail. Readers who were reared on the Sacred Writings will scarcely need to be reminded that George Hutchinsons's frontispiece to "A Study in Scarlet," which shows Jefferson Hope hurling himself backwards through the sitting-room window at 221b, is described "Lestrade and Holmes spring upon him like so many stag-hounds."

I have often wondered if the gaunt mastiff of "The Copper Beeches" might not be regarded as the prototype for the "Hound of the Baskervilles." Both at least are described as being as big as large calves, both go for the throat of their man, both are dispatched by revolver shots. These, incidentally, are two of the rare sounds of actual gunfire in the stories, in spite of a considerable flourishing of small arms by Holmes and Watson alike.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE the resemblance ends. For while the guardian of "The Copper Beeches" is conventionally called Carlo, Conan Doyle saw at once that the blood-chilling creature which infested the great Grimpen mire must be nameless. It is the more remarkable that this perceptiveness should have failed him elsewhere in the story. In one sense it makes the monster to be the shaggiest dog of them all. At any rate, I shall never forget the dismay of realizing in after years that the spectral Hound, which haunted my boyhood, had originally been "bought in London from Ross and Mangles, the dealers in Fulham Road"!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me. (John 16: 32.)

✧ ✧ ✧

These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee....I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word....

And now I come to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves....I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil....

Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word. (John 17: 1, 6, 13, 15, 20.)

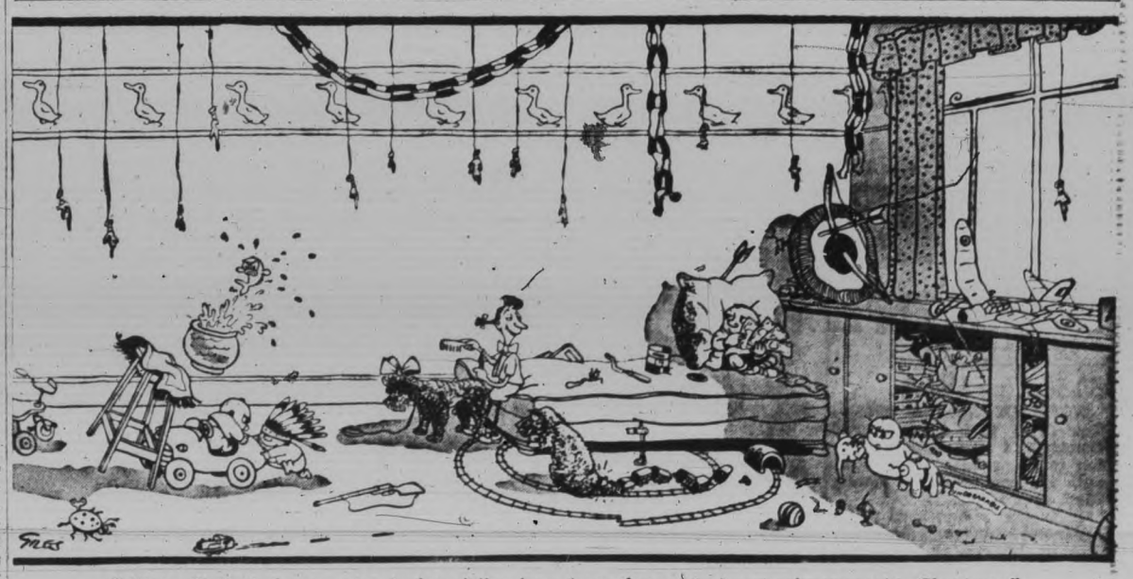
And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him. And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation....

And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him. But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a Kiss? (Luke 22: 39, 40, 47, 48.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. (Matt. 5: 6.)

No Change



(Manchester Guardian)

Being without a halfpenny is not, traditionally, a state of wellbeing. Harrogate seems likely to alter al that. People in Harrogate are reported to be so short of halfpennies that they are finding it hard to deal in newspapers, vegetables, and other commodities that are hinged to this fugitive coin. All they possess, it seems, is paper money. Dealers are complaining that never before have they been called upon to change so many pounds.

What has happened to the halfpennies of Harrogate? Perhaps somewhere on the town's comely borders there is a huge dump of abandoned halfpennies: it may be that they are all thrown away as a matter of sheer economic logic, on the ground that the wear and tear on trouser pockets is just not worth their infinitesimal though persistent purchasing value.

Might the truth be quite simply that the coin ought to be abolished and is persisted with purely as a marketing annoyance to discourage excessive spending? It is of course possible all the whole situation about changeless Harrogate has been rather overstated. One can hardly believe there are not half-crowns lurking in local tills, if not pockets, and even rarer curiosities like shillings and sixpences must surely turn up from time to time. There seems no need, in any event, to melt with compassion. The whole thing gives a new slant to the old beggars' rhyme:

If you haven't got a penny,
a ha'penny will do;
If you haven't got a ha'penny,
God bless you!

"Wait till Dad hears you've had a dollar loan from those Americans who came for Christmas."

WHERE FIRE STRUCK — Rebuilding plans already are under way in Sept Iles, Que., where a $1,000,000 fire struck destroying much of the town of 3,600. This aerial photo, taken before the fire, shows the thriving port on the north shore of St. Lawrence River, jumping-off point for the Ungava iron ore development area 300 miles north. Fire broke out in the garage-warehouse of the Quebec-Newfoundland Equipment and Supply Company and for a time threatened the whole town.

Charge Of Assault Laid Against Father

GOSHEN, Ind., Jan. 10 (AP)—A father of seven children admitted Wednesday he had been having sexual relations with his 19-year-old daughter for five years.

The father also told in a statement of keeping the girl chained, part of the time to her mother, to keep her from running away.

A charge of assault and battery with intent to commit incest was filed against the man, Harold Ray Lehman, 45, a Goshen factory worker.

Sheriff Vernon Cripe said Lehman's signed statement also admitted using a heavy, 15-foot-long steel chain to tie the girl at the waist to her mother, and later to a "truck brake drum" in their home.

DANGEROUS PLANT

The "Dumb Cane' is a tropical American plant with an acrid juice which paralyzes the powers of speech.

Offer 10% Increase To Ottawa Teachers

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—The Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board Wednesday night offered its 227 full-time teachers and 100 non-teaching employees a 10 per-cent salary increase plus a $100 annual cost-of-living bonus.

The board's offer, announced following a meeting, would mean an added expenditure of about $200,000 a year.

H. M. Tennant, president of the Ottawa Secondary School Teachers' Federation, had no immediate comment. The federation, which asked a 20 per cent increase, will meet shortly to consider the offer.

Solve Mystery Of Missing Camp

FLIN FLON, Man., Jan. 10 — (CP)—The mystery of a mining camp that vanished lock, stock and barrel has been solved. It has been converted to the more glamorous role of a summer camp, and the operation was all above board.

Seventy-five fishermen watched it moved.

The camp, including five frame buildings, was reported missing Tuesday. The movers reported at once to the owners, Thompson Mining Ltd.

They said they had obtained permission—apparently from the wrong party—to take the camp and spent two days dismantling it. A big scow moved the material across two lakes.

Holly Thompson, mining company manager, said there is no doubt the men told the truth and restitution would be made.

The campaign to knock out enemy guns outside the reach of allied artillery began in earnest 34 days ago. The air force said that in one sector alone, allied casualties from enemy artillery fire were cut 60 per cent.

An air force officer said 334 Communist artillery pieces had been destroyed or damaged—with 76 per cent of them destroyed.

Kingston Beats Petes 4-2 In Senior "B" Contest To Hook On To Third Place

Driving in hard here last night to dent the hemp twice early in the third period, Kingston Sacs yanked out a 4-2 OHA senior "B" group win over the second-place Petes before a small crowd. The victory hoisted Kingston into undisputed possession of third place two points ahead of Eagles and three points back of Petes, who trail Belleville by one game. These same squads tangle Friday in Kingston. It was a fast, clean game throughout with some good hockey seen, though play was scrambly in the middle chukker. They divided the six minor penalties. They used their sub-goalie, Jack Byers, and he turned in a fine effort. Don Dougall also shone in the visitors' cage as the Petes threw plenty of hot rubber his way in every period. It was 1-1 in the first frame and 2-all going into the third.

PLAYS DEFENCE — George Steele, returned to the Petes' lineup last night after a lengthy layoff for an injury and played defence, getting one assist as Kingston captured a 4-2 senior "B" victory.

A Goal Apiece

Bud Ohlke, Jack White, Cliff Aitken and Bud Goodfellow were the Kingston marksmen. Jerry Wagar aided on a pair of goals in a good showing, as single assists went to Jerry Larmer, Jim Sweetman, Don Murray and Ohlke. The Petes' scorers were Don Floyd and Curly Mason, with an assist apiece garnered by Ted Collins, George Steele, and Arn Dugan.

Less than a minute of play had elapsed when Stewart was chased for hooking, but he returned with no damage done. The Petes pressed for a time and a rush by Gus Leonard and Junior West just missed. Floyd put the Ellis outfit one up at 6:25 banging away in a close-in scramble, Steele and Collins earning assists. Later, White got that one back from Larmer and Sweetman, falling as he whisked away his shot with the goalie down from a previous save. Wagar missed an open net shortly and, with Collins off for roughing, the K's pressed hard, but it was even and speedy at the gong.

Still Tied Up

Play reeled back and forth to start the second with both goalies on the jump. A Garvey-Floyd thrust almost paid off, and then Mason got in for a slap shot an Dugan's neat pass to tally as they roared in at top speed. Aitken again evened the score with a sizzler from close range on a play built up by Murray and Ohlke. Steele went over for boarding, but the Petes held off their rivals till his return. Byers robbed Aitken and it became quite scrambly and shinny-like the rest of the route. Goodfellow climbing the wall in the final minute for holding.

He was back in the third when Mason and then Murray were thefted. Steele got the nod for elbowing and was back when Goodfellow scored the winner from Wagar when left briefly uncovered out in front. Ohlke clinched matters a minute later as he jabbed the disc home in a scramble, Wagar helping. West nearly notched one as the Petes poured it on desperately, but Dougall was giving away nothing and his mates checked closely. Bender served an interference penalty, but the K's kept the Petes at bay. Dugan pulled a nice rush and then six forwards were sent out in the final minute with the goalie pulled, but they still could not click for a goal.

The teams:

Kingston — Goal, Dougal; defence, Stewart and Bender; centre, Murray; wings, Ohlke and Aitken; alternates, MacGregor, Larmer, White, Wagar, Tinkess, Sweetman, Goodfeow and Williamson.

Petes — Goal, Byers; defence, Jopling and Steele; centre, Dugan; wings, Mason and Fryia; alternates, G. Leonard, West, Mortimer, Garvey, Collins, Floyd, Wade and Horton.

Referee—J. Crombie. Linesman—H. Payne.

The summary:

Think Swedes May Be Surprise

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP)—Canadians just back from a Scandinavian tour said Wednesday that Sweden may spring a big surprise in next month's Olympic hockey championships—if the Swedes can shake off their inferiority complex.

Bob Giddens, Canadian editor of an American-British hockey publication, said the Swedes are fast skaters and exceptionally deft passers, but lack that "killer instinct" around the net.

"It seems to be an inferiority complex," said Giddens, editor of Ice Hockey World. "They apparently think Canadian clubs are too good for them."

Keith (Duke) Campbell, 42-year-old coach of Earl's Court Rangers, Canadian-staffed team from the English National League, agreed that Sweden's weak spot is in finishing off plays in the enemy zone.

Campbell and Giddens returned last Saturday after accompanying Rangers on an exhibition tour in Sweden and Norway. The visitors won five of the six contests but had a lower goal average than their opponents in three games against Sweden's national team.

Lindsay Triumphs Over Bowmanville

LINDSAY, Jan. 10—Lindsay's league-leading intermediate "A" Muskies battered out a 7-3 win over the high-flying Bowmanville Barons here to keep their hold on first place in the league.

The Barons were minus four of their top men and the locals were also short three men—two of them from their second string defence line. Former Chicago Black Hawk player and now Lindsay's recreation director Bill (Red) Mitchell was pressed into service for the Muskies and he managed to score one goal and assist on two others.

The First Loss

The Barons have won the first three starts in their league games and last night was their first setback. The win moves the Muskies eight points ahead of their nearest rival, Port Hope Redmen. Bowmanville has natural ice and do not begin their schedule until the first of the year. All of their games are four-point affairs.

This game was one of the hardest-hitting games seen this year and playing coach Al Burns was the best man on the ice with his sterling play and rugged body checking. Only seven penalties were handed out by Referee Pete Nigh.

Action in Bowmanville Tuesday night saw Lindsay's unbeaten juveniles take a lop-sided 17-1 victory over the Bowmanville club. All but two men on the Lindsay team managed to garner at least one point. Lindsay played without their high-scoring utility man, Bill Burns, who is under suspension by the OMHA for taking part in a fracas at the Lindsay arena last week when a referee was attacked.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto Maple Leafs' 2-1 victory over New York Rangers on Wednesday night made little change in the standings of the leaders in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race. But it did put Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy of Toronto within one point of fourth place.

Both now have 32 points, Smith's made up of 13 goals and 19 assists and Kennedy's of 12 and 20.

Elmer Lach still leads the race with 37 points, and leads the league in assists, 28. He has nine goals. Teammate Maurice (The Rocket) Richard leads in goals with 21 and has 15 assists to give him second place with 36 points.

Gordie Howe of Detroit is in third spot with 20 goals and 15 assists for 35 points, closely followed by Don Raleigh of New York with 13 and 20 for 33.

Johnny Peirson follows with 31 points, 11 goals and 20 assists.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts.

Whoops, hoops and oops—it's basketball time again. All local cage crews are ready to swing into action now, and several games are listed for here this weekend. Just one YW girls' game Friday eve, Neill's vs. CGE, as the tilt betwixt Nurses and Lindsay will be staged Monday. On the morrow at the Collegiate, Oshawa high school boys play PCVS junior "A" team, while the senior PCI-ers are arranging an exhibition. Saturday p.m. in the YMCA, Gord McIntyre's intermediate Marines have a league fixture with Trenton Flyers. Marines have dropped but one decision to date, a toughie earlier this week in Bella Villa. Basketball will go regularly now several times a week on various fronts.

Intercounty Baseball League of Western Ontario is considering an Oshawa application. Some of the clubs are against the long hikes to the Motor City, pointing out that Windsor was barred because of distance. St. Thomas and Stratford are doubtful starters at the moment, and the withdrawal of one or both might pave the way for entry of Oshawa Merchants. They won the Viaduct League title over the Petes last fall and went on to win the OBA crown, though the Intercounty (strongest circuit in the province) isn't interested in OBA playdowns. Still, Oshawa could field a strong import-studded squad in that league, without any doubt.

* * * * * *

"Virtually No Chance"

While Oshawa and London scribes think the Motor Citizens may be allowed in comes February, the Kitchener columnist says: "The Oshawans, from what we heard, have virtually no chance of being taken in. If any club outside the present circuit gets in, it might be Welland. We feel sure that the loop will not admit any other teams outside of its present membership during 1952. There was no talk at all of the league assuming a Class 'C' status in pro company." But it's a highly-paid so-called amateur loop with a lot of USA imports. What Oshawa ballsters do is of considerable concern to the Petes, as Oshawa is the closest city to Peterborough and boasts a strong club. One which always gave the locals keen competition.

Returning to hockey, an OHA junior "B" joust is on tap tomorrow night at 8.30 in Civic Arena. A scheduled tussle between Kingston Vics and the Oddfellows, two teams presently battling it out behind the leading Lindsay and Belleville clubs. The IOOF-ers are in third place but Vics are crowding 'em, and this should be a hot struggle. All junior games are slambang affairs and these teams are quite well-matched, so it adds up to a tidy ice tidbit, one that rates a hefty Friday night crowd. Oh, yes, it's "father and son night", too, so kids accompanied by parents get in for free. If dad can't come, mother will serve the purpose as well, girls and boys.

K's Take The Petes

A tight senior "B" tilt here last e'en, but Kingston put on a spurt early in the third for two tallies and took the decision 4-2. Petes poured it on plenty the rest of the way—and easily held their own the first two frames—but couldn't park the cookie. Kept hitting the goalie's pads to make him look good, though he turned in an okay effort at that. So did young Jack Byers in the Ellis' net. Don Floyd and Curly Mason got the local markers, an assist each going to George Steele, Ted Collins and Arn Dugan. The fans continue to stay away in large numbers, there being about enough at the arena last p.m. to pay expenses. Maybe.

Hectic hockey action all over the district these wintry nights as the natural ice keeps good. In the TVL last e'en, Havelock beat Hastings 6-4, Stirling took Marmora 8-6, and Norwood won from Lakefield 9-4. Games tomorrow: Stirling at Havelock, Hastings at Norwood, and Marmora at Lakefield. An EPHL joust north of here saw Lakefield and Keene draw 5-5, and these squads clash again Friday on Keene ice. St. Peter's go to Warsaw, having lost their last start there by a 13-5 count. Otonabee tussles this eve at Keene are: Downer's vs. Westwood, and Indian River vs. Assumption. Lots of action, too, by Mt. Pleasant, Scott's Corners, Millbrook and Bailieboro.

Jackie Robinson signed his 1952 Brooklyn contract calling for an estimated $40,000 Wednesday and predicted he would never last as long as Joe DiMaggio did.

Accompanying the Robinson signing was an announcement that Clyde Sukeforth, veteran Dodger coach, had resigned and that his place would be taken by Billy Herman, former National League infielder now managing a club in the Cuban Winter League.

"I'm afraid I haven't much chance of lasting with Joe," Jackie told a press conference. "One thing is all that college playing. I played hard. Another thing is my weight. It's against my lasting more than a few more years unless I can find some way to control it."

Jackie, just short of his 33rd birthday, was an all-round star at UCLA a dozen years ago, one of the top-flight football backs the Coast Conference has produced. DiMaggio retired as a Yankee recently at the ripe athletic age of 37.

Frank Shields, captain of the US Davis Cup tennis team, Wednesday at New York gave his opinion of the Australian wedding present fund for Frank Sedgman. At a press conference, Shields said the fund being raised by Australian papers for Sedgman's fiancee, Jean Spence, may be legal but "it is taking advantage of a loophole in the rules. I believe the intent of the amateur rule is being broken."

However, at Sydney, Australia, an official of the all-England Lawn Tennis Club contributed ten guineas to the fund and said he felt such a gift would not endanger the Australian tennis ace's amateur status. Lieut. Col. A. D. C. Macaulay, secretary of the tennis club which conducts the famed Wimbledon tournament, gave the money on behalf of the club.

The scheduled welterweight match between European champion Charles Humez and Kid Gavilan, world titleholder, appeared to have run into a financial snag today. The match has been tentatively carded for March 28 in Madison Square Garden by the International Boxing Club of New York.

A French sports newspaper on Wednesday reported Humez's manager had demanded 25 per cent of the receipts for sale of television rights to the match. The club, it said, was offering Humez only 15 per cent of the TV proceeds.

Wilfred Hughes, 27-year-old suspended jockey, was freed Wednesday in $1,000 bail for appearance in superior court in connection with alleged racing fixing at Rockingham Park, New Hampshire. Hughes has been held in Hillsboro county jail since he was arrested last Friday at Plymouth, Mass., on a fugitive from justice warrant.

A bill to legalize off-track betting on racing in New York State through a system of licenced state agents was introduced on Wednesday in the State Legislature. It was sponsored by Senator James J. Crawford, Manhattan Democrat. However, as in other years, the bill is not expected to win approval.

Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott said in a radio broadcast over Station WKDN at Camden, NJ, Wednesday that he had been offered a $250,000 guarantee by a "great female movie star" to defend his title in Los Angeles against Harry Matthews this summer. Walcott declined to disclose the name of the movie star, but said he also was offered 50 per cent of the television receipts if he accepted the fight to be held at the Los Angeles Coliseum. Matthews currently is campaigning as a light heavyweight and recently turned down a championship shot at 175-pound King Joey Maxim.

The heavyweight champ is supposed to give Ezzard Charles first crack at the title.

Fans of the Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League observed Pete Backor night by presenting the veteran defenceman from Fort William, with more than $1,000 in cash and numerous gifts Wednesday night. Mayor David L. Lawrence presented the gifts. Backor is playing his seventh year with the league-leading Hornets.

George J. (Pat) Lavelle, 77, one time trainer for the late Harry Greb, world light heavyweight boxing champion, died Wednesday at Pittsburgh.

Leafs Cool Off Rangers Gardner Gets Winning Goal

By The Canadian Press

With all the talk of trades circulating through the six-city National Hockey League, sports writers of late have been wondering out loud just how long Toronto Maple Leafs would keep their red-headed centre Cal Gardner. The free-skating Winnipeg native just hasn't been clicking.

However Wednesday night the ex-Ranger dispelled any thought of a trade for a while as he scored on his former team-mates midway through the second period and gave the Smythe-men a 2-1 victory over the fourth-place New Yorkers.

Although the goal spoiled the game for 13,801 Gotham fans, it gave the Leafs two big points and moved them back into sole possession of second place They are two points in front of Montreal and 10 behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings.

Gardner's goal came at 12.52 of the middle session after Max Bentley had given the Leafs a 1-0 lead at 13:47 of the first period. Hi Buller, who was in the penalty box when Bentley scored, evened it up for the Rangers just two minutes later.

The last half of the contest was rather slow as the Toronto team played it safe against the always aggressive and powerful Blueshirts.

In Boston, Art Ross has sent his players scurrying for cover by calling up Real Chevrefils and Leo Labine from the Hershey American Hockey League farm club. He also traded rookie defenceman Jim Morrison to Toronto for Maple Leaf winger Fleming Mackell. Morrison temporarily goes to the Leafs' Pittsburgh AHL farm club.

Ross also shipped forwards Adam Brown and Lorne Ferguson to Hershey and sent along Pentti Lund to skate himself back into condition. Lund is still recovering from a recent serious eye injury.

Chevrefils, Labine and Mackell will be in Boston uniform when the Bruins play host to Chicago Black Hawks on Boston Gardens ice Sunday night. The Bruins whipped the cellar-dwelling Hawks 7-2 Tuesday in Chicago.

In Chevrefils, the second highest scorer in the AHL, and his linemate Labine, the Bruins may have an answer to their fifth-place blues.

Only one NHL game is scheduled tonight as the fourth-place New York Rangers move into Detroit.

Hornets Subdue Syracuse 7-2

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets went further ahead of the pack in the American Hockey League's western division Wednesday night, subduing the hapless Syracuse Warriors 7-2 to show a 10-point lead over the second-place Cleveland Barons.

In the eastern division, Providence Reds strengthened their hold on second place and at the same time came within seven points of the leading Hershey Bears by slapping a 7-2 defeat on the Bears.

In the only other game played, Buffalo Bisons and Cincinnati Mohawks played a 5-5 tie.

At Pittsburgh, the Hornets, after trailing for 40 minutes, racked up six goals in the third period to defeat Syracuse.

Bob Solinger and Johnny McLellan contributed two goals each to the Hornets' fourth straight victory over Syracuse. Phil Maloney, Gordie Hannigan and Andy Barbe scored the other Pittsburgh goals. George Ford was responsible for both the Warriors' tallies.

Richard Sidelined Month With Stomach Ailment

SUDBURY, Jan. 10 (CP). — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the National Hockey League's top goal-getter, will be lost to the Montreal Canadiens for at least a month, sidelined with stomach trouble.

The announcement was made here Wednesday night by Montreal coach Dick Irvin after an exhibition game in which Richard made brief appearances in two periods and then became violently sick to his stomach.

In the second of a two-game exhibition tour of northern Ontario, Montreal defeated Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League 10-4 before a crowd of more than 6,500.

Irvin said his forward star has been troubled with a stomach ailment and will be on the sidelines until he is fully recovered.

Richard had previously made a brief showing in an exhibition tilt against Rouyn Flashes in Rouyn. He had been knocked low then by the same ailment, Irvin said.

Not Too Well

Before Wednesday night's game Richard said he was not feeling too well. He laid the blame on his early-season training and said he had been trying to reduce and was often taking the ice on an empty stomach.

The announcement that Richard would not play the third period Wednesday night was met with a loud chorus of boos. He had previously taken his familiar right wing slot with Dick Olmstead but played poorly. Elmer Lach did not take his usual place on the first-string favored line.

Irvin did not say who would replace Richard on the Canadiens. It is expected that he will bring someone up from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Oshawa Rink Wins Prize At Midland

MIDLAND, Jan. 10 (CP).—Five curling trophies were won Wednesday at the 19th annual Midland Curling Club bonspiel. Midland, Toronto, Gravenhurst and Oshawa rinks carried off the prizes.

The Midland rink, skipped by Harold Beaudoin, defeated Sully Meredith's Barrie rink, 14-9, to win the Imperial Oil Trophy, main prize of the bonspiel.

The Gooderham-Worts Trophy was won by A. B. Alton's Toronto Royals rink with a 13-4 victory over Milt Irwin's rink from Midland.

The Gravenhurst rink, headed by Gerla Simmons, won the Goodyear Trophy with a 15-6 edge over F. Bumstead of Elmvale.

Oshawa rinks carried off two trophies, the players and the Birks. W. B. White's rink defeated Del Hastings of Midland 16-9 for the Players prize and A. J. Parkhill won a 12-9 victory over Tim Bate of Elmvale for the Birks trophy.

Giant Victory No. 1 Comeback

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP). — It was even too incredible for a Hollywood writer to dream up and yet it happened. It had to happen to be believed. It came to realization at 3:58 pm Oct. 3 when Bobby Thomson smashed his never-to-be-forgotten home run in the ninth inning to give the Giants a 5-4 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers and the National League pennant.

The hit climaxed the most astounding comeback in the history of baseball—a sustained, determined rally that brought Leo Durocher's fighting men a pennant after they had trailed the free-wheeling Dodgers by 13½ games as late as Aug. 11.

So it comes as no surprise that the Cinderella rise of the Giants was voted the greatest comeback by a team or individual in 1951—a year of amazing occurrences and resurgencies.

Of 214 sportswriters and sportscasters who participated in The Associated Press' annual poll, 165 voted the New Yorkers' pennant triumph as the No. 1 comeback.

In second place was ancient Jersey Joe Walcott's seventh-round knockout of Ezzard Charles on July 18 which gave the 37-year-old gladiator the heavyweight championship in his fifth try at the title.

Marines Recall Ted Williams For Service

By BILL KING.

BOSTON, Jan. 10 (AP).— Ted Williams, baseball's top salaried slugger, has been recalled by the United States Marines and, if physically fit, probably will be lost to Boston Red Sox until he reaches the comparative old age of 35.

That $100,000-plus performer is one of the several hundred former Marine flyers being called back as replacements for Korean veterans due for active service releases.

Reports from Marine headquarters in Washington were that Williams, now 33, will report for a physical examination April 2. If found fit, he will go on active duty May 2 for at least 17 months. That would take him through most of the coming American League season and all of 1953.

"If Uncle Sam wants me, I'm ready. I'm not any different than the next fellow," Williams phoned general manager Joe Cronin from his Florida Everglades fishing retreat Wednesday.

Will Take Training

"But I'll go through all of the spring training and I'll stay with the club and await further orders" Williams added.

But Williams' chances of passing the Marines' strict physical tests for its flyers are considered dubious in that service's local circles.

Ted fractured the head of the radius bone in his left elbow during the 1950 all-star game and the resulting surgery has hampered that arm's extension and mobility ever since. He still requires the constant attention of theraputists.

Hereabouts, many recalled reservists, especially flyers, have been rejected for similar handicaps.

Williams missed three seasons, from 1943 through 1945, because of service in the Second World War. He qualified as a Marine flyer and served as an instructor at Pearl Harbor.

Waterloo Hurricanes Come To Life Upset St. Catharines In 9-5 Win

By The Canadian Press.

A few weeks ago they were calling the Waterloo Hurricanes winless wonders of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop. No matter how hard the Hurcs tried, they just couldn't win.

Attendance had fallen off at home and the city of Waterloo was forced to advance the Arena Commission $10,000 to see the Hurcs through the rest of the season.

Then the Hurricanes began to show some life. They shook off their defeatist complex and Wednesday night climaxed their current upsurge with a convincing 9-5 victory over the red-hot St. Catharines Teepees.

The Teepees, at the moment the hottest club in the 10-team Junior A circuit, have won nine out of their last 10 games. It took the Hurricanes to stop them cold.

In other junior games, fourth-place Galt Black Hawks nosed the cellar-dwelling Windsor Spitfires 3-2. St. Michael's downed Barrie Flyers 3-2 and Marlboros dropped Kitchener Greenshirts 5-2 in a Maple Leaf Gardens double-header.

Brantford Wins

In the only Senior A OHA game, Brantford Redmen moved into sole possession of fifth place when they edged Sarnia Sailors 3-2. Sarnia was left in last place.

At Waterloo, Jack Oberle tallied three times for the Hurricanes while Terry Horton potted two and singletons went to Don McIntosh, Bob Mader, Laverne Schnarr and Paul Oliver. Buddy Boone, with two, and Hank Ciesla, Joe Schnurr and Chuck Marshall were the Teepee scorers.

At Windsor, it was Tommy Fyles, Pete Conacher and Tony Poeta for Galt and Joe Zorica and Bobby Brown for the losing Spitfires.

Butch Ratchford's two and Bill Dineen's singleton gave St. Mike's their win over Barrie while Hillary Menard and Bob White garnered the Flyers' goal. Danny Poland and Eric Nesterenko each collected a pair for Marlies and Earl Balfour sniped the other. Gary Edmundson and Joe Ingoldsby were the Kitchener scorers.

In the senior game at Sarnia, Walt Hnatiuk, Don Oberholtzer and Bev Hayes scored for Brantford while Vern Gardiner banged in both Sarnia goals.

New Building On George St. Cost $130,000

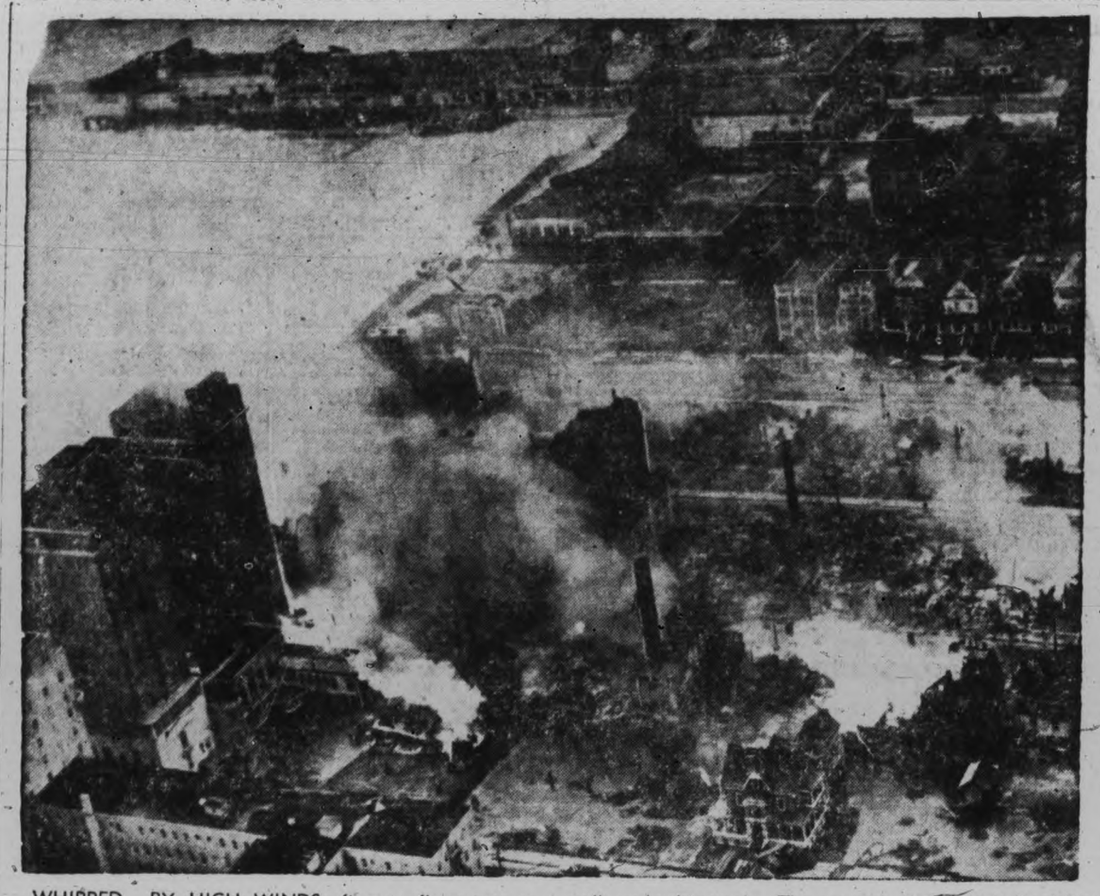
Clapper Realty Company has started off Peterborough's new year of construction with a permit to erect a four-store block on the west side of George St., south of the Cherney building at King St. Estimated cost is $130,000.

Walter H. Mortlock, contractor, is already at work on the excavation for the basement and foundation.

Dimensions of the building are 84 ft. 6 in. frontage on George St. and depth of 94 ft. Plans are for basement and two storeys. The upper floor will be laid out for offices. Several of them have already been leased.

Two of the stores will be occupied by Dit Clapper's sports goods, and Foster's restaurant.

Mr. Clapper said today there have been enquiries about the other two stores, but so far they have not been definitely leased. It is expected that they will be complete for occupation before July 1.



Permits for eight dwellings have also been issued through City Engineer Chalmers' department at the city hall since the turn of the year.

A. S. Schriver is building a brick veneer bungalow on Cameron St. as an estimated cost of $7,300.

An $8,000 permit for a house on O'Connell Road has been taken out by Stuart Shea. Another permit issued to D. P. Caroll is for a dwelling on Wellington St., in the Jackson Park area, costing $8,700.

The major housing project listed at the city hall comprises five houses to be built by Robert Woodward of Woodward Construction Co. They are all on Euclid Avenue, two at $9,500 and three at $8,950 each, amounting to $45,850.

Total estimated value of these nine new properties is only $150 less than $200,000, and the new year is only in its first week.

Hard To Know Who To Believe Says Magistrate

Charged with assaulting Charles Dainton, R.R. 5, Peterborough, David Lavoie, 22, also of R.R. 5, Peterborough was convicted and fined $5 and $8.95 costs in police court Wednesday.

Dainton laid the charge December 27 after he said Lavoie struck him in the face, knocking him down, after the two men had argued over the parking of two trucks in a laneway.

He said he left the truck in his employer's laneway and went to the barn. When he returned, Dainton said Lavoie who rents the front part of the house, owned by Dainton's employer, had parked his truck behind Dainton's truck.

After blowing his horn several times, Dainton said he looked in Lavoie's truck to see if the keys were in it. Finding there were none, he said he blew his horn again, then started toward the house.

About 20 yards from the house, Dainton said he met Lavoie coming out of the house and asked him to move his truck.

Hands In Pockets

After a brief exchange, Dainton said Lavoie hit him in the face, while he still had his hands in his pocket. The blow knocked him to the ground and broke his hearing aid cord, Dainton said.

Lavoie insisted he hit Dainton in self defence after Dainton had feinted a blow in his direction. Lavoie also said he had struck Dainton twice, knocking him backwards the first time, then when he came at him again, Lavoie said he struck him a second time, knocking him to the ground.

Dainton denied swinging at Lavoie and said he had only been hit once.

Magistrate W. R. Philp asked Lavoie his age and weight. He said he was 22 and weighed about 160. Then, the magistrate asked him how old he thought Dainton was. Lavoie said he guessed Dainton was about 40 and would weigh about 140.

In finding Lavoie guilty, Magistrate Philp said it was difficult to decide which person was telling the truth when there are only two people involved in an incident and they tell contradictory stories. However, he said "I am inclined to accept Dainton's story. I have heard of people exaggerating stories but you do not often hear of a person minimizing an incident."

Says Women Outgrown 'Look' Glamor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10 (AP)—North American husbands can be rest assured that milady's wardrobe will not be revolutionized by any more 'looks' in 1952.

That comforting news comes from Gilbert Adrian, whose dress creations have been worn by most Hollywood glamor queens.

"I think that women have outgrown any 'looks' that might be put over on them," he remarked. "If there is any notable style in 1952, it will be the 'American look'—a crystallization of all the things (they) have found practical through the years.

More Active

North American women, he said, lead a much different life from European women. They drive cars, take part in sports, and travel a great deal.

"Therefore, her clothes must be streamlined so they can be packed for travel and uncluttered, so they won't get in the way.

"I predict the hem-line will remain where it is—from 13 to 14½ inches from the floor, or about the middle of the calf."

The plunging neckline would still continue to be a matter of taste . . ."

Rebel Designer

Adrian has long combatted Parisian dictates and was an opponent of the late, unlamented "new look". He remarked:

"The French were out of the running during the war years. When the war was over, they tried to focus attention on themselves. They threw out everything we had found practical over the years and substituted skirts that reached the ground, padded and drooping dresses.

"It was a clever promotion, but American women will not fall for such a scheme again."

Ex-Nun Files Suit

NEWARK, NJ, Jan. 10 (AP)—A former Dominican nun filed a breach of contract suit against Roman Catholic authorities Wednesday, seeking lifetime support. Miss Mary Gilligan, of Plainfield, contended the archbishop, the diocese and the Dominican Order promised her such suport when she entered a Summit convent in 1926.

Hoax Marquis

PARIS, Jan. 10 (AP)—Police said Wednesday they had arrested five members of a confidence gang that took a French marquis for 100,000,000 francs ($285,000) on the pretence they were French counter-spies keeping atomic materials away from the Russians. Police identified the victim of the hoax as the Marquis du Roure.

Intensify Scheme To Make Romania New Red Republic

By HUBERT HARRISON.

VIENNA (Reuters).—There are many signs that the process of Russianization is being intensified in Romania.

There is wide speculation in Europe today that Romania is about to be swallowed by Russia and become another of the republics of the Soviet Union.

Less is heard of Romania, except through Soviet channels, than of any other of the Soviet satellite states.

She is further removed from contact with other lands, was more backward in her own development formerly than Hungary or Czechoslovakia, and has long been subjected to Russian and other Slav influences.

A month of Romano-Soviet friendship, begun Oct. 21, featured an intensive movement to make the Soviet Union more popular in Romania and to speed up the learning of Russian, encourage the reading of Soviet books, and spread the use of Soviet methods in industry, science, art and agriculture.

Compulsory Subject

Russian is already a compulsory subject in Romanian schools, and a great drive is on to get children to subscribe to Russian youth newspapers.

For adults there are free lessons in Russian, free textbooks and newspapers. This is all made more popular by showing Soviet films and the teaching of Russian songs, poems and dances. A Romanian publication recently claimed editorially that though best-selling Romanian novels rarely sold even 5,000 copies, 5,116,361 copies of "Comrade Stalin's" works had been printed.

This Russianization is taking place in all spheres, not only cultural.

Army Made Over

The process has been going on in the army ever since 1945 when the Romanian army was rebuilt around a nucleus of three divisions returned from captivity — and training—in Russia.

The whole Romanian army now dresses in Russian-type uniforms, uses Russian badges of rank, drills and marches in Russian fashion, uses Russian arms and equipment and even Russian words of command.

High Russian officers sit in the Romanian war ministry.

Industry has suffered the same fate. Practically the whole of Romanian industry is controlled and organized by the Russians through the Sovroms — joint Soviet-Romanian companies supposed to be owned fifty-fifty. The Romanians provided the land, raw materials and labor; the Russians a certain amount of capital and the organizing and executive skill.

Profits Shared

The profits are shared fifty-fifty, but the control is almost entirely Russian.

In agriculture, too, Soviet methods have been slavishly followed.

Cotton and rice have been produced where formerly maize and wheat were main crops. The Soviet system of crop rotation, of plowing immediately after a crop has been harvested and reaping just before grain crops are ripe to avoid loss by falling grain—these have all been adopted, as have Soviet-type seed and fertilizer.

Collective farming— the Kolkhoz—is being rapidly extended.

Consider Punishment

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 10 (CP)—The House of Assembly decided Wednesday to study whether it should bring in legislation designed to punish newspapers which report debates that the House has ordered to be kept private. The suggestion is contained in a report by a select committee on alleged breach of privilege by the daily newspaper Royal Gazette.

Think Leprosy Controlled Completely In 15 Years

By MARY BURNETT

LONDON, Jan. 10 (Reuters)—Once the dreaded scourge of the tropics, leprosy is slowly giving way to modern drugs and patient treatment.

Experts predict that the deadly, disfiguring disease will be almost completely controlled within 10 to 15 years.

The world fight against leprosy centres in a small suite of offices in downtown London—the British Empire Leprosy Relief Association.

Its president, Sir Shenton Thomas, said this week that the number of people being returned to useful lives from the desolation of the leper colony is mounting.

For example, he said, a colony at Itu, Nigeria, has just released a group of 960 patients — the highest ever.

This shows a very big advance on previous years and represents about 25 per cent of the settlement's population. "It is most encouraging from the viewpoint of the treatment of leprosy with new sulphone drugs."

Medical experts here claim, however, that the new sulphone drug, first used on a large scale in 1948, will not have proved itself completely until sufficient time has been allowed for relapses.

Not Quite Sure

"The new drug has produced wonderful results and shortened the treatment period considerably, but they cannot yet be quite sure about relapses," Helen Wallich, assistant-secretary of the association, said.

The sulphone drug is given in tablet form, and the maintenance of yearly treatment is estimated to cost only about $2 a patient, about five per cent of the cost of previous methods.

It is estimated that 7,000,000 people in the world still suffer from the disease, 3,000,000 of them within the Commonwealth.

Central and South America, and the whole of Africa, India, Malaya and China are within the leprosy belt. China has 1,000,000 lepers and in Nigeria alone it is estimated there are 200,000.

Western nations also are afflicted, though the known numbers are small.

Photographer Anxious To Return To Korea

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 — (CP) — Officers chased Sgt. Bill Olsen, of Vancouver, out of the Korean fighting lines. But not for long. He sneaked back in. They offered him a commission. He turned it down.

These are a few highlights of the army's former photographer in Korea recounted at a press conference Wednesday in the parliamentary press gallery. Home on rotation leave after a year in Korean hills, he told reporters he would like to go back again and that perhaps it might be a good time to take up the offer of a commission and become a lieutenant.

Ever since the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry landed in Korea, the 30-year-old 200-pound photographer sent home in picture form some of the courage and bravery, chaos, crime and dirt that is to be found in Korea.

Coldwell Suggests Quick Korean Peace

REGINA, Jan. 10 (CP)—National CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said Wednesday night that political leaders of western countries "openly engaged in the Korean war" should contact their opposite numbers and arrange a quick peace in Korea.

Speaking to a crowd of more than 500, the national leader said he would like to see Prime Minister Churchill of Britain take the lead in a peace move.

In a 90-minute speech Mr. Coldwell said that the CCF is looking forward to the day when "health services will be as free to the people of Canada as primary schools are to little children."

"Every form of health service should be freely accessible to every individual in Canada," he said.

Gardiner Suggests More UK Immigrants

WINNIPEG, Jan. 10 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner Wednesday said Canada "could do no better" than to exchange some of its immense food wealth for British immigrants.

In a luncheon address to the Canadian Club, Mr. Gardiner said Canada's greatest need was "people." He said British immigrants could help produce raw materials and food in Canada to help keep employed and at the same time, feed those at home.

"If that kind of an exchange cannot be satisfactorily worked out to balance over 50 years, it is not dollars that are lacking, it is ideas," he said.

Driver Acquitted

BRANTFORD, Jan. 10—(CP)—A Supreme Court jury Wednesday acquitted Michael Manoogian, of Toronto, of charges laid after a motor fatality June 16. Manoogian was driver of a car involved in an accident in which a passenger, Peter Korkigian, of Brantford, was killed.

Report By March

TORONTO, Jan. 10 —(CP)—A report may be prepared by March on Toronto's application for amalgamation with 12 surrounding municipalities. Lorne Cummings, chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, said yesterday the board hope to have a decision ready by March but the report might be issued in sections instead.

Film Council Gives 'Capsule Workshop'

A two-hour lesson on how to show documentary and educational films was given Tuesday night by Mr. C. H. Spearin. The meeting of the Peterborough Film Council was attended by 70 representatives from organizations on the council.

The lesson was contained in a "capsule workshop"—a two hour period of instruction that usually takes as much as a day or a day and a half.

The audience was told that for a proper technique the person showing the film should first prepare himself; then prepare the audience; show the film under the best possible conditions, with gard to heat, position of the speaker, and other details; and finally summarize with a discussion, or a question and answer period, or a talk.

Mrs. Spearin showed three films; Film Tactics, Price of Freedom, and Projecting Motion Pictures.

She pointed out that there are three types of film: one, for discussion (generally on a somewhat controversial topic); two for information (a travelogue, plant life, etc.); and three, for appreciation (art, ballet, music).

Slip Of Judge's Tongue Ground For Appeal

REGINA, Jan. 10—(CP)—A slip of the judge's tongue in pronouncing the death sentence is one of the grounds of appeal cited in a murder case here.

Mr. Justice Adrien Doirion sentenced John Woltucky, 26, to be "hanged by the head until dead."

The usual phrase is "hanged by the neck until dead."

Woltucky was convicted in the 1950 slaying of Anna Juswiak and sentenced to be hanged March 4. The appeal will be heard next month.

Ask Restrictions Eased

TORONTO, Jan. 10 — (CP) — Canada's 20,000-member Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO-CCL) Wednesday called on the government to reduce credit restrictions and excise taxes to their former level. It blamed these for the "present unemployment problem in the textile industry" because they were a major factor in reducing consumer demand.

Council Favors Brief On Roads

HAVELOCK, Jan. 10—(ENS)—Havelock council Monday night endorsed a brief on county road costs prepared after a recent meeting was held in Hespeler, and representatives from Havelock attended.

A summary of the meeting's findings is as follows: County road costs have tripled in the past five years; county roads have increased in mileage with benefits to townships; cities have not kept pace with taking on suburban roads and consequently were not contributing in proportion to benefit received.

Havelock council gave the brief unanimous approval, expressing at the same time their dissatisfaction with the present system of assessment.

It was felt that some townships off the main road system are not paying their proper share of county road costs.

Other municipalities represented at the Hespeler meeting were: Burlington, Amherstburg, Tecumseh, Goderich, Preston, Strathroy, Paris, Hespeler, Dundas, Orangeville, Whitby, Elmira and Wingham.

Ontario Farmers Must Produce More–Kennedy

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—Ontario farmers must produce more food if the province is to continue to enjoy a high standard of living, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture that one of the biggest changes in agriculture is Canada's loss of leadership as an exporter of agricultural products.

For the first time in the country's history, more products were imported last year than than had been exported.

Only three or four years ago dairy exports represented the product of 1,500,000,000 pounds of milk. In 1951 net imports of dairy products brought into Canada the product of 126,000,000 pounds of milk.

In 1944 Canada exported 692,000,000 pounds of bacon. Last year exports balanced imports so Canada as a whole was just self-sustaining in pork production.

Ontario had lost its position as the biggest per-capita exporter of eggs. In 1951 exports totalled 5,000,000 dozen compared with about 90,000,000 dozen in 1945-47.

"If we are to continue to enjoy our high standard of living, Ontario farmers will have to produce more food in years to come," said Mr. Kennedy.

INFANT RULER

Czar "Ivan the Terrible" was three years of age when proclaimed ruler of all Russia in 1740.

THREE ONTARIO MEN GRADUATE—AC2 W. V. "Bill" Closs, of Kingston, left, AC1 R. L. J. "Jimmy" King of Toronto, and LAC R. F. This squadron is scheduled to go to England early next month. LAC Reid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Reid, live at 652 Frank St. Reid originally joined the Air Force in 1944 and after his discharge from the RCAF later that year, he spent some 18 months with the Canadian Army. He re-enlisted in the RCAF in July 1951. LAC Reid is married to the former Miss Helen Payne of Peterborough. They have two children, Christine 2, and Stevie one year. —(National Defence Photo).

British General In Egypt Popular Man

By PETER JACKSON

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 10 — (Reuters)—Lt.-Gen. Sir George Erskine, Britain's "strong man" in the Suez Canal Zone, is a tall, burly soldier who likes to describe himself as a "very normal person."

Faced with the Egyptian crisis towards the end of his three-year term as General Officer Commanding British troops in Egypt, he has made quick, firm decisions when clashes occurred between Egyptians and British troops in the 100-mile zone.

To his men the 52-year-old general is known as a patient, even-tempered man, quick to acknowledge services rendered him but difficult to fool.

Outside his work, which he says is his main interest, he is devoted to his family. Even when busiest, he likes to spend some time each day alone with his wife and their six-year-old daughter, Polly. He talks with pride of his two sons, training in Britain.

Erskine, in time to see service in the First World War, was by 1939 a lieutenant-colonel. He won a Distinguished Service Order at the battle of El Alamein and being mentioned four times in dispatches. In Africa he served for a time as chief-of-staff to Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery.

Hit The Beaches

After the capture of Tripoli, he took command of the 7th Armored Division and landed with them at Salerno and on the Normandy beaches on D-Day.

The general plays golf and tennis and shoots well. He also likes to read, especially biography but recently has had little time for relaxation.

Cocktail parties are one thing he dislikes. Although he sometimes has to attend for diplomatic reasons, he never gives one himself, preferring a dinner party with some wine.

Erskine recognizes the solution in the Canal Zone must be political.

He normally would have left Canal Zone at the end of 1951 to take over the Northern Command in England. But he now is staying on until spring.

Man Recovers Health In BC After 8 Months

VANCOUVER (CP)—A California businessman who went to Northern British Columbia "to die with his boots on" is back in Vancouver today with a recipe for health and happiness.

Last June, doctors gave 48-year-old Jim Porter of Santa Rosa three months to live because of a heart condition.

So he sold his automobile business, got a specially-built trailer and with his wife, Carolyn, and pomeranian, "Alias Puddles" headed for British Columbia's northland.

"I wanted to die with my boots on," he said.

He said today he believed he is alive because he has been living like an Eskimo. "Leave your cares behind. Go north as close to the good God as you can yet. Fish in a lake. If that won't cure your ills, nothing else will."

The Porters used boat, bus, plane, car, train, dogsled and snowshoes to get them around northern BC and Alaska.

Porter said he now intends to show home movies of the north throughout the United States.

Trustee Criticizes Teachers' Attitude

KITCHENER, Jan. 10 (CP)—Criticism of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation for its opposition to the new report card system in Toronto was voiced Wednesday by Lorne Shantz, Kitchener trustee and president of the Ontario Public School Trustee's Association.

Federation members at their conference last week criticized the new report card plan which grades pupils "outstanding," "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory."

Mr. Shantz said that while the new system may not be perfect, it was a progressive step by the Toronto Board of Education.

He charged that the secondary school teachers, who are opposing the change, are impeding progress.

Peterborough Industries Employing About Same Number As Month Ago; Two Return To 5-Day Week, Lay Off Some

A flow of unemployed people from Oshawa, Toronto, Hamilton and other large centres into the Peterborough district coupled with layoffs in industries in the small towns accounts for 50 per cent of unemployment this year. William Mellis, manager of the National Employment office, said today that early in September the office noticed an increase in unemployment in the district and discovered that unemployed from the large cities were drifting back to their homes in Haliburton, Victoria, Peterborough and Northumberland counties.

Since then the number has been increasing monthly with the rising unemployment in the large cities. The result has been a larger number of unemployed registered at the Peterborough office.

"These people have returned from Toronto and Hamilton to their homes until working conditions improve," explained Mr. Mellis.

Small District Plants

Added to these unemployed are others who have been laid off by the small companies in towns and villages throughout the district. The hardest hit so far this season are Havelock, Campbellford and Wilberforce.

A survey of Peterborough companies today revealed that city conditions are about the same as in early December when the factories were working four-day weeks, laying off and shifting employees from one department to another to keep them working.

Several factories, the Western Clock Company and the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, have since decided to work a five-day week. This has resulted in a number of layoffs affecting employees on a seniority basis.

The situation at the Western Clock was described as "not good." The recent anti-price fix law passed by the government had further effect on dwindling sales, said a spokesman.

The company for three months was forced by the lack of sales to work only a four-day week but as conditions became worse the change back to the five-day week was made with a reduction in the working staff.

John H. Vernor, executive vice-president and general manager, said that the staff now is 150 below last year, due to recent layoffs in three groups, first 20, then 30 and finally 35 last week besides a number who have left to find steadier work.

10 Per Cent Reduction

The Canadian Nashua Paper Company is also back on a five-day week which has resulted in a 10 per cent reduction in staff. Late in the fall the company decided to work a four-day week but this system was later changed.

A company official said today that the factory is "a shade busier this week and we hope it will keep up."

Another company, the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, also reports "a slight improvement but not as much as we would like to see." There the employees are working a 40-hour week.

The Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company joined the short week companies when one department was affected by a "cutback in schedule," resulting in short time work. The employees decided to accept the shorter work week for about two months rather than have five or six laid off.

Besides these workers, the company has laid off a few temporary employees hired last summer.

50 Laid Off

Since the lack of sales first affected the Peterborough Lock Company in the fall, the factory staff has been reduced about 50 workers, a company spokesman said today. The company is still working a four-day week.

At the CGE, the situation is the same as early December when some employees were shifted from a slack department to a busier department.

There are still a few employees to be moved and "maybe a few employees will be laid off temporarily" a company office said.

At the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company, first affected by the sales decline, no change was reported.

"Whenever the work's there, we call in the men," said a spokesman.

Man Paralyzed After Crash On Highway 2

COBOURG, Jan. 10 (ENS)—A Cobourg man is in Toronto General hospital and five people received treatment in Cobourg hospital as a result of a car-truck collision on Highway 2 Wednesday night.

The accident took place about 11 pm between Port Hope and Cobourg.

Jack Wilcox, 19, driver of the car, most seriously injured, was taken first to Cobourg hospital and then rushed to Toronto. He is suffering a spinal injury which has paralyzed both his legs. Other passengers in the car, all of Cobourg, who were injured are. Wilcox's wife, Gladys, cuts and bruises; Harvey Rowe, 19, cuts over one eye; his wife, Doreen, 19, bruises; Mrs. Alex Henderson, severe fracture of right wrist, and Louise Cavanagh, 19, bruised shoulder.

Truck Driver Escapes

Driver of the truck, W. Haber, Brantford, escaped uninjured.

Wilcox was returning to Cobourg when he met in collision with the truck loaded with steel. The collision was caused by icy roads which were reported to be a glare of ice.

Wilcox and Rowe are both players with the Cobourg intermediate hockey team.

Provincial Constable Hugh Wooldridge of the Cobourg detachment investigated.

Name Matthews Chairman For 26th Year

Gordon S. Matthews began Wednesday his 26th year as chairman of the Utilites Commission. He was nominated by his two associates, Mr. Fred Hills and Dr. G. R. Langley. Mr. Matthews thanked them for the extension of this honor of the chairmanship.

Continuously since 1926, he has been the presiding member of the Commission, an extraordinary span of public service for any city of Peterborough's population.

Mr. Matthews welcomed the new member, Dr. Gordon R. Langley, recently retired works engineer with the Canadian General Electric Company.

Incidentally, for the information of electors, the authorization of a new commissioner, is almost identical with the announcement of qualification of members of the city council.

The Commission itself is informed by letter from City Clerk Outram that, in this case, Dr. Langley has been duly elected. A sequent letter conveys the information that he has also taken the oath of office before the City Clerk. That is the required procedure.

R. L. Dobbin, manager, reported progress in the completion of the new Utilites office on Aylmer Street.

Terazzo flooring is being laid, and has taken a little longer than anticipated. Rough grinding is under way. The front door frame is in place, and the door will be in position this month. Work is advancing on plumbing, plastering, heating and other details of the building.

Dr. Peter Kir Disappeared

TORONTO, Jan. 10 —(CP) — The disappearance of Dr. Peter Kir, formerly of Windsor Ont., and Peterborough, has forced postponement of an action for alienation of affections brought against him by Josephat Neporany, of Toronto, who claims his wife, Olga, left him because of Dr. Kir.

The doctor was sued both for alienation of affections and for adultery last March. A jury ordered him to pay $1,000 damages for adultery but refused to allow the alienation claim. The Ontario Supreme Court last October ordered a new trial.

The second trial was originally scheduled to start this week. However, an adjournment has been granted until next Monday so that further attempts can be made to locate Dr. Kir, who, the court was told, has not been seen for several weeks.

Ask For Law Requiring Doctors Present

COBOURG, Jan. 10—(ENS)—A coroner's jury Wednesday recommended that the provincial government pass a law requiring two qualified practising physicians or one physician and a nurse be present at future operations performed under a general anaesthetic.

The recommendation was a rider to the jury's open verdict in the death December 17 of Frederick Moore, 45, who died while having some teeth extracted under a general anaesthetic.

Without placing guilt for the death, the jury found it was caused by a ward of cellulose which stuck over Mr. Moore's windpipe. Dr. W. E. Wilkins, Cobourg general practitioner, was extracting Mr. Moore's teeth.

New Roof Started On Minden Arena

The rebuilding of the Minden arena is progressing satisfactorily according to E. Windover, one of the men actively engaged in raising the funds for the work.

Mr. Windover reported that the framework of the roof was in place by Wednesday night and that the steel started going into place today. Roofing was also started today.

The cost of the roof was estimated at $25,000 and Mr. Windover said that an estimated $19,000 or $20,000 is now in the hands of the committee. It is also expected that the project will receive a subsidy from the Ontario government.

If Zacks Block Rebuilt Metropolitan Store Moves In

Metropolitan Stores Limited will occupy the entire ground floor 'if and when' a new building is erected on the site of the former Zacks block that was destroyed in the disastrous and fatal fire of last May. Persistent rumor on main street today was switching emphasis from the "if" to the "when".

It was said that ground floor area of Metropolitan will be one of the most spacious in the city. The street is keenly interested in the redevelopment of that scarred vacancy. Speculation has been rife for months, but at the Metropolitan no definite information is available.

Perhaps Two Storeys

Plans that are being mentioned this week suggest a two-storey building with basement.

Gossip was also wondering whether the reported move of Metropolitan would have any influence on Woolworth's suspended project at the northwest corner of George and Charlotte streets. It was thought that George St. might see two big changes on the west side of the blocks between Charlotte and Hunter streets this year.

JOHN A. BRADSHAW, KC, crown attorney, was returned as president of the Peterborough County Law Association at its annual meeting at the court house. William C. Grant was also returned by acclamation as vice president. New officers for 1952 will be John Currelly as secretary and James Dunn as treasurer.

Board Changes Dates For Fair

Directors of Peterborough Exhibition confirmed Wednesday night their recent decision to change the dates of their show from August to September 9-13.

The purpose of the meeting was to resolve any doubt of thorough deliberation. It also followed precedent, as suggested by G. A. Gillespie, secretary-manager, a week ago, in settling upon dates for the current year, prior to the annual meeting at the city hall next week.

Norman McConkey, presided, and the attending directors were: John Edmison, Clarence Mann, Don Milburn, Charlie Quinlan, Clayton Sanderson, Manson Cathcart, Vern Campbell, Charles E. Moore, Frank Savigny, Glen Stark, Alan Drummond, John Kitney, Clarence Bacon and Mr. Gillespie.

Frank C. Paterson and Robert E. Bell were also present. The confirming action was moved by Don Milburn and Charles Quinlan.

Opposed Motion

Those who voted against it were Mr. Savigny and Mr. Bacon. With them, by letter, were Hugh Stewart, Melville Johnston and Ross Dobbin.

Ald. Harold T. Rehill, who left early, reported that most of the exhibitors whom he had consulted were in favor of the switch in dates.

In the background of the directors' thinking was the opinion that the week after the Toronto Exhibition, instead of immediately preceding it, would be a more suitable time for farmers.

It was said that they would be more advanced in their harvest work, and should feel freer to take time out to attend the exhibition. Directors are largely concerned about attracting rural support. In that hope the motion reflected the views of members who with only one or two exceptions are from Peterborough townships.

The question was thoroughly discussed, and it was settled with an impressive majority of those present in favor of moving back into September, almost to the old Peterborough dates of some years ago.

Churches To Get More Insurance

Presbyterian congregations in the Peterborough Presbytery (Colbourne to Bowmanville and north to Lakefield) are to examine insurance coverage and increase it where necessary on the advice of a professional insurance appraiser.

This was one of four requests to congregations passed at the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Wednesday.

The congregations are also to establish close oversight within themselves to obtain and encourage recruits for the ministry; to increase the circulation of the church's monthly magazine, The Presbyterian Record, by subsidizing subscriptions from congregational funds to follow the church's recommendation of a three-fold canvass in every congregation.

Funds received from this canvass are to be used for local needs, for the general work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada and for the building of new churches. An appeal for funds to build new churches known as The Christian Church, was started some time ago and is sponsored by a special committee of the General Assembly.

Miss Ann Bain, formerly of Peterborough, and now a deaconess serving with the Winnipeg Presbytery was present and welcomed. She spoke briefly of her work in Winnipeg.

The Presbytery discussed at length the doctrinal statement outlining the relationship of the church to the nation. The assembly's committee was requested to give all presbyteries greater time to discuss and amend the doctrinal statement.

The next meeting of the Presbytery will be held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, March 11.

Faith, Prayer Part Of Medical Care

Two services were held Wednesday night, one at Mark St. United Church and the other at St. George's Anglican Church as part of the series of meetings in the Week of Prayer, sponsored by the Peterborough Ministerial Association.

Dr. D. Bruce Gordon of Trinity United Church and the Rev. C. W. Muxworthy of the Church of the Nazarene gave the addresses at Mark St. United Church and the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and the Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James United Church were the speakers at St. George's Anglican Church.

Co-related

Prayer and healing was the theme of Dr. Gordon's address. Using the parable of the good Samaritan as a basis, Dr. Gordon explained that the service of healing is co-related with the Christian faith. The first idea of hospitalization and medical services was brought to the world in Jesus' narration of this parable. Faith and prayer in Christianity must go hand in hand with medical care he concluded.

Speaking on the theme, Prayer and Suffering, Mr. Muxworthy outlined the usual reaction to affliction and suffering—why did this happen to me? He went on to say that people blame God and mistakenly turn away from Him in suffering.

Job As Example

The proper attitude in suffering is to follow the example set for us by Job and Christ in their time of suffering. Job turned to God with the words, "Tho' He slay me, yet I will trust Him." And Christ on the cross accepted His fate by saying, "Unto Thy hands do I commend my spirit." Mr. Muxworthy concluded by saying that all people should also surrender to God and the divine purpose in their suffering.

The necessity of the vertical reference to God in the life of modern man was stressed by Mr. Boyd in his address. Man must first receive the word of God before he can respond in faith and prayer. The theme of Mr. Boyd's address was "Prayer and Its Source."

Mr. McCormack followed with an address on "Prayer and Its Objective." He dealt with the horizontal reference that must be present in prayer in man's interest in the good of his neighbor and welfare of all mankind.

The Rev. B. S. Morwood conducted the service at Mark St. United Church and Mr. Kenneth Kidd conducted the song service. Miss Dorothy McNeely sang "Teach Me to Pray," accompanied by Mrs. Olive Searles, organist.

The service at St. George's Anglican Church was conducted by the Rev. H. J. Scuse and the scripture reading was given by Joseph Gaskell. Music was under the direction of Mr. Jack Branson, choir master, with Mrs. Albert Watkins, Jr., at the organ.

Crown Attorney Criticizes Magistrate Gee

LINDSAY, Jan. 10—Crown Attorney L. W. Jordon, publicly gave his disapproval of the private settling of a case of two minors between the accused and Magistrate E. A. Gee.

The accused had pleaded guilty to possessing liquor while under age.

The crown attorney told Magistrate Gee that he thought the case should have been heard in court and complained that when the case was settled privately neither the officers nor his office could find out the identity of the person supplying them and stop it.

Magistrate Gee replied that there was nothing extraordinary about the case and he had settled with them for the minimum fine when they met him on Tuesday. He also said that he was under the impression that the case was to be heard in Haliburton and added that the boys had promised that this would be the last offence.

Damage $25,000 In Barn Fire

LINDSAY, Jan. 10 —(ENS)—Estimated damage of $25,000 was done in a fire yesterday at the farm home of Frank Williams less than a mile south of Manilla off Highway 7.

The fire started at noon Tuesday and the $20,000 barn was a smouldering ruin before 3 o'clock. Mr. Williams and his two sons, Bernard and Bill, managed to get the 40 cows and the horses out of the building along with the brood sows and a boar. However, 90 chunk pigs were roasted alive. Neighbors arrived to form a bucket brigade to no avail.

Cause of the fire is unknown. All last year's crops were stored in the large L-shaped barn along with a threshing machine and other important machinery. The two men and their father had been working the farm for only three years after coming from Toronto. It is known as the old Glendening property and at one time was a show place for this district.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 10 (AP)—A Harvard professor Wednesday night termed square and cube roots and compound interest "nonsensical" subjects for grade-school study. In a panel discussion at Wellesley College, Professor Robert R. Canadian Entries Increase At Trade Fair

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

One-third of the Canadian applications for space at the next Canadian International Trade Fair are from manufacturers who have not previously exhibited.

On the basis of this, officials predict that this year's fair at Toronto, June 2 to 13, will have a stronger Canadian flavor than in the last three years; and that, if the present trend continues, it will provide the most representative array of Canadian goods ever assembled in one spot.

In recent years, some foreign visitors have expressed disappointment at the relatively-small showing of Canadian exhibits.

At the same time, it is expected that foreign participation will also be up. About 30 countries are expected to be there, with Canada, Britain, the United States, the Netherlands, Germany, Italy and France probably having the biggest presentations.

Canadian Applications

Canadian applications so far cover 14 of the 16 different trade classifications, with machinery and plant equipment, metals and chemicals, and transportation equipment in the lead. Office supplies, household furnishings and foods and beverages are also well represented; and textiles will again be a large category.

"Wool News", published by Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Ltd., makes the following comment on the wool situation:

"Increases in production in a few countries were almost overcome by decreases in others. The war-time stock-pile of wool is gone. Mills are not overstocked as many of them have been buying on a hand-to-mouth basis.

"Generally speaking, manufacturers report decreased business, which reflects a hesitation on the part of the buying public. All of which can be traced back to the abnormally high wool prices of the early months of 1951." However, "wool news" adds:

"The future for wool is promising. With more wool and better wool there is little to fear from substitutes. The main thing is to ensure sufficient supply to make it unnecessary for manufacturers to replace present machinery by equipment that will handle synthetic fibres, which must be used if they cannot get wool."

Record Advertising

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 —(AP)—Expenditures on advertising in all media in 1951 by United States advertisers reached a record $6,548,200,000, up 15 per cent compared with 1950, the magazine Printers' Ink says in this week's issue to be distributed Friday. Newspapers got the largest share in 1951, the report says, amounting to $2,226,000,000 or 34 per cent of the total.

Sweeps-Winning Priest Dies

PERUGIA, Italy, Jan. 10 (Reuters)—Don Attilio Bellachioma, 78-year-old Roman Catholic priest, found peace Wednesday night—the peace he lost five months ago when he won 40,000,000 lire ($64,000) in a sweepstake.

Don Attilio was penniless, but happy, when he entered a rest home for retired priests a few years ago. Last September he bought a ticket in the great annual Merano Sweepstake. Two days later he became a rich man by winning the first prize.

He told reporters: "Living in my little circle of peace and happiness, I want to do something for all the poor people."

Don Attilio found himself besieged by hundreds of self-styled relatives clamoring for help.

By the middle of November they had $21,000 of his fortune.

Don Attilio began to lose his mind. Then he was moved to a mental institution.

Wednesday, just before the end, he struggled to speak intelligibly. "I must help my poor people," he said.

His face cleared, he smiled contentedly, and died.

Bombing Exercise Planned By RCAF

Five auxiliary and one regular fighter squadron will take part in the demonstration under the direction of air defence command, St. Hubert.

The exercise will include mock attacks on Smiths Falls, Ont., and Knowlton, Que. Aircraft will operate out of St. Hubert and from Uplands, near Ottawa.

Taking No Chances

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—A motorist in central Toronto Wednesday offered a ride to an elderly woman with a cane who was standing at a street car stop which hasn't seen a trolley since the transportation strike began Jan. 4. "I'm waiting for a street car, thank you," she said. "But there are no street car; the men are on strike," he replied. Rapping her cane on the pavement, the woman admonished: "Get along, you fresh young man."

General Reduced To Colonel, Sent To Turkey Makes $88 More On New Post Than In Detroit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—A General who was reduced to Colonel and sent off to Turkey will make $88.25 more on his new post than he did commanding the Detroit, Mich., tank arsenal, the US Defence Department said last night.

The former General — now "busted" to his permanent rank and en route to the Middle East—is David J. Crawford.

He was reprimanded and removed from his Detroit command when a House of Congress executive expenditures subcommittee disclosed he had accepted favors from firms doing business with the ordnance centre there.

A defence department spokesman said the pay situation arose because of a living allowance granted officers on foreign duty stations.

In Detroit, as a Brigadier General, with 26 years service, and with dependents living with him, he drew a total of $990 a month.

In Ankara, as a Colonel with 26 years service, with no dependents with him, he will draw a total of $1,078.25.

Churchill Has Day To Relax

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill put aside his official duties today and relaxed as house guest of his 81-year-old friend, financial Bernard M. Baruch.

The 77-year-old British leader, apparently tired from his 18 hours of meetings with President Truman, arranged to stay indoors throughout the day, lounging about in Baruch's apartment. Churchill arrived here from Washington Wednesday night by train.

Aides said he planned only to read the newspapers, nap, smoke his long cigars—and take an occasional sip of his favorite brandy.

Baruch told a reporter "no high-powered visitors" are scheduled to call. To give Churchill a chance to rest, Baruch said he planned to go out "to tend to my business as usual" during the day.

The Prime Minister is to leave by RCAF plane Friday for Ottawa and a four-day round of conferences with Canadian Prime Minister St. Laurent and other top Canadian officials.

Penalize Patrolman For Unnecessary Force

DETROIT, Jan. 10 (CP)—Patrolman Fred Callsen, 36, Wednesday was penalized 15 days' leave for using unnecessary force in arresting Thomas Pata, 20-year-old motorist.

Witnesses said Callsen seized Pata, struck him and held him until other policemen arrived, after Pata had backed up his car and brushed against Callsen's wife.

Callsen's chief, Lieut. Lester Newboldt, vouched for the patrolman and said. "He is especially good at handling people."

PIERRE, SD, Jan. 10 (AP)—A 17-year-old boy who wanted to see if a kerosene-soaked rag would burn has admitted he started a $75,000 theatre fire last week, deputy fire marshal W. H. Walker said Wednesday. Walker said the case would be turned over to juvenile authorities.

Havelock Council Holds First Meeting Of 1952

HAVELOCK, Jan. 10 (ENS) In opening the inaugural meeting of the Havelock council on Moinday night, Reeve E. J. Leeson expressed the hope that 1952 would be a successful year, and said that no doubt the council would have problems to face that would be difficult but "we'll have to face them," he concluded.

Three new councillors were at the table—B. M. Bell, William Ketchen, a former member of the Belmont-Methuen council, and Richard Sanderson, who has on several occasions held the office of reeve and councillor. B. A. Curtis is the only member of last year's council to serve in that capacity for 1952.

Bylaw 604 governing the town's appointments for 1952 was given its several readings and the following appointments were made: auditor, R. A. Dean, of Norwood, at a salary of $125; Gerald Buchanan was appointed a member of the Board of Health; Harold Mathison and B. E. Johnson were appointed members of the park board for a ter mof three years; Councillors W. Ketchen and B. Bell were appointed as representatives of the council on the rink board for a term of three years; Robert W. Hall was re-appointed chief of police at a salary of $2,200 his duties to include sanitary inspector, weed inspector, caretaker of the town hall, fire negines, truck and equipment, and street foreman, the latter to be under the direction of the council.

Alfred Spencer was appointed as pound keeper; Roy Althouse and Howard Dafoe were appointed to snowplow the sidewalks in the east and west wards respectively at $6 per trip; Dave Johnson was re-appointed to make the garbage collections at the same salary as last year, $1,500.

As no applications were received for the office of assessor, it was decided to advertise for applications to be received by 5 pm on January 21.

The following wage rates were set: laborers, 75 cents per hour; stake trucks, $1.50 per hour; dump trucks, $2.25 per hour; R. Vansickle, snowplowing village streets, $3.50 per hour.

Chief of Police R. W. Hall submitted the following report for December: Complaints and occurences, 19; accidents reported and investigated, two; doors and windows found insecure at night, three; fires reported and extinguished by the fire department, two ; transients cared for, six; charges laid for breaches of the Liquor Control Act, three; court attendance, three days.

The resignation of Mrs. Mildred Puffer as welfare officer and deputy clerk was announced, but no action was taken until the Reeve and Councillor Bell investigate the reason for the resignation.

C. B. Marten addressed the council in regard to the hydro project on Highway 30, stating that the long arms for the lights being installed on the posts give a fine light on the highway but the pedestrians are unable to see the sidewalk. If the lights continue to be installed in the this manner, the council would have a delegation from that part of the village. Mr. Martin also spoke about a portion of sidewalk on Concession St. from which the snow has not been removed since the last big storm, pointing out the danger there was in small children walking on the road. On motion by Councillors Bell and Ketchen, the sidewalks at the south end of Concession St., and east on Ottawa and George Sts. will be opened and snowplowed.

It was decided to have the county surveyor take levels on Concession St. after a lengthy discussion regarding conditions in this part.

Another discussion centred around the cost of county roads to urban municipalities, and the feeling was unanimous that the small municiaplities pay more per capita than the larger centres.

A communication was received from the Havelock Business Men's Association asking that the council endeavuor to have Chief of Police Hall supervise the closing of the stores in accordance with the new bylaw. Chief Hall was asked to compiy with this request.

A communication was received from G. Buchanan, secretary of the local Hydro Commission, asking that the council instruct the fire chief to report, to the local office or Norwood any fire which showed signs of affecting the hydro service.

A communication was read from the Workmen's Compensation Board regarding compensation for volunteer firemen. Council decided to carry on as before with the same amount of $1,500.

Bylaw 605 was given its several readings. It authorizes the borrowing of $10,000 to meet current expenditures until taxes are collected.

The following accounts were passed: Chief Hall, salary, $208.34; D. Johnston, garbage collection, $262.50; D. A. McMillan, salary, $70; direct relief, $197.20; taxi, patient to Kingston, $30; CPR rent sign space, $1; James Jacobs, repairs to furnace, $14.10; Board of Health, 1951 expeditures, $173.25; H. McCabe, electrical work, $92.35; Howard Dafoe, snowplowing, $25; R. Vansickle, snowplowing, $375; G. Outwater, snow removal, $16; Roy Althouse, snow plowing, $37.63; telephone and calls, $17.23.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

What's Right?

Your young child has reached the age where you occasionally let him go to a neighbor's house for a brief visit.

WRONG: Don't worry about whether or not he knocks on the door or goes right in.

RIGHT: Teach him to knock—and explain that the neighbor may tell him she is busy and to come back another time.

Of Interest to Women

Quiet Gloucesters Take Larger Share Of Royal Duties

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON — (CP). — The New Year finds the spotlight veering towards the most retiring of the Royal ladies, the soft-voiced Scottish-born Duchess of Gloucester.

As arrangements gather speed for the King's recuperation cruise on HMS Vanguard, when the Queen and perhaps Princess Margaret will accompany him, more and more official engagements fall to the lot of the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent.

This means more freedom for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, now busily preparing for their spring tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Essentially a family couple, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester are little in the limelight. Even during the King's absence from public life, when the Duke "stands in" for His Majesty, it is done with a minimum of publicity. And on all such occasions, if the Duchess is present, this blue-eyed, brown-haired lady, who celebrated her 50th birthday Christmas Day, remains in the background.

Avoids Publicity

Since her marriage in 1935 to the quiet, soldierly Duke, the Duchess has been as aloof from publicity as is possible in Royal circles. Mother of two sons—10-year-old Prince William and 7-year-old Prince Richard — she spends much of her time with them.

The London home of this happy family is York House, part of squat, red-brick St. James' Palace. In this curiously-built old-fashioned place, without a garden and with most of its windows facing directly on a public street, the Duchess particularly favors a comfortable, unpretentious upstairs sitting-room where the boys and their three shaggy-haired terriers are always welcome.

With deep chesterfield, two "man-sized" easy chairs and dark repp furniture, this is also the favoriate relaxation point of the Duke. Occasionally the boys bring up their model trains, placing the rails and stations across the beige pile carpet.

Like Country Home

When possible, the Gloucesters go to Barnwell Manor, Northamptonshire, their country home. Its tennis court, open-air swimming pool and beautiful gardens make it the natural background for this outdoor family.

In old tweeds and stout gloves the Duchess helps in the gardens and her sturdy sons do various farm chores. Keen horsemen ever since they were old enough to mount, Wiliam and Richard are often seen in the saddle.

Third daughter of the 7th Earl of Buccleuch, the Duchess spent much of her childhood in Scotland at Drumlanrig Castle, where her favorite hobby was painting landscapes. She won much praise from the critics when her work was given a personal showing in a London art gallery, and one of her chief joys is the fact that Prince Richard shows an aptitude for the brush.

Auxiliary Honors Mrs. J. H. Morley

The Mother's Auxiliary to 5th Peterborough Scout and Cub Pack met Tuesday evening at All Saints' church parlour. President Mrs. J. H. Morley conducted the opening ceremony and held a short business session when annual reports were received from officers and conveners. Mrs. Morley thanked the ladies for support during the three years she has been in office and in return received a vote of thanks for her splendid leadership, moved by Mrs. H. Sutton. Presentation of a past president's pin was then made to her by Mrs. Grant. During the social period following the meeting Mrs. Morley was presented with a leather-bound hymn book as a birthday gift and a delicious birthday cake was served in her honor. The new president, Mrs. W. Beard, and her officers were installed by Mr. J. Houghton who congratulated the ladies on their work and gave a brief review of the aims of the Association for the coming year. Other officers are: vice president, Mrs. H. Sutton; secretary, Mrs. M. Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. N. Fletcher.

Much Accomplished In '51

Annual meeting of St. Andrew's WA took place Tuesday afternoon in the church parlour and was well attended. President, Mrs. C. C. Pilon presided and Mrs. F. W. K. Harris conducted a short devotional period. The yearly reports received from officers and conveners showed much had been accomplished in 1951. The executive of last year has been unanimously chosen to serve throughout 1952, but owing to a resignation, Mrs. H. Tremaine was nominated to fill the position of first vice president in place of Mrs. K. Kingston. Business of the coming year was discussed and the date of the Christmas bazaar was set for Wednesday, November 5th. At conclusion of the session, tea was served by Mrs. H. Hawley's group.

A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, Jan. 10th—A good supply of lemons is a must these cold-catching days. You see, lemons are "expert" cold-chasers. Alkalinize your system by drinking the juice of one lemon in a glass of water with a half teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda every 2 to 3 hours first day . . . then 3 or 5 times a day thereafter—if necessary. Add the soda slowly and drink as foaming quiets. You'll be wise, too, to drink hot lemonade when you go to bed . . . it induces system-cleansing perspiration. There!—you have my "secret formula" for dealing with a cold. But be sure the lemons you buy are SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS. They're the finest, juiciest grown.

There'll Be Cries Of 'More — More' when you serve this Sunny Butter Loaf. Made with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR, it's soft as down . . . moist . . . and melting. For Swans Down is sifted and re-sifted 'til it's 27 times as fine as ordinary flour!

SUNNY BUTTER LOAF
(4 egg yolks)

3¼ c. sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
3½ tsp. Calumet Baking Powder
½ tsp. salt
½ c. butter or other shortening
1 c. sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-coloured
⅔ c. milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased loaf pan, 9 x 5 x 3 inches, in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1¼ hours. Spread with a tangy lemon icing.

Poundage Is Important when you're planning a party! And I don't mean pounds of food—but the weight of your guests! Plump, pleasant people may not be able to resist your rich concoctions—but they'll hate you for it! So serve plain, non-fattening food. Remember, WAGSTAFFE PICKLES or OLIVES give the simplest food a festive, "party" air! With a bridge luncheon or salad plates, let Wagstaffe Sweet Mixed Pickles add their sweet, spicy tang! For Dutch Suppers, you'll want Wagstaffe Dill Pickles or big, juicy Wagstaffe Queen Olives. And Wagstaffe Sweet relish is just a "must" when you're serving cheeseburgers or minced ham sandwiches. So stock up now for the party season—with Wagstaffe!

It's A Lucky Number to remember when you're buying tomato ketchup . . . the big, economy-size 13-ounce bottle of HEINZ TOMATO KETCHUP! There are at least 13 good reasons why Heins "13-ounce" is the very best buy. Just compare it with the 11-ounce bottle of some brands. You'll see how little it costs for Heins extra value . . . ketchup so rich that a few drops go a long way. For like all of the HEINZ TOMATO PRODUCTS . . . Heins Cream of Tomato Soup — Heinz Tomato Juice — Heins Chili Sauce . . . the flavour is superb. It's the flavour of Heinz own, vine-ripened "Aristocrat" tomatoes, expertly cooked and seasoned to perfection in Heinz spotless kitchens.

More Often Than Not, it's just dry skin that makes pretty make-up seem unflattering. So here's good news! Woodbury scientists have put a new "miracle" ingredient in their WOODBURY DRY SKIN CREAM. A new substance called Penaten that carries all the rich oils in this famous cream deeper into the corneum layer of the skin. Yes, lanolin (nature's finest skin softener) and the three other special lubricating oils in Woodbury Dry Skin Cream are allowed to penetrate so much more thoroughly than ever before. So don't frown at the reflection in your mirror—bring new loveliness to your skin with Woodbury Dry Skin Cream—costs only 23c, 45c, 78c and $1.15.

It's A Good Day in the morning when you drink sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast . . . hard to believe that you felt sluggish and slow just a short time ago! Yes, with speedy SAL HEPATICA you avoid "Laxative Lag"—that feeling of discomfort that often goes on for hours until ordinary, slow-acting laxatives bring relief. And Sal Hepatica is so pleasant to take—sparkling clear—gentle as can be. It's an all-purpose, antacid laxative that's almost a medicine chest in itself—it relieves so many ailments so effectively. Yes, it chases the "Glooms"—brings out the "Smiles" . . . that's how I like to feel, don't you? Then take my tip—when you feel sluggish or headachy—remember speedy, sparkling Sal Hepatica!

The Bigger The Better? Well, not necessarily so if it's a case of who manufactures products we use every day. The makers of FACE-ELLE for example are not the largest producers of tissue handkerchiefs yet it's tops in quality! You can prove this by actual comparison. . . . Compare Face-Elle for downy softness . . . its extra strength. . . . Drop a ball of it into water and note how quickly it sinks, proving its extra absorbency! Yes, when you ask for Face-Elle by name you are getting more for your money . . . more of the qualities you want for real tissue handkerchief comfort. And that comfort means a lot, especially on sneezy days!

Who Can Blame You for feeling proud about keeping your food budget "out of the red"? And you can do it (even in these high-priced days!) when you buy good, inexpensive foods like BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. Blue Bonnet gives you so much for so little. Delicate, country-sweet flavour—fresh as can be all year 'round. And you'll love the Yellow Quik bag it comes in. Makes it so easy to colour Blue Bonnet . . . no messy dishes—no extra work . . . just press the colour button on the Yellow Quik bag and knead the bag gently. In just two minutes your Blue Bonnet is golden-yellow—ready-to-use. Yes, I feel I get a lot for my money when I buy Blue Bonnet Margarine.

My Favourite Fifteen Minutes! There's so much fun and friendliness on the CORINNE JORDAN radio programme! Fascinating talk about everything from babies to bonnets—and twins to "how to make tea". And, of course, there's Corinne's famous music . . . old, beloved melodies played with delightful skill on her grand piano. You shouldn't miss the Corinne Jordan programme — brought to you by the makers of DURHAM CORN STARCH. That's the corn starch in the new, streamlined, easy-to-open, easy-to-close package with the recipes on it. Durham gives your sauces, puddings and cream fillings that velvety-smoothness that's extra-appetizing!

Enjoy the Corinne Jordan program every Mon., Wed., and Fri., at 6.45 p.m., on Station CHEX

Princess Alexandra Follows In Margaret's Footsteps

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON, Jan. 10—(CP)—It looks as though Princess Margaret may have to complete for fashion headlines with another young lady of royal blood.

Already British fashion writers predict that Princess Alexandra —good-looking daughter of the Duchess of Kent—will follow Margaret as a 'teen-age styleseter.

Tall, dark-haired and vivacious, Alexandra was 15 years old Christmas day. As the youngest member of the royal family to choose a gown designed by Norman Hartnell, the Queen's dressmaker, she has already caused some eyebrows to rise.

Instead of the traditional white tulle and lace expected of youngsters in court circles, the Princess shocked models at a private showing by choosing a dress of bright red taffeta. Later she softened this departure from convention by adding a "dream dress" of flower-embroidered blue organza.

Alexandra and her mother, recently placed eighth in a list of the world's best-dressed women, visited the Hartnell salon on their return to London from Sandringham, where they spent Christmas with the Royal family.

See Similarity

Many writers comment on Alexandra's likeness to Princess Margaret at the same age. Alexandra, already as tall as her stately mother, is inches taller than petite Margaret, but both have the same shape of forehead, the same direct gaze under level brows and a similar set to the mouth and nose.

Both have a quick wit and mocking humor. As a teen-ager, Margaret once asked a dancing partner if he realized he was looking into the most beautiful eyes in England. (This followed a press report to that effect.) In her turn, Alexandra said to a school friend: "Meet the new char," when asked to scrub spilt ink from the schoolroom floor.

Alike in poise and charm, the knack of making friends and their interest in people, the Princesses have many similar interests. For instance, Alexandra loves ballroom dancing and is interested in ballet. Margaret likes all kinds of dancing from Scottish reels to sambas, and although it's not common knowledge, she is president of the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company.

WMS Allocation Met

George St. WMS meeting was held Tuesday afternoon in the board room. President Mrs. E. H. Brown opened with prayer. She called for financial reports from each of the groups, all of which were satisfactory and it was announced that the allocation had been met. Reports of the year's work were presented by the Mission Band, the Auxiliary, etc. Installation of the new officers was conducted by the Rev. A. A. Mathews after he had given a short address on the need of missionary education. New president, Miss Jessie Schaeffer, took the chair with appropriate remarks. Scripture was read by Mrs. H. Woollard and prayer offered by Mrs. Fred Horton. Mrs. J. Telford entertained by singing several numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ross Moore.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

For Cooks Conserving On Electricity

Jill D. sparked this talk today. She and I and dozens of readers of this daily chat are of one mind when it comes to oven meals. Although, I can well remember when I was a bride of twenty-one oh-so-inexperienced years, baking two lonely potatoes in an oven large enough to roast a 30-lb. turkey, and thinking how clever I was to conserve the retarding heat by drying out the stale breadcrusts to grind them into crumbs. (After all of the shenanigans I had to throw the crumbs away half of the time after I had collected quarts of them.)

With our power bill for two months being higher than I can ever remember it being before, it behoves me (I love being behove', don't you?—it sounds so smug)—again I say, it behoves me and you to use all available space in the oven when that yawning cavity has to be heated anyway.

I am writing this on Saturday afternoon and you will not read it until Thursday, I am the only one at home, but shortly my bairns will burst in hungry and cold from skiing, and the first menu below is what they are scheduled to have for Saturday night's supper. It is baking in the oven now.

Oven Meal No. 1

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes
Buttered Brussels Sprouts
Celery Hearts and Dill Pickles
Deep Apple Dish Pie
Cheese Coffee

DIRECTIONS: For the scalloped ham and potatoes purchase a 1-lb. slice of smoked ham. Cut it into 6 portions and stick 2 cloves in the fat rim of each piece. Slice six medium or medium-large potatoes thinly and soak them in cold water for 1 hour, then drain and dry them. Melt 1 tablespoon margarine and stir into it 1 tablespoon flour, then 1 pint hot milk until slightly thickened. Now put one-third of the potatoes in bottom of large casserole; pour over one-third of the white sauce, and slice over that 1 small onion; repeat 3 times. Arrange pieces of ham on top, pushing them down into the sauce—to prevent them drying out. Cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours, uncovering during last 15 minutes. Add more milk if it boils away too much.

For the Deep Apple Pie I used 6 pys in my deepest pyrex pie plate which I had buttered generously. I used 1 cup light brown sugar and ½ of a freshly grated nutmeg over them, and covered it with the "shortest" pastry I could make hold together. I will serve it warm with rat-trap cheese.

Oven Meal No. 2

Baked Corned Beef Hash
Casserole of Shoestring Beets
Cabbage and Tomato Slaw
Raisin and Orange Bread Pudding
Coffee

DIRECTIONS: For the corned beef hash you need 1 12-oz. can sliced and chopped, 2 or 3 cups hot cooked potatoes, 1 small onion chopped, 1 cup rich milk or cream, ¼ cup malted margarine, shake of pepper. Combine all ingredients, pack into greased casserole and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden brown.

For the Shoestring Beets peel and shred them into buttered casserole. For about 6 medium-sized beets add 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons boiling water Sprinkle with salt and pepper and a little lemon juice. Cover. Bake along with the covered beef hash.

Raisin And Orange Bread Pudding

Three cups ½-inch cubes of stale bread, 1 cup seedless raisins, 3½ cups scalded milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons grated orange rind, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 1½ tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 3 beaten egg yolks, 3 egg whites and 6 tablespoons sugar. Pour the scalded milk over the raisins to soften them, and let stand about 10 minutes. Then add to them the salt, sugar, grated rinds, butter and beaten yolks. Stir in the bread cubes. Pour this into a large buttered baking dish and bake about 1 hour—you can see that this must go in the oven ahead of the corned beef hash. Fifteen minutes before serving time, pile on top of the pudding a meringue made of the stiffly beaten egg whites to which you have added the last 6 tablespoons sugar. Garnish the top attractively with 8 or 10 fresh orange sections from which you have removed the membrane. Return to oven for 15 minutes to bake the meringue. This pudding should be served warm. If you do not mind a little bit of curdling some of the milk may be replaced with orange juice. A delicious pudding which you should add to your dessert file.

TRADEMARKED—Inspired by the costume of a 17th Century Swiss carpenter, a colorful windbreaker is designed for the modern woman skier. Trimly zipped from waist to neckline, the poplin topper has a white yoke atop a brick-red body and sleeves. The stitching and the emblem of the Swiss Carpenters' Guild are done in royal blue braid. The imaginative emblems of Swiss ski clubs frame the black poplin yoke of a beige jacket. The water-repellent garment, which zips up to a neat, pointed collar, may be tucked into trousers or worn outside loosely for added freedom of action.

Flowers Welcome Canadian Baby

STAMFORD, Rutland, England —(CP) —When a Canadian baby was born in the local hospital, town officals made such a fuss the father hardly had a look-in.

Attendants brought boxes of flowers, with Stamford's compliments, and the mayor himself paid a visit on mother and child.

Wing Cmdr. T .H. Spear, Chief Administrative Officer of the RCAF base at nearby North Luffenham, was the proud father — but said there were so many flowers around he didn't send any himself.

The baby, which weighed slightly over seven pounds on arrival Dec. 9, is the first born here to personnel of the RCAF's No. 1 Fighter Wing stationed at North Luffenham. There now are more than 500 airmen at the station, most of them with families.

Mother of the first Canadian baby is the former Joyce Constance of Toronto. There are two other children, Joanne 5 and Judith, 2½.

Urge Government Revise Federal Inheritance Laws

OTTAWA —. (CP). — The revamping of Canada's Federal inheritance tax setup to place wives in the role of partners rather than that of dependents as far as their husbands' estates are concerned, was one of the principal aims of a delegation of women which met recently with Finance Minister Douglas Abbott.

The delegation, headed by Mrs. Alan Turner Bone of Montreal, president of the National Council of Women, presented a resolution asking that one-half of a deceased husband's estate be considered as belonging to the wife and therefore not subject to succession duties. Further, the resolution demanded that only one-half of the value of any gift from a husband to his wife be subject to gift tax; and that a woman's income from her husband's estate not be reduced by succession duties to yield less than $3,000 a year at the current rate of interest paid on bonds.

Ask Tax Removed

Other resolutions presented by the group urged the removal of the 15 per cent Federal tax on refrigerators, washing machines, and stoves, and voiced strong opposition against Parliament's proposed revision of the British North America Act to allow the provinces to levy indirect taxes.

Mrs. D. C. Hamilton of Ottawa, chairman of the council's Economic and Taxation Committee, and member of the delegation to Ottawa, emphasized the inequality of the status between men and women as Federal inheritance laws stand at present.

Quebec Law

(Under present Federal inheritance tax law, estates over $50,000 are fully subject to succession duties. However, under Quebec's community of property law and where no marriage contract is involved, the wife in that province is considered as legally owning half of her husband's estate.)

The resolution against the Federal tax on electric refrigerators, stoves and washing machines was

It was not an easy duty to assume leadership of a newly formed organization which was commemorating love, grief and memory in the Silver Cross symbol. As a tangible evidence of the love and memories the Chapter has furnished a memorial chapel in the new Civic Hospital and given three invalid chairs to veterans during this time." Study and Effort Necessary For WMS Expansion In '52

Opportunity, spelled o-urselves, p-rayers, p-urpose, o-utreach, r-esources, t-alents, u-nited, n-ow, i-nterest, t-ime, y-ielded, which becomes nothing without the first and the last (ourselves yielded) is presented in the wide field of service open to the Women's Missionary Society. The 79 delegates to the Peterborough Presbyterial meeting at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Wednesday were given this objective outline by their guest speaker Miss Helen M. Hirne of Toronto, secretary of the Presbyterian Council.

The Synodical Society has asked the WMS in Canada for an increase of 10,000 members and 100 new groups in 1952. The local Presbytery is asked for 220 new members and three new groups, and it was announced that the allocation had been increased $140 to $5,090.

"Each woman is a missionary and a salesman in this campaign to advance in missionary endeavor" said Miss Horne. "To succeed you must know very definitely about the Society." She urged extending knowledge of the organization through careful and continued reading of the monthly publication, Glad Tidings, which contains suggestions for organizing new groups and gaining new members as well.

"Aim to unite the women of your church. Survey the congregation. Visit prospective members and make arrangements to bring them to meetings" suggested Miss Horne. She remarked on the lack of mission study in girls' group reports of the Presbyterial and advised that some very fine material has been prepared for study this year which should interest the younger Presbyterians.

Very Pattern

More good advice for gaining and keeping members was put forth by Miss Horne: "Make meetings short, interesting, well-planned because of thought in the preparation. Vary pattern by having business last, or perhaps discussed during a social period following adjournment. Give consideration to the selection of hymns so they will be in keeping with themes and speakers."

DOROTHY DIX

Bad Family Background Hinders Girl

DEAR MISS DIX—A young girl lives in our town. Her father is a habitual drunkard and thief, lazy and mean to his family. His wife has the reputation of being a good persons, but his sons have very bad records. It is the daughter of the family, however, with whom I am primarily concerned. She goes to school with my children and most of the other youngsters won't associate with her. She tries to be friendly but gets a very cold reception. Do you think if my girls were to become friendly with her, it would give her a lift along life's way? I don't want my children to become snobs, yet I don't want them looked down upon. The Bible says, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." I'm sure this girl doesn't like being left out of things. She has clean clothes but doesn't know how to "fix up". These are the things that I think a friendly school chum could help out with.

Dorothy Dix

I am truly concerned about this girl and would like to extend whatever help I or my daughters could to help her overcome an unfortunate family background.

MRS. IDA K.

ANSWER: What a warm, friendly world we'd live in if everyone took as much interest in the less fortunate as you do, Ida! May your humanity always meet the right response.

The rehabilitation of a girl with a background as drab as this is not a job for one person. To accomplish your purpose, you should enlist the aid of other mothers and schoolgirls. You'll meet opposition—plenty of it—but if you can find some who will co-operate it may be the means of building a fine character and creating an admirable woman from material that could just as easily become a hopeless, wretched creature.

Since the girl's mother is a good person, she has a 50 per cent heritage of stability behind her, and probably only needs a helping hand to overcome the undesirable, half.

Enlist Others

Why not talk to the parents of other girls in the class, tell them how you feel and what you'd like to accomplish? Suggest that they encourage their daughters to be friendly with the less fortunate youngster, perhaps sharing their lunch with her, especially if there is a possibility that she needs food. They could plan their own conversation around the things that would help her—for instance, comparing notes on grooming, skin care, hair setting and the like. A girl anxious to improve herself will take in and apply every suggestion they make.

Invite her into your own homes; by careful observation you can judge her character, and with a more complete picture in mind, other means of assistance will be suggested to you.

If it becomes apparent that she will not profit by your good will, drop the whole thing. I think such an eventuality, however, most unlikely. Practically every young girl is keen for the possibility of self-improvement, and will deeply appreciate a lift. Give your assistance in a kindly, not condescending, manner. You will be amply blessed for your compassion.

✧ ✧ ✧

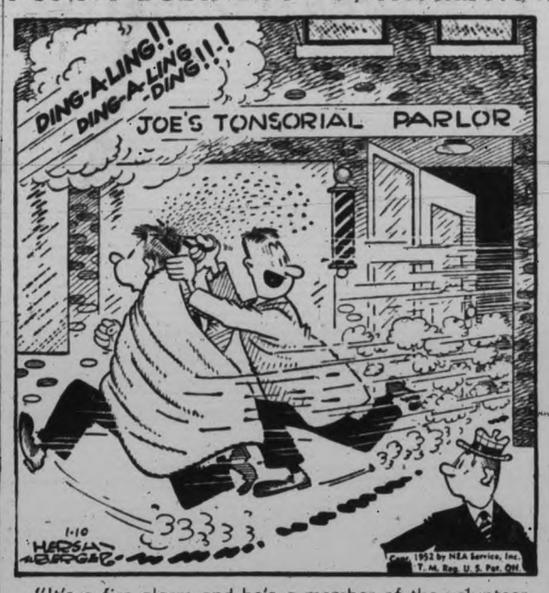
DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young bride expecting a baby this winter. My husband and I are very happy, so my problem does not concern my marriage. I have a young brother, 11 years old, who will have lunch with me every day this winter. He is bright and curious. I have told him of the coming event. How can I explain nicely to him what is happening? He is too old to believe in the stork and too young to be told the facts of life.

BIG SISTER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are laboring under a grave misapprehension if you consider your brother too young to know the "facts of life". An 11-year-old in this so-called enlightened age probably already knows much more than you think. Your concern for him is admirable, and you are very right in letting him know of the baby. Be alert to answer any questions that may come up, or to take advantage of an opportunity to discover for yourself just how far little brother's knowledge goes, and supplement it with your own information.

✧ ✧ ✧



DEAR MISS DIX: Why do middle-aged men in their conscious and subconscious minds resent the fact that their wives are no longer young and attractive? Why do they demand and expect youth and beauty when they themselves are far from young and handsome?

JANE W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your premise, is, I think, quite wrong. Most men accept rather gracefully the fact that their wives are aging in accord with the dictates of nature. Women, of course, are no longer bound to become unattractive simply because they reach middle age, but even if they do slip in looks, hubby seems content. Dissatisfied men would probably be discontented with any wife!

Claxton Arrives Back From Korean Trip

OTTAWA, Jan. 10—(CP)—The RCAF's big C5 aircraft, bringing Defence Minister Claxton back from a 10-day visit to Canadian forces in Korea, arrived at nearby Rockcliffe airport today.

The minister arrived on schedule after a non-stop flight from San Francisco. He was greeted by his wife and daughter, Helen, and a number of officials.

Mr. Claxton said he found the Canadian troops in Korea in "wonderful" shape.

Apparently still fresh after his 18,000-mile journey, the minister headed for his desk at Defence Headquarters.

Urge Government

drawn up by the Provincial Council of Women of Manitoba. The delegation felt that present taxes bear too heavily on young married couples setting up housekeeping and upon the housewife who needs modern equipment to do her work.

Propose Revision

The third resolution presented opposed the proposed revision of the BNA Act to allow the provinces to levy indirect or hidden taxes.

"The imposition of an indirect tax at provincial level will do nothing to limit or prevent the imposition of further taxes at Federal level, and the tax cannot be regarded as a substitute or alternative to other forms of taxation," said the resolution. Such a resolution would only discriminate against fixed-income groups without regard to ability to pay and would further boost the cost of living, stated the delegation.

Other members of the delegation were Mrs. G. D. Finlayson, first vice-president of the National Council of Women; Mrs. L. H. Meng of Ottawa, corresponding secretary of the Parliamentary Committee of the council; and Mrs. W. A. Graham of Smiths Falls, treasurer of the committee.

BABY'S COLDS

Help Nature To Fight Them Off

Medical Science denies there is any such thing as a cure for colds—only Nature herself can do it. So when baby's sniffles, or stuffy breathing warn you of a cold's presence—cooperate at once with Nature.

See that baby is kept warm, gets plenty of sleep and take extra care that the bowels are thoroughly cleared of harmful wastes. To do this without upsetting baby's whole system and further weakening it, try Baby's Own Tablets. Mild, yet act promptly in getting rid of irritating materials that make baby restless and feverish.

One Nova Scotia Mother says: "My baby of 26 months caught a nasty cold so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on." Effective also in teething troubles, constipation and other simple baby ills. Get a package today at druggistores. 50¢.

Man Sentenced To Six Months On Theft Count

Charged with breaking and entering and theft, Volney C. Woodcock, 33, 405 Wellington St., was convicted in police court Wednesday. He was sentenced to six months definite and two months indefinite in reformatory by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Woodcock was caught looting the refreshment booth of a garage at Bennett St., and the Chemong Road, by the proprietor, Arthur Gilders at 3 am December 30.

"You were caught about as red handed as it would be possible to catch a person," Magistrate Philp told Woodcock in finding him guilty. After passing sentence, Magistrate Philp said, "As you are aware, that is not a very severe sentence for a person with your record."

The magistrate added he was taking into consideration the fact that Woodcock had a clean record for almost nine years, between 1939 and 1948 and had not been in trouble since.

Record

Woodcock's record showed five convictions for theft and breaking and entering and theft between 1936 and 1939. In 1948, he was convicted of theft and placed on suspended sentence for a year.

Mr. Gilders said he was roused from bed at 3 am December 30, by the burglar alarm which is hooked up between his home and garage, about 300 feet away. After dressing hurriedly, he said he ran for the garage taking a rifle with him. Arriving at the front door, Mr. Gilders said he "saw a man bagging stuff off the shelves. I looked at him through the front door for a few minutes and saw him put two handfuls of cigarette packages in the bag."

There were fluorescent lights on inside the garage Mr. Gilders said and he told the man, who he identified as Woodcock, "to lift his hands or I would fill him full of lead."

Shot For Hel[illegible]

After firing two shots, to attract attention, Mr. Gilders said he unlocked the door and went inside, and held Woodcock until police arrived.

Mr. Gilders identified a jute sack containing quantity of cigarettes, an electric razor, a cigarette lighter, a box of cigars, and sundry other articles as the one he had caught Woodcock filling behind the counter. He said the articles were worth more than $70.

OPP Constable Jim Healey who investigated said that one of Woodcock's hands was cut and that there was a blood stain on one of the shirts in the bag. On searching Woodcock, Constable Healey said he found two $1 bills and quarters and half dollars amounting to $4.75. Mr. Gilders also reported some change missing from the shelf of his refreshment booth.

He conducted his own defence, and claimed he was on the way home, when he saw lights on in Gilder's Garage. He said he wanted some cigarettes and found the garage door open. Believing someone was inside, he said he went in and was still looking around for someone when the proprietor arrived with the gun.

He said Mr. Gilders forced him behind the counter and he had not seen the bag containing the articles taken from the shelves, until he was forced to stand behind the counter.

Study And Effort

"True followers of Christ feel foreign missions an obligation" announced Miss Horne, but she named first in a long list of mission activities of her Society "welcome and welfare to newcomers to each congregation." Next named was Chinese work in four large Canadian cities, the contacts of full-time part-workers, children's centres in Mon[illegible]al and Vancouver in crowded [illegible]as where playgrounds are at a premium, Indian schools which she said have problems of staff and have had to hire workers of other denominational faith.

Expansion Needed

Hospital visitors are maintained by the WMS in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Here is a wonderful field for expansion of work, Miss Horne remarked. A newer project is the vans, three of which are now operating in western Canada, each with two trained workers, and requests are in for more to be sent as soon as money and personnel make it possible. A training school for young people, at Medicine Hat is a new undertaking progressing very slowly as yet.

Literature going out into European and South American countries is doing more good than is realized Miss Horne said. The Society is contributing to Christian education in India. Korean Bible women are working in Japan and two Formosan girls are in Toronto now at the deaconess training school. A Chinese woman is also being educated by the WMS for returning to work with her own people. Foreign mission workers do co-operative work with those of other denominations thus covering larger areas.

Introduction of Miss Horne was by Mrs. J. M. Ritchie of Warkworth who had known her personally when both were on Regina General Hospital staff.

Another guest speaker was Miss June Coyle of Bowmanville, introduced by Mrs. L. T. McLaughlin, who described her two weeks' stay at Camp Glen Mohr. Two boys were also sent to this camp by the WMS last year and a brief report was given by their mother, Mrs. Kerneghan.

Expression of thanks to the speakers and to the ladies of St. Paul's Church was made by Dr. Helen McDonald of Cobourg.

Heating Problem Faces Schools

LINDSAY, Jan. 10 (ENS) — When public school board secretary John Wilford announced at Wednesday night's board meeting that the heating of the south ward school here had cost $2,000 so far this term and that heating for other three schools averaged around $1,200, members of the board decided that something should be done.

Two new rooms were added to the south ward school last year and an oil furnace was installed. Heating in other schools is by coal. The new oil system has proved to be far from satisfactory in respects besides expense it was also announced. When one part of the school is hot the other part is cold and vice-versa. Dan McQuarrie moved that the architects be contacted to rectify matters immediately.

Dr. R. M. Parker was again elected chairman of the board and Walter Peel vice-chairman. The board plans to go ahead this year with the addition of another two rooms on the south ward school to make it an eight-roomed school the same size as the other three schools.

They already have approval from the town council and the Department of Education and it was decided they would look into the matter of adding another nine feet to the proposed two rooms to provide for a larger basement to accommodate a stage. The added cost is expected to be close to $10,000 and the board have approval for the expenditure of $35,200.

Town council refused the board's request for the original amount last year but granted it later on in the year when the board stated that they would go to the department of education anyway.

A short discussion on setting up a kindergarten system in Lindsay also took place and the board felt a complete review of situation should be tabled at a future meeting. Only four cases of acute communicable diseases were reported by the health nurse for last term —two of them polio and two of scarlet fever; 426 pupils received dental work in the last term.

Witness Changes Early Statement

SUDBURY, Jan. 10 (CP) — Testimony of a witness who repudiated a previous statement highlighted the manslaughter trial of Edouard Carriere, Sudbury bus driver, in a Supreme Court sitting here Wednesday.

The witness, Donald Chabot, denied parts of what was alleged to be a statement made by him a few days after a level crossing accident which killed nine and injured 30, Feb. 9, 1951.

At the time Chabot was in hospital, under treatment for a fractured pelvis, hand injuries, and other hurts.

Even the signature on the statement was not definitely his, Chabot said. His hand injury altered his normal signature, and he could not be sure that the one shown was his.

During Wednesday, the second day of the trial, Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins completed his case against Carriere. At the end of the day Carriere was on the stand, and his cross-examination by Wilkins will continue today.

Defence counsel E. C. Facer hammered away at the question of whether the train which hit Carriere's bus in heavy fog and 47-below-zero weather, had been sounding its bell and whistle.

Of 23 witnesses called to date, only three, all train crewmen, heard both the bell and the whistle. Three others heard the whistle only.

Confederation: Trotter, Linsey, Merrett, Parnall, Ferguson, Chamberlain, Griffin, Little, Brown.

Referee: E. Druery.

Warning About Sweaters

BOSTON, Jan. 10 (AP) — Massachusetts state police issued a warning Wednesday night against door-to-door salesmen believed to be peddling inflammable sweaters. Police said one of the sweaters burst into flame under tests of a state chemist. Police said the sweaters are made of rayon, with a thick rayon nap that ignites easily.

Port Hope Wallops Cobourg Team 8-3

PORT HOPE, Jan. 10. — The McKeen brothers, Harris and Alex carried the scoring mail for the locals Wednesday night as they walloped the invading Cobourg intermediates 8-3, in an OHA fixture. Victory consolidated the locals' third-place grip in the group.

Harris McKeen accounted for three goals and assisted in a fourth, while brother Alex pumped in one score and helped set up the first goal for Free after only 18 seconds of the first period.

Roseneath Men Hear Willmott

ROSENEATH, Jan. 10—(ENS) —"Our legal heritage and recent changes in some of our statute laws" was the subject of the address given by Roy Willmott, KC, Cobourg, as guest speaker at the January meeting of Roseneath Men's club held Monday evening at Maple Lodge. Mr. Willmott divided his subject under five headings: domestic relations, family life, wills, adoption of children and changes of the constitution pertaining to laws. The speaker was introduced by Rev. R. C. White and thanked by O. J. Robins.

The president, A. J. Campbell, presided. Clarke Mouncey is secretary of the organization Bill Kemp was pianist for community singing and contributed a vocal solo "Old Man River" playing his own piano accompaniment; Douglas Coyle gave a reading; C. W. Varcoe extended congratulations on behalf of the Club, to Keith Crossen on his recent marriage; Bill Kemp sang "Mother Machree" and responded to an encore by singing "The Loveliest Night of the Year".

Plans were made for the February meeting to be held at Maple Lodge on February 13. Dr. S. F. Robertson Cobourg, will present an illustrated travelogue on his recent trip to the Arctic.

N. C. Leach moved a vote of thanks to the committee in charge of the evening's entertainment and A. J. Campbell voiced the appreciation of the Club to the hostess, Mrs. Sherwin. The meeting closed with the King.

Had Problem

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10 (AP)— Police ran into a problem with their drunkometer tests Wednesday—a driver who huffed and puffed but was so tipsy he couldn't blow up the balloon. They decided this was evidence enough, and jailed him on suspicion of drunk driving.

Campbellford Downs Norwood

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10 — (ENS) — Campbellford's midget entry in the Trent Valley Minor Hockey League, got off to a good start in Norwood on Monday night when they emerged victorious from a game with the Norwood squad by the score of 16 to 7.

The line of Garvey, Wilson and Dooher led the scoring for Campbellford with some excellent teamwork and passing plays. Ruttan, Chase and MacMillan got pointers for Norwood. The score at the end of the first period was 7 to 1 for Campbellford.

In the second period, the local lads did not do so well. The kid line of Holmes, Ferguson and Seymour carried the play for the locals, but the Norwood boys flipped five counters in on the Campbellford goalie.

In the third, the first line went into action again and got two counters in the first 45 seconds of play. There were only two penalties to each team during the game, which was cleanly played.

Norwood—Lockhead, Buchanan, McMillan, Chase, Ruttan, B. Herron, Smith, Revoy, Hannon, Rusaw, Miles, J. Herron, Dodd, Hamilton, Fredericks.

Campbellford—West, Hendricks, Petherick, Garvey, Wilson, Dooher, Gibson, Field, Gerrard, Holmes, Potts, Seymour, Haggerman, Ferguson, Ingram, Lelliott.

Referees, W. Blake and A. Spring.

Alnwick Council Appoints Officials

ROSENEATH, Jan. 10—(ENS) —The inaugural meeting of Alnwick township council was held on Tuesday in Roseneath township hall. It was opened with prayer and scripture reading by Rev. R. C. White, pastor of Roseneath United Church. Rev. White congratulated the reeve and councillors on being re-elected by acclamation, "the highest position to which your fellow citizens could place you."

Reeve Fred Broadworth was in the chair with the four councillors, Earl Braithwaite, Edwin McCleary, James Thompson and Harold Taylor present. The clerk, Silas Sherwin and the treasurer Roly Thackeray were also present.

A. J. Campbell was appointed livestock valuator; Fred Norris constable; Alvin Rosebush school attendance officer and R. A. Nichol caretaker of the township hall.

LONG PERFORMANCE

Some of the most popular plays performed in China require several days for a complete performance.

FUN AT EIGHTY — Miss Mabelle Cutter of Jaffrey Centre, N.H., celebrates her 80th birthday by coasting down the hill in front of her home. Miss Cutter still prefers the prone style of sledding that she first learned 70 years ago. "Dignity be hanged," she says. Another of her diversions is mountain climbing, using snowshoes.

Mt. Pleasant, Scott's Take Hockey Tussles

MILLBROOK, Jan. 10 (ENS)— Mount Pleasant continued its winning ways in the Millbrook and Cavan Hockey League when it handed Bailieboro a 6-2 setback on Wednesday night in Millbrook Civic Arena.

Armstrong, aided by line-mates Dracup and Jamieson, had a large evening for himself, notching five of the six Mount Pleasant tallies to set a league scoring record. Dracup got the other one at 1:03 of the first period. Bailiebo tied the score after five minutes on a goal by Carruthers from Halstead after which Armstrong ran in five in a row to put his team's fourth consecutive win on ice. Bailieboro goalie stopped a torrid drive with his forehead which opened a cut that required a couple of surgical reefs. Wood replaced him in the nets.

Short-handed

In the second game a short-handed Bethany team was no match for a goal-hungry aggregation from Scott's Corners. Bethany were without Ginn and Magill, first string forwards, who were away on a junior junket to Whitby with the Millbrook OHA entry, and J. and R. Burn of Janetville. With the exception of Edmonds, the Bethany team was so young it would have to pool its efforts to raise a five o'clock shadow and although outplayed the youngsters deserve all kinds of credit for going all out for the full 60 minutes. Edwin Challice, in goal, braved a blizzard of rubber biscuits and turned plenty of them aside. Harris with four goals and Little with three, led the assault with singles to Harrison, Shaughnessy and Conroy. Bethany's sole score was by McGill from Fallis. Brent Dawson and Don Edmonds, in the curtain raiser and Agnew and Jamieson in the finale, turned in a nice job of handling these games.

Paterson, Clements, S. Lonsberry and Evans scored in the first, the latter two and Farr each having an assist. Evans added two in the second, as L. Lonsberry and M. Batten counted, an assist each going to Eadie, McMillan, L. Lonsberry and Paterson. For the Saints, Basciano, Sheehan and O'Donnell scored with Alberico, Collins and Killen getting an assist each. Mrs. Gault closed the meeting with prayer, after which a social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Mervin Smith assisting the hostess to serve refreshments.

C's Divide Twin Bill

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10 — (ENS). — A double-header between Campbellford and Stirling bantams and midgets was played in the Community Centre Wednesday with a fair crowd in attendance. The games were both hard-fought encounters, with the youngsters demonstrating an excellent brand of hockey, and fighting every inch of the way. The local midget team took their game by a score of 7 to 5 after a comeback in the third period. The bantams dropped their game to the Stirling boys by the score of 4 to 2.

Stirling Defeats Marmora 8 to 6

The homesters led at the end of the first period by 2-1 but Stirling established a lead in the second which they held until the finish, Mason scoring two goals for them at this juncture and two more in the third to be the star player of the encounter. Marmora's counters were divided among six players with Jones who did not score, in on two assists. A crowd of 300 fans was on hand and the ice was good. Play roughened somewhat in the last period.

Thousands Cheer Capt. Carlsen On Arrival In UK

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 11 (AP)—Captain Kurt Carlsen came ashore to the cheers of thousands of welcoming Britons today and apologized for not bringing his Flying Enterprise with him. His 6,711-ton freighter, lay 37 miles away beneath the Atlantic, where she finally sank Thursday.

GEN JEAN de TASSIGNY

Carlsen's heroic two-week stand aboard her—"until I'm towed or sunk"—for two weeks had fired the western world with admiration for his bravery.

The 37-year-old skipper was as calm as ever as he stepped onto the Prince of Wales pier in an oversized black raincoat loaned by one of his rescuers on the British tug Turmoil.

He reached the shore at 10:08 am, (5:08 am EST).

"I deeply regret I was not in position to bring the Enterprise back with me," he told the waiting crowd.

"I just cannot find words enough to express my gratitude to you."

From the head of the pier, stretching about two blocks to the municipal hall, thousands of Falmouth residents and visitors stood in orderly rows about five deep.

Greets Parents

Carlsen, after greeting his mother and father, who flew from Denmark to meet him, moved over and posed for newspaper and newsreel cameramen. He stood among officials, with the Union Jack behind him on one side and the Stars and Stripes whipping out on the other.

The day was gray but mild. An earlier heavy drizzle, followed by light hail, had cleared away.

The pier, built for pleasure boats plying from this summer resort, was decorated with streamers and bunting. Decorations ran down through the centre of the town.

Carlsen was accompanied ashore by Kenneth Dancy, mate of the tug Turmoil, who shared the skipper's fight to save the Flying Enterprise during the last six days the 6,711-ton freighter was afloat.

Great General Of France Dies In Paris

PARIS, Jan. 11 (Reuters). — Gen. Jean de Tassigny, French High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief in Indo-China, died today. He was 61.

The statesman-soldier died in a Paris hospital where he recently underwent two operations for a tumor.

A proud and ruthless soldier who thought his subordinates should fear him as much as the enemy, he was largely responsible for turning the tide against Communism in Indo-China.

Known as "Le Roi Jean" he was a veteran of 34 years in the French army during which he suffered 10 battle wounds.

Fighting Spirit

He was appointed to head French forces in Indo-China in December, 1950, and immediately brought out a fighting spirit lacking up to that time in the battle against Moscow-schooled Ho Chi minh and his Vietminh followers.

Few men were spared by his wrath. Combat headquarters were shaken up. Many officers were peremptorily ordered back to France and others relegated to rear-area duties.

It was such action as this that led his enemies to describe him as "arrogant and impossible."

De Tassigny returned from Indo-China theatre because of his failing health last month.

He had been in a state of coma for two days following operations for a tumor of the prostate gland.

Gales Batter Maritime Area

HALIFAX, Jan. 11—(CP)—The Maritimes, reeling from the worst storm in five years, took another blow from the weather today.

Gale-whipped snow swirled across the Atlantic provinces, disrupting transportation and communications. Fifteen inches of snow fell in Yarmouth during the last 24 hours and lesser amounts in other cities.

Marine radio warned ships at sea of gales that reached 100 miles an hour in some areas. Fishing craft scurried for shelter, their hulls encased in ice.

Traffic was clogged at Halifax. Snow-clearing equipment worked in high gear in an attempt to clear the streets.

Throughout the provinces, many schools were closed as parents kept their children at home.

12 Countries To Study Cut In Arms

Major Achievement Of Paris Session, Vote Goes 42 to 5

PARIS, Jan. 11 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly voted 42 to 5 today to set up a 12-nation disarmament commission. The body will study step-by-step reductions in arms and armed forces, climaxing at some future date with prohibition of atomic weapons.

The western big three powers—the US, Britain and France—sponsored the measure, the major achievement of the sixth UN assembly here.

Four weeks of debate in the assembly's political committee — including private big four talks with Russia and Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo for one week in an attempt to reach understanding—preceded today's decision.

Withdraws Amendments

At the outset of today's session, Russia withdrew amendments attempted to get adopted in the political committee which would have demanded immediate prohibition of atomic weapons.

The assembly voted down Czechoslovak attempts to emasculate the western power resolution, especially on step-by-step procedures. Avoidance of a fight over Russian proposals speeded up the assembly action.

The proposal calls for the 11 countries making up the security council, plus Canada, to study disarmament proposals beginning within 30 days and to submit its first report by June 1952.

Paratroopers Raid 2 Villages

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 11 (AP). — Four hundred British paratroopers in assault boats crossed the Sweetwater canal before dawn today in anti-sniper raids on two villages near the big Royal Air Force base at Abu Sueir, in the Suez Canal Zone.

A British communique said the search was ordered because of sniping on British vehicles along a main supply road. A British officer and a soldier were killed in an ambush along the road Wednesday.

The British troops waved mine-detectors that discovered two anti-tank grenades, automatic pistol ammunition, delayed fuses and gelignite, used for making bombs.

There was no opposition.

Sold Parts Of Ship To Buy Woman Gifts

CONFLANS-SUR-SEINE, France, July 11—(Reuters)—A sailor sold parts of the ship he worked on to buy presents for a woman and then, to hide his thefts, sank the ship, a court was told here.

Van Messen, 26, a barge hand, was jailed for eight months for sinking the barge Espadon.

The court was told Messen sold ropes and tarpaulins and even pulled the copper nails out of the hull to pay for trips and presents for Jacqueline Duvivier, 34.

Finally he made a hole below the waterline and ran up and down the deck shouting for help while the barge sank slowly in the Seine River.

Jacqueline got eight months for encouraging him.

$150,000 Explosion At TNT Plant Building

McMASTERVILLE, Que., Jan. 11—(CP)—A fire and explosion today ripped though a TNT production building at the Canadian Industries Limited explosives plant here, some 20 miles east of Montreal. No one was injured. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

The building—one of 10, widely separated and surrounded by safety walls—was destroyed about 5:15 am, EST, an hour after the night watchman made his rounds.

Flames rose several hundred feet in the air and the force of several minor explosions was directed upwards by the sand safety wall.

TNT is only a minor product of this plant which produces mostly commercial explosives such as dynamite.

Find 23 Bodies In Plane Crash

DOLWYDDELAN, Wales, Jan. 11 (Reuters).—Rescue teams toiled up the desolate slopes of 2,860-foot Mount Moel Siabod in North Wales today to recover the bodies of all 20 passengers and three crew members killed Thursday night when an Irish DC-3 nose-dived into a bog on the mountainside in a hailstorm.

All the bodies, most of them unrecognizable, were found early today by rescuers who struggled through the hail to reach the wreckage half way up the mountain. It is hoped scattered luggage and mail will help in identification.

The plane was on the night flight from London to Dublin. This was the first serious accident in the history of Aer Lingus, the Irish State Airline. It has one of the best safety records in the world.

Three victims were found some distance from the plane. It was thought they might have jumped out.

Evidence Completed

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP). — The government today completed presentation of evidence before a federal court jury in the contempt of Senate trial of gambler Frank Costello. Costello is accused of refusing to answer questions at a Senate crime committee hearing in New York last March. The government contended that Costello, by answering some committee questions concerning his finances, waived his right to refuse to answer other questions.

$24,000,000 Judgment Against Financier In US

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—A federal court judgment amounting to $24,000,000 was handed down Thursday against Harrison Williams, who built a fabulous fortune in the 1920s.

Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld ruled that the utilities executive owed $12,000,000 plus interest since 1927, to trustees of the Central States Electric Corporation of Richmond, Va. The interest would double the debt.

The judgment—one of the largest in history against a single individual—stemmed from the boom years preceding the 1929 stock market crash.

Judge Weinfeld held that the 78-year-old Williams, while in control of Central States and other corporations, dominated the utility company's directors and manoeuvred transactions to serve his own interest.

The judge ruled that the financier received proceeds from an $11,450,000 stock sale made by Central States in 1929 when the company should have received the money.

The other three transactions on which the judgment was based involved stock sales between companies he dominated.

The court ordered the return of 68,423 shares of North American Company stock to Williams. They were estimated to be worth between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Royal, Government Honors For Captain

Greetings And Decorations Still Pouring In For Fighting Skipper

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 11—(AP)—Honors and greetings from royalty, governments, marine and insurance organizations were showered on Capt. Kurt Carlsen today.

Lloyds, the British firm which held some insurance on the sunken Flying Enterprise awarded a silver medal for "meritorious service".

King Frederik of Denmark sent a message of congratulations to Carlsen, a Danish-born United States citizen who left his homeland at the age of 14 to go to sea. The Danish naval attache told Carlsen King Frederik followed his "every move" and declared "it a great relief to His Majesty and to all Danes that you have now brought yourself into safety".

Denmark's prime minister, Erik Eriksen, sent a telegram in which he referred to Carlsen's "outstanding courage and competent seamanship".

Capt. Edward Thiele, senior US Coast Guard officer in Europe, said Carlsen would receive formal recommendation from the coast guard when he returns to the US.

Courageous Performance

A message from Vice-Admiral Merlin O'Neill, commandant of the coast guard, described Carlsen's performance as "courageaus and meritorious".

Peola Cappa, Italian minister of Merchant Marine cabled his congratulations, saying "we admire the heroic example you have given" and share "the great pride in you felt by seamen of all the world".

British newspapers continued to play up the sea epic. The evening Standard's headline over the story of the landing of Carlsen and the British tugboat mate Kenneth Dancy read:

"It's C and D Day".

French newspaper hailed the heroism of "Captain Courageous" but with national pride asked whether the Flying Enterprise could have been saved if a French tug that stood by had been asked to put a second towline aboard and towed the wreck toward Brest.

French Communist newspaper put a great emphasis on a series of questions concerning the cargo and the handling of the rescue. They suggested some secret freight was aboard. The conservative newspaper L'Aurore reported as a rumor, complete with and American denial, that the freighter was carrying an atomic bomb.

Hope To Arrange Meeting With TTC, Union

TORONTO, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Toronto's traffic chief announced today that problems arising from the transit strike have been "licked."

Inspector Vernon Page, reporting that emergency car-pool arrangements are getting the working population of the city and suburbs to work—and home again—said in his cheerful statement that only one possibility poses a problem for his hard-working traffic force: a heavy fall of snow.

Snow—"but we don't know how much," said the weather—is forecast for Saturday.

"We've got this thing licked," said Page in reporting that traffic tie-ups resulting from the strike of Toronto's street car and bus operators, now in its eighth day, generally are minor.

Arrangements, meanwhile, were being made for a meeting of the strikers and transportation commission officials aimed at settling the wage dispute.

Make Arrangements

William McBrien, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, said Thursday night the TTC negotiating committee is prepared to meet negotiators from the striking Street Railwaymen's Union (AFL-TLC) and James Robertson, union business agent who made the opening move to suggest the meeting, said arrangements will be made to bring it about.

The development raised hopes of an early end to the tie-up that started Jan. 4 when 4,700 employees of the publicly-owned transit system and of the subsidiary Gray Coach Lines bus service walked out to enforce demands for a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase to $1.55 an hour. The TTC offered a five-cent increase to $1.45, contending that a larger pay boost would necessitate an advance in fares, now three for 25 cents.

As the transportation tie-up entered its second week, the number of thumbs, both feminine and masculine, along the city's car-clogged streets had increased. Relations between pedestrian and motorist grew warmer as citizens pulled together to relieve the strain of a city left without street cars or buses.

The strike has been a severe blow to many phases of city life. It has affected the daily routine of almost every citizen and caused

Hundreds Cheer Churchill On Arrival At Station In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, complete with cigar, stove-pipe hat and gold-topped cane, returned to this capital today after an absence of 10 years for talks with the federal government. He arrived by train at 11:56 am EST to receive an official greeting by Prime Minister St. Laurent and a spontaneous, heart-warming welcome from an estimated 1,000 persons who jammed union station and overflowed outside. There was a brief official ceremony in the lower concourse of the station, including inspection of a guard of honor and the presentation of members of the cabinet and the diplomatic corps, and then the British prime minister was whisked away by automobile to the governor-general's residence.

Looking surprisingly chipper for his 77 years, Mr. Churchill stepped down to a red carpet on the station platform from the special railway car which brought him from New York.

He was met by Prime Minister St. Laurent, Defence Minister Claxton, Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, British High Commissioner, and Maj.-Gen. Harry Letson, secretary to the Governor-General.

Then the party moved up the platform between two lines of troops to the lower concourse as a 19-gun salute sounded from a troop of artillery stationed near the depot.

The first of a series of cheers broke from the throngs as Mr. Churchill's squat, black-coated figure appeared through the doorway.

A military band struck up a general salute and Mr. Churchill inspected a guard of 100 men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, then met members of the Cabinet and the Diplomatic Corps.

The Depot was decorated with flag-draped shields in honor of the visit.

Mr. Churchill's special car at the rear of the regular Montreal-Ottawa morning train was pulled up close to the concourse to spare the elderly Prime Minister a long walk up the platform.

He will lunch at Rideau Hall with Viscount Alexander, an old friend, and will remain at the vice-regal residence for the remainder of the day.

BIGGEST POLICEMAN DIES

UNION CITY, NJ, Jan. 11—(AP)—Patrolman Fred Krumm, 50, who weighed 425 pounds and believed to have been the biggest policeman in the United States, died of a heart attack Thursday.

Strange Snails Invade Lake

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Strange snails about the size of golf balls have invaded Central Park lake.

Castoff shells by the hundreds are visible around the edgs of the frozen lake.

The American Museum of Natural History made three guesses about the unusual specimens Thursday: They may be of Japanese or European origin or a variant of a species long known in the eastern United States.

The Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine said snails can multiply like rabbits and may spread human diseases.

Allies Give Reds New Ultimatum

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 11 (AP) —Allied truce negotiators handed the Reds a virtual ultimatum today. They demanded an explanation of what they called contradiction in the Communists' announced stand on construction of airfields during an armistice.

Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Turner said the Reds last month announced they planned to build and repair airfields while a truce was in force, but denied Thursday that this is their intention.

Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsien Fang insisted the Communist position never has changed and declared:

"You will never get a satisfactory answer to your unreasonable demands."

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby told reporters that in the prisoner subcommittee "we are still trying to get them to explain their sudden shift on the doctrine of free choice—how they justified it and then repudiate it."

Find No Trace Of 45 Men In Lifeboat; Planes, Ships Searching

Snow Squalls Cutting Visibility Badly In North Pacific Area; Uncover No Sign Of Wallowing Vessel

SEATTLE, Jan. 11 (AP)—Seven planes joined the ships of three countries early today in the expanding North Atlantic search for the abandoned freighter Pennsylvania and its 45 or 46 crew members. They scanned hundreds of square miles of storm-tossed seas. Hopes that crew members survived in the cold and mountainous waves diminished after both air and sea craft reported "not a trace" in Thursday's day-long search. The three ships known to be at the scene were American, Canadian and Japanese. Both United States and Canadian planes took off early today for the scene, about 465 miles northwest of Vancouver Island and about 750 miles from Seattle.

Five other planes were scheduled to join the search during the day, some of them relieving planes with dwindling fuel supplies.

A criss-cross search pattern was followed by both the air and sea searchers.

They found nothing. Not even a scrap of wreckage, a drifting bit of clothing or a life-preserver. Just wind and waves and snow flurries.

Ceaseless Vigil

The surface search for the four lifeboats from the Pennsylvania kept up all night as ships' crews maintained a ceaseless vigil, searching the wild swells and troughs with the aid of lights and flares. Airplanes were forced to return to their bases at nightfall.

Cmdr. R. M. Dudley, chief pilot of a coast guard flying boat, reported simply:

"We didn't see a thing. Not a trace."

Coast guard officials mapped an area of thousands of square miles and hoped to scan it all before the early darkness sets in. They allow for a wide margin in error, however, in search effectiveness because of the low visibility.

Wave troughs an estimated 60 feet deep were reported by the fliers and numerous snow squalls sometimes reduced visibility to practically nothing.

Show New Gun Using A-Shells

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP). —Military officials today showed to the Senate-House atomic committee a model of an artillery gun designed to handle atomic shells.

The model was enclosed in a concealing wooden box when carried into and from a closed-door session of the committee.

Chairman Brien McMahon (Dem.-Conn.) declined to comment when reporters asked him whether the model was that of a gun already constructed or was made from the blueprint of a gun still to be built.

McMahon said committee members looked at the model and discussed it. He declined to say more, except that the model had been brought to the committee session by an ordnance officer.

It was the first time, he added, that such a model was shown to the committee.

Nehru Loses Some Seats To Communists

NEW DELHI, Jan. 11 (Reuters) —Indian general election results announced since Sunday brought some reverse for Premier Nehru's Congress party and gains for the Communists.

Several of the party's nominees in southern India were defeated by leftwing candidates, most of them Communists.

Congress maintained its overwhelming lead in the central India State of Madhyapradesh, capturing 65 out of the 80 seats so far in the 312-member State Assembly.

The Congress party, however, lost for the first time since counting started its commanding position in Hyderabad and Travancorecochin, though in both states it continues to have the largest number of seats.

Too Early To Tell

It is too early to note any definite trend. Only 490 results are so far known out of a total of about 4,000 for the whole of India.

Only two states out of 26 completed polling—Himachal Pradesh where Congress won 24 out of a total of 36 State Assembly seats, and Travencore-Cochin, where counting has yet to be completed.

Thirteen other states are still voting and the rest are yet to go to the polls.

The all-India election scoreboard for federal and state assemblies, with 490 results announced up to last night, showed 283 Congress successes with the Communists and extreme leftists as the next largest group with 72, Independents 53, Socialists 26 and others 56.

King's African Trip Brings Some Protests

LONDON, Jan. 11—(Reuters)—The King's projected South African rest cure has stirred up criticism among a number of British Leftists, touchy about the Union government's white supremacy ideas.

Two Labor members of parliament, Leslie Hale and Fenner Brockway, announced they were going to question the government about the trip but they were told that parliamentary procedure bars questions of that nature.

The weekly Tribune, which speaks for the Labor group led by Aneurin Bevan, called the South Africa plan "deeply regrettable."

THE WORLD'S NEWEST NATION Libya is one of the poorest and most backward. It has a per capita income of about $30 a year. But Libya is strategically located on the south shore of the Mediterranean. Because it is important to have Libya allied with the West the U.S. and U.N. will spend $10,000,000 in 1952 to keep the desert nation alive. Libyan natives continue their primitive mode of living as pictured in these scenes: open air diner LEFT in Tripoli where natives get a spot of tea; push-cart bread peddler CENTRE and water wagon RIGHT, an ancient business but still very vital to life.

Pacific Powers Open Secret Military Talks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—The military chiefs of the major Pacific powers meet here today to consider what might be done to save southwest Asia from an assault now threatening from Red China.

The staff chiefs of Britain, France and the United States, with observers from Canada, Australia and New Zealand, open their top-secret conference under a dark shadow cast by reports that the great leader of the fight against Communism in southern Asia lies dying in a Paris clinic.

Urgency was given to the high strategy session by warnings from French Gen. De Lattre de Tassigny before he was stricken in Indo-China and flown home for treatment. He expressed fears, backed up by facts and sobering evaluations, that Red China was preparing a major intervention in the Communist-led rebellion in Indo-China.

Diplomatic officials in London said Britain, France and the US are considering plans to set up a unified military command in southeast Asia. This would enable a pooling of available air, land and sea forces.

Informants said the plan was discussed in the Churchill-Truman talks here this week.

Great Secrecy

The nature of specific measures to strengthen the security of southeast Asia is shrouded in utmost secrecy. But this much can be gleaned from guidance provided by informed officials here and abroad.

France, represented by Gen. Alphonse Juin, entered the conference with this question for the American and British chiefs: what will you do if Red China invades Indo-China?

The replies are not likely to include firm assurances of immediate and all-out military action by all British and US units which might be spared from Korea, Malaya, Egypt and western Europe.

Gen. Omar Bradley, top US military commander, and British Field Marshal Sir William Slim could say, as a starter, they will recommend to their political superiors support for any appeal which France might make to the United Nations.

No Paralysis In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Jan. 11 (CP) — Continuation of Baltimore's transit strike into next week was predicted today, but the sixth largest city in the United States experienced little of the paralysis expected from the walkout of 3,200 transit workers.

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, after separate meetings with company and union officials, issued a statement in which he said:

"We do not look for a settlement during the present weekend."

All street cars, and buses stopped running at 4 am Thursday when members of the AFL Transit Workers Union walked out in demand of a 24-cent hourly increase.

Thousands of automobiles normally left at home crowded into the downtown area, slowing traffic considerably, but no prolonged jam was reported, even during the rush hours.

Company car pools, private bus service by some firms, drivers' consideration for hitch-hikers and old fashioned leg power carried practically all workers to and from their jobs.

Yugoslavia Emigrants Urged To Come Home

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (CP).—Yugoslavia is urging Yugoslav displaced persons who have settled elsewhere — a good number of them in Canada — to come home and says all will be forgiven.

The Yugoslav Embassy, in a press release issued by Sllayko Zecevic, acting Charge d'Affaires said Thursday that the government in Belgrade has pledged that "every one who returns will be given every opportunity to participate in the economic life of the country as well as to develop normal every day life as do other citizens of Yugoslavia."

"No one should fear any reprisal for not returning before this time to their native country," he added.

The displaced persons are men and women who left Yugoslavia during the war and decided they didn't want to go back when peace came because communism had come to power.

Britons Forced To Choose Between Cheese, Rearming

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP)—Britons had a choice between Canadian cheese and rearmament—and they have chosen rearmament. Sir Andrew Jones, Canadian representative of the British food ministry, Thursday told the 19th annual convention of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association that most Britons would like nothing better than to import more Canadian cheese.

But, he said in a speech read for him in his absence, rearmament was forcing Britain to seek a balance in her foreign trade and chances of cheese and bacon contracts with Canada this year were "exceedingly dim."

Last year, in spite of an adverse balance of trade, Britain bought nearly half of Ontario's cheese output.

W. C. Cameron of the Federal Department of Agriculture told the 300 cheese producers, that 22 per cent of 43,000 samples of Ontario cheese tested by a federal laboratory held extraneous matter—vegetable matter, coal dust, grit, wood fibres, bristles, hair and bits of metal.

May Affect Premium

Most of the foreign matter probably was in the milk when it arrived at the factory, he said, but the rest entered during processing.

He said Ontario cheese had fewer impurities than cheese from other provinces tested, but warned that if the amount of foreign matter detected continued to rise, it might affect the premium paid to producers.

Earlier, Charles E. Harkness, president of the association, suggested that dairy farmers call a milk strike to halt an annual $1,000,000,000 loss which he said the dairy industry was suffering every year.

He blamed rising costs, margerine sales and New Zealand imports for the loss of revenue.

No action was taken on the strike suggestion.

Fiancee Pays Surprise Visit

Before leaving for Harrisburg, she told newspapermen that Turnbull's fraternity had raised nearly $1,000 to bring her here to surprise him.

Narrow Escape For Lucky Man

GODERICH, Jan. 11.—The local candidate for the luckiest man alive title had his customary supper with his family Thursday night, but none of his fellow-employees of the Goderich Elevator Transit Company would have believed it possible earlier today.

They were unloading the grain carrier Mantadoc when one of the lines attached to the unloading leg snapped and slashed Lloyd Schonealf across the chest. He was whipped off the deck of the ship to the dock 10 feet below and from there into the water between the dock and the boat, another 18 feet down.

Still unconscious, he was hauled out of the water and rushed to Alexander Marine Hospital. A thorough examination revealed he had suffered nothing but the ducking in icy water.

140 Strikers Under Arrest

NEWARK, NJ, Jan. 11 (AP).—Police Thursday took 140 striking Prudential Insurance Co. agents into custody at the company's main office and the company said it will press disorderly persons' charges against them.

The company said the yelling agents entered the office waving their own Prudential Insurance policies and said they wanted to turn them in.

They were directed to another building which handles such business, the company said, but refused to leave the main building. Police were called and the men were taken away.

A union spokesman said the men went into the building as policy holders to get information. He said the company previously had threatened to have any pickets on company property arrested as trespassers.

Push Oil Drilling In Bruce Peninsula

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 11 (CP)—Oil drilling in Bruce peninsula will be on an increased scale in 1952, reports indicate.

Beginning late last summer, Imperial Oil, Ltd., started increasing its drilling lease holdings and now has between 60,000 and 70,000 acres of drilling rights on the peninsula.

In Toronto yesterday, an Imperial Oil official said that the company has secured new leases last year. Although it had not yet been decided when the drilling program will start, the official said exploration work will be done.

When drilling started last summer in the Miller lake area at the north end of the peninsula, more than 100,000 acres were under lease to the Bruce Oil and Gas Company, and the Hodopar Oil and Gas Company Ltd.

Imperial Oil drilling was undertaken by the Bruce company.

Contraband Gold

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—About $100,000 in contraband gold was seized Thursday with the arrest of three Iron Curtain nationals who shuttled mysteriously back and forth to Europe. One of the three was a pretty blonde, arrested with her husband and brother-in-law.

A Pleasant Surprise!

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—A special commission set up to sell old bricks, nails and other souvenirs from the White House remodelling job is winding up with a surprise $10,000 profit. It tried to break even. But it took in $50,000 and spent only $40,000. The difference goes to the United States treasury.

New Revenues Badly Needed Bell Testifies

OTTAWA, Jan 11—(CP)—The Bell Telephone Company has an "immediate and imperative need" of new revenues from proposed higher rates in Ontario and Quebec, it told the Board of Transport Commissioners today.

Norman A. Munnoch, of Montreal, Bell's general counsel, also told the board the company considers the requested new rates just and reasonable.

Mr. Munnoch was closing out the company's argumnet in its application for rate increases that would give Bell about $10,000,000 this year over existing rates. Changes would apply to local residential and business service, with long-distance tolls not affected.

The company counsel said Bell already has "some concern" over the effect of its business of a five-per-cent increase in long-distance tolls put into effect last November. That increase was not asked for by the company but was awarded by the board to hold down the effect of a general increase in local services sought then by Bell and granted partly by the board.

Can't Turn It Down

Mr. Munnoch said the company did not want to increase long-distance rates but its revenue needs compelled it to take advantage of the board's permission.

However, the counsel said the company does not feel that any of the rates—either the existing long-distance ones or those for local services—will price it out of the market. The value to the subscriber would be greater than what he would pay.

J. W. Pickup, of Toronto, also acting for the company, said the expected revenues from proposed increases are no more than Bell needs to carry out its regular operations and its $90,000,000-a-year expansion program to meet demands for service in the two provinces.

He stood beside Carlsen on the platform and kept his arm around the little skipper.

"I must express my great admiration for Captain Carlsen," Dancy told the crowd.

"The odds were against me," Carlsen said.

Goes Ashore

Dan Parker, captain of the Turmoil, accompanied them ashore. His tug had fastened a tow line on the Flying Enterprise 320 miles out to sea and dragged the hulk, tilted far over on her side, within 57 miles of Falmouth before a storm broke the steel tow cable and set the freighter adrift.

The Turmoil stood by to the last and fished Carlsen and Dancy from the sea when they leaped off the ship just 38 minutes before she went to the bottom.

Carlsen praised Parker and his tugboat crew as men who "lived up to the traditions of a great seafaring nation."

Parker replied:

"To us it was an ordinary job and only one of many, I can't understand why this one has been picked out ahead of any other. We are ready to go out again right now."

Salute By Plane

Royal Navy planes zoomed a salute over the harbor and a naval helicopter skimmed at low level across the town.

The crowd cheered Carlsen and the rest of the party as they climbed up on quay. But only a few near the pier gates could really see what was happening and the cheers ran back along the spectators like a shock wave as those in front passed the word along.

When the 32-minute welcoming ceremony ended, Carlsen, the mayor and the rest of the party followed a wedge of 10 husky bobbies along the street in slow procession to the municipal building.

Carlsen clutched an armload of white and yellow flowers.

He grinned shyly and waved as he walked along.

Someone in the crowd shouted to ask Carlsen what he was going to do next.

"I'm going to sleep," he answered, without a bit of hesitation.

Admirers shoved gifts up toward Carlsen, including a box of cigars from Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of the skipper's home state of New Jersey. Carlsen's wife, ill from worry, was awaiting his return to the home in Woodbridge, NJ.

Carlsen was taking the big welcome in stride although Thursday night he had said: "I'm a little terrified about all the fuss there's going to be when I get ashore."

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 — (CP) — The United States dollar today opened at ¾ of one per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1/32 from Thursday's close. That is it took $1.00¾ Canadian to buy $1 American.

Says Wife Cruel

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Jan. 11—(AP)—Robert Smith filed suit for divorce yesterday, charging his wife Dorothy with cruelty. He specified that whenever he took his wife to a movie and scenes "featuring bathing suits or abbreviated costumes" appeared on the screen, she made him stand in the lobby.

Truck Driver Charged In Man's Death

LINDSAY, Jan. 11 —(ENS)—Lawrence Moore, truck driver from Coboconk, pleaded not guilty to a charge of dangerous driving in court here today in connection with a highway fatality on No. 7 highway on Nov. 9 last. In the accident Russel Irwin, 57, died after being struck by Moore's truck south of Lindsay on the Peterborough road opposite the Riverside cemetery.

According to Dr. T. W. L. Broadfoot who performed the post-mortem on the body, Irwin died from shock and hemorrhage and the internal wounds indicated a terrific blow to the left side of his body from behind. Hector Fisher, Oemee trucker, said that he had been driving towards Omemee when the Moore truck passed him going about 35 mph. "I saw an object fly from the right side of the truck," said Fisher. "The truck stopped about 200 feet away and the driver came back. I stopped my truck and examined the figure of a man lying about a foot off the road. The weather was clear and the road was wet. It appeared to me that the box of the truck back of the cab struck the man." According to Constable Frank Linklater of the OPP in Lindsay there were also marks on the box of the truck to indicate that the man had been struck by that portion of the vehicle. The constable stated that the boy had been moved when he arrived. A suitcoat and overcoat had been split up the back seam by the force of the blow. The case will continue this afternoon.

Iran May Expel UK Diplomats

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 11 (AP).—Informed diplomatic circles said Thursday Iran may move to expel British Embassy officials accused by the government of interfering in domestic affairs.

This was the opinion of both Iranian and British sources following dispatch of a note from the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh to the British on Thursday charging certain unnamed British officials with "open interference." The note warned that Iran would take "serious decisions" if these officials failed to mend their ways.

Meanwhile, the exchange of diplomatic notes here developed into a juggling act the like of which diplomacy rarely sees.

Britain refused to accept the Iranian note because it was handled in a manner "contrary to diplomatic courtesy." British officials said the note was broadcast and given to the press at the same time it was delivered to the British Embassy.

Industrials And Oils Climbing Strongly

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP)—Industrial and western oil prices climbed strongly today in early afternoon stock market dealings.

Industrials opened irregularly but drew strong support during the first hour to add about 1½ points to the exchange's index by noon. Western oils reached a record high early in the day and climbed steadily. Base metals started strongly but met moderate profit-taking. Golds made little headway.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,687,000 shares.

Steels, foods, refining oils and manufacturing companies paced industrials with a majority of advances ranging from fractions to more than a point. Utilities, textiles and retail stores drew firm support but agricultures weakened.

Western oils climbed strongly. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Charter Oil, General Petroleum, Pacific Petroleum, Selburn, Trans Empire and Western Homestead gained.

Base metals showed little trend. Chromium, Estella, Labrador, Noranda, Sherritt-Gordon and United Asbestos strengthened while Osisko, Quemont and Van Roi weakened.

Senior golds were firm.

Salesman Given Year For Fraud

LINDSAY, Jan. 11 (ENS)—Albert E. Babcock, 37, salesman, was sentenced today to a year in the Ontario reformatory by Magistrate E. A. Gee. Babcock pleaded guilty to a charge of uttering a forged document to the amount of $300 on January 4 and was remanded until today for sentence. Crown Attorney L. W. Jordan read a record dating back to juvenile court in 1929; many of the charges were laid in Winnipeg. Two other charges in Toronto revealed that the accused had been convicted of fraud to the amount of $425 in 1944 and had served two years definite and three charges of fraud in Winnipeg in 1951.

"In view of that record, I cannot agree to suspended sentence" said the crown after Babcock said that his daughter was going to be married this spring and that his future son-in-law had promised to make restitution for the uttering charge.

"Have you anything to say for yourself?" queried the magistrate. "I would like to get a job and pay back that note," said the accused. "My wife is pregnant now after 12 years of marriage. I wouldn't want to go to jail now." Magistrate Gee concurred with the crown regarding the long record of the accused and sentenced him to one year.

Court Dismisses Two Charges Against Driver

Two charges against Robert O'Brien, 43, 297 William St., Oshawa, were dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp after the evidence was heard in police court.

O'Brien was charged with drunk driving and careless driving after he was involved in a slight collision with a car driven by Horace W. Ballard, 812 Water St., in front of the Public Library, the night of December 6.

Constable Cecil Bowyer, who investigated, described O'Brien as being in a "drunken condition" when he was arrested. He was "unsteady on his feet while walking to the station and couldn't walk straight," Constable Bowyer said. His speech was slurred and he smelt of liquor.

Didn't Smell Liquor

Ballard, who was driving the other car, said O'Brien gave him his name and address and discussed the accident with him afterwards. He said O'Brien drove down George St. a short distance after the accident and parked his car at the curb. He said O'Brien appeared "a little shaky on his feet" but he did not smell any liquor.

O'Brien said he was coming around the corner of McDonnel St. onto George St., and in pulling out to pass a parked car as he made the turn. O'Brien said he "apparently was out too far" and brushed the Ballard car. He said he had shared a 26 ounce bottle of liquor with two friends in Oakwood between 3.00 and 6.30 that afternoon, before driving to Peterborough. It was foggy and had been raining when the accident occurred at 9 o'clock. O'Brien said he was not intoxicated and denied that his ability was impaired by alcohol.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw told Magistrate Philp: "Personally, I am not prepared to press for a drunk driving conviction."

The careless driving charge was also dismissed.

Brightest aspect of the walkout which began last Friday has been traffic. With twice as many vehicles entering the downtown area carrying three times the normal number of passengers, the accident rate has decreased more than 23 per cent.

Carlsen Intends To Return To Life On Sea

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 11 (CP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen told a press conference today he would stick to the seafaring life, unshaken by his unsuccessful battle to cheat the Atlantic of his ship.

But first he will fly to New York as soon as possible to see his wife and children.

In a firm voice, he told reporters he had to rely entirely on memory to answer their questions because his log went down with the Flying Enterprise. All the ship's papers went that way too, and he lost all personal possessions but his wrist watch.

Carlsen said that in the first week of his lone vigil in the Flying Enterprise, the only thing that kept him alive was a cake.

"I think it was one the cook had baked for the New Year celebrations," he added, with a grin.

Really Hurt

"My worst moment was when the Flying Enterprise disappeared under the sea. That really hurt me."

"What was it that really beat you in the end?" he was asked.

"This last gale—these last two days," he answered.

He heatedly denied that a fortune awaited him if he had got the ship home.

"It is absolutely untrue. I had no such idea in my mind. I should not have expected anything like that. I don't want to make two men's honest efforts to save a ship seem in any way commercialized."

"I felt it was my duty to the owners and all those who had insured the ship and cargo to make every effort to get her in.

"It was not too comfortable — it was good to sleep in a soft bed Thursday night."

He said his decision to leave the ship Thursday was made when the wheelhouse doors were smashed by pressure of inrushing waters.

Affectionately, he spoke of his ship, and farmly said, "She was a very well built ship."

"I commanded that ship for three years and made 44 crossings of the Atlantic," Carlsen said.

Actually Touched

Capt. Dan Parker of the rescue tug Turmoil said he took the tug right up to the sloping deck of the Flying Enterprise last Friday and "the two ships actually touched."

Dancy "Just stepped aboard," Parker said.

Dancy came on to the ship "a few feet from me and said 'Shake hands'," said Carlsen, picking up the story.

"He was a tremendous relief to me."

Dancy said his feat was really very easy, although he hadn't planned to do it.

"I didn't think it was possible," he said. "I was just hoping."

Could the Flying Enterprise still be redeemed from Davy Jones?

Parker said he didn't think so. "She's about 40 fathoms (240 feet) under water," he estimated.

HISTORIC SPOT

The Guild Chapel and Guildhall at Stratford - on - Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, were built in 1269.

THE GALLANT FREIGHTER Flying Enterprise and her heroic captain, Kurt Carlsen lost their battle against the raging Atlantic and the ship sank Thursday just a few minutes after the captain and his companion of a few days, first mate Kenneth Dancy of the British tug Turmoil jumped into the sea and were picked up by the tug. A hero's welcome has been prepared for the captain.

Flying Enterprise Has Spectacular Funeral

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 11 (AP) — The stalwart American freighter Flying Enterprise, its nose in the air and its anchors silhouetted against a grey sky, went down stern-first in the stormy Atlantic Thursday.

That was the doleful end of the fight of one ship and one man for survival. The sea won the epic struggle that began on Christmas Day.

Courageous Capt. Kurt Carlsen jumped into the water and swam to a rescue tug only 40 minutes before the Enterprise slid under the waves. He had stuck with the ship since it was crippled in a storm and was alone on her listing hulk for a week.

With him at the end was first mate Kenneth Dancy of the rescue tug Turmoil. Both were fished out of the swirling water, whipped to a frenzy by a storm, in a matter of minutes.

But, for the stubborn ship, there was no escape. It plunged from sight and lies today in 43 fathoms of water.

Exciting Finale

On The Associated Press' chartered tug, The Englishman, we had a close view of the last agonizing moments.

Immediately after the Enterprise's stern disappeared, the four tugs, a lifesaving boat and the United States destroyer Willard Keith, all of which had been standing by, scattered in the storm to race for their home ports.

The last spectator was a gull, wheeling over thousands of bits of cargo blasted violently out of the Enterprise a moment before the final plunge.

Boxes, crates and sacks tossed on the waves, some of the latter doubtless holding soldiers' letters from Germany which Carlsen had been eager to get to the United States.

At the last minute there were sudden flares of signal lights floating on the water and screams of mournful whistles from the tugs, sounding over the scream of the wind and the thunder of the waves, saluting a tough ship that fought and lost. It was an appropriate funeral.

The stars and stripes still flapped in the rigging as the ship went down.

Water In Holds

The Enterprise was in serious trouble from Thursday noon. Water was sweeping into her holds. There no longer was any triumphant bobbing up from each deluge of waves. She was tired and sluggish.

The little tugs fussed about, but they were incapable of doing anything to aid the threshing, rolling ship.

Their usefulness was saved for the two brave men aboard.

The Turmoil flashed the blinker signal "close" and the small craft gathered around. The Keith was a grey shadow in the mist, several hundred yards away.

The Enterprise heeled over still more on its port side and its great funnel began slapping the water. Slowly, ponderously, the funnel rose, then sank down again to the water level. Several times it rose and fell. Then—it didn't come up again.

At this moment, Carlsen and Dancy crawled out on the funnel and clung to the end for several breathless moments.

With great skill, Capt. Dan Parker of the Turmoil manoeuvred closer. It was tricky business in that sea. Over the Turmoil's side went a rope ladder.

The tug edged within 10 yards of the Enterprise. And Carlsen and Dancy, in lifejackets, jumped off into the raging water.

So dramatic was the scene that the spectators lost sense of time. However, the men could not have been in the water more than four or five minutes.

Province-Wide Body Urged For Ontario Apple Growers

COBOURG, Jan. 11 —(ENS)— The Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association heard some plain talk from one of their own members on the lack of organization among growers, at their annual meeting Thursday at Cobourg.

There had been much discussion about the government subsidizing British Columbia and Nova Scotia growers who in turn were competing in the Ontario markets. Feeling of the growers was that it was unfair.

One member popped up from among the crowd assembled in St. Peter's Anglican church parish hall to tell his fellow growers that there was no use growling to the government about this and that, if there was no organization to back it up.

He said he had been coming to the meetings year after year and he didn't feel that things had changed much from his first year's attendance.

"What is the use of talking if you can't do anything about it?" he demanded sharply. "Get yourselves a good strong organization and make it province-wide, something which you haven't got so far. Then you are in a position to carry some weight when you go down to Ottawa to make your representations."

A murmur of approval went through the assembly.

His remarks touched off some remarks on the value of the apple from Johnny James, MP for Durham.

"We Don't Sell It"

"We don't realize what we have got in our Ontario apples and we don't sell the idea enough to the buyers. At least not the way we should. Why there isn't anything better than an Ontario apple. The BC product is woody in comparison and the Nova Scotia apples can't touch ours either. But British Columbia and Nova Scotia are in the apple business and they don't hesitate to let everyone know about it. It burns me up to see our billboards advertising British Columbia apples. If we got busy and advertised we would not be 40 per cent overproduced because the public would have taken up that 40 per cent. We have to promote sales."

Bulk of the discussion was in regard to the main problem of the apple growers, that of marketing their apples.

Wilfred Carruthers of Bowmanville declared that when the Federal Government in the spring of 1950 gave the British Columbia apple industry a grant of $2,000,000 and Nova Scotia, $500,000, the Ontario growers felt that they had not received a square deal.

Got Cold Shoulder

British Columbia made a gift of a million boxes of apples to England and then asked and got a grant from the government to pay for it. Ontario growers helped pay for that grant and when they went to Ottawa to see Mr. Gardiner about it they got the cold shoulder when they asked for a grant of $300,000 for advertising and tree removal. The government had said no more grants but turned around and made them to BC and Nova Scotia. British Columbia dumped 100 cars of Mac's at ruinous prices in Ontario and Quebec and the government granted BC one million and Nova Scotia, $300,000.

"They dump apples and ruin our market and we have to pay the shot," said Mr. Carruthers.

Johnny James pointed out that when the Ontario growers saw Mr. Gardiner he told them they should work out a removal subsidy deal with the provincial government first, the same as existed in Nova Scotia. Once that was done the federal government would be 100 per cent behind such a proposal.

National Advertising

Of course the advertising would have to be nation-wide. He said that he was as surprised as anyone when he learned of the grant to British Columbia. He appealed, however, for more direct contacts from the growers. He couldn't help them unless they got in touch with him and told them what they wanted.

Mr. Fred Robertson, MP for Durham, said that up until a short time ago, there had been no great problems confronting the growers. What was needed was a good strong organization to represent the growers and the provincial government had responsibilities too. If growers were to get after the old trees the apple industry would benefit.

He said that he would do all he could provided he was furnished with the information. He didn't favor too much subsidizing as it was a carry-over from the last war. Ontario growers still get more for their apples, he said.

"They may say they will not dump BC apples into Ontario this year, but I would like to have it be for longer than that. Certainly there will not be any dumping this year, for the reason that they haven't any to dump," said Mr. Carruthers.

Wildlife Explored In Movie Show

The coast of Maine with special emphasis focused on its myriad of plant and animal life was viewed by a capacity audience at the Queen Mary school auditorium Thursday night.

This Audubon Screen Tour sponsored by the Peterborough Nature Club, had as its guest lecturer Carl Buchheister, vice-president of the National Audubon Society and one of the foremost workers in the society since its inception. The topic of the screen tour conducted by Mr. Buchheister was, Wild Life Down East.

First Settlers

The first settlers of Maine, who came long before the Pilgrim Fathers—the birds, fish and wild flowers were the actors in this drama of nature.

From the comparatively tiny villages of the mainland to the isolated islands of the coast, the story of nature—birth, life and death unfolded on the screen and through the running commentary of the lecturer. Life under the ocean was also pictured in many of its fascinating aspects. Special mention was made of the checks and balances by which nature controls the preservation of only enough of every species to fit into the universal plan.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Buchheister gave an outline of the purpose and work of the Audubon Society. He explained that the main purpose of the society is to develop widespread public appreciation of the need for conservation of soil, water, plant and wild life.

"We are not only interested in the preservation of birds," he said. "In order to save birds, we must also save their environment."

Three Aspects

He explained that the work of the society falls into three aspects. The first is the organization of Junior Audubon Societies in the schools of Canada and the United States to introduce children to the fascinating field of nature study.

Teachers and youth leaders are trained in nature study right in the natural environment by attending Audubon camps. Teachers from all over Canada and the United States attend these three camps ideally located in the United States.

The third aspect of the society's work is the screen tours which are featured in 163 cities in United States and Canada. Mr. Buchheister stated that Ontario is second only to California of all the states and provinces in the number of communities which sponsor screen tours.

The lecturer concluded by explaining that these screen tours are only possible if they are sponsored by organizations in the communities. And he expressed the appreciation of the national society to the Peterborough Nature Club for their co-operation in this regard.

Mr. Buchheister was introduced by Lewis Bird, president of the Peterborough Nature Club. He explained that the Audubon Society's vice-president was spending a few days in Peterborough discussing various aspects of nature study and problems with the Peterborough Club.

Mr. Bird also made an appeal for aid for the Nature Club. He said that aid is essential that if the screen tour series are to continue in the city.

Shot In Game

JAMESTOWN, NY, Jan. 11 — (AP)—A 10-year-old boy was shot to death Thursday night by a nine-year-old playmate in a game of "cops and robbers," police said. The dead boy was Robert Whetstein who was struck in the neck by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun. No charge was placed against the second boy.

City Spending Obscured

At the first council meeting of the year, held this week, the aldermen found on their desks two mimeographed pages of accounts, with this note over them: "As authorized in Council Minutes of 10th December, 1951, herewith the following accounts for payment." The two pages of accounts were presented to the 1952 Council for information only. They were paid on a blanket authority of the 1951 Council, given December 10th to the Chairman of the Finance Committee, whereby he approved all outstanding bills up to the end of the year. Thus neither the 1951 Council, nor the 1952 Council examined the accounts or asked any questions about them. Even if the accounts were a matter of routine, they were not small. The two mimeographed sheets of names and figures were not totalled, but out of curiosity we found the total to be $62,908.39. Therefore, $62,908.39 of the taxpayers' money was paid out, without examination by the Council as a whole.

* * *

This situation is not as strange as it seems on the surface. The 1951 business cannot be transacted by a 1952 Council; somebody has to authorize payment of bills for work done and goods received before the end of the year although the accounts may not be presented before the final meeting of the 1951 Council. Thus it is normal to authorize the chairman of the Finance Committee to do so. Further, before it is presented for payment, every account is scrutinized by the head of the department concerned (City Engineer, City Clerk, Medical Officer of Health, and the like) in whom the elected officials of course must have full confidence, and by the elected head of the Committee concerned (Parks, Fire, Board of Works etc.). Finally, the chairman of the Finance Committee has oversight of the accounts before he authorizes their payment.

* * *

We do not suggest that there is any irregularity in the accounts. We do not imply that bills are being paid which should not be paid; or that others are not being paid which should be paid. Nor do we think that every alderman should know the smallest details of every account before it is paid. We think, however, that accounts are being approved too automatically, and that few aldermen (and fewer members of the public, who provide the money for the bills) know anything at all about most of the items, except the name of the person or firm who is being paid $1.25 or $2,250.

* * *

This criticism applies each month, and not only to December accounts. In December one member of the Council gives the nod that bills be paid; in other months the bills get, in an untotalled batch, a unanimous aldermanic nod in the Council chamber. At the third meeting of each month, the aldermen are presented with sheets of names and figures similar to the sheets which appeared on the aldermen's desks this week. Unlike this week, they are asked to vote payment of the items. They usually do so without asking questions about them and often in complete ignorance of what was bought or done for the money. The chairman of the committee, and sometimes his committee members, will know, perhaps, that the bill for $2,467.27 was for office furniture; the chairman of the Board of Works may know that the R. A. Blyth Company account for $2,853.20 was for some sewer work somewhere. But other members of the Council may not know these things.

* * *

We think that too little information is given the Council and the public when monthly bills are being paid. The accounts are too bare-faced. How much office furniture for the new City Hall has already been bought and paid for? (Did the 1951 Council ever know how much it was going to spend all told on it?) How much has the Blyth Company (or any other company) been paid thus far for what specific work? How is this tallying with the authorized work and the budget for it? We do not suggest that anybody is deliberately trying to hide how much money is being spent for what purposes. We mean that the methods of presenting monthly accounts and paying bills are not as informative as they should be, to the aldermen and to the public.

* * *

We suggest that more questions be asked in Council about the bills and that the details of accounts be fuller than merely the names and amounts on two untotalled mimeographed sheets. Could not order, authorization and invoice for the items (other than regular accounts like telephone, pensions and the like) be tabled in the Council Chamber, available to any alderman who wants to inspect them? Standing totals of expenditures by departments and projects could be presented monthly to the aldermen in session—cumulative up-to-date and set against the budgetary appropriations. If these things were done, perhaps there would not be the frantic realization by the Council as a whole in November that this and that department was over-spending and that the city was going over its budget. Thus the public would be better informed about where its money was going, and better pleased. And perhaps the Council would not end the year with a deficit, as it has done, although nobody in or out of the City Hall knows even now the amount of the deficit. Yet the books closed ten days ago. Under the present system, the Council does not know how much it is spending and has already spent from month to month when it votes to pay bills. The trouble is that the accounts are too obscure, to the public as well as to their elected representatives the aldermen.

Mr. Churchill's Visit

Winston Churchill has not come to Canada on extraordinary business; he will discuss his talks with Mr. Truman with Mr. St. Laurent, doubtless, but that will be a courteous way of giving our Prime Minister some information which he would otherwise receive through correspondence. Mr. Churchill will no doubt spend a good deal of time with the Governor-General, who is an old friend of his; Mr. Churchill has also two speeches to prepare—one which he will deliver to the U.S. Congress when he returns to the U.S.A., and one which he will deliver here at a State dinner. Preparing speeches on the Churchillian scale takes a good deal of time. Mr. Churchill has come to Canada upon a comparatively carefree mission, and we hope that his stay here will be an agreeable respite in a country where he is heartily welcome.

But however slight the occasion of his visit, it is always good to have Mr. Churchill with us. He is in many ways the most deeply satisfactory of living great men. In the first place, his greatness is beyond question, and even people who disagree strongly with his politics, and who dislike Englishmen on principle, admit it. Second, he bears many of the external marks of greatness: people who cannot comprehend the qualities of mind and spirit which make a man great are nevertheless capable of appreciating the eccentricity which sometimes goes with great gifts; those who are baffled by the Churchillian rhetoric and the courageous spirit which it reveals, are able to take their simpler pleasure in the Churchillian funny hats, in the cigar, and in the characteristic voice which has so many imitators. Mr. Churchill has something for everybody.

An odd bit of information about Mr. Churchill has just come to light, supplied by his wife; apparently when he is away from home he never writes to her. At first it may seem queer that one of the ablest writers of our time should shirk so apparently simple a domestic task, but when we recall that Mr. Churchill writes about a million words a year of other matter we begin to understand. And it is not as though writing to one's wife were easy work; she, more than anyone else in the world, will detect the slightest falsity of tone, the most minute indication of discouragement or fatigue, and it will inevitably worry her. Great writer though he is, we are not surprised that Mr. Churchill shrinks from writing to his wife, preferring, no doubt, to tell her all about his adventures when he returns home.

Poor Old Pembroke

Pembroke, a place up the Ottawa, judicially hanged a man on Tuesday morning and on Tuesday evening a $500,000 fire broke out. The sequence of these events is entirely haphazard, of course, but they have put Pembroke in the news again. We are sorry about the fire. In the last year Peterborough has had its own fire troubles and can be generous in its sympathies, even to Pembroke.

We have not always been as sympathetic towards Pembroke. The last time it got itself into the news—a year or two ago—it did so almost (but not quite) at Peterborough's expense. Pembroke complained because the Trans-Canada highway was not going to run through its fair streets. It brought pressure to bear on Queen's Park. For a time some Peterborough people even had quivers of suspicion that the Trans-Canada would be diverted from this area just to please green-grapey old Pemmy. But Queen's Park reacted to sense rather than pressure. The Trans-Canada stayed (diagrammatically) in this area. As a sop to Pemmy, Queen's Park said: "You can have your road called "Trans-Canada Alternative" — which means precisely nothing but a little oil for the road-pursuing Pembrokians. But it was enough to quiet them—and Peterborough still has the Trans-Canada, whenever the Department of Highways get around to doing anything about it in these parts.

We repeat: we feel genuine sympathy for Pembroke, now recovering in the ashes of a big main street fire. But we ask: if Pembroke had not sought the headlines a year or so ago—and the Trans-Canada—would it perhaps have escaped the unwelcome headline-makers of a murder and hanging, and a big fire? . . . Pride goeth before a fall, from the gallows or the gables.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

ALPHA: Can you tell me the names of the Executors or the Trust Co. that administered the estate of the late Charlotte Nicholls who gave so much to Peterborough institutions?

ANSWER: The two executors were Mr. Richard Hall (founder of Hall's Store) and Charles McGill, manager of the Ontario Bank.

The question has been raised about grants of $300 from the estate to several Sunday Schools. I have not been able to ferret this out, but do know that St. Andrew's Church was a beneficiary. Perhaps other readers will volunteer information. . . Sorry about the delay in answering this question.

ALPHA: A careful review of your column makes the following propositions so obviously true that they may be regarded as self-evident:

(1) You find it necessary or convenient to journey from Peterborough to the Queen City from time to time. (2) Possessing a remarkably well-developed curiosity, you are interested in the country lying between the two centres. (3) You now make the trip by automobile having exhausted the scenery from the railroad right-of-way (both sides). (4) You have now abandoned the regular highways for the same reason and are enjoyingn the beauties of the Great Middle Route through those important centres of Haydon, Enniskillen and Columbus. Your familiarity with the foregoing having been established, please explain the derivation and meaning of "The Saulf" (map reference 831/792—Scugog sheet).

RESPONSE: Dear me, I had no idea that I saw, did and felt all these things. As a matter of fact, I have never been through Haydon, Enniskillen and Columbus in my life, have I? Where are they? (I have been in Enniskillen in Ireland, but I'd not call that on the Great Middle Route.)

Having admitted that I am hazy about Haydon, Columbus etc. you have leave to disbelieve me when I say I delight in map-reading and therefore am tickled pink to have you give me a map reference. However, I haven't got the Scugog sheet. I can only say that "Sault" means a water-fall or rapid in French, that the word came into North American geographical use (corrupted from the proper French—"saut") with the seventeenth century colonial French; (hence the Long Sault Rapids—a redundant term, and Sault Ste. Marie). Probably there is a rapid at your Scugog Sault, but how the French term got into that neck of the woods I don't know. I'm sure Champlain never put it there.

SIR: Do Highland regiment soldiers wear anything under their kilts in winter?

ANSWER: I believe that discreet black panties are permitted, on doctor's orders, even in such high-minded regiments as the Black Watch of Montreal.

DEAR ALHPHA: I am Canadian born, 40 years of age, and would like to go to the U.S.A. to obtain work there and in due time become a citizen. Would you kindly explain what steps I must take, also how much I should have in funds?

ANSWER: If you are seriously thinking of going, get the application forms right away, from the United States Consulate General, 360 University Avenue, Toronto 1. It takes up to six months for them to deal with cases.

The next step, if you have not already got a job lined up, is to go across on a border crossing immigration card (to be got for the asking at the border, or preferably at a U.S. immigration office in Windsor, or Bay Street, Toronto) and look for a job. Or you can get a four-months' visitor's permit—the border card is technically good for only a couple of months, I believe. But whether you have the border crossing card or visitor's visa, you cannot legally take employment. You must get the permanent immigration visa, which, as I said, may take up to six months, and involves your supplying a great deal of information and voluminous documents (as listed on the application form).

It does not seem to make much difference whether you have the U.S. job when you apply, or whether you are going to look for the job. If you get over there and take work without the legal permit, you will probably have to give it up and come back to Canada to make your application anyway. It may be helpful to produce a relative or friend in the United States who will guarantee that you will not become a burden on the State. And it is best, too, to be able to show the U.S. Immigration people that you have a good bank account in Canada, enough to tide you over, say, six months.

Actually, the United States Immigration Office will not lay down a general procedure. The information I have given has been got from a person of my acquaintance who has gone through the mill. Officially, what the U.S. Consulate does is to send you the application forms, and it deals with each case on its merits.

Canadian-born persons of good character are generally welcomed as workers in the United States, and few obstacles are put in their paths. But it all takes time.

SIR: There is a large bell in the tower of Notre Dame church in Montreal. I am told this is never sounded. Why?

ANSWER: It would shake the tower down and unsettle the old church building. I believe it occasionally has been sounded in this century, and somebody told me that it was rung on November 11th, 1918 at the end of the Great War, but I do not know if this is true.

The bell is called the Great Bourdon, weighs 14½ tons and is therefore a ton heavier than the famous Big Ben of Westminster, London.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: I came upon this fact in a lovely book on Ireland, called "The Dreaming Shore", by Olivia Manning (I got it after seeing a review of it in the Examiner about a year ago)—a startling fact recalling the antique valour and warring history of Ireland. The county of Limerick has today the ruins of 2,000 castles and keeps scattered over its pastures . . . Limerick as a county was created by King John (1199-1216) but of course its history goes back much farther. Its area is only 1,064 square miles—less than the area of Peterborough County. Imagine having 2,000 castles and keeps, ruined or otherwise, in the Kawartha District!

"Enosis, Enosis!" The Children Chant

By BILL WAKEHAM (In Cyprus)

PERENNIAL and persistent, the demand for union with Greece ("Enosis") is daily featured in the Greek-language Press of this British Crown Colony.

With peculiar naivety, the question is linked to every international event having the remotest, even imaginary, connection with Britain, Greece and Cyprus—the Churchill-Truman meeting being the latest. This game of make-believe is played seriously and is the chief preoccupation of local politics.

Four-fifths of a population of some 490,000 consider themselves children of Greece by tradition, religion, culture and language. Sedulously indoctrinated for years by a highly political church, the children are urged to bang the table and yell: "Want it! Enosis, only Enosis!" they are trained to chant in unison, and the suggestion that they won't be happy till they get it is duly broadcast to all and sundry by every available means. Whether they would be happy if they did get it is another matter, and the opposition of less emotional members of the community, over one-sixth of which is Muslim Turk with strong views on any displacement of their present tolerant Nanny, is conveniently ignored.

Nor are the red and white corpuscles of the Greek Cypriot body politic itself in complete harmony—Church and Communists in mutual antagonism demanding Enosis with antipathetic aims: By no means all Greek Cypriots are sincere in voicing the demand, some resorting to lip service merely to avoid the brand of "traitor". Many—probably a majority—are, however, undoubtedly sincere, and to attain their emotional goal might accept the sacrifices entailed, although it is doubtful if the extent of these sacrifices is fully realized.

Few Cypriots have experience of conditions outside their own small island. Whether they would relish compulsory military service on remote frontiers, economic standards reduced to a level possibly as slow as any attained within the last 200 years, no financial margin to continue development now embarked upon, and the probable displacement of their own Civil Servants, now increasingly represented in senior posts—these are some of the questions left unasked and unanswered. As for the Communists, the fate awaiting them is known to all and merely underlines the hypocrisy of their clamour, which demands in one breath co-operation from the Church for Enosis and with the next denounces the "monarcho-fascist Government of Athens."

IT is often argued that strategic importance is no valid reason for the retention of Cyprus by Britain. Yet its obvious strategic value in British hands is not of importance to Britain alone. The reaction of Turkey to any weakening of her rear and flank would certainly be strong. Even Greece herself, fully occupied at home, could hardly view with equanimity a stretching of her limited resources to the detriment of all allied in the common cause. Strangely, the British case is seldom stated. The truth is that Britain's earlier attempts to foster constitutional advancement were thwarted by the inability of Cypriots themselves to behave constitutionally. A vocal majority still proclaims and encourages intransigeance to any alternative to union with Greece. The deadlock can be broken only by wise, firm and objective statesmanship all round. Cyprus is still largely medieval in outlook. A change of viewpoint is required.

The mention of "self-determination" always stirs the liberal British conscience, and a country that is busy offering self-government to far less advanced colonial peoples elsewhere would not withhold constitutional advances here if honest co-operation were forthcoming. That is the crux of the matter. With mutual trust, sincerity of purpose and honesty in operation, Cyprus could advance rapidly along a clearly-defined constitutional path. At the end of it she would be unlikely to desire a change of orbit—a fact that may have some bearing on present intransigeance by interested parties. In any case she would then be the arbiter of her own destiny: the choice would be hers and hers alone.

Father Christmas Variations

(Manchester Guardian)

Trouble in Australia over the "unmasking" of Father Christmas in a broadcast to children makes one wonder how far the legendary figure can stand up against the highly organized deputies who do duty for him in modern toyshops. In New York the business is so well organized in the departmental stores that there are training courses where approved Father Christmases go to school to be groomed in all their duties in advance of their public appearances. Is it possible altogether to conceal such preparations from the modern child? By making the old gentleman too much of an accomplished bodily presence, is there not a risk that the fairy-land touch and the horns of elfland will tend to be "debunked" by tangible reality? It is hard to say what an imaginative child will or will not believe, but it is quite possible that, even without assistance from the wireless many of them are quite capable of distinguishing between a man and a myth.

Some of the imagined figures may be more real than the orthodox versions. Some years ago there was told in "Miscellany" the tale of a small boy whose December hero was always addressed as "Farmer Christmas" and whose parents wisely left the title unchanged. Throughout the month it was the boy's habit to call up the chimney to "Farmer Christmas" telling him what he required. As the choice was apt to change there was also the formula, "I think I'll unshout Farmer Christmas and tell him I want a steam-engine instead." Obviously that boy believed in something (even if it was only a good joke) and it would have needed more than a wireless programme to unshout" his fidelity.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples Simon Peter saith unto them, I go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

But when the morning was how come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No. And he said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes. Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord . . .

As soon as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread. . . . This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs. He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep. He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed thy sheep. (John 21: 2-7, 9, 14-17.)

The Case Of Little Susan

(Saturday Night)

The fierce light that beats upon a throne does not, apparently, beat quite so fiercely upon a Governor-General. There is one very good reason for that difference, in that the throne is hereditary and the Governor-Generalship is not; the public must inevitably be deeply interested in what goes on in the Palace where its future rulers are being brought into the world and brought up, but it does not have any such concern about the family life of Vice-royalty.

Nevertheless we think it is matter for congratulation, for everybody concerned, that the great military commander who performs the functions of the Crown in Canada should have been able to adopt a new daughter into his family three years ago without any public attention being paid to the matter until the recent Christmas festivities. Even when little Susan's relationship to the gubernatorial family became known, the matter was treated in the press with a quietness which must have been very gratifying to Their Excellencies and was certainly very creditable to the Ottawa correspondents.

The right to a reasonable amount of privacy is one of the things which public personages have the greatest difficulty in maintaining in these days of the ubiquitous newsman and his attendant photographer. When the public personage has acquired his public character by his own choice—when he is a politician competing for votes, or a public entertainer competing for patronage—he cannot complain too strongly about the result of a curiosity which he himself has incited. But the Governor-General is neither a politician nor an entertainer, and it is important for the dignity of his offices that he should not be made to look like either. We have long thought that the general attitude of both public and press towards Rideau Hall and its occupants has been on the whole very well-mannered and entirely proper, and the incident of little Susan and her status—which must have been perfectly well known to hundreds of people in Ottawa—confirms us in that opinion.

Baptist Church WMS Meets In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 11 (ENS)—Many were present Tuesday evening when the Women's Missionary Society of the Lakefield Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Walter Walker.

President Mrs. Wallace Hendren presided for the meeting, and reported a bale had recently been sent overseas. Mrs. Hendren also gave an informative paper on the Grande Linge Missions.

Mrs. Roland Darling gave a most interesting paper on "Prayer".

A social half hour was enjoyed at the conclusion of the meeting with refreshments served by the hostess assisted by her daughters Sandra and Karen and Gwennyth Darling.

Unusual Assets

PALMERSTON NORTH, NZ—(CP)—A former aquarium owner at a meeting of creditors listed among his assets a bearded dragon, two water dragons and eight spur-toed frogs. They were worth $400, he said, but unsaleable, and the creditors allowed him to keep them provided he treated them solely as a hobby.

The Annual Meeting of Shareholders
The Royal Bank of Canada

Industrial Development and Freer Trade can be achieved Together says President

Suggests long range programme to speed process and bring prices closer to U.S. levels. Sees danger in large budget surplus . . . "Reward saving, penalize spending."

Need for a free and flexible economy to meet the challenge of inflation and foster the long range development of Canada, was the keynote of the annual address of James Muir, President, at the Annual General Meeting of Shareholders of The Royal Bank of Canada. Inflation, he said, was still a major problem, and he doubted the effectiveness of high taxes as a curb on either private or corporate spending. Nor did he consider the unexpected budget surplus of $635,000,000 a reason for complacency; it could become an inflationary "time bomb" unless rendered inert by being impounded as a deposit in the Central Bank or used to retire Government debt held by the Bank of Canada.

"By itself" said Mr. Muir, "this unplanned surplus is neither an effective check to inflation nor a reason for complacency and self-congratulation. The danger here is that the Government with its increased surplus and the public with its increased savings are better able than ever to increase expenditure in the future.

"I do not think we need worry too much about the private individual dissipating his savings and so adding to the inflationary pressure. Nevertheless, he should receive every encouragement to add to rather than spend what he has accumulated. Unfortunately, experience does not point in quite the same direction regarding the Government's surplus. This surplus, induced as it is by increased taxes, perhaps designed to check inflation, actually becomes an inflationary time bomb unless it is rendered inert by impounding it as a deposit in the Central Bank or by using it to retire Government debt held by the Central Bank.

FLEXIBILITY NEEDED

"The ability of our economy to sustain the shock of adjustment to the economic needs of the defence programme depends in large measure upon increased flexibility. By flexibility we mean in the most general way the ability of prices, interest rates, and exchange rates to adjust to changing economic conditions. An example of this flexibility is the Government's interest rate policy of the last year or so. Higher interest rates reduce inflationary pressure in two ways: first, they curtail the unwarranted expansion of credit; and second, they encourage thrift by making saving more remunerative.

"Another example of what we have in mind is the freeing of the Canadian dollar in September, 1950. The removal of import restrictions of January 1, 1951, carried the process another step forward. The success of this exchange policy is shown by the strength of the Canadian dollar in the face of a large trade and service deficit. The so-called "hot" money that came into Canada during the summer of 1950 has been effectively cooled off. Indeed, we have seen a significant inflow of stable investment capital into Canada throughout 1951. Moreover, the basic strength of the Canadian dollar has been such that the Government in December, 1951, removed all remaining exchange control, and so restored to the traditional channels of private finance complete freedom in the field of foreign exchange.

"All in all, the free economy in the western democracies has gained on balance during 1951. We have seen the urgent demand of the defence economy superimposed on an economy already strained by the effort to reconstruct a war torn world. It should be a source of comfort in these trying times that our advance towards military strength has not required a wholesale retreat into controls. Indeed, we have managed to gain in military strength and at the same time to achieve a fuller measure of flexibility in our economy. Our satisfaction should not make us complacent. But, barring the final tragedy of large-scale war, we can hope through right policy to continue our advance towards the twin goals of economic as well as political freedom.

"Economic development means (1) that Canada's population must expand at a rate possible only with large immigration; (2) that her capital investment must continue for a long period to be a large proportion of her national income, and (3) that outside capital must have confidence in a government policy of just and equal treatment. Economic development means anything but a quiet life for workers, businessmen, and government officials.

FREER TRADE

"The need for adjustment would not be so great in the long run if we were content (which we must not be) to continue as a producer of primary products for final manufacture elsewhere. On the other hand, the use of the tariff or other device to force Canadians to buy home-manufactured goods merely reintroduces some of the inflexibility we have been trying to avoid. Whatever one may think of protection as a means to economic development, it is true that our position next to the United States makes a high tariff both a cause for discontent and a temptation to break the law. The alternative, competition with U.S. industries enjoying the low costs of a large mass market, might seem at first glance (at least in the opinion of many) to rule out a diversified industrial economy for Canada.

"Now the dilemma I have posed is a serious one, particularly in the immediate future; but I believe it can be resolved. Indeed the problem may appear bigger than it really is; for tariff protection tends both to retard and to conceal the true efficiency of a nation's industry.

"At this point I wish to make it clear that in the remarks I am about to make I take no position in the political controversy so long associated with our tariff policy. What I shall try to do is to discuss the economic problems involved.

"There is little doubt in my mind that Canada can achieve both industrial development and freer trade. Our problem is to hasten the process. Our first step should be a long-run programme to reduce or abolish excise and sales taxes at the manufacturer's level, thereby reducing the disparity between prices to the consumer in Canada and to the consumer in the United States. The result will be a more rational price and tax structure for the developing Canadian economy.

"Our second step should be another long-run programme to get reciprocal concessions in trade, particularly from our nearest neighbor, the United States.

"Moreover, both steps in the suggested programme would reduce the present disparity between prices on a wide variety of articles to the consumer in Canada and to the consumer in the United States. This is not only good in itself but may give some assurance at least that our trained and talented young people will not be tempted away, but will seek their fortunes in their native land and contribute to its development and progress.

"No one with faith in Canada's future will deny that, given time, all these difficulties of our economic development will be triumphantly overcome.

"If we Canadians will become fired with pride of country—become fully conscious of our tremendous material endowment — face our task with imagination, initiative and courage, and apply hard work; we can make the next few decades by far the greatest age yet in Canada's economic history."

HEAVIER TAXES NOT EFFECTIVE AS SPENDING CURB

The real test of tax policy to combat inflation is whether or not that policy penalizes spending and rewards saving. With this in mind one must recognize that a whole multitude of the spending public are not even touched by the more drastic of the additional imposts. In contrast, a large segment of the fixed wage and salary group has been hit and hit again. That is, of course, unfortunate in itself, on grounds of strict equity. But the real question is, "How much of the increase in taxes on this group in the last half of 1951 came out of savings?" The more that came out of savings, the less the effect on inflationary pressure.

Corporations were even harder hit in the 1951 budget. But again the real question is not, "Is this fair?" but "Did the new corporate taxes penalize spending and reward saving?" To this question, the answer is simply, "No." Human nature being what it is, heavy corporate taxes tend to increase spending by corporations because the Government is paying a correspondingly large part of the shot.

The increase in federal excise and sales taxes is unpleasant, but these taxes do hit the spender where it hurts. Unfortunately he does not know what is hitting him. Why? Because the taxes are levied at the manufacturing level, passed on plus mark-up at various points from there on, and finally concealed in the retail price. The system is, therefore, inefficient for it takes out of the consumer's pocket much more than it yields to the Government in revenue. But, worse still, the purchaser sees the whole increase in price not as a tax, but as a rise in the cost of living and a reason for demanding higher wages for his work or a higher price for his product.

A further aggravation is that provincial and municipal sales taxes, levied on the retail price, obviously become in part a tax on taxes. This is bad in principle, and, as we have seen, it lacks even the virtue of expediency: in the fight on inflation the federal tax is ineffective because concealed. It is unfortunate that in 1951 this slap at spending had to be administered with an anaesthetic.

General Manager Reports Assets Over $2.5 Billions

T. H. Atkinson, General Manager, in reviewing the bank's 1951 report stated that total assets of The Royal Bank of Canada has now reached the imposing total of $2,515,645,208. This, he said, was a new high mark in Canadian banking history and a figure which would undoubtedly be noted throughout the financial world.

Deposits likewise had reached record totals, said Mr. Atkinson. "Apart from government balances which, as previously mentioned, are lower by some $46,000,000, interest-bearing deposits have increased $19,805,000, to $1,123,723,000 and non-interest bearing deposits are up $39,694,000 and now stand at $1,085,717,000. The balances in both categories constitute new records. We are particularly pleased that the number of deposit accounts on the books of the bank increased over 100,000 during the year and now exceed 2,100,000."

Mr. Atkinson reported profits for the year had increased $1,137,926 although this had been somewhat more than counterbalanced by increased taxes. After providing for taxes, depreciation and dividends, including an additional dividend of $700,000 (at the rate of 20c per share) the bank transferred two million dollars to the Reserve Fund and carried forward $1,026,153.

The bank's programme of improvement to branches, which has gone on steadily since the end of the war, continued during the year to provide the public and staff with modern, up-to-date facilities and surroundings. Branches in operation on November 30th totalled 761, of which 62 were located in countries outside of Canada.

ROYAL BANK'S UNIQUE SERVICE

Mr. Atkinson noted that Canada is today one of the foremost trading nations of the world and he paid a tribute to the Government departments responsible for developing new markets for Canadian producers. Without worldwide banking facilities, however, Canadian traders would be seriously handicapped, he said. The Royal Bank of Canada was in a unique position to provide such service because of its 62 branches in the Caribbean area, Central and South America and its direct representation in London, England, New York and Paris.

"We have, of course, worldwide relations with correspondent banks in all countries where we had no branches and from these sources obtain information and reports on conditions and commercial regulations which are of inestimable value to our trading clients," said Mr. Atkinson, "but based on over 50 years of operations abroad and wide experience in foreign fields, we are firmly convinced there is no really adequate substitute in any business for direct representation by the organization itself. Experience with trading customs and intimate knowledge of local practices in the many countries where we operate, coupled with the close liaison which exists between our representatives abroad, both direct and correspondent, and our Head Office Foreign Departments, places us in a position which enables our bank to provide facilities for clients and others directly interested in international trade which otherwise would not be available.

PRAISE FOR STAFF

"It is always a pleasure to conclude my remarks to you with an enthusiastic tribute to the members of our staff. The success of any company or institution must of necessity bear a direct relation to the degree of efficiency of its personnel but this is particularly true of a bank where the things we sell are service and friendliness. The friendly approach is traditional with our staff and service beyond the call of duty is the rule rather than the exception. The staff of the bank numbers 12,400, in addition to which we employ approximately 1,200 people in other capacities, or a total of over 13,600. Their loyalty to and enthusiasm for the bank are most heartening to the Executive and it is proven daily by the reports we receive in Head Office from clients across the country. The gratifying report before you today is a logical outcome of this fine service and to the staff I wish to say a sincere 'thanks' on behalf of the management as well as the shareholders. Whatever may be in store in the year just beginning, I am confident the staff will meet the situation with efficiency, loyalty and enthusiasm."

Store Losses Soar To 70% In Toronto TTC Strike

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Downtown business took a beating in the first week of the strike of employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission, which has tied up street cars and buses.

Retail stores reported losses ranging from about one-third in sales to as high as 70 per cent.

The drop hit about everything except taxis and gasoline stations, from the big department stores to specialty shops—but with the smaller stores taking the worst of it.

It was the same, too, in the city's night life, where restaurants and cocktail lounges reported a pallid 50 per cent business.

Neighborhood stores, however, were more cheerful, and some of them doubted that they had suffered any loss.

A spokesman for one chain, with five stores scattered over the city, commented:

"Perhaps the downtown stores should smarten up and come out to where the customers live. If the strike continues, it may make a change in the pattern of shopping."

This was the eighth full day and seventh business day of the tie-up which has made Toronto a city of walkers and hitch-hikers.

Too Early

It was too early to judge whether the experience of Detroit, which had a 59-day strike last year, would be repeated.

There, as in Toronto, business dropped sharply, about 50 per cent, in the early part of the strike. But, as people adjusted themselves to the condition, business picked up until the over-all retail loss for the whole period was cut down to 10 per cent.

It is believed that something of this pattern will be repeated here, but that the situation will tend to continue hard on the smaller stores—the ones that get a lot of business from shoppers coming and going from the large establishments.

Meantime, the sales dip brought some cuts in employment, with more threatened.

The big department stores, Eaton's and Simpson's, said Thursday that so far they have been able to retain permanent staffs, but have had to reduce part-time employment, and would have to extend this to some full-time employees if the present sales situation continued.

R. A. Cheevers, secretary-treasurer of the Toronto downtown Business Men's Association, with 800 member firms, was among the most outspoken in the business community. He said:

Getting Worse

"The situation is bad and is getting worse. There will be general layoffs—there have been some already. The government (of Ontario) should take over matters and bring in legislation making arbitration compulsory in public utilities, as the province of Quebec did some years ago after the Montreal street-car strikes."

Even the taxi-cab companies weren't happy. One large cab company said it is doing a big daytime business for firms which use taxis to get their employees to work but its night-time business is off what it should be.

The drop in Toronto sales will, of course, be felt by suppliers and manufacturers—as their salesmen come back with empty order books.

Many merchants are the harder hit because they came into the New Year with relatively large supplies of goods on hand, on which they had hoped to raise cash in January sales. Some of them may feel considerable financial embarrassment as their own commitements fall due.

Part of the fall-off in customers is being made up by telephone orders. The big stores keep their telephone order departments working at night; others are making drives for the telephone trade; at least one firm is offering to supply customers with transportation.

Develop New Pattern

The first impact of the strike on the Toronto public seemed to make them feel they could get along without a lot of things they would ordinarily be getting. For the first week, at least, they have been chiefly concerned with arranging a pattern for getting to work, getting home.

As time goes on, if the strike continues, they probably will arrange patterns for other sections of their lives. They can't just stop buying, and as buying becomes necessary they will fit that into a pattern, too.

But it may not be quite the same pattern. There probably will be less just "shopping" with its inevitable "temptations" to buy. More telephone orders will probably continue, and quite probably, more shopping nearer home. The smaller downtown store seems to have the greatest problem to solve.

Opera On Film Pleases Large Audience

Approximately 700 citizens of Peterborough attended matinee and evening performances of the screen version of Donizetti's opera L'Elisir D'Amore (The Wine of Love) presented at the Centre Theatre Wednesday.

The 90 minute screen version showed clearly to the Peterborough audiences why this opera has always been a favorite and was received with popular acclaim in its presentation during the past month at the Metropolitan Opera in New York city.

The four Italian artists, Nelly Corradi, soprano, as Adina; Gino Sinimberghi, tenor, as Nemorino, the young peasant; Tito Gobbi, baritone, as Belcore, the sergeant; and Italo Tajo, as Dulcamara, the quack, who were both competent in their acting and inspiring in their singing were well supported by the ballet and chorus of the Grand Opera of Rome.

Charming Story

The story of the opera is delightful, revolving around the charming coquette Adina, whose hand is sought by both the poor peasant, Nemorina, and the dashing sergeant Belcore with Nemorina's faithfulness winning out.

This opera along with Donizetti's other famous comic opera, Don Pasquale, has always been acclaimed for the sparkle, brilliance and freshness of its music and it was a treat to see it so well produced as a movie.

No mean asset to the audience's appreciation was the commentary by veteran American radio announcer Milton Cross, who has been in charge of Metropolitan Opera broadcasts since their inception in 1942.

Also enjoyable were the two shorts, Bruno Walter conducting the Overture from Weber's Oberon and the Teatro Alla Scala, Milan.

L'Elisir D'Amour was the third of a series of screen versions of operas that have been presented at the Centre theatre in the past three months.

Harry Yudin, manager, said today that he hopes to continue the monthly series and that the next opera will be the comic opera, The Marriage of Figaro, by Mozart to be presented Feb. 13.

Walcott Win Biggest Upset Of 1951 Sports

By MURRAY ROSE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP). — A short left hook shot landed flush on the jaw of Ezzard Charles and 10 seconds later, Jersey Joe Walcott was crowned heavyweight champion of the world.

The sensational victory of the 37-year-old gladiator, a 5-to-1 underdog in his fifth crack at the crown, was chosen today as the upset of 1951 by sports writers and sportscasters participating in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

It was a year of big upsets with two others ranking close to the Walcott-Charles surprise—Randy Turpin's decision victory over middleweight champion Ray Robinson in London and New York Giants' drive past Brooklyn Dodgers to the National League pennant.

A total of 215 ballots were cast in the poll and 58 voters named Jersey Joe's victory as the No. 1 upset.

Given Little Chance

Hardly a soul aside from Jersey Joe and his manager, Felix Bocchicchio, gave the 37-year-old father of six a chance.

Yet 28,272 fans turned out in Pittsburgh's steaming heat, July 18, to watch the old man get a record fifth chance at boxing's most prized crown.

In the seventh round it happened. As Charles lunged in, Walcott crashed a perfect left hook flush on Ezzard's jaw and the champion dropped to the floor. The stunned crowd scrambled to its feet as Charles stirred at the count of six, got part way up at nine, and then tumbled back. It was all over at 55 seconds of the seventh.

Thus Jersey Joe became the oldest man ever to win the crown.

Ace Mat Card For The Brock

An all-star wrestling card will be presented to mat fans next Tuesday at the Brock. It will be headed by a return match between Lord Athol Layton and Bobo Brazil, the Negro star.

Brazil was well on his way to victory here this week when he went berserk and was disqualified by Referee Dunlop. Up to that time the bout had been a sizzler and a repetition next Tuesday will please the crowd.

The semi-final sees the return of the Australian champ Fred Atkins, who will be pitted against the popular Indian matman Chief Suni War Cloud. This match could headline any card. There is never a dull moment when Atkins is in the ring and the Chief will have to be at his best to get a decision.

To round out this stellar card Warren Bockwinkle—who acts as policeman for Champion Lou Thesz—will tangle with Stan Mayslack in the opener.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Bob Feller got a pay raise on Thursday and wondered if earning some $55,000 from the Cleveland Indians in 1952 might not be easier with Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams gone.

"I hate to see those fellows dropping out," Feller said in Cleveland at his annual contract-signing ceremony—his 14th. "Ted always hit me pretty good, but DiMaggio and (Tommy) Henrich were even tougher."

With DiMaggio retiring and Williams going into the Marines, the 33-year-old Feller now is in a class by himself as an established American League star. His 230 victories (against 131 defeats) are more than any other active major league hurler can boast.

Toronto Balmy Beach of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will operate next season with only two United States imports.

The decision was reached on Thursday night at the club's annual meeting, which elected Sam Shefsky as president for the coming year. Shefsky announced the club will work to round out a squad of promising Canadian college and high school boys.

Don Oyler's Canadian curling championship rink is retiring undefeated. Oyler's young rink swept through the Dominion bonspiel in Halifax last year without a defeat, upsetting all predictions and bringing Nova Scotia the title for the second time.

Pressure of business has forced Oyler and second stone Fred Dyke to drop out of club play here at Kentville, NS, thus giving up any chance of representing the province.

Vancouver's British Empire Games committee will have its own official observer at the 1952 Olympic games in Helsinki. Stan Smith, general chairman of the committee, has been selected to make the trip. The invitation to send an observer came from the Canadian Olympic team committee. Vancouver will have the British Empire games in 1954.

Sherman W. Niederecker, 19-year-old southpaw who had aspired to become a big league baseball pitcher, lost his throwing arm in a factory accident Thursday in St. Louis. His left arm caught in some gears and was severed above the elbow as he worked in a plant of the Missouri-Illinois Material Co. A high school basketball star last year, Niederecker had hoped to get a tryout soon with the St. Louis Browns.

A bill requiring promoters to provide life and injury insurance for professional boxers was introduced in the New York State Legislature Thursday in Albany. The measure would require insurance that would provide for a $5,000 payment to the estate of any fighter injured fatally in a match, and up to $500 for medical, surgical and hospital care to a boxer for a non-fatal injury.

Harness-racing fans in the United States wagered more money in 1951 than ever before, the US Trotting Association said Thursday in Columbus, O. Betting totalled $304,010,301 in 1951. State taxes took $16,380,584 of this sum. Previous record national handle was $238,258,159 in 1950.

B. Murray Tops

Bob Murray took high single honors with 381 and a three of 702 last night in the Playfair Mercantile League. M. O'Donnell captured top three with 789.

Other good singles were Lenore Lee 324, M. O'Donnell 271, A. Brooks 267, C. O'Shea 308. Neat triples were M. O'Donnell 789, D. Whatman 769, G. Tully 693, F. Curtis 658. Murray's high single now stands for the league to date.

Canadiens Wallop Kingston Team 15-4

KINGSTON, Jan. 11 (CP). — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League Thursday night trounced a Kingston all-star team 15-4 despite the absence of right-winger Maurice Richard, sidelined by a stomach ailment.

Richard, forced to quit Wednesday night after the second period of an exhibition tilt in Sudbury, was not with the team Thursday night, even as a spectator. It was reported he had gone through to Montreal.

US Olympic Skier Injured In Fall

WESTBY, Wis., Jan. 11 (AP)—Joe Perreault of Ishpeming, Mich. a member of the United States Olympic ski jumping team, suffered a crushed cervical vertebra and two cracked ribs Thursday in a fall at the Snowflake Ski Club slide.

Keith Wegeman, another Olympic team member, said a doctor told him Perreault would be in a cast for some time and "undoubtedly" would be unable to compete in the Olympic winter games at Oslo, Norway, next month.

D. Riggs Rolls High

Don Riggs led the men in the Mercantile Bowling League this week with top three of 789 and high single of 321. Marcelle Lake was best for the belles as she hit a 699 trio and 25 single. Austin's topped the teams with 3,051 pinnafe. Other high girls singles were: Dot McAuliffe 252, Marg Widdis 247, Mae Willshaw 242, and Lenore Lee 235. Men's high games included: Harold Cawker with 282, Jack Gimblett 274, Don Penrose 269, and Bill Rutledge 266.

Lots of whitewash was daubed around as 4-0 wins were marked by Crowe's over A & P, Austin's over Braund's No. 2, Utilities against Braund's No. 1, and by Prudential over Loblaw's. Keen competition came up in the other match when Neill's and Bond's split the points at 2-2.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Bev Goulding will have but seven players dressed for the senior PCVS exhibition hoop game at 8.45 tonight in the Collegiate with the Marines. They will be light, too, but fast, well-drilled cagers. Chaps like Bryon Young, Lionel Hempstead, Don Ash, Ted Cranfield, etc., most of 'em last year's good juvenile finalists who were edged out by St. Kifts. This tilt is preceded at 7.30 by a junior "A" fixture betwixt Oshawa and PCVS. There's a girls' game this e'en in the YWCA, Neill's vs. CGE, while the Nurses play Lindsay at 7.15 Monday night in the YW. Men's basketball attraction in the YM on Saturday night at eight has Trenton Flyers meeting Outboard Marines in loop play.

Talk here of the senior lacrosse re-organization this month, and we note this item in the Telegram: "Mimico Mounties senior lacrosse club is expected to name Chuck Davidson as their 1952 coach Friday. Art Harrison, who handled Mounties the last two years, will be asked to carry on as the club manager. Fred Sandford, president and manager, has expressed his desire to confine his future lacrosse interests as club president. Davidson was Mounties' coach for about four seasons prior to two years ago." It will be recalled that Scotty McPhail and Denny Peterson of Mounties played for the Petes in Mann Cup finals.

And Bring The Children

They call it "Dad's Night" at Civic Arena this eve when Kingston Vics meet Oddfellows at 8.30 in a junior "B" puck tilt. But any kind of elementary school age gets in free if accompanied by a parent, mum or dad. Girls as well as boys. Two peewee games, also, starting at seven: Leafs vs. Bruins, and Wings vs. Canadiens. Come out and see the youngsters, and you'll be also view a hot junior OHA match between Vics and IOOF-ers as they battle it out for that third slot, presently held by Johnny Godfrey's gang. Vics beat Belleville 6-5 last Tuesday. These tussles deserve a large Friday night hockey crowd in the southend arena.

Just three and a half games separate the top-place Belleville Hawks and the fourth-place Eagles at the moment in the senior "B" puck standing for Central Ontario. And that could well be changed tonight when Eagles play in Bella Villa, and Petes trek to Kingston. Hawks have 18 points, Petes 16, Kingston 13 and Eagles 11. No word yet on the group playoff arrangements. All teams have now played 14 league games and the schedule runs till the end of February, so lots of changes in the standing may occur within the next few weeks. While Hawks lead the way with Petes right on their heels, we expect Eagles to finish strong as they get over this period of re-organization. And don't look now, but we honestly believe Kingston is the club to beat for league honors. Hawks are here Monday to take on the Petes.

'Twas Tougher Task Then

George Heron writes: "With all the talk at present of some NHL players approaching, equalling or surpassing Nels Stewart's goal record I think it only fair to point out the number of NHL games a season in his time compared to the greatly increased number a season now. The blue line forward pass was not in the game then. He was a master stickhandler and his skating speed was very deceiving as co-ordination of puck-handling and speed were the closest of balance. The best of luck to you and your interesting column." Thanks, and it's true that if was harder in the old days to rack up an impressive scoring record in a short season of play with forward passing not permitted.

An item in the Globe today said Leo Deadey had been signed as amateur baseball scout in Toronto by Cleveland Indians of the American League. More and more major league clubs are scouting Canuck ballsters and, if army calls keep hitting the big loops, there'll be more room at the top for up-and-coming young diamondeers. Though it's a long climb, Deadey used to play for the senior Petes and was a good outfielder and steady hitter. He was better known as a senior gridder here and in Toronto, finishing up with Argos. Started as Orfuns' coach last autumn but wasn't too successful as a football mentor so he hied himself back to Toronto, Frank Gnup taking his place here.

Toronto Woman Hurt At Curling

TORONTO, Jan. 11—One of the few accidents that occur in curling happened at the Granite Club Thursday morning in one of the Robertson ladies' bonspiel semi-finals.

Mrs. C. E. Spooner, vice for Mrs. C. S. Robertson, was about to put up one of the markers on the scoreboard, following the completion of an end, and was standing with one foot on the ice. As the stones were being cleared from house in preparation for the next end one of them was swept against Mrs. Spooner's foot, knocking it from under her and throwing her heavily to the ice. She was taken to hospital where examination showed that she had suffered a fractured collarbone.

She will be unable to curl for at least five weeks and her loss will be a severe one for Mrs. Robertson's Tankard rink. The rink finished out the semi-final with the three players, but in the afternoon final recruited Miss M. McGuinness as lead.

Mrs. Spooner is well known in Peterborough, where she has curled several times.

Capitals Lash Syracuse Team

By The Associated Press.

Johnny Wilson and Fred Glover of the Indianapolis Capitals had themselves a time Thursday night at the expense of the Syracuse Warriors in the only American Hockey League game on the card.

Wilson slipped home three consecutive goals, and Glover, recently sent down by the Detroit Red Wings, helped himself to two. That was more than enough for the Caps, but they went on to paste the Warriors, 9-2.

The Caps are in last place in the western division and the Warriors occupy the same unenviable spot in the eastern section.

Schroeder, Kramer Given Quiet Welcome

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11 (AP). —Few knew it, but Ted Schroeder and Jack Kramer were back in town today.

Five years ago, Schroeder and Kramer received a heroes' welcome when they returned with the Davis Cup. Guests at the testimonial banquet numbered 400.

Thursday they were feted at a hastily-arranged luncheon attended by 12.

They foresaw a dark outlook for winning back the cup, pointing out that in addition to the veterans, the Aussies have two tremendous young prospects in Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewell, each 17.

EL MANTE, Mexico, Jan. 11 — (AP).—A policeman was indicted Thursday for the fatal shooting of a former star pitcher for Chicago Cubs Dec. 29.

Close Contests A Feature In PMHA Play

Several real close games marked the PMHA evening of six tilts last night in Civic Arena. In the Marine-Lakefield game, the referee reported coaches coming on the ice, and the executive has issued a warning that official action will be taken if this occurs again.

Otonabee Wolves took a 7-4 bantam victory over the Lions, with Lonsberry in a starry role to score, five goals, as Darling notched two. For Lions, it was Drury twice and Trudeau and Naish once each. St. Peter's bantams squeezed out a 3-2 decision over Trojans, Baker tallying twice and Forestell once for the winners, as Baker and Stewart hit the mark for the losers.

Midget Frays.

In midget play, St. Peter's downed the Snowbirds 4-1 on goals by Garvey, Doris, McCarthy and Beaulrak, while Heron counted for the other side. Martin-Hewitt barely yanked out a 4-3 verdict against Trojans and were lucky to win. Kane scored two and Chambers and Godfrey one each for the victors. McFadyan got a pair for Trojans, and Sutherland the other. Curtis shone in goal for the losers.

Marines racked up a 7-1 juvenile win over Lakefield. Corbett and Kearns counting two apiece, and Dodd, Frizzelle and McGillen one each. Pue tallied for Lakefield in a rough joust which saw a dozen penalties evenly divided. The juvenile Oddfellows defeated the Trojans 5-3 on goals by Cupoli (with two), Allan, Doris, and Snape. For Trojans, Foley, Seabrook and Patterson were the marksmen.

Red Wings Trip Rangers 5-2 As Howe Scores Twice

By The Canadian Press

Gordie Howe of Detroit did all right for himself in the National Hockey League Thursday night, scoring twice as the Red Wings downed New York Rangers 5-2 and moving into a first-place tie for individual scoring honors. The fast-skating Howe also took over top position in the goal-scoring department.

Howe now has 22 goals, one more than the erstwhile leader, Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens, idle Thursday night. This, together with his 15 assists, gives him 37 points and a tie for top spot with Elmer Lach of Montreal.

As far as the standings are concerned, the game served only to push the Wings further ahead of the pack. Detroit now has 54 points from 23 victories and eight ties in 38 games. They have lost but seven games and lead Toronto by 12 points.

Howe hit twice within 73 seconds late in the second period Thursday night. The scores broke a close 2-1 game after the Wings came from behind. They tied the count on a fluke tally when they got a player edge.

Tying Counter

Metro Prystai got credit for the tying counter, banged from a corner. It struck a New York player and went in. The Detroiters then went ahead to stay when Sid Abel made a smart rap on Ted Lindsay's breakaway rebound.

In potting the goal Abel broke a club record set by Sid Howe — scoring 437 points as a Detroit player.

The Rangers whacked in the first and final tallys of the game. Jack Stoddard counted the initial score and Hy Buller rapped one with 48 minutes left.

Friday night, as usual, is an off night in the league but Saturday sees Chicago at Montreal and Detroit at Toronto. Sunday, Canadiens play at New York, Toronto at Detroit and Chicago at Boston.

Clean Ice, Snow Off Windshields Advises Chief

Police Chief John Thompson advises motorists it is in their own interests, to make sure they clean snow and frost off their windshields to give them proper visi...

After about an inch of snow had fallen Wednesday, traffic policemen stopped several drivers on their way home from work and asked them to clean more snow off the windshields of their cars.

In some cases, only small holes had been wiped clean of snow, with the result, the driver's visibility was seriously hampered by a coating of snow on the outside, and in many cases, a film of frost inside.

In A Hurry

After leaving their cars parked at work all day, during a snowstorm, many car owners are in such a hurry to get home, they merely brush a small peephole free of snow and drive off.

With slippery streets, and snowbanks reducing the width of streets and increasing the danger of accidents, Chief Thompson points out that drivers need to be particularly alert and to have their car windows and windshields free of snow and frost, so they can see properly.

OOPS! SOMEBODY'S IN WRONG—and it had better not be the driver of the car that has put a good sized dent into the door of the provincial police cruiser. Three policemen were in the cruiser: driver provincial constable Donald W. Erskine of Campbellford, and Chief Constable Robert W. Hall of Havelock and William Parcels of Norwood. Driver of the other car was Donald Frise, 70 Auburn St. The accident happened as the police cruiser was leaving the parking lot beside the police department in the city hall to turn into Water St.

Proper Reaction To Suffering Life's Secret

"To know and exercise the proper reaction to sorrows and suffering is one of life's great secrets," the Rev. H. Kaye, of Lakefield, said Thursday night.

Mr. Kaye was one of the two Week of Prayer speakers at the service held in All Saints' Anglican Church.

Mr. Kaye explained that what happens to a person doesn't really matters, but rather the importance lies in how he reacts to misfortune. He quoted Christ's example in the garden of Gethsemane as He saw before Him the agony of arrest, trial and mocking as the one that should be followed by all men in times of misfortune.

At this time Christ prayed and with the power of prayer his mind and soul were suddenly flooded with peace and He was able to face His crucifixion with a calmness that made this event the pride and glory of humanity.

Man should follow this example and receive inner strength to face all suffering and misfortune, Mr. Kaye concluded.

The Rev. Henry Cotton, of St. Andrew's United Church, gave an address on the theme Prayer and Healing. He used as his text "Who healeth all thy diseases," from Psalm 103.

The speaker explained that healing is not a work of man alone. Surgeons, after they have done their work still have to wait on the will of God. It is at this time that men turn to God in prayer.

The Rev. M. P. Poole conducted the service. Music was under the direction of Miss M. Flowers, organist.

AS FAMOUS PICTURES WERE UNCRATED in the Public Library gallery at noon today William Graff, chief librarian, and Mrs. Mary Lee of Lakefield, a member of the Peterborough Group of Painters, were on hand to inspect large portrait of an old woman called "The Twilight of Life," by the Canadian Miss S. Strickland; and a beautiful landscape by the great English painter of the late 18th century John Constable. The travelling exhibit of 36 Canadian and European paintings opened this afternoon, and will be in Peterborough only until Saturday night, 9.00 p.m.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

US Marines Landing—But Hard On Major League Ball Players

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP). — The Marines are landing—on major league baseball players—and how many more athletes holding commissions may be called back into the armed forces was a question only Washington and the Pentagon could answer today.

Twenty-four hours after the Boston Red Sox were rocked by the announcement Ted Williams had been recalled to the Marine Air Corps, infielder Gerry Coleman of the world champion New York Yankees and outfielder Lloyd Merriman of the Cincinnati Reds got similar greetings.

In Washington, a Marine Corps spokesman said this was part of a rotation program involving "several hundred" Marine reserve officers.

He denied the Marines were trying to "build up a team" by recalling athletes to active duty.

"Orders have been issued to Capt. Ted Williams recalling him to active duty along with several hundred junior captains and first lieutenants, all naval aviators of the Marine Corps Reserve" a statement from the Corps said.

Provide Replacements

It added that the "purpose of recalling this group is to provide replacements for other reserve aviators who have completed their tours of active duty and are being released to inactive duty."

The Marine spokesman said "only three or four" of those being recalled are well-known in the sports world.

Williams, who draws $100,000-plus each year for making it tough on opposing American League pitchers, was fishing off the Florida keys when his call came Wednesday.

Then, from San Francisco, came the orders yesterday for Coleman and Merriman to get ready. All three are under orders to report for physical examinations April 2, and if found fit, they face at least 17 months of service.

If accepted, they will report May 2 for active duty at the Los Alamedas, Calif., air base.

"You have to do your duty when you're told," Williams declared at Rock Harbor, Fla., where he reports the fishing excellent.

"I don't know what I'm going to do now. This came so suddenly I haven't decided whether to report for spring training."

Quinte Squad Wins First TVL Contest

BELLEVILLE, — Jan. 11—Glen Roy AC of Belleville won its first victory of the Trent Valley Hockey League campaign Wednesday night, defeating Trenton RCAF Flyers, 8-3, in Belleville Memorial Arena. The loss was the first for Flyers in three starts this season.

The winners took a commanding 4-1 lead in the first period and were never threatened. They added another in the middle stanza and then went on to outscore the visitors, 3-2, in the final 20 minutes. The Glens were sparked by a brilliant display by their bespectacled netminder, Art Plumley, who was making his second appearance this winter.

Earl Cousins paced the attack for the winners with three goals and one assist, while linemate Brian Mulvihill was credited with four assists. Timmy Williams and Leo Goyer each claimed a pair of goals, while Bob Batfield potted the odd one. Gil Dinnette, Charlie MacDonald and Bud Attrill were the Flyer marksmen.

2 Cars Hit At Corner $175 Damage Done

Damage estimated at $175 resulted when two cars collided at Romaine and Aylmer Streets on Wednesday evening.

Bruce L. Payne, 734 Lock St., was travelling east on Romaine St. when he was in collision with a southbound Aylmer St. car driven by Harold J. Hatton, 795 Lock St.

An estimated $100 damage resulted to the front end of the Payne car and $75 damage to the right near fender of the car driven by Hatton.

Constable Robert Menzies investigated.

Editor Refuses Seat On Board

LINDSAY, Jan. 11—(ENS)—An editorial in Thursday's daily paper, The Lindsay Post, caused considerable comment in town today.

Last week, when town council appointed their committees for the year, the editor of The Daily Post, Newton Falls, was appointed to act as a member of the Lindsay arena committee. Already serving on the committee for three years is S. R. Pitts, managing editor of The Weekly Warder.

The move to appoint Mr. Falls is thought by many to give the daily paper a better understanding of the arena management problems and to avert criticism of the arena which has been done at times by the daily paper.

The editorial stated that the editor would be unable to act on the committee because of the paper's policy in reporting unbiased news and if the editor were a member of an administrative body in the municipality, he would at once be biased in his opinion towards that body. "Although much appreciated," said the editorial, the recommendation "must be declined with thanks."

Exile Doukhobor From Province

VANCOUVER, Jan. 11 (CP).—John Sherstibitoff, a Sons of Freedom Doukhobor, will be released from prison but exiled from British Columbia, Col. Frederick J. Mead, chairman of the Screening Sub-Committee of the Consultative Committee on Doukhobor Problems, announced on Thursday night.

Sherstibitoff, described at his trial as the 'official bomber" for the sect, has served 18 months of a 14-year penitentiary term. He was convicted on six counts of arson.

Col. Mead said the Doukhobor will be released within a few days.

All but an estimated 45 of more than 400 Doukhobors imprisoned for arson, nude parading, and railway bombing were set free on parole in recent months.

The last big outbreak of violence was in the spring of 1950 in the Kootenay region of interior BC, where the Sons of Freedom are located.

Paintings By Canadians And Europeans, Very Good

The travelling exhibition of paintings which opened at the Library gallery this afternoon and comes down Saturday evening is unusual in several ways.

In the first place, the 36 canvases (all but two are oil paintings) are very good and very varied. They are chiefly the works of well-known Canadian painters, but English and European schools are represented. It is probably the first time Peterborough has had a Constable on view.

The show is unusual, too, in the way it is travelling about. It is being taken by station-wagon to 22 Ontario cities and towns. It has been assembled by the Toronto Art Gallery, and the Community Programs Branch of the Ontario Department of Education is exhibiting it.

The English and European canvasses are, on the whole, rather small. That does not detract from their strength and beauty. 'The Constable ('Coming Storm') is 14 by 12 inches; the Corot ('Lake at Barbizon') is 11 by 18, the Dutch Joseph Israels' 'Figure on the Sea-Shore' is 10 by 14.

European Paintings

Peterborough has never had European paintings of this distinction on exhibition before. It is a brief and convenient opportunity to see works of 19th century Continental painters: the German Anton Fidler, the Dutch Israels, Jacob Maris, Willem Maris, Theophile De Bock, the French Corot, Descamps and Constant Troyon.

The two English artists represented are H. M. Livens (19th century), John Hoppner (1758-1810) and John Constable (1776-1837). The oldest painting is a portrait of a girl by the Dutch painter Jan Verspronck, 1597-1662.

Good Canadian

There are interesting Canadian landscapes by Homer Watson (a small canvas 'In the Beechwoods'), J. E. H. MacDonald, Tom Thomson (a small Pine Tree), Lawren Harris, Edwin Holgate, and others. There are works by a younger group of Canadians, for instance, Carl Shaefer, Goodridge Roberts, and Jack Humphrey.

There is a fine portrait of an old woman ('The Twilight of Life') by the Canadian portrait painter, Sydney Stickland Tully. She died in 1911. Another fine study is 'My Caddy' by Prudence Heward who died three years ago. Both are remarkable paintings.

The show is not outstanding compared with the walls of any first-class gallery, but as a travelling exhibition it is notable. The Canadian things are representative of the best, and seldom have cities of this size the opportunity to see any collection of European paintings. If you are not going to miss it, you will have to be quick. It is staying in town only for a day and a half.—T.J.A.

Driver Arrested After Collision

After the truck he was driving was involved in a slight collision with a city bus, Gordon Newall, 490 Edison Ave., was arrested Wednesday night and charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

In police court Thursday, he asked for an adjournment and crown attorney John A. Bradshaw consented to the charge being adjourned until January 14.

Newall is charged with being the driver of a truck which attempted to pass a city bus, driven by Mac McAuliffe, Ennismore, stopped on Monaghan Rd., at the CPR tracks, waiting for a train to pass.

The three-ton truck scraped the left front corner of the bus as it passed. Then it continued south on Monaghan Rd., without stopping, crossed the tracks when the train passed, then turned east on Romaine St., and stopped in front of house 571 on Romaine St.

The bus driver stopped his Byersville bus in front of the truck and waited until police arrived.

Constable Wilfred Perry described Newall as being "unsteady on his feet" and said he smelled "strongly of alcohol."

Times' Publishers Committed For Trial

LONDON, Jan. 11 (Reuters) — Publishers of The Times, one of Britain's most respected newspapers, were committed for trial Thursday for printing shortly before the election an advertisement which commented on Labor government's financial policies.

The prosecution alleged this was a breach of British election law limiting expenditure on party propaganda at election time and that parts of the advertisement, relating to labor government policy for dividend limitation, amounted to an attempt to back the Conservative candidate in the constituency of the cities of London and Westminster.

Also committed for trial were the Tronoh Mines, Ltd., in whose name the ad stood, and their secretary, Harold Edgar Barrenger.

ANTIOCH, Calif., Jan. 11 (AP) —Little Dixie Kline died in her sleep—two days after her sixth birthday party at which she was served the watermelon she so passionately desired. The tiny leukemia victim was sent a large number of melons by sympathetic strangers who had heard of her dying wish.

Saved By Lighter

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11 — (AP)—A cabbie showed police his cigarette lighter, fused with a .38 bullet, and said it had cost him $25, but saved his life. Joseph Falkowich told police a holdup man robbed him of $25 early today after firing at him at a range of only 18 inches. The bullet crashed into the lighter in Falkowich's shirt pocket and stunned him.

District Teams Tie

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 11—(ENS) — Burn's Bridge and Youngs' Point went to a 3-3 hockey tie in a recent game at Warsaw. Young's Point scored first in the initial inning on Doug Heard's goal, Cam Freeburn aiding. Dave Jacobs slammed home Ross Freeburn's rebound shortly to make it 2-0. Burn's Bridge came back next heat with two quickies by R. Tedford, one a breakway. It ended at 2-2.

Halfway through the third period, Walt Tedford put Burn's Bridge in front, but two minutes later saw Doug Heard tie it up with his second goal of the night. It ended that way. Refs. Bob Selkirk and V. Clements handed out no penalties in a clean game.

Ruled Offensive

ROME, Jan. 11—(AP)—A fiveman Italian appeal court today decided Esquire magazine's scantily clad calendar girls are "offensive to the public decency" but ruled that they are not obscene. Jack L. Begon of San Francisco, who last year was president of the Daily American Company, Esquire distributors, was charged by the state with distributing obscene literature. The decision backed up a lower-court ruling.

Build Road To Pier That Isn't There

VAL D'OR, Que., Jan. 11 (CP) —The town of Val D'Or is prepared to build a road this summer to a Blouin Lake pier that isn't there.

It's a little baffling. Construction of the road, along the town's northern limits and forming a link with the Val D'Or Senneterre Highway, was a condition when the Federal Government two ago approved construction of the wharf to cost about $10,000. The wharf will serve light aircraft and pleasure boats.

Now the Quebec Provincial Government has notified the town permission has been granted to build the road, which would run through crown lands.

But Blouin Lake is surrounded by crown lands and the Provincial Government, which controls them, has not authorized construction of a pier there.

Arabs To Negotiate With Israeli Delegates

PARIS, Jan. 11 — (AP) — An Arab spokesman said Thursday Arab representatives are now willing, for the first time, to sit down with Israeli representatives in mixed committees to try to solve Palestine's long-snarled problems.

The problems include the future of Jerusalem, repatriation of Arab refugees and territorial aspects.

Syrian delegate Ahmad Shukairy, who is assistant secretary-general of the Arab League, made the announcement. The promised mixed committees would sit under the chairman of the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, which already has reported to the general assembly failure to bring about an Arab-Israeli agreement.

Kitchener Collegiate Reports $361 Surplus

KITCHENER, Jan. 11—(CP)— The Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate Board announced today it completed the last financial year with a surplus of $361 despite the fact salaries amounted to more than $5,000 over the budget.

Receipts totalled $526,004 while expenditures were $525,643.

The increased receipts were due largely to Provincial grants which were $6,000 more than expected.

Salaries for employees totalled $310,124. The estimated figure was $308,820. The difference was caused by the rising cost-of-living index.

Warsaw Radio Paints Idyllic Peace Picture

LONDON, Jan. 11 (Reuters).—Warsaw radio Thursday gave a Polish radio writer's picture of the sort of world the Kremlin wants in 1955.

The play was based on an article in the Soviet foreign affairs magazine "New Times" on "The Peace We Want." The article was an answer to the Collier's Magazine feature, "The War We Don't Want," which depicted a Soviet invasion of the United States.

Set in December, 1955, "just after the conclusion of a peace pact between the big powers, the play depicted a world in which Communism and capitalism were "peacefully co-existing, to quote a phrase of Stalin's, and Americans were still making dollars.

But profits came from peace and not war. And the Soviet Union was placing $2,000,000,000 orders with American business firms.

Listeners heard a Moscow announcement that the first 100 ships powered by atomic energy had been commissioned for "The USSR-USA Line."

They were taken to Korea, where 100,000 Americans were aiding Chinese, Koreans and Russians in reconstruction work.

A London commentator on the Polish program said that the men manning "the American atom bombers" in England were leaving—"westward (for the United States), not eastward (to Russia) as was feared at one time."

Curtain Goes Up

The curtain went up on the opening of a new giant dock in Marseilles, France, and the simultaneous arrival there of Soviet merchant seamen with raw materials for French factories.

A Warsaw radio commentator summed up by saying the world was not yet a paradise. The main issue, the "problem of imperialism," had not yet been solved.

Illustrating the point, the commentator switched on an announcement from the United States control commission for atomic energy reporting the discovery of midget-sized atom bombs in a secret factory in the US.

The radio gave no clue as to who would be the master of the Kremlin in 1955.

BIRD-BANDING STARTS — In co-operation with the United States Fish and Wildlife Society, a bird-banding program at Coote's Paradise Marsh near Hamilton, Ont., has been begun by the Hamilton Royal Botanical Gardens. Gulls, terns, herons, all ducks and, possibly, swans will be included. Shown is James Law of the Garden staff releasing the first banded duck.

Fail To Shake Monette In Trial Story

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 11 — (CP)—Crown Counsel Thursday failed to shake the story told by Richard Monette about his early morning visit to the home of Harper Harris the day Harris died.

Monette, charged with murder in the 83-year-old bachelor's death, said Harris was killed by a fall down the cellar steps of his home.

The accused man also denied testimony of previous witnesses who said he showed an interest in money that might have been in the Harris cellar.

Monette, a 29-year-old roofing contractor, said he visited Harris about 3 am Nov. 16—"I had been drinking"—to try to persuade him to have some changes made to his house.

During the discussion he picked up a shotgun belonging to Harris to examine it and the gun went off. "I didn't know it was loaded," he said. It was reported earlier that Monette said Harris fired the gun.

Monette said he was pushing open the cellar door against some obstacle when Harris pushed past him, gasped and fell backward down the steps.

He was afraid to go to police when he found Harris was dead because he had been sentenced for assault in 1950 and did not think the police would believe his story. "All I could think of was to get out."

Seek To Curb Sales

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 11—(AP)—Two manufacturers of sweaters from a material which police say is highly inflammable were located in this city Thursday. Investigators took samples of cloth, which they said were consumed in a second when the flame was brought near them. Police are conferring with the city attorney to see whether any law now on the books can be used to prohibit sale of the garments.

Carlsen Promised Command Of Vessel

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—The president of the Isbrandtsen line pronounced an emotion-choked "well done, Carlson" Thursday and promised him command of another vessel—perhaps another "Flying Enterprise".

A ship's bell in the office of Hans J. Isbrandtsen tolled the loss of a ship as he read to newspapermen a tribute to Capt. Kurt Carlsen and a requiem to the vessel the skipper tried for two weeks to save.

Tears welled in the eyes of the ordinary-tough shipping-line operator.

He said Carlsen will get command of another Isbrandtsen line vessel "when he is ready for it". He said he "expects" another vessel will be renamed the Flying Enterprise.

To Seal Up Well

CRYSTAL BEACH, Jan. 11 — (CP)—The Ontario Mines Department will be asked to seal up an ancient sulphur well, found this year after a 17-year search, Reeve Claude Brewster announced here Thursday. He said the well, which erupted last Friday would bring disaster if it erupted during the summer when this resort is thronged with tourists.

Make Inquiries In Rome About Racket

MONTREAL, Jan. 11—(CP)—La Presse, Montreal French-language daily, said Thursday the investigation into illegal entry of Italians into Canada has taken a federal investigator to Rome to look into operations in the alien "smuggling" ring there, particularly the activities of one man.

La Presse says this man, an Italian in his mid-30's, was himself deported from Canada last spring, after having spent two years in the Dominion on a visitor's permit.

RCMP and immigration authorities have let it be known in the last two or three weeks that they are in the midst of investigating the illegal entry of Italians, many of whom are said to have entered Canada under false papers obtained for a price in Italy.

La Presse told the story of a barber from Calabria, Italy, turned down as an immigrant because he did not meet health qualifications but who later, through the offices of the deported Italian, was provided with a brand new passport. This cost him 120,000 lira.

The paper said the barber boasted aboard ship during his trip to Halifax of the ease with which he obtained the necessary documents and this led to an official investigation which resulted in his not being admitted to Canada.

Movie Column

Clifton Webb Playing New Character

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11 (AP)—Clifton Webb is currently playing a character far removed from his familiar "Mr. Belvedere" role, and no one could be happier.

The actor is portraying a silent-era movie star in "Dream Boat". He is doing flicker sequences which show him as an American ace in the First World War, a Foreign Legionnaire, a swashbuckler along the lines of the senior Douglas Fairbanks and a fourth musketeer.

"Nightly I offer prayers of thanks, concluded by one loud 'hallelujah!'" he remarked.

It is no secret that he has wanted to shake the know-it-all Belvedere character, despite the fact that the old boy put Webb among the 10 top money-makers in 1950.

"Belvedere was a great character and I am grateful to him," he said. "But after all, I cannot go on playing the same thing for the rest of my days. There would be no fun in it."

Dancing Yet

Webb has another innovation in his present film: he is dancing with Ginger Rogers. Few of his younger fans realize that Webb was a dancing star on Broadway in his youth. But "Dream Boat" will mark the first time he has danced in a show since 1939.

The "Dream Boat" set is like something out of the past. The company is shooting silent sequences, so there are no sound men, no sound equipment and no shouts of "quiet!" Director Claude Binyon even ordered musicians to provide mood music for the actors.

"I realize now what a cinch the silent actors had," observed Webb. "Why, this is nothing, compared to doing a sound picture. There are no lines to learn, no scripts to study. All you have to do is show up on the set every day. It's a dream!"

Canadian-Style Uniform Pleases Old Salts of RN

LONDON, Jan. 11—(CP)—Old salts of the Royal Navy stood firm Thursday on a shaky deck, unshaken by news they may soon wear a Canadian-style uniform, zippers and all.

"Don't quote me—but anything new couldn't help being better than what we've got now," was a sentiment below decks.

The ratings' reaction followed a cautious pronouncement that the Admiralty has under consideration the possibility of stealing a few ideas from the Canadian navy's new square rig — including the "shaped shoulders" and zippers on trousers and jumper.

It seems the Duke of Edinburgh, when he was in Canada last year, thought the Canadian rating looked a little smarter than his R.N. counterpart. He passed the word along to his uncle, Vice-Admiral Earl Mountbatten.

Lord Louis, Fourth Sea Lord, summoned a couple of Canadian sailors, Ls. P. W. Cowper of Howick, Que., and Ls. Robert Haddocks of Montreal, to his office. The Canadians put on an informal mannequin parade and, it is believed, made an "excellent impression."

An Admiralty spokesman said today:

"We are considering a new type of jumper which could incorporate a zip-fastener. Many other types are also being considered. No decision has been taken."

Leading patrolman Peter Hyde of Wallsend-on-Tyne, who has followed life on the ocean wave for 14 years, said today it would suit him fine if the Canadian rig were adopted.

"My mates and I have often wished for some kind of reefer jacket," he said. "Anything, so long as we don't have to put up with putting our jumpers on over our heads, like a woman."

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Farm Forum To Discuss Question of Farm Credits Monday Night . . . 414 District Farmers in Maple Cattle Breeders' Association at Dec. 31 . . . Ontario Junior Farmers' Bonspiel Here Feb. 7 . . . Shorthorn Breeders Meet Thursday, Jan. 17.

The first Central Ontario Spring Fair will be held at Morrow Park, Peterborough, during the last week in March.

It is the outgrowth of the old Quinte District Seed Fair, and will be held permanently at the local Exhibition Park,—if the farmers of the Central Ontario counties want it.

The farmer members of the Quinte Association were the most active group in proposing the change in purpose, scope, location and other phases of the new show. Seed grain will be retained as a department, but other features are to be developed.

Decision to change the old Seed Fair with its rotation of location annually from one town to another throughout the district was arrived at with full deliberation.

Mel McColm of Port Hope is president, and the general secretary is Oliver Dalrymple of Stirling, agricultural representative in Hastings county. Committees are in process of selection here and elsewhere in the district.

The final transfer from the old to the new organization was agreed upon at a general meeting in Peterborough last Monday. It was largely attended. Agricultural representatives with groups of farmers were present from Durham, Ontario, Victoria, Hastings, Northumberland, Peterborough, Frontenac, and Lennox-Addington. Prince Edward may be another group.

There were also representatives of Peterborough Exhibition, Chamber of Commerce, several of the industries, City Council and so on.

Facilities Are Free

The local Exhibition is offering its facilities without charge as evidence of its interest in helping to promote better farming.

Not only the Ontario Department of Agriculture but also the federal department were represented. Both are supporting this enterprise, and particularly the Ontario department and the Ontario Agricultural College.

This is not a local, Peterborough fair. It is being planned to attract as many farmers as possible from the Central Ontario counties, and the major challenge facing it is:—"How can we most effectively help our farmers?"

Obviously, it will not succeed without genuine rural co-operation. It will be a seed grain show, but only in part. It will retain the grain judging competition of the old Quinte show. Phases of grassland farming will be presented. Poultry and hatchery exhibits may be included, and other branches of farming may be organized within the scope of the fair.

O.A.C. Demonstrations

That is an outline of the present beginning. OAC will provide educational demonstrations. Maple and other cattle breeding associations may set up displays. Commercial exhibits will be sought and encouraged. Financing is a problem. The Quinte Seed Fair's balance of $500 is being turned to the credit of the Spring Fair.

Ed. A. Summers, agricultural representative in Durham, expressed a sentiment showing from that county when he said: "There is no reason why we couldn't get a busload of our people and come up here and help put the premises in the best of shape. The other counties would probably turn out too."

"Farming is changing so fast," said Frank Paterson, "that we have got to keep up with it. We have a fine district with lots of progressive farmers. If we can get an attendance of 5,000 we'll be off to a good start, but we need plenty of help."

Mr. Paterson said there would be no admission charge to the fair.

MEETINGS JAN. 17

Two meetings are set for Thursday, Jan. 17. Directors and others interested in the Central Ontario Spring Fair which has emerged from the Quinte Seed Fair are booked for 1.30 pm in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

Annual meeting of the Peterborough Exhibition is being held at 8 pm in the main committee room at the city hall. Directors hope that farmers of the district, and city supporters of the Exhibition, will make a special point of attending.

Frank C. Paterson said today that representatives of Ontario Agricultural College will be here for the Spring Fair session that will buckle down to immediate planning.

✦ ✦ ✦

MORE MAPLE MEMBERS

Peterborough district membership in the Maple Cattle Breeders' Association reached a total of 414 at the end of December, an increase of 171 during 1951.

New applications have averaged one a day since New Year's, Frank C. Patterson said yesterday. Gordon La Plante reports first breeding of more than 4,000 cows last year.

Mr. Paterson is hopeful of a steady increase in membership for 1952. As a rough estimate he says there are somewhere between 800 and 1,000 other farmers in this district who have yet to sign up for the Maple artificial breeding service.

This district is composed of Peterborough county, South Monaghan and Cavan townships and most of Emily.

In this district, as indicated by the figures, this method of breeding cattle has passed through the experimental stage and is soundly established. Early last spring two district barns, for example, were literally full of young Black and White cattle, most of them heifers of ten months to two years. They were all Maple products with a great deal of uniformity in their lines, upstanding animals of good type.

It should be of some interest to hold an occasional Maple field day in the membership areas on the fringe, such as Peterborough and Victoria, apart from the annual show at the unit headquarters.

✦ ✦ ✦

PINE GROVE FORUM

More than 35 members of Pine Grove Forum were in favor of increased agricultural production if it was parallelled by increased purchasing power. The meeting Mon. Jan. 7 was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Andrews. The second meeting of the January series, Monday 14, will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hamilton.

✦ ✦ ✦

ATTENDED SHORT COURSE

The short course at Guelph last week attracted twelve young farmers from Peterborough county. Total attendance was more than 700.

Bruce Graham and Orland Brown of Asphodel township took the special soils course.

"I'd like to go back next year and take another subject or two," Mr. Brown told the Examiner. "I found the work very interesting and helpful. We had about fifty in our class. That number permitted close attention, and plenty of opportunity for asking questions. It was a good course."

Those who took the studies in live stock, soils and crops were: Harvey Cuthbertson of Norwood; Richard Archibald Davidson, Otonabee; Ralph Edwards, Warsaw; Victor Moloney of Ennismore; Reginald Kenneth Northey, Lakefield, RR 1; Arnold Stevenson, Norwood; Francis Swift, Omemee, RR 1. Orville Thomas, Lakefield, RR 3; Eldon S. VanVolkenburg, Asphodel.

Howard Johnston, RR 3, Peterborough took the course in rural electrification.

✦ ✦ ✦

"DUAL PURPOSE" MEETING

District breeders of Dual Purpose Shorthorns are holding their annual meeting Saturday Jan. 19 at 1:30 pm in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

✦ ✦ ✦

JUNIORS MEET TUESDAY

Mr. Peter J. Mather will speak on the subject of savings at the monthly meeting of the Junior Farmers Club Tuesday, Jan. 15 at 8:30 pm in the office of the Department of Agriculture. Everett McFarlane will be chairman.

✦ ✦ ✦

ENOUGH FARM CREDIT?

Farm Forum subject Monday, January 14, presents the question: "Is there enough farm credit?"

Ontario Junior Farmers' conference in Toronto passed a resolution requesting their Federation of Agriculture to seek some medium of financial assistance for qualified young farm people, preferably in the form of long-term, low-interest loans. Professor A. C. Robertson of OAC advised juniors, who expected to continue in farming, to accumulate means of their own as the basis of acquiring farm property.

✦ ✦ ✦

FEDERATION ANNUAL

W. W. Dawson, president, announced today that the annual meeting of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture has been arranged for Monday, Jan. 28 at 8 pm at the YMCA.

This is also review night in the January Forum series, and it is being suggested that it might be included as a feature of the program of Federation. Forum members are being requested to consider this proposal at their meeting this coming Monday. Harold Lewis was commissioned to secure a speaker while in Toronto this week.

Musical number and refreshments will also be provided.

✦ ✦ ✦

PREDICTS RECOVERY

Dayton Davis, chairman of the Elgin county Poultry Producers, urged member to stay in their business in spite of current drop in egg prices. He said the present prices would probably reduce the ranks of the poultry producers "so that those who stay with the ship will secure the best price ever next June and July."

✦ ✦ ✦

SHORTHORN SALE

Thirty-five Shorthorn heifers sold for a total of $14,905, an average of $425, at Ridgetown, Ont., last week. Nine bulls averaged $500 for $4,500. J. F. Davis of Cleveland, O., advertising executive, paid $1,955 for five head to join his herd of 65 Shorthorns at Honora, Manitoulin Island.

✦ ✦ ✦

MEETING AT LAKEHURST

R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, is calling a meeting at Lakehurst Community Hall, Friday, January 18 at 8 pm to discuss organization of a boys' and girls' forestry club.

John Bell, Zone Forester of the Department of Lands and Forests, will be present to outline this project, and will show interesting forestry films. Parents of the Harvey section are requested to encourage their boys and girls to join the proposed club.

Synthetic Humus Producer Tested Three Years Makes Rich Soil In Hours

Various newspapers recently reported in a few paragraphs the development of a synthetic chemical that converts nonproductive into productive soil in a few hours instead of the years or generations required by present methods, and by nature.

In the New York Times, however, the story of Krilium was told under the byline of William J. Lawrence, its special writer on scientific subjects, in nearly two columns. His authorship is a guarantee of fact and authenticity.

Krilium was demonstrated toward the end of the year before the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This chemical is not a fertilizer, Mr. Laurence said. It is a soil conditioner that quickly restores the physical structure of the soil to its proper consistency, thus enabling plants to obtain the optimum amounts of oxygen, water and nutrients from the soil.

Better Than Manure

Extensive tests have shown during the last three years that this chemical is a hundred to a thousand times more efficient in improving soil structure than compost, manure or peat moss, the only substances now available for that purpose. These substances, in addition to supplying plant nutrients, also provide humus, the well-decomposed and more or less stable part of the soil which serves to give it proper consistency or structure.

These natural humus-producing substances, however, are not plentiful. Large quantities must be used over a long period of time to restore worn-out soils to a state of productivity. Moreover, humus is destroyed within a matter of months by bacteria, so that it must be constantly replenished.

Resists Bacteria

The synthetic chemical, on the other hand, has been found so far, to be resistant to decomposition by bacteria. This means that a soil once restored to its proper consistency may remain in that condition for a long time.

Krilium was announced at a symposium on soil structure by Dr. Charles A. Thomas, president of Monsanto Chemical Company; Dr. C. A. Hochwait, vice-president in charge of research; and by a group of scientists from Monsanto and other institutions.

The new product, Mr. Laurence relates, was developed as a result of original research by Monsanto at its central laboratories in Dayton, Ohio. It is now undergoing extensive tests in various sections of the United States, including universities and federal and state agencies.

Build Huge Plant

"Krilium is used in powder form, being easily mixed with the soil and converting it almost instantaneously from a low-grade to a high-grade consistency. Chemically it is a poly-electrolyte, carrying scores of negative electrical charges, which appear to react with the positive charges in the soil minerals to give the soil its proper structure."

Krilium, Dr. Thomas said is still in the development stage, and will not be on the market in substantial quantities before 1953. A $50,000,000 plant is being constructed by the company at Texas City, Tex., to produce acrylonitrile, the starting material for Krilium, as well as for a number of other plastic substances, including synthetic fibres.

One pound of Krilium, it was reported, has essentially the same effect on soil structure as 200 pounds of peat moss, or 500 pounds of commercial compost. The commercial average price of peat moss is four cents a pound, while commercial compost costs 2½c a lb. Krilium will sell around $2 a pound in its initial production stages.

Great Potentials

"Scientists attending the symposium expressed the view that the new synthetic soil-conditioner might prove to be an even more powerful weapon against communism than the atomic bomb, since communism thrives among peoples who live on soils that no longer produce enough food to support their increasing populations."

That is part of the story told by William J. Laurence. Here is a long significant sentence: "Extensive tests carried out during the last three years by the Monsanto company and by approximately 80 soil specialists in various sections of the United States, indicate that the new chemical (the first synthetic soil-conditioner) will mark the beginning of a revolutionary era in agriculture, in which man-made deserts may be turned in a short time into blooming gardens and green acres."

Farm Products Cheaper Now Than Ever Says Federation Leader

Most Canadian farm products are cheaper today than ever, John Broderick, of St. Catharines, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said at 16th annual convention in Toronto Wednesday.

Mr. Broderick's measuring rule was the equivalent of labor. In 1901, he said, the average Canadian industrial worker had to plug away on his job for 21 minutes to earn a quart of milk. Today, he has to work only 12 minutes for it.

"By the same yardstick—which is the only fair measurement of value we can use—we will find that most of the foods that go from our farms to the consumer's table are as cheap, or cheaper, today than they ever were before."

Agricultural economists have extended that contrast down a list of products of the soil. Milk is only one of them.

"This would appear," Mr. Broderick said, "that Canadian farming is as efficient relatively as any other lines of national production."

He told the federated farmers that this fact should be given more publicity.

"Farmers, as organized industry, look upon the land as a public trust. They are conscious of their obligations to administer their trust efficiently. They are showing this by their mounting interest in problems of soil conservation, economical use of itme and labor machinery, and in the application of all new methods of science to the production of improved and cheaper foodstuffs."

In regard to new marketing legislation, its advantages and responsibilities, Mr. Broderick said: "Farmers must remember that with these benefits come the responsibility of maintaining continuity of supply, high standards of quality and streamlined distribution, and, above all, of giving to the consumer an assurance of all these factors at a reasonable, just and openly-arrived-at price."

Some farmers, he said, were inclined to look upon marketing agencies solely as a lever to boost prices.

"We should, instead, consider marketing agencies as a means of ensuring stable prices both to the producer and consumer, of improving quality, and leading to efficiency in distribution."

Have Lost Exports

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, said that one of the biggest changes in agriculture in recent years was the loss of Canada's leading position as an exporter of farm products.

Three years ago, he said, he told the same group he envisioned the day "when we would have to import food into Ontario". This had come about more quickly than expected.

The minister said Ontario lost its position as the biggest per capita exporter of eggs. In 1951, exports totalled some 5,000,000 dozen, compared with about 90,000,000 in 1945, 1946 and 1947.

"If we are to continue to enjoy our high standard of living, Ontario farmers will have to produce more food in years to come."

Col. Kennedy paid tribute to the Federation for its co-operation with his Department.

Federation Asks Better Services

TORONTO, Jan. 11 — (CP) — William McCarthy of the Dufferin County Federation of Agriculture Thursday told the Ontario Federation of Agriculture that co-operatives are neglecting opportunities in the field of social service.

Rural health services were costing too much and giving too little. Doctors needed to realize they had no obligation to the persons who provided them with "workshops".

He said that in the case of Shelburne's co-operative hospital, prices had frequently been challenged while the building was under construction. As a result, the final cost was lower than had been expected and the hospital was challenged while the building was under construction. As a result, the final cost was lower than had been expected and the hospital was able to set unusually low charges and end its first year on the "right side" of the ledger.

J. E. Nephew described the Woodstock Farmers Co-Operative and J. E. O'Mara, senior economist for the Federal Department of Agriculture, outlined co-operative development in Ontario.

TORONTO, Jan. 11 — (CP).—Ontario Stockyard cattle prices this week dropped $1.50-$2.50 a hundredweight from last week. Calves and sheep were steady, while lambs gained 50 cents and hogs lost $1.50. Prices were regulated somewhat by imports of lower-priced cattle from the United States.

Say Alexander May Go To Malay

LONDON, Jan. 11 (Reuters)—The London News Chronicle reported that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, arriving in Canada today from the United States, will offer the command of British forces in Malaya to either Governor-General Viscount Alexander or Sir Gerald Templer, British Eastern Command chief.

The News Chronicle said Templer, who left London by air for Canada Thursday night, was "on secret mission."

The paper claimed Churchill summoned Templer, 53-year-old former Director of Intelligence at the British War Office, to Ottawa. There Churchill would confer with Alexander and Templer and offer one of them the Malayan command.

When Templer left London he wore civilian clothes. Beside his name in the passenger list was written: "No publicity. Not to be disclosed to anyone."

TV Puppet Show Teaches Children Books Can Be Fun

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK (AP)—Television teamed with puppetry "can be a terrific educational medium," said Bil Baird, one of the most famous producers of puppet shows in the United States.

Baird and his wife have brought their ideas to life in a children's puppet show with an educational slant, emphasizing the delights to be found in books. It's a Saturday morning offering on Columbia networks.

"We feel our puppets should be used for education," Baird said. "The program begins and ends with a book. One character is getting word conscious now and studying the dictionary."

As each program begins, Flannel Mouse, with the big ears, opens a huge book and reads to Charlemane, the lion with the flowing mane. As he reads, the listener drifts into the land of beyond, where lives the lovable wizard, who always uses his magic for good. He meets J.P., the boy who believes in gnomes and elves; Heathcliff, his horse pal, and various other characters.

As the program ends, Flannel Mouse regretfully closes the book until the next week; but he points out to Charlemane that the library is full of other enchanting books, well worth a look between times.

Handy Hints

"There are other instructional ideas woven into the story," says Baird. "For instance, when the wizard needs a boat, he doesn't just say abracadabra, and presto! it's there. His elves have to build the boat; and the wizard explains to J. P. 'magic is like anything else—you have to work at it.'"

The Bairds, whose puppetry has charmed Broadway audiences and Chicago World's Fair crowds, are no novices at using their medium for instructional purposes. They have produced several instructional movies for big industries.

In the Whistling Wizard, their plans are further developed by showing how mountains and rivers are created, why there are ocean currents and different colored waters in the sea; and interesting facts about fish, sea horses and crabs.

Although the program is only a few weeks old, its aim of provoking intellectual activity in children already has born fruit. The Bairds' fan mail is full of such questions as: "Why did the boat sunk?" "How would the wizard breathe under water?" "Why does a horseshoe magnet repel instead of attract?"

When the children visit backstage after a show, they treat the puppets as though they were living characters with no dependency on their operators.

BANDWAGON ROLLS ON—Republican Sen. Frank Carlson, of Kansas, displays his choice in Washington as more legislators hopped on the Eisenhower bandwagon after the NATO leader's Paris statement. NewZealand Preparing For Crowded Royal Schedule

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ — (CP) — Although Princess Elizabeth and the Dunke of Edinburgh have agreed to an arduous and exacting itinerary on the New Zealand section of their tour in May and June, a stream of protests is pouring in from districts which have been omitted.

In spite of statements that lessons from the Canadian tour would be applied to the coming visit, many observers feel the tour will be quite as strenuous as the Canadian one in its way, especially as it will come at the end of a long series of ceremonies, receptions and inspections in Kenya, Ceylon and Australia.

In their anxiety to compensate for the twice-cancelled visit of the King, the Royal couple have agreed to cover all the ground which it was proposed the King and Queen, and Princess Margaret on separate side trips, should take in, and also to visit 10 additional towns. This means they will have to visit 23 towns in 35 days, travelling by sea, air, railway and motor-car.

Their itinerary will take them from Wellington, the capital, at the southern end of the north island, to the south island, across to the isolated west coast, down to Invercargill in the extreme south, and then through a large stretch of the north island, concluding at Auckland. Nevertheless, it has been necessary to omit several large districts and they now are objecting to the itinerary and demanding that the program be amended.

Omit Scenic Areas

The districts omitted are the northern end of the south island, the whole of the central and western part of the north island, and the northland peninsula in the far north. In their anxiety to meet as many of the people as possible, the Royal couple have agreed to a trip that will give them a minimum of sightseeing in scenic regions which bring most tourists to the Dominion.

They will not see the high alps, the wonders of Fiordland, the great glaciers which plunge down almost to sea level in the south island, the volcanoes of the north island, the Glowworm Grotto over an underground river which Bernard Shaw called the eighth wonder of the world, nor the great Kauri forests and big game fishing resorts of Northland. Rotorua, centre of the Thermal Regions, is the only major tourist area they will visit.

Although it is understood they will have free time at the weekends, a two-day break during the south island section of the tour is the only official rest period provided. It is evident that the tour has been planned to compensate for the disappointments of the King's twice-postponed tour rather than for the enjoyment of the Royal visitors. They will obtain a good working knowledge of the Dominion's everyday life on farms and in cities.

Typical of the conscientious way the Princess is approaching the tour is a request that everybody present at functions for local body representatives and women's organizations should be presented to her individually.

Costs Decline In Four Cities

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Living costs declined in four of nine regional cities during November, but climbed in the other five, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Prices for family-budget items, on the average, were lower at Halifax, Montreal, Toronto and Saskatoon.

Higher prices for dairy products and fresh vegetables boosted food prices in St. John's, Nfld., Saint John, NB, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

But lower prices for meats and eggs cut food bills at Halifax, Montreal, Toronto and Saskatoon.

Clothing prices were higher at all points, but home furnishings and services were lower in some cities with the exception of Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Saskatoon.

Mission Band Meets

OMEMEE, Jan. 11—(ENS)—Officers of the Wide Awake Mission Band of Trinity United church were installed by Mrs. T. A. McConnell, WMS president. Following the installation president Homer Brooks took the chair.

The study from "The Twins Make Friends" was presented to the junior group by the superintendent. Miss Grace Sibley, assisted by Miss Phyllis Nelson, conducted the study for the primary group from the story of "The Three Henrys and Mrs. Hornjcle".

BRIDGES NAMED GOP SENATE LEADER—Sen. Styles Bridges (centre) of New Hampshire, was named Senate Republican leader to succeed the late Sen. Kenneth Wherry. With Bridges at the GOP meeting at which he was chosen are Sens. Robert Taft (left), of Ohio, and Homer Ferguson, of Michigan.

FRACTURED VERTEBRA

Wilcox was taken from Cobourg Hospital to the Toronto hospital early Thursday morning where he was put in a traction apparatus.

ELECTED DIRECTOR

S. J. Whitehouse, 198 Parkhill Road, general manager of Canadian Sealright, was elected a director of the Canadian Dairy Industry and Suppliers Association Thursday night. The association held its annual convention and election of officers in Montreal Thursday.

REPORT HOUSE AFIRE

The fire department went out in force late Thursday afternoon when a house fire was reported at the home of Mrs. Lucy Delpellaro, 78 Park St. S. Firemen found instead that there was a chimney fire and they extinguished it with a handpump. An hour earlier they had a run out to the home of Samuel Bertrand, 2 Wallace St., where an oil burner had become flooded.

MEET ON GRIEVANCE

The grievance filed by Local 524, UEW, on behalf of 11 welders in structural steel, who were fired Jan. 2 for their part in the wildcat strike, has reached the "presidential stage." Company officials, including top officials from Toronto, are scheduled to meet with union representatives later today to discuss the firings.

SPEAKS FOR CNIB

W. D. Colin McEachern, district field secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was a guest speaker Thursday night at the Kinsmen Club meeting. Purpose of Mr. McEachern's address was to inform the Kinsmen—whose major project is paying for eye examinations and glasses for needy people—just what the CNIB is providing in the way of services to prevent blindness. The Kinsmen don't want their own service and that of the CNIB to overlap.

CORNERSTONE OF ST. PETER'S SCHOOL for boys in elementary grades was laid on Thursday afternoon in a brief ceremony. Police Of North Faced With Variety Of Tasks

The wide scope of provincial police duties in Northern Ontario was explained to the Kinsmen Club Thursday night by OPP Inspector J. A. Stringer. Inspector Stringer, who is in charge of No. 8 district headquarters here in Peterborough, said that if some other official was not directly involved it was the duty of the provincial police to look after any matter concerning the public interest.

"Seventy per cent of the work done by the police there is never made public and the public never gets to know of it," said Inspector Stringer.

The Inspector said he was speaking of northern Ontario because he spent 17 years there and had the bulk of his experience there.

Many Duties

Some of a northern constable's duties: co-operating with the Department of Travel and Publicity in taking water samples at tourist camps, inspecting the camps for cleanliness and other facilities before granting licences; investigating forest fires; enforcing the Liquor Control Act, Mining Act, and the Railroad Act on Ontario government property.

The constable, besides his regular law-enforcement duties, helps the RCMP enforce the Excise Act.

Inspector Stringer said much of the work in the north is caused by the large percentage of foreign-born peoples. This applies to both law enforcement and the problems peculiar to the foreigner alone.

If a foreigner dies the constable has to account for his assets and communicate with the consul of the person's native country. Sometimes the constable temporarily becomes an auctioneer to sell the foreigner's assets. And if the person dies without any means the police bury him.

Few Men On Job

In the district, whose headquarters are at Sudbury (Inspector Price-Morris is now in charge), there are 1,368 townships, averaging 49 square miles. Inspector Stringer said that he had only 41 men to cover that area.

One man had to look after as many as 176 townships. While there were only a few people in that scattered wilderness—a few prospectors and some lumbermen—the constable was expected to contact all of them at least once a year.

As an indication of the size of the district, Inspector Stringer said that three points of call were farther away from Sudbury than Sudbury is from Peterborough. These points were Horne Payne, White River and Jamestown.

In closing, the Inspector said he was pleased to be in Peterborough and he hoped to make the personal acquaintance of all the Kinsmen in the audience.

Inspector Stringer was introduced by John Robertson and thanked by Eric Johnson. Bill Godson was in the chair.

$9½ Million In Property Changed Hands In City, County In 1951

More Than $7 Million Transferred Ownership In City 1952 Not Expected To Be As Active

Transfers of real estate in 1951 involved property valued at slightly more than $9,500,000, John R. Corkery, registrar of deeds revealed today. Of that amount, $7,064,000 was in the city, and $2,450,000 in the county. Mr. Corkery said a total for 1950 was not available, but he believed the 1950 total was slightly larger. Somewhat guardedly, he predicted that 1952 would not be as busy a year in real estate as the two years preceding. There had been no announcements of new subdivisions to be built this year.

"It doesn't seem to have the promise 1951 had," he said.

The 1951 total involved 2,393 deeds for city and county, with the county seeing a few more transactions than the city—1,306 to 1,087. In 1950, 2,389 deeds were registered.

Three high months for 1951 in the city were April, May and June, with totals respectively of $750,000, $806,000 and $676,000.

About 10 per cent of the deeds registered in 1951 would be what he called "family arrangements" and correction deeds, Mr. Corkery estimated. By family arrangements, he said he meant cases in which property changed hands within a family for the purpose of settling an estate.

Correction deeds are issued to cover mistakes in descriptions of property. Usually, the sum that changes hands in such a case is $1.

Provincial Tax

To the province, on every real estate transaction, goes a transfer tax of $2 on every $1,000. This tax is levied on the sworn value of the property.

The city assessor's office is also interested in deeds of transfer. Almost every deed contains an affidavit showing the amount of transfer tax paid. From this can be discovered the value of the property.

A provincial statute allows municipalities to search these deeds for the express purpose of finding out these values for the assessment roll.

However, the transfer tax on some transactions that take place within the city and county is not paid in Peterborough. At the discretion of the chief registrar, the tax may be paid in Toronto.

When the tax is paid direct in Toronto, the municipality seldom, if ever, discovers what amount was paid.

One such case occurred in Peterborough in 1946, when the agents of the F. W. Woolworth Co. bought the business block at the northwest corner of Charlotte and George Sts. The transfer tax was paid in Toronto.

E. L. Duffus Funeral Director Dies In Hospital

A funeral director in Peterborough for 20 years, E. L. (Bert) Duffus died today in hospital after a short illness. He had been ailing for some time and Monday he took a turn for the worse and went to hospital Monday night.

Mr. Duffus entered the undertaking business in 1931 when his brother, now Senator Joseph J. Duffus, owned the J. J. Duffus Funeral Service. He was manager until 1940 and then he branched out on his own, opening the Duffus Funeral Home, 431 George St.

Born in Otonabee township, Mr. Duffus was the son of the late James J. Duffus and Marie Galvin. He was educated at the separate school in Otonabee, near the Duffus home.

In 1914 he moved to Peterborough.

Left are his widow, the former Annie Kellogg; two sons, James Vincent and E. L. (Bert) Jr., both of Peterborough; a daughter, Mrs. M. D. Donoghue (Dorothy), Winnipeg; a sister, Mrs. Laura Cooke, Peterborough; a brother, Senator Joseph J. Duffus, Peterborough; and two grandchildren.

He was a member of the Sacred Heart Church, a third degree Knight of Columbus of Peterborough Council No. 798. He was a K of C member for 30 years. He was also on the Peterborough Exhibition Board for some time and he was a one-time member of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The funeral will be from the Duffus funeral home to Sacred Heart church for solemn requiem mass at 10 am Monday. Burial will be in the family plot, St. Peter's cemetery.

Painter Drinks Insecticide In Error, Dies

William Thomas Weyer, 470 Weller St., died suddenly Thursday after drinking a bottle containing a nicotine preparation used as a plant insecticide.

Coroner Dr. Herbert Young said Weyer apparently mistook the bottle for one containing medicine. He said no inquest will be held.

Mr. Weyer, 40, was a painter, and was born and lived a lifetime here. He was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral and Branch 52, Canadian Legion.

Besides his widow, the former Jean Calvert, he leaves two daughters, Patricia and Yvonne at home; two brothers, James and John, both of Peterborough; two sisters, Miss Marion Weyer of Toronto and Mrs. Alfred Beaupre (Agnes) of Kingston.

Service will be held Saturday from the Duffus funeral home to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass at 10:30 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Plenty Of Work For Inspector

Plumbing inspector Arthur G. Metheral has never overtaken and got ahead of his job. Not even in the years of depression.

There has always been outstanding, unfinished work showing in his books.

At December 31, Mr. Metheral had 372 plumbing jobs as a nest egg of inspection work for the new year. There have been year ends when the hangover was more than twice that number, but building operations and inspection pressure has relaxed considerably since then.

"I've never caught up with the plumbers since I took on this work," Mr. Metheral said today. "Building has never stood still in my time in Peterborough. We had 372 jobs unfinished at the end of the year, and I just noticed in the Examiner last night we have $200,000 of new building in the first few days of January.

In this work you have always something ahead to do, and I don't think it will ever be different from that condition. I certainly hope not."

Bishop Lays Cornerstone For New St. Peter's School

Busy workmen paused for 10 minutes in the near-zero temperature Thursday afternoon to join in the ceremony as the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, laid the cornerstone for the new St. Peter's school. Estimated cost of the 11-classroom school, now being erected on the northwest corner of Reid and Brock Sts., is $570,000.

John G. McCarney, chairman of the separate school board, said St. Peter's should be ready for use by September.

St. Peter's will be a boys' elementary school, complete with a large gymnasium and an auditorium that can seat 710 persons. At first the school will accommodate about 300 boys—now scattered around in four separate buildings—ranging in grades up to Grade VIII. Capacity will be approximately 385 boys.

Eight grades are scheduled to move into the school at the beginning of the fall term. And if a kindergarten class is added (a final decision has not yet been reached on this), nine of the school's 11 classrooms will be in use immediately.

Begun 6 Months Ago

The first sod on the site was turned six months ago by Bishop Berry. The cornerstone laid Thursday, forms part of the east wall of the new building. It is placed in the wall directly south of the main entrance which leads to the gymnasium and auditorium.

The two-storey entrance will have two centre pillars and, set back into the building will be three double doors.

After a short prayer, Bishop Berry plunged the silver trowel into a pail of mortar, smoothed it over the stonework, and the cornerstone was inched into position with the aid of a small crane. Indicating that he was no novice at this sort of thing, the Bishop helped ease the heavy stone into place and then tested the finished job with a level.

Monsignor Sick

Commented Bishop Berry: "Our only regret is that the pastor of the parish was not here for the laying of the cornerstone. Perhaps we will be able to send him a picture."

(Bishop Berry was referring to Monsignor P. P. Butler of St. Peter's parish. Monsignor Butler was one of the driving spirits behind the planning for the new school and he helped get the project underway. He has been ill in St. Joseph's hospital since Nov. 30.)

Mr. McCarney also expressed regret that Monsignor Butler's illness forced him to be absent.

On behalf of the separate school board Mr. McCarney thanked all those who had helped so far in the progress of the school. He said he was sure the pupils would be glad to be altogether in one capacious school rather than divided among four different buildings. And the board would be equally pleased.

(At present Grade 1 pupils are in the old limestone schoolhouse at Hunter and Rubidge Sts. Grades II and III are in St. Mary's a girl's school. Grades IV and V are in St. Peter's high school. And Grades VI, VII, and VIII are in St. Alphonsus.)

Helps High School

This will leave St. Peter's high school with more classroom space. Separate school officials hope, eventually, to make it into a junior high school. But more building will have to be done before this comes about.

Although the new St. Peter's elementary school is primarily for boys, its modern facilities will be used by both boys and girls. And it will also be used by high school students—boys and girls.

Besides the 11 classrooms, there is an auditorium, seating 710 people, and a stage. Directly below the auditorium is a spacious gymnasium marked out for basketball and other indoor games.

The gymnasium is 115 feet by 55 feet. The basketball court is 84 feet by 45 feet. Above the floor level there is a track circling the gymnasium, some 260 feet long and six feet wide.

The gymnasium can be subdivided and there is shower and locker accommodation for both girls and boys.

In addition the blueprints call for a library, manual training room, home economics room, principal's office, three teachers' rooms, and a medical room.

The overall dimensions of the school are 177 feet (on Reid St., and 122 feet (on Brock St.) Contained in the foot of the "L", bordering Brock St., are the gymnasium and auditorium. And the longer portion of the building contains the 11 classrooms in three storeys.

Parked Cars Blamed For City Collision

Cars parked on both sides of the street, making it difficult for the cars to pass on the icy pavement, were blamed for an accident on Monaghan Road Thursday.

Seeing a southbound car pull out from behind a parked car, George B. Collins, 691 Walkerfield Ave., driving south, said he knew there was not enough room for the two cars to squeeze between cars parked on both sides of the street.

He said he applied his brakes but was not able to stop before his car was in collision with an oncoming car, driven by Gerald Whatman, 668 Hawley St.

After the impact, Collins' car slid sideways into a car owned by Edgar D. Hunter, 662 Water St., that was parked on the east side of Monaghan Road.

All three vehicles were damaged slightly.

Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

More Rain Falls Less Water Pumped In 1951

An increase of 7.12 inches in the amount of moisture which fell on the city during 1951 resulted in a decrease of 20,000,000 gallons of water being pumped through the pump house, superintendent James Harrison said Wednesday.

There were 25.43 inches of rainfall during the year and 83.25 inches of snow, for a total precipitation of 33.755 inches.

Ten inches of snow are considered equal to one inch of rain.

In 1950, the total precipitation was 26.63 inches, made up of 18.9 inches of rain and 79.25 inches of snow.

During 1951, Mr. Harrison reports that 1,601,410,000 gallons of water were pumped. This is 20,000,000 gallons less than the 1950 figure of 1,621,490,000.

Hottest In August

The hottest day of 1951 was August 29 when the mercury soared to 86, one degree higher than the 1950 high of 85 on June 8.

February 9 of last year was the year's coldest day when the temperature dropped to 28 below, four degrees colder than the low of 24 below on March 4, 1950.

Average temperature for the year was 44 degrees, 1.6 degrees higher than the 1950 average of 42.4.

Algae Vanishes, Daphnia Appears

Algae, that summer visitant in the Kawartha waters, disappeared about the middle of November, according to the records of the Utilities Commission.

But in the category of nuisances to the waterworks people, daphnia recently appeared in heavy concentrations, as reported to the Utilities Commission Tuesday by R. L. Dobbin.

"It looks like a bell under the microscope," Mr. Dobbin explained "but you can actually see it flashing around in the water. It plugs the filters and that was mainly why we had to keep up filtration during December. Otherwise we would not have to continue filtering at this time of the year."

This clause in the manager's monthly report was: "At the filter plant the raw water cleared of color, and the alum treatment was stopped. Daphnia appeared in the water in heavy concentration, necessitating the continuance of filtration."

Mr. Dobbin said daphnia was an animalcule, signifying its microscopic proportions. It is a living organism and it feeds on algae when they are around.

CITY OWES $5,149.21

Hydro-Electric Commission has directed the Utilities Commission to collect from the city $5,149.21 on the street lighting account for 1950. It is the difference between actual cost of the electric power used and the sum paid by the city for that service.

Track! Here We Come!

Wonderful Weekend Of Skiing Coming Up

Peterborough's ski playgrounds are expected to be packed with skiing enthusiasts this weekend as excellent snow conditions prevail throughout the district. Snow has been forecast for Saturday afternoon.

A full schedule has been planned for both Kemp's hill on the Warsaw road and the grounds just north of Bethany. The program begins Saturday morning with the junior ski school at Kemp's, afternoon skiing at Kemp's and Bethany, and a full day of skiing at Bethany and Kemp's on Sunday.

Snow conditions are excellent at both hills. At Kemp's the Peterborough Ski Club reports eight to 10 inches of packed snow with four inches of powdery snow while at Bethany the club describes the conditions "more than excellent" with 12 inches packed and four inches of powdery snow.

Excellent conditions are reported from most ski resorts in Ontario. Toronto summit, Cobourg, Haileybury and Huntsville term skiing excellent on tow hills and in the bush. Dagmar, Bolton and Orangeville reported skiing good on the slopes and excellent in the bush. Conditions were generally good at Collingwood, Flesherton and Markdale.

Seek Contestants

Saturday local club instructors will be looking for competitors for the Southern Ontario zone junior championships which will be held in Peterborough on February 9-10. The club hopes to select several school members to enter the races.

The February 9-10 weekend will be the busiest for the Peterborough club since pre-war years. At first the club planned only the Southern Ontario junior meet but since then an invitation jumping meet and a Southern Ontario women's two-way meet have been added.

On Saturday, February 9, at the Nassau jump, the club will hold the Ontario invitation meet in conjunction with the junior jumping events. More than 25 jumpers, mostly from the Southern Ontario zone, are expected to take part.

At the same time boys from Southern Ontario will be hiking across the northern country for the zone's cross-country honors.

Busy Day

Sunday, February 10, will be one of the busiest days in the history of the club when besides the junior, both girls and boys, competitions in downhill and slalom events, the women from Southern Ontario will contest for championships in downhill and slalom.

To top off the day there the new class for novice women skiers, set up two years ago, will also hold its two-way meet.

Practices started Thursday night for some Peterborough skiers when the largest floodlight skiing crowd in Peterborough's history jammed Kemp's slopes.

Skiing was described as "out of this world".

Pipeline Walker Likes Chore Despite Weather

EDMONTON (CP).—Day after day, regardless of weather, 35-year-old Dan Blake goes for a 15-mile walk. It's all in the day's work for the former farmer, now a pipeline walker for an oil company.

Mr. Blake considers his job the best he ever had, even though he must trudge through heat and cold, snow, rain or mud. He performs an important task for the oil company in the Leduc and Redwater sectors of the Edmonton oil fields.

His job is to patrol the gathering lines that take the oil from the wells to the refinery. He inspects the ground over the line for leaks and checks pump houses and valves en route.

Blake, whose home is near Ellerslie, Alta., wears a warm parka, beaded mitts and felt boots to combat winter cold, and claims he is as warm as if he were in his own home.

"I've never got cold," Mr. Blake said. "I dress warmly and I enjoy the work. I like to be out in the open and on my own. It's a little lonesome, but I'm used to being on my own as I've lived on a farm most of my life. This job gives you an appetite and keeps you healthy."

Roving Helper

Blake has been pipeline walking for about a year and a half. He wears snowshoes when the snow is deep and says that once a trail is made he could just as well be walking on a city sidewalk.

He has discovered several leaks in the line since he started working for the oil company. One of these occurred at night and 900 barrels of oil spilled on the ground before the leak was found. He said most of the leaks he has found have been small ones.

Farmers in the area get a helping hand from him. He keeps an eye open for broken fences and wandering cattle and reports these to farmers.

He says he walks about 3½ miles an hour in the summer time and in the winter at about 2½ miles an hour.

SUGARVILLE MANSION — This is the house that Raymond Ferry built—twice. Mr. Ferry, who is chef to the Hon. Gaspard Fauteux, Lt. Governor of Quebec, built a sugar replica of the governor's mansion and brought it to last year's culinary exhibition. On the way it fell and broke. Undaunted, Mr. Ferry began all over again. The new house took two months to build. The young chef is gazing at his masterpiece with a certain amount of pride. He will share in $2,000 worth of prizes.

Invasion Rumors Hit Indo-China But No One Seems Much Worried

By LARRY ALLEN

SAIGON, Indo-China, Jan. 11—(AP)—There's a bumper crop of rumors and reports flying about in Indo-China that the Chinese Communists are planning to invade, but hardly anyone in this country seems worried.

French and foreign intelligence officers freely confirm a steady build-up of Red China forces along the Indo-Chinese border but none of them say an invasion might be imminent.

Instead, they say there is "nothing to indicate" the Chinese Communists are going to move in soon to help the hard-pressed Communist-led Vietminh who have been battling the French and Vietnamese for the last five years.

These same sources, however, concede the picture could suddenly undergo a radical change once the conflict in Korea is ended.

Wide Range

Invasion "dates" for Indo-China have ranged all the way from sometime in January to June of 1952. Meanwhile, French army spokesmen say, the Chinese Communists have steadily been increasing their war material aid to the forces of Ho Chi-minh.

There also has been a heavy infiltration into main Vietminh centres of Communist Chinese advisers, but there has been no evidence of any Chinese Communist troops fighting alongside the Viet-Minh "volunteers" or "regulars".

The corps of advisers is credited with having much to do with the better organization and coordination reflected in recent Vietminh attacks against the French and Viet-Namese west and east of Hanoi.

Going Stronger

The Vietminh seem to be going strong for the Russia-style tactic of infiltrating in small groups, then regrouping and attacking from the rear. The attacks have been characterized by dogged determination despite heavy losses.

There has been repeated confirmation of reports that despite the material aid pouring in from Red China that the Vietminh are short of foodstuffs, clothing, blankets and medicines.

For the present all of this area and the big 500 or 600-mile perimeter around Hanoi is firmly in French hands.

Concentrations of Chinese Communist troops along the Indo-Chinese frontier have ranged all the way from an estimated 100,000 to 250,000. Reports of bombing and fighter planes massed on airfields in southern China have run as high as 1,000.

Headmaster's View

WA Members Start Work On Bazaar

HASTINGS, Jan. 11—The regular meeting of the WA of St. George's Anglican church was held at the rectory. Mrs. A. J. Patstone welcomed the members and the meeting opened with prayer and a short talk on the New Year by the Rev. A. J. Patstone. Devotions followed and the president, Mrs. Clifford Baker, also spoke briefly on the year ahead and asked Mrs. Frank Halbus to read the first chapter of Genesis.

There was a suggestion offered that the work for the annual bazaar should begin earlier in the year, and it was decided to have the first sewing and knitting meeting at the home of Miss Della Plant, on January 17. Miss Plant, reported that the annual bale to the Peace River district had been sent.

Mrs. Baker read a Christmas card from England acknowledging the safe arrival of the 20-pound food parcel and a letter to follow later telling how the contents would be used. The clergyman and his wife in Birmingham to whom the parcel was sent stated it would be distributed among the needy in their parish which is in a very needy district.

Miss Clara Williamson gave the first chapter of the new study book which dealt with the missionary outline in South America.

Scientists Test New Use Of Volcanic Ash

SASKATOON (CP) — University of Saskatchewan scientists are trying to find a way to cash in on ash from volcanoes which erupted in prehistoric times.

From these eruptions great clouds of volcanic dust arose and drifted across the earth's surface, settling sometimes thousands of miles from the scene of the truption.

The settling dust formed beds up to 30 feet in depth at some places. Volcanic ash deposits exist in Saskatchewan at Rock Glen, St. Victor, Neidpath, Duncairn and Waldeck.

A number of uses have been found for the volcanic ash. One is in the highly technical process of the clarification of vegetable and mineral oils. At present considerable quantities of "activated bentonite," a material closely related to volcanic ash, are imported from the United States for this purpose.

Another use of this type of material is in the preparation of drilling muds, now imported to Western Canada in large quantities.

Third Use

University experiments are concerned with a third possible use of volcanic ash—as a "pozzolan" in the making of concrete. A pozzolan is a material which is mixed with Portland cement in order to save on the cement, to increase the long-term strength of the concrete and make it less permeable and more resistant to flood waters.

Pozzolans are mainly used in the construction of dams and bridges. If Saskatchewan volcanic ash is found to have a high degree of pozzolanic efficiency, it may be a valuable asset in the construction of the proposed South Saskatchewan river dam.

However, the tests require long periods, usually several years, to complete.

University experiments are under the direction of Dr. A. B. Van Cleave of the chemistry department and Prof. A. H. Douglas of the College of Engineering. Prof. Douglas is doing long-term tests on actual concrete mixes.

In Service For Men Women Who Served

Comrades:

Now that Christmas and New Year's have been tucked away for another year this column can again gather news enough to keep it moving. Over the festive season news did become scarce, but now all the clubs within the Legion have started their activities and the Legion itself is ready for another year of work for the veterans of this city and district. This is brought to notice by the fact that the service Bureau Officer will be in Peterborough on Jan. 22 from 10 am to 9 pm. Anyone wishing an appointment please advise the secretary of the Legion. (Phone 6203.) Along the same lines you are reminded that the welfare meetings of the branch will be held as usual every Tuesday night and any one wishing to meet this committee is advised to phone the secretary for further details. These two services are offered you and if you think that they can be of any service come up and see us.

Mrs. Clifford Hartman, president of the WA, appealed for money contributions so a new furnace can be bought for the church. A "furnace fund" has been sponsored by the WA and about $250 already collected. Individuals and church organizations will be solicited.

The United Church charge of Fairview, Selwyn and Bridgenorth has been asked for $500 for Missionary and Maintenance (M and M) purposes. But the Bridgenorth church hopes to raise all the $500—and perhaps more—by itself.

1951 Census May Cut Saskatchewan Seats In House

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA (CP)—Preliminary figures indicate Saskatchewan will lose five of its 20 seats in the house of commons when redistribution of representation is carried out on the basis of the 1951 census.

Manitoba will lose two seats and Nova Scotia one in the redistribution, likely to be made at the next session of parliament. British Columbia will gain four seats and Ontario and Quebec two each. Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and the Yukon will remain unchanged.

The redistribution, if completed in time, will take effect with the next general election. The life of the present parliament is due to expire Aug. 25, 1954, and a general election can be called at any time before that date.

Two Vacancies

There are two vacancies in the chamber. Ontario constituency was made vacant when Walter Thompson resigned to lead the Liberal party in the last Ontario election. The New Brunswick constituency of Victoria-Carleton was made vacant through the recent death of H. H. Hatfield, a Progressive Conservative.

The independent members in the commons are J. L. Gibson (Comox-Alberni); Mayor Camillien Houde (Montreal Papineau); P. E. Gagnon (Chicoutimi) and Dr. Raoul Poulin (Beauce). The independent Liberals are P. L. Dube (Restigouche-Madawaska) and Hector Dupuis (Montreal St. Mary).

Representation in the senate is fixed by the British North America Act and will not be affected by the redistribution. Seats in the 102-member upper chamber are divided as follows:

Newfoundland six; Prince Edward Island four; Nova Scotia 10; New Brunswick 10; Quebec 24; Ontario 24; Manitoba si, Saskatchewan six; Alberta six; and British Columbia six.

The Liberals hold 78 of the senate seats and the Progressive Conservatives nine. There are 15 vacancies—six in Quebec, three in Ontario, three in New Brunswick and one each in British Columbia, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba.

Sets Out Formula

The BNA act sets out the formula for distribution of seats in the commons. It requires that a redistribution be made after each decennial census. The last redistribution, delayed because of the war, was made in 1947 and took effect in the general election of 1949.

Until 1947, Quebec was used as the basis for fixing representation. The province had 65 seats and the quotient reached by dividing that figure into the province's population was used to fix representation in the other provinces.

Under the new formula, the population of the country as a whole, rather than of Quebec, is used to find the appropriate representation for each province. However, there are exceptions.

Yukon is guaranteed a seat, although it has a small population. The formula also states that no province may have fewer members of the commons than it has senators. Prince Edward Island, on the basis of population, would be entitled to two members in the commons. However, since the island has four senate seats, it retains four seats in the commons as well.

For purposes of fixing representation in other provinces, the populations of Prince Edward Island and the Yukon and the number of their seats in the commons are subtracted from the figures for for the country as a whole.

Nearly 14,000,000

The preliminary census figure for the total population was 13,893,208. With the populations of Prince Edward Island and the Yukon subtracted from the total the remainder is 13,771,419. This figure divided by 257 seats—262 less four for PEI and one for the Yukon—gives a quotient of 53,585. The quotient divided into the population of each province—other than PEI and the Yukon—gives the number of seats to which each is entitled in the commons.

For instance, Quebec's population of 4,010,235 divided by 53,585 shows that province is entitled to 75 seats.

All provinces except Saskatchewan showed an increase in population. The Saskatchewan population at 829,175 was 66,817 lower than when the census was taken in 1941. Newfoundland, which joined confederation in 1949, had a population of 357,762.

The population of the other provinces, with the amount of increase since 1941 in brackets:

Prince Edward Island 97,787 (2,740); Nova Scotia 638,277 (60,315); New Brunswick 512,186 (54,785); Quebec 4,010,235 (678,353); Ontario 4,562,354 (774,699); Manitoba 771,815 (42,071); Alberta 936,556 (140,387); British Columbia 1,153,059 (335,198); Yukon 8,986 (4,072); Northwest Territories 15,016 (2,988); Total 13,893,208 (2,386,553).

A committee of the commons likely will be given the redistribution task. Hon. C. G. Power (L—Quebec South), chairman of the 1947 committee, plans to introduce at the next session a bill that would place redistribution in the hands of an independent commission. Similar proposals in the past have always been rejected by the commons.

The 1947 committee was split into sub-committees made up of members from each province. For instance, Ontario members handed the redistribution of seats for their province. Later, the committee as a whole approved the work of the sub-committees.

Invariably when a redistribution is carried out, the party in power is accused of "gerrymandering"—the manipulating of constituency boundaries to assure the election of government candidates and the defeat of opposition candidates.

No one can forecast what the committee will do. There is speculation that in the case of Saskatchewan the loss of five seats will necessitate the scrapping of existing constituency boundaries and the drafting of a new set of boundaries.

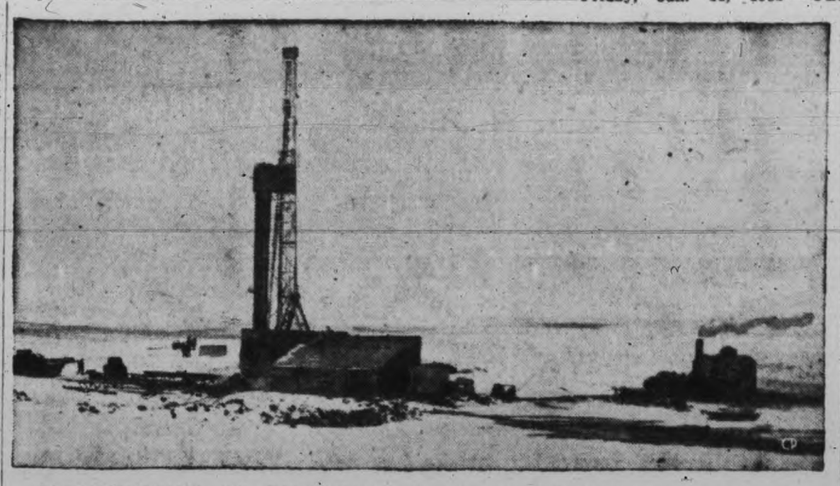
Leaders Affected

This could mean that Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Diefenbaker will be facing new groups of electors if they choose to run in Saskatchewan in the next general election.

Vancouver Island likely will get two of the four new seats allotted to British Columbia. The remaining two may be used to reduce the size of sprawling rural constituencies on the mainland.

In Ontario, the two new seats may be used to reduce the size of the heavily-populated York seats in the Toronto area. Ottawa, on the basis of population, would be entitled to an additional seat. This might be accomplished by amalgamating the nearby rural ridings of Glengarry and Prescott.

Something may also be done to reduce the size of Welland constituency, which now has approximately 68,000 voters compared with 18,000 in the neighboring constituency of Haldimand.



May Be Removed

In Nova Scotia, a seat was added in the Digby-Yarmouth area in the last redistribution. That seat may be removed this time. Steps also may be taken to break the dual constituency of Halifax into single-member seats. Halifax would continue to elect two members, but each would represent a certain section of the city. Under the present arrangement two members technically represent the whole of Halifax.

Steps also may be taken to break the dual constituency of Queens into single-member seats. Halifax and Queens are the only two remaining dual constituencies in Canada.

No indication has yet been given as to what will be done with the additional two seats in Quebec. A complete revision was made in 1947 when Quebec gained eight seats.

Plans for changes in the various provinces likely will be clarified when members return for the 1952 session, expected to start in early March.

CANADIANS WHO SEE WINSTON CHURCHILL during his current visit will note that he is wearing his most characteristic headgear—a flat-topped, round-crowned, curled-brim affair of hard felt. It looks like a cross between a bowler (or derby) and a hard-felt top-hat. They wondered what breed of hat it could be. From London comes the official word, right from his hatter's mouth. It's a "Cambridge," otherwise known as a "square crown." It became fashionable about 1865 and was going out of style when Churchill bought his first one in 1911. When Winnie elects to throw his hat into the political ring, he can choose from a king-sized wardrobe. Some of the hats he has worn are pictured above. Note that he has his black Homburg on backwards. But this is only a selection — there are plenty of others, not the least of which is the "tin hat" he wore during the heroic days of the London blitz.

Receding Glacier May Give North BC Port

STEWART, BC (CP)—Changing nature may some day give British Columbia a salt-water port above the 56th parallel of latitude.

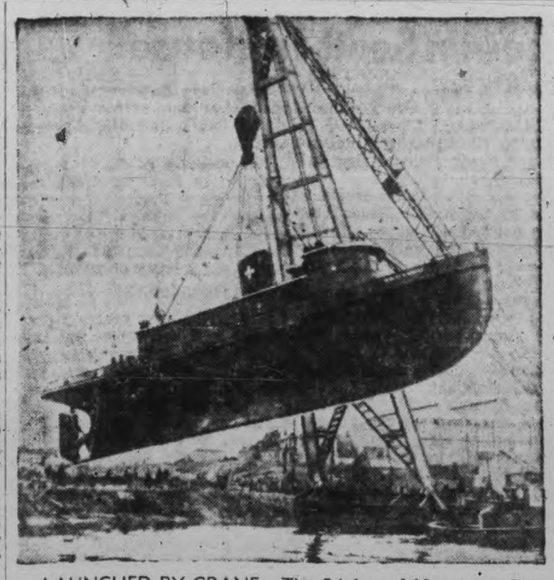
Stewart now is Canada's most northerly Pacific port. It lies on the Alaska boundary at the head of Portland canal, some 500 miles north of Vancouver and 120 miles north of Prince Rupert.

When the Canada-Alaska boundary was fixed more than 50 years ago, it seemed Canada would never have access to salt water north of here.

Some 200 miles north of here, the Grand Pacific glacier at that time filled the entire valley of the Tarr. But the glacier began to recede.

In the 1920s, a far-north detachment of the provincial police found that at the head of Tarr Inlet a strip of flat land half a mile long and 500 feet wide bordered a deep-water harbor more than half a mile inside the Canadian boundary.

An engineer was sent north and he reported it would be possible to build piers to take large ships because of the steep slant of the inlet bottom close to shore.



Free of Ice

The inlet is free of ice the year round and the glacier no longer "calfs"; that is, pieces don't split off the glacier to become icebergs.

However, it will probably be a long time before the bared shore is used as a port, if ever. Glaciers and mountains wall in the shorefront and until the ice has receded far enough to open a way through the ranges to the interior, no use can be made of it.

But if far-north British Columbia experiences a mining or lumber boom, or both—the thousands of square miles above latitude 56 have hardly been fully explored—a harbor might become a necessary adjunct. Harbors now are being built along the BC coast in spots only slightly less inaccessible than Tarr Inlet.

Anyway, theoretically at least, a treaty has been set at naught by nature's workings.

Suggests Emotional Research To Prevent Atom Bomb Panic

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Disaster research on human emotions to prevent panic and save lives in A-bombings is proposed by Dr. Irving L. Janis, Yale University psychologist.

He tells of the need, and of what happened to people emotionally in Second World War air raids in a new book, "Air War and Emotional Stress."

Belief that panic and mass hysteria would be the main reaction if A-bombs hit US cities seems to be a myth, he said. At least, so it proved to be in raids of the last war.

But there may be some panic, and much foolish or disruptive activity by survivors, he writes. Facts are needed to guide people to better emotional control, so survivors can save more of the injured, or act wisely to save themselves from fires or other dangers in the bomb's wake.

Makes Suggestions

Some of Dr. Janis' suggestions:

Research teams of scientists to study peacetime disasters. They would try to learn how best to use official communiques, warnings, and advice. Whether present methods are effective in getting messages to the people, how people react, what they understand and believe.

Study of cancer patients, people facing serious operations, men in dangerous jobs, and communities threatened with epidemics. The purpose: learning how they adjust to threats of danger or threats to life, their fears, their psychological needs and how they can be satisfied.

"Emotional Inoculation"

Perhaps some "emotional inoculation" of civil defence workers, so they wouldn't break down at the sight of horrors after the bomb. Maybe movies, disaster exhibits, lifelike plaster dummies of casualties could prepare them. But, he says, there are questions when this should be done during training, and whether it might be harmful.

Psychiatric first-aid teams, or training civil defence workers to give it. Many people will be temporarily emotionally shocked, anxious, apathetic or near breakdowns. This is a lesson from the Second World War, but bombings didn't increase psychoses and mental illnesses much.

Study feasibility of underground communication lines, invulnerable to A-bombs, so public address systems could carry announcements from a central message officer advising and reassuring survivors of what to do, where to go, or what may happen next.

Up To Civil Defence

Morale, he warns, will be determined largely by the effectiveness of civil defence and rescue and relief measures.

People can act more wisely the better they are informed in advance. But research is needed on how to tell them the facts they need without arousing feelings of futility, or fears that might drive them to dangerous political or social actions.

A-bombings of Japan caught the Japanese psychologically unprepared, and this helped boost the casualty toll, Dr. Janis said. But the US strategic bombing survey findings show that A-bombs didn't give rise to any different kind of morale effects than other types of heavy air attacks.

In Britain, Germany, and Japan too, resentement after bombings frequently was directed against home authorities, for their failures or as scapegoats, as well as against the enemy, Dr. Janis said.

His book is one of a series on research results sponsored by the Rand Corporation, a non-profit organization to promote scientific, educational and charitable purposes.

Bodies Unidentified

TOKYO, Jan. 11—(AP)— The bodies of approximatey 1,800 Americans killed in Korea remain unidentified, the Far East Command graves registration office said today. The bodies are at Camp Kokura on the southern Japanese island of Kyushu. Such identification would reduce the number of names carried on the missing in action list.

25 Horses Perish In Ottawa Barn Fire

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Twenty-five horses perished Thursday night as fire destroyed a large barn and tons of hay at the farm-laboratory of O'Connor Brothers five miles east of Ottawa. Damage was tentatively set at $165,000.

Three horses were saved when farm employees dashed into the burning barn, blindfolded them and led them to safety.

Docks Barber Proves Expert

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) —If British males want up-to-date North American haircuts, the place to get them is Southampton docks.

Robert Massey, owner of a barber shop inside No. 2 dock gates, knows most of them. Every day style-conscious sailors in drape suits, velvet jackets and jazzy ties stroll ashore and demand such cuts as the "rhumba-ba," the "curly top," or a Canadian number, "silver dollar."

"They're that particular you'd be amazed," says 39-year-old Massey, who clutched his first pair of clippers at 14/when the most complicated cut was "short back and sides."

Today Robert can name 50 different styles. Among the first post-war crazes was the "Boston" —extremely thick with shaved line straight across the nape of the neck. That was started by sailors on convoy duty who didn't want their hair spoilt by an amateur.

Latest number is "the chit." The object seems to be to leave the hair looking as if it needed cutting.

Massey laments the fact that most British men are conservative about haircuts. It takes about a year for new styles to be accepted in most towns. For instance, British men are just getting used to the "DA"—hair wrapped around at back like a duck's tail.

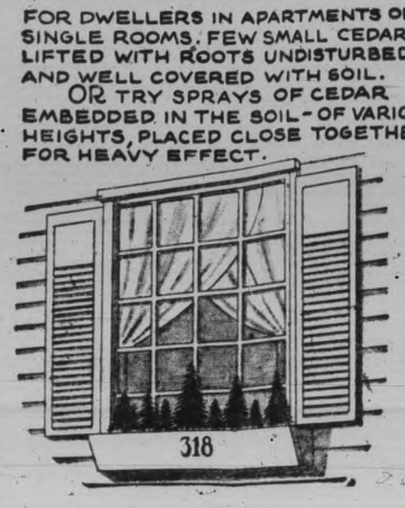
THE ARAB LEAGUE is an association of seven Arab states who signed up together in 1945 on the general theory of "in union there is strength." The members are Egypt, Syria, Saudi-Arabia, Iran, Jordan, Iraq and little Lebanon. Six of them are in the UN. Containing the world's principal groups of Arabs and Moslems and occupying one of the most strategically vital areas, the League could swing a lot of weight in world councils—especially now, with the Western defense spotlight on the Middle East. But the League is far from being an "all-for-one" happy family. It is torn by dissension and mutual distrust. Iraq and Iran have no love for and get none from the other five members. Egypt, largest and theoretically most powerful, lost an awful lot of prestige when little Israel, not yet out of swaddling clothes, thoroughly bloodied her nose during the Israeli-Arab war. Jordan has always been closely tied to Britain, with whom Egypt has been feudin' for years. Right now Egypt is making headlines by her attempt to throw the British out of Suez and the Sudan. Her extremists are making threats of concerted Arab League action and even "holy war." But unless the League can suddenly achieve its charter-avowed purpose to "coordinate political action" it is likely to remain as is—a trouble-making sounding-board for its anti-Western elements.

Tom Gard's Note Book

When tools are stored indoors for winter, the gardener and the craftsman are reminded that a stitch in time still saves nine, and that a little care will prolong the life of equipment. Tools should be thoroughly cleaned, the metal rubbed down with steel wool and then given a rub with an oily rag to prevent rust. Then the handles might be given a coat of fresh paint — and they're all ready when spring appears.

THE WINTER DOORWAY

I always feel a doorway should convey the impression of welcome. This can easily be brought about by placing evergreens in tubs and locating them on either side of the entrance. But why not carry the idea a step farther and plant small spruce or cedars in the window box. Even sprays of cedar firmly embedded in the soil will serve the purpose on the window sill.



AN AID TO CARVING

A few nights ago a friend was telling me of his difficulty in learning to carve, when up spoke another friend and told him how to make an aid to carving from old forks and the drawer-pull from a dresser. This unique idea is worth passing on to our readers. The young war veteran decided then and there he would carry out the idea.

LAWN SWING

Last summer when in the Georgian Bay district I came across an attractive piece of lawn furniture, made of iron pipes and some canvass found in the boathouse. To brighten up the canvass the chap had painted in the pattern with red and green paint left over after he had painted his boats. The joints were all welded for strength, and it was noticed the kiddies could take a running jump into the swing without danger.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Should Let Her Girl Discover Failing Finance

DEAR MISS DIX: My teen-age daughter accepted an engagement ring, promising that she would wait a few years before thinking of marriage. My concern is that she gave up all her friends except her fiance. The boy, also in his teens is a big flirt. He has been seen out with other girls, but gets very upset at the mention of a break-up with my daughter. What kind of future do you think is in store for my girl?

Dorothy Dix

W. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Unless your daughter is a very stubborn girl, she will soon find out for herself how unreliable her fiance is. It doesn't take bad news long to travel. Mention the boy's bad points to her as casually as possible, then let the matter drop. By harping on his unsuitability too long or too much, you'll just become, in her opinion, a nagging mother trying to spoil love's young dream.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For two year I have kept house for a man with three children, aged 10, 8 and 5. Now we've been married for a year and he treats me terribly. He'd beat me black and blue if I told him I was leaving, but he never has a kind word for me, never takes me out, never buys a piece of clothing. The doctor says I need kindness and peace, but my husband just laughs when I tell him that.

V. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The course of your trouble is easy to trace. As a housekeeper you earned a salary, which your employer decided he could save by the simple procedure of marrying you. Most women are so flattered by the sight of a dangling wedding ring that they rush right into its trap, never bothering to inspect the bait. Your husband has acquired what he wanted—a free housekeeper and caretaker for his youngsters.

He's Saving Money

Of course he'll berate you at the threat of leaving; if you go he'll have to pay someone else to do the work. You can never expect better treatment from him; that I'll guarantee. When the children are grown to the point where they no longer need a woman in the house, you'll be given a very summary dismissal. Are you willing to endure bad treatment, even to the extent of physical abuse, until then? Recourse to the law can always be used as protection if you are afraid of what will happen should you leave.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 14, and have been going steady with a 19-year-old boy. He is going into the army for three years, and wants me to wait for him. When he gets out, I'll be 17 and we intend to get married. I intend to quit school at 16, then spend a year getting things ready for our home. Do you think this is wise?

J. S.

ANSWER: You seem to lead a rather haphazard existence, which may be settled to some extent by having a sweetheart in service.

Your letter (somewhat shortened here) shows signs of wisdom far beyond 14, but also exhibits a definite need for further education. Stay in school at least until your boy friend leaves the service, or better yet continue until you graduate from high school. Don't be impatient to rush into marriage. Work on the things at hand and wait awhile for the wedding march.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After twenty years of marriage, I left my husband last year because I simply couldn't stand his jealousy and bad temper. Now, though I haven't yet obtained a divorce, I am in love with a widower. Should I get a divorce and marry him, or stay single?

U. A. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: One thing at a time! If you want to divorce your husband, get that over before you begin a new romance. Have you any guarantee that your widower won't exhibit the same difficult traits that caused the separation from your husband? Don't let a temporary loneliness rush you into a bad situation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For the last ten months my husband has worked out of town, only coming home week-ends. I want to move to the town where he's employed, but he thinks the expense is too much. However, we could live on what he pays for room and board. We have three children, and he makes good money.

ALICE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If your husband's out-of-town job is a permanent one, you would most certainly be better off to have the family together. If he is determined to continue with the present schedule, it will be hard for you to convince him. If your influence isn't enough, get the youngsters' support.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

Little calot (lower left) is white woven organdy blossoming with white dandelelons made of clipped feathers. Suit hat (above) is red, white and blue straw. Hats For Spring Small With Sailor As Leaders

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

The first hats of spring are decidedly small. And among these tiny hats, the sailor is foremost. There are wide sailors, of course, but the trend is to narrow brims in order to achieve proper balance for the increasingly popular poodle cut.

Ready-to-wear fashions, as well as hair styles, have strong influence on spring's bonnets. One of the most significant is the Gibson Girl sleeve, which naturally calls for the sailor. For the Gibson Girl silhouette, the wide-brimmed sailor in a 1952 version looks right. There are two schools of thought on the wearing of this sailor: one for a slight tilt and one for the level look.

The forward and upward tilt, as seen in the rocker, is stressed in these small hats. Sometimes, just the front brim tilts up but, again, both front and back brims get this treatment. The rocker silhouette also appears in little pillboxes and toques.

Tiny bretons have narrow brims peaked at either side of the centre in many versions. Often, this peaked effect is achieved through trim but it's also accomplished in some hats by the handling of the brim itself.

The poodle cut, because of its prominence for spring, gets many flat little discs meant for wear just with it. It also gets shallow toques and tiny boaters.

Colors, naturally, tie in with the most important of the spring colors in ready-to-wear. This means combinations of beige-and-white, bland browns, all-black hats in shiny straws, delicate pinks, and combinations of navy-and-white, red-and-white, gray-and-white, pink-and-white.

Straw, in some version, is always foremost for spring. This year, however, straw is stressed for interest in itself. It's shiny, with a starched look, or it's soft, alomst like fabric. It frequently appears in combination with multicolor to create an interesting surface.

Candle-Lighting Installation And Pledge Service

Trinity Church Women's Federation held their monthly meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. D. Hamilton, 654 Stewart St., with a large number in attendance. Devotional service was well prepared and held by Mrs. C. L. McIntyre. "Standing at the Portal of the opening year" was sung in unison as the opening hymn; followed by a poem entitled "A New Leaf", read by Mrs. J. Krogh. "Psalm 91" was chosen as the Scripture lesson and was well read by Mrs. R. Clayton.

A most inspiring address followed, given by Mrs. McIntyre. She chose as her theme "The Seven I Will's of Christ", selected from Psalm 91. Prayer was led by Mrs. A. P. Kennedy.

Highlight of the devotional portion was the candle lighting ceremony for the installation of officers for 1952. It was most fitting that Mrs. C. Huffman take charge of this service, she having been the first president.

The centre and tallest candle was lit to symbolize Women's Federation in its entirety with the Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society, working together for the good of all. Its flame was upward and steady, "so should our efforts be, striving to be a "Guiding Light."

Each officer was then called on to come forward and light a coloured candle, which symbolized the duties of her special office, and to take her pledge.

Each member, then came forward to light a smaller candle and forming in a circle around the executive, pledged their supports as follows: "We pledge to you, whom we have chosen, our prayers and co-operation in this New Year, and ourselves anew to Christ in His cause."

Officers for 1952 are: Honorary president, Mrs. D. B. Gordon; past president, Mrs. S. Johnston; president, Mrs. D. Hamilton; 1st vice president, Mrs. W. R. Philp; 2nd vice president, Mrs. V. Skitch; 3rd vice president, Mrs. R. Clayton; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Kennedy; treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Coyne; group leaders, Mrs. W. I. McGee, Mrs. J. Hamer; pianist, Mrs. J. Turnbull; sunshine convenor, Mrs. H. Herron.

The singing of "He Leadeth Me O Blessed Thought" concluded the Installation Service.

Mrs. Hamilton then took the chair for the business session and welcomed the members. A social half hour and refreshments were enjoyed afterward.

RIFLE RANGE SCHOOL

Rifle Range Home and School Association meeting was held in the school Monday evening with Mrs. E. Davis presiding. Devotions were taken by Mrs. M. Northey, and Mr. Bernie Morin gave a very lovely rendition of "The Lord's Prayer", for which he used no accompaniment.

A cheque from Mr. W. A. Amos for $60 was turned over to the Association. The bazaar, to be held in the spring, was discussed at some length, and plans were made for allocating the work to the various groups as soon as possible.

Following a commentary by Mrs. P. Lavictoire, the film, "Family Circles" was shown. It had been hoped that the film could be shown a second time during the evening, the general feeling being that a film such as this one required more than one viewing in order to grasp the full meaning of "the story behind the picture". However, time did not permit this.

Discussion which followed the film was led by Mrs. Lavictoire, and many and varied opinions were given in the limited time.

A social half-hour followed, under the direction of Mrs. J. Quinn and Mrs. R. Brinson, assisted by members.

A buffet supper preceded the meeting with 20 in attendance.

Shaded Hosiery New For Spring

PARIS, Jan. 11 — (Reuters) — Shaded-all-over stockings make top fashion news for 1952.

Solid dark tones at the back run out into light, neutral colors at the front. Black is well handled this way, with dark heel and seam. The black cast evolves into a light honey shade for the toe and front of the stocking.

Fancy hosiery with embroidered or jewelled clocks is also gaining in popularity. Light appliqued motifs lend highlights to simple, formal clothes.

One pair of stockings has a velvet tuft running up the side of the leg. Another features a tilted champagne glass, emitting a series of tiny jewelled bubbles.

Contrast obtained by shaded heels and seams are particularly slimming for legs and ankles. Chrisitan Dior is showing this version in burnt toast and brown shades for day wear, with darker toned trims.

For the evening, he tend to use light-colored stockings stressed in cobwebb sheer sandal styles.

More Than Double Child Aid Sent To Europe

OTTAWA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Canadians last year gave nearly $300,000 in money and supplies through the Unitarian Service Committee to help war-injured children of Europe.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director, said in her annual report that in 1951 the committee raised more than $100,000 in funds plus 477,469 pounds of supplies, worth $183,296.

Money gifts doubled the 1950 figure. The quantity of supplies was also doubled. Relief goods shipped included everything from food to soap and diapers. They were sent to Greece, France, Belgium, Italy and Austria.

"Among our largest contributors were the Ontario Women's Institutes and the city of Flin Flon which raised over $1,000 for our Bread for Greece crusade," said the director.

Special mention went to Mrs. Bradford Heintzman of Toronto who raised more than $4,500 for the Children's Republic, a home for war-injured children in Sevres, France.

A March of Diapers campaign which started out with a quota of 12,000 gathered more than 40,000 before it ended.

More than 50,000 bars of soap, to combat skin diseases among children, were sent to Greece.

Dr. Hitschmanova said the Winnipeg branch of the committee dissolved last October "from lack of volunteers." However a new branch was established at Calgary which soon will begin to accept and ship clothing for overseas.

In Brandon the Dr. Hitschmanova Appeal Committee collected more than five tons of garments last November and packed them for overseas.

Clothing of all kinds was shipped during the year from Winnipeg, Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver, Brandon and Montreal.

Wider Size Range Aids UK Women Buying Clothes

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON— (CP)—British manufacturers at last admit that all women do not come in standard sizes.

This year women who do not quite fit in the normal grooves —the stylish stouts, the long-waisted, the short-waisted and "Miss five-foot-nothing" — are finding a wider choice than there has been since the war. All this, and up-to-date styling, too.

Now these women can at last buy clothes "off the peg," as cheaply as the standard sizes. Each season the selection of styles makes it less necessary to have clothe tailor-made or altered to fit.

Part of the credit goes to Mrs. Helen Gavin, secretary of the Association of Tall Women, whose constant plugging has resulted in women of six feet and over being able to walk into stores and find clothes to fit at reasonable prices.

For instance, jersey dresses by a well-known wool firm, now are made especially for 38 to 44-inch hips, with an overall length of 51 inches. Shoulder to waist length is 19 inches and the inside sleeve measures 22 inches long. The price of these dresses is just under £6.

Clothes Exchange.

Not only that, but the 1,000-strong association now holds its own "bring and buy" sales at which members sell clothes that have grown too small or of which they have become tired — and perhaps buy others to take their place.

Many large department stores now have an "outsize department" with a range of styles every bit as comprehensive as those stocked for the slimmer sizes. Manufacturers are also catering for the "young outsize" and teen-agers no longer have to make their choice from matron-styled garments.

The days of the eternal belt tie at back, cross-over and prim, stitched pleating are gone. Styles are smart and manufacturers avoid designs obviously uncomplimentary to the large figure.

In London's winter sales, the outsize rails are as heavily laden with up-to-date bargains as those of any other department. Even at offsales periods outside dresses now can be purchased for £3 to £4 and under.

Small women, too, have a greater degree of choice and each year find it less necessary to buy clothes in the teen-age departments.

QUESTION. I am so g'ad your column is in our paper. When we lived in Windsor years ago I enjoyed it so much . . .

As far as I'm concerned cooking is fun. I love to experiment and work out my own specialties, but someone else's recipes and methods always give me a fresh outlook and something new to work on.

I have one great fault. I taste too much and as a result have gained too much weight, and have orders from the family doctor to get rid of it. Therefore I have turned into a calorie-counter instead of an eater and would appreciate it very much if you would list the approximate calorie content of the delicious dishes you describe.

I always make our Christmas candies and bought a candy thermometer a long time ago. As you suggest it guarantees perfect candy every time . . . I have a wonderful peanut brittle I'm sending you.

I like to cook oven meals so if you have something new in oven dinners I would enjoy hearing about it.

I would also like to tell you a "quickie" lunch the children love. 2 packages (macaroni and cheese ready-made) dinner, 1 10-oz. can tomato soup. Prepare as directed on package but add soup instead of milk and butter. Serve with a salad and milk dessert.

Peanut Brittle (Contributed by Jill D.)

One-third cup granulated sugar, one-third cup cold water, ½ cup corn syrup, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Place the above in a heavy skillet and boil to soft ball stage, then add one-third teaspoon salt, ½ lb. blanched peanuts (if salted peanuts are used do not add salt). Continue cooking until mixture gets a nice golden brown—stirring constantly—until it reaches crack stage. The color here is important. Don't let it burn but cook until it almost does. Then add ¼ teaspoon baking soda and remove from heat and pour onto hot buttered pan and spread quickly and cool . . . . I would like to know if you like the brittle . . . Jill D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your letter was full of fun and references and I was glad to hear for an old acquaintance. Yes I would like to have the recipe for the Peanut Butter Whirls with fondant. I have not had time to try the Peanut Brittle but will do so shortly and let you know how we liked it.

Better than trying to compute the calorie count for all of the recipes I give you (a tall order) I am mailing you a calorie chart so that you may keep yourself under control.

Because you asked for them I gave you oven meals yesterday. Please let me know whenever you want cookery help.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Just a few lines to tell you I find your recipes very economical. Would you please be so kind as to find a chili recipe for me? I have eaten chili with beans, hamburger and a thick, biting sauce. Mrs. Ethel S.

Answer: Emem's Chili Con Carne

Melt in frying-pan 3 tablespoons bacon fat (or other fat) and in it saute 1 lb. ground beef and 1¼ cups finely chopped onion until saturated with the fat and slightly gold. Add 1 20-oz. tin kidney beans and their liquor, and either 1 tin condensed tomato soup or ½ cup thick canned Italian tomato paste and two-thirds cup water and cook 10 minutes. About 5 minutes before serving time add from 1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder and 1 teaspoon salt. If liked very hot add 3 tablespoons chili powder, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper and ⅛ teaspoon black pepper. The very hottest pepper is Mombassa so if you are a "chili" addict buy a little of it to add—but be careful—it is dynamite! Chili should be simmered about 1 hour in all.

HERE, IN THREE DIFFERENT VERSIONS, is the waist-length coat that's fashion news this spring. The crew-cut coat (left) in mellow yellow wool is a hip hugger, has cardigan neckline and is lined in pure silk. Scoop coat with rounded feeling (centre) in temptation pink fleece (a shrimp pink tone) is lined in pure silk of the same color. Double band of slot seaming curves across back and around in front of either side. Short tiered coat (right) is called "telescope" by designer, is a fleecy wool in dancing blue. Big brilliant buttons close front. Depending entirely on the cut, these new short coats can be worn with slim or full skirts.

Waistline Coat Tops Spring Stlye It May Be Fitted, Tapered Or Boxy

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The waistline coat in many fabrics and many designs, is the big coat for Spring. Fitted, tapered or boxy, it's done in fleece, in poodle fabrics, in flannel, in cashmere.

The colors for the waistline coat range from brilliant to dark and contrast is achieved through use of catchy linings. Linings in striped taffeta, in embroidered taffeta and in bright silk all add extra interest to the brief coat.

The fresh, new appeal of the short coat lies not only in the way it helps a woman gain a new and smart appearance, but in its ability to work into several silhouettes.

Depending on its line, it may be worn with a full, a pleated or a straight skirt. This permits a lot of leeway in fashion, allows for hip and figure problems and still lets a woman pick a predominant fashion. It's wearable, it's comfortable, it's adaptable.

Sometimes, the short coat is handled like a cardigan, hugging the body at the hips only. Again, it nips in at the waist, minimizing the waistline and suggesting itself as topping for a full skirt. Or, it may be slightly flared, to stand away at the back.

The roll collar and the rounded look turns up often in these coats, as does the three-quarter length sleeve. In this length, the sleeve is usually cuffed, though it may also be tapered from above-the-elbow fullness.

Clear, pale blue, shrimp pink, white, pale yellow, gray, melon, gold, coral—these are but a few of the sparkling colors used for these coats.

The trend to minimize is carried on into full-length coats for Spring. The fitted coat in the princess silhouette is important. It has a slightly raised waistline, dropped shoulder seams and sleeves that are batwing, balloon, large lantern, bell or cape.

The loose, full length coat is still with us this Spring, but now with a modified fullness.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Special Dishes Served During Ukrainian Christmas

By KAY REX.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Thousands of Canadians, particularly the 29,000 Ukrainians who have come to this country since the war, still are celebrating Christmas and New Year's.

At midnight Jan. 13, the New Year of the Julian calendar is ushered in with gay celebrations and dances. The holiday season continues until Jordan Day, Jan. 19.

It is a season of church services, special observances and traditional foods. Many national dishes will be served including borsch or beet soup, cabbage rolls and pyrohy, a type of dumpling stuffed with a cheese mixture.

To make pyrohy you need: one cup of flour, three-quarters cup lukewarm water, pinch of salt.

Sift flour and salt and add enough lukewarm water to make a fairly soft dough. Let stand covered in a warm place for about 10 minutes and then roll out thin as pie crust.

Cut into small squares (about 1½ or 2 inches) and place a little of the filling in each. Fold over like a triangle and pinch the edges together. Drop into boiling salted water and boil steadily for four or five minutes. Serve sprinkled with buttered bread crumbs or sour cream.

Filling: one-half pound dry cottage cheese, one egg, salt and pepper.

Try to get uncreamed cheese for this. Mix with beaten egg and seasoning. Place small spoonful of this on each square of the dough.

Borsch Or Beet Soup

Ingredients: Four medium size red beets; one small onion; diced parsley; one cup shredded cabbage; one cup diced celery; two cups chopped mushrooms; two cups tomato juice; two tablespoons butter.

Slice beets thinly. Cover with cold water and cook one-half hour. Chop onion and parsley. Add to beets, salt to taste and cook until vegetables are done. Boil 20 minutes. Add tomato juice and bring to boil.

Melt two tablespoons butter. Add two tablespoons flour, let brown. Add two cups beet juice Add chopped celery and cabbage. and mix well. Boil until smooth and add to Borsch.

Boil mushrooms and onions separately for about 20 minutes. Pour juice into boiling beets. Brown chopped onion and chopped mushrooms in butter. Salt and pepper to taste. Prepare some dough as for pyrohy. Roll and cut into tiny squares. Put into square some of the prepared mushrooms. Paste together as pyrohy. Cook in boiling water. Serve a few in each bowl of Borsch.

Cabbage roll is an easy dish for anyone to make. The ingredients: One pound ground pork; one cup rice; salt and pepper to taste; one onion fried with bacon; one head fresh cabbage.

Put boiling water over cabbage to soften leaves. Cut off centre mix uncooked rice, which has been well washed, with pork, onions, salt and pepper. If the cabbage leaves are large, cut in half or in three parts. Line pot with cabbage which cannot be used for rolls. Put spoonful rice mixture to each roll. Spread evenly and roll. Lay them loose in pot as the rice must expand. Pour over this one tin of tomatoes, little salt, boiling water to cover. Cook until they are done on top of stove or in oven for two hours.

Had No Licence Hunter Fined

Two charges under the Game and Fisheries Act against Walter Killoran, Lakefield, were dismissed in police court after a plea of guilty was entered on behalf of Killoran on a third charge.

W. B. Gordon appeared for Killoran when a charge of hunting deer without a licence was read. Mr. Gordon said he was authorized to enter a plea of guilty on the charge. Magistrate W. R. Philp fined Killoran $50 and $2.50 costs.

After the guilty plea on the first charge had been entered, crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said he would be offering no evidence on two other charges against Killoran.

Killoran was apprehended while hunting without a licence by a conservation officer of the Department of Lands and Forests.

He said he had a licence at his hotel but on investigation later it was found that he had obtained a blank licence from an issuer of hunting licences in Peterborough and had antedated it.

The issuer of the licence was charged with selling an antedated deer licence and entered a written plea of guilty on the charge some time ago.

The two charges which were dismissed were, having possession of an antedated deer licence and giving false information to a game warden of the Department of Lands and Forest.

Germans Okay Schuman Plan

BONN, Germany, Jan 11 (AP) —The Schuman plan to pool Western Europe's coal and steel resources won a crucial vote of approval from the West German Parliament today.

On its second reading as a Bill, the plan was approved 225 to 144. Final passage on third reading later today appeared assured.

The vote on the revolutionary move toward West European unity was a victory for West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, fighting bitter Socialist opposition. Adenauer said the plan was a test of whether Europe could settle its quarrels.

Of the five other countries whose governments agreed to join the plan—France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, and Luxembourg — only the Netherlands has formally ratified the agreement.

Formal approval by the other countries is expected soon.

The Russians and Communist parties throughout Europe oppose the plan. The United States favors it. Britain refused to join but promised close co-operation.

Crown Withdraws Non-Support Count

Arrested on a bench warrant when he failed to appear on an adjourned charge of being able to work and maintain himself and his family and wilfully neglecting to do so, Rudolph Alec Dunn, Trent River, appeared in police court today.

When the charge was read, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said the charge was already covered by a family court summons on a similar charge against Dunn to be heard in family court today. Mr. Bradshaw asked that the charge be withdrawn.

Dunn was charged with neglecting to support himself and his family between October 26 and November 11.

When he first appeared on the charge, he was remanded without plea, and later granted a series of adjournments. When Dunn failed to appear on the last adjournment date, January 4, Magistrate Philp granted authority for a bench warrant to be issued.

Fire Equipment Standardization Starts At Once

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP)—Standardization of municipal and industrial fire-fighting equipment in Ontario will be commenced immediately, Provincial Secretary Arthur Welsh, Chairman of the Ontario Civil Defence committee, announced today.

A contract between the Ontario government and the Empire Brass Manufacturing Co. Limited of London, Ontario, has been signed under which a standard size 2½-inch fire hose coupling and miscellaneous fittings will be supplied for all municipal fire halls and industrial premises in the province.

Estimated total cost of the conversion to standard couplings and fittings is about $900,000, Mr. Welsh said.

By agreement with the Federal government, the Ontario government will pay two-thirds of the final cost and the Federal government one-third to a maximum of $300,000.

Ontario is the first province in Canada to act upon this Federal government agreement designed to strengthen civil defence organizations.

About twenty per cent of municipalities including Toronto, are already on the standard which has been set.

Municipalities will not be obliged to pay an part of the cost although they will be expected to contribute labor through their fire departments.

Don Covert, 62, Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 11. — Well-known in labor circles for 40 years, William Patrick (Don) Covert, 62, is dead in Toronto. Mr. Covert was born in Havelock, but had resided in Toronto most of his life.

He organized the Toronto Motion Picture Propectionists' Union, Local 173 of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, and was a charter member. For the past 35 years he was its business manager. In 1920 he was elected vice-presdent of the parent body and thereafter cared for the Canadian members of the union. He travelled extensively and only recently had returned from a trip to New York City.

Mr. Covert was a delegate to the Trades and Labor Council, Toronto branch, and a director of the Toronto Labor Temple. He was also a delegate to the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor.

Mr. Covert was at one time a deputy sheriff of New York State and a Justice of the Peace in Toronto. He was a charter member of both the Variety Club and the Motion Picture Pioneers and had served on the executive of both organizations.

In 1949 he was chosen by the Canadian government as labor's representative to the International Labor Organization at Geneva.

He is survived by his widow, the former Evelyn Roberts; three daughters, Valeria, Mildred and Julianna; three sons, Edward, Theodore and Blain, and five grandchildren, all of Toronto.

Hint Breithaupt Follows Lawson

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (CP)—Louis O. Breithaupt, 61-year-old Liberal member of the Commons for the Ontario constituency of Waterloo North, is being mentioned regularly as the province's next lieutenant-governor.

Government officials have declined to confirm or deny the reports. Such appointments are made by the cabinet.

The five year term of Hon. Ray Lawson, present lieutenant-governor of Ontario, expired last month and was extended "for a time."

Mr. Breithaupt, a manufacturer and president of a leather company in Kitchener, was first mentioned as a possible successor when Mr. Lawson's term neared completion.

Given Week To Pay For Having Liquor

LINDSAY, Jan. 11—(ENS)—Magistrate E. A. Gee and Provincial Constable Fred Rawlings of the Fenelon Falls detachment were lenient with a Bexley resident, Leo Liscombe in court here today. Liscombe appeared on a charge of having liquor in another place besides his residence and pleaded guilty to that charge. The constable stated that Liscombe had been charged with the same offence less than a year ago and at that time could have been charged as a second offender, Liscombe was ordered to pay a fine of $25 and $5 costs and was given a week to pay.

Nab Stowaways

CAPE TOWN (CP)—Two stowaways in court here were each fined £10 or 14 days in prison. They hid in the funnels of the liner Dominion Monarch when she left Australia recently. The pair, James Robinson, 28, and James Goldie, 25, said they wanted to get to Scotland.

Three Convicted Of Driving Carelessly

A full list of Highway Traffic and Liquor Control Act cases and a common assault charge kept police court sitting from 10 o'clock until six in the evening Thursday.

Three drivers charged with careless driving were each fined $10 and costs, by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Gregory Joy, Havelock, was convicted of careless driving when he was involved in a collision with William Ketchem, Havelock on Highway 7, December 1.

Ketchem said he was going east on his own side of the road, when a westbound car came across the centre of the highway, sideswiping his car. He said the car continued after the collision for some distance up the road, then stopped. After the driver had examined the damage, Ketchem said he got back in the car and went on west.

Stopped At Restaurant

In a passing motorist's car, Ketchem said he followed the car into Havelock, where it stopped in front of a restaurant. He said Joy was driving and told him, "I thought I hit something back there, but wasn't sure."

Charles and Sandford Chard, who were riding in a farm wagon between 200 and 300 yards behind the Ketchem car when the accident occurred, both said the oncoming car swerved across the centre of the highway, striking Ketchem's car.

Joy said he felt a slight "brush" near the scene of the accident, but did not believe there had been a collision. He said he stopped, but denied getting out of the car. After looking in his rear vision mirror, Joy said he saw the taillight of a car moving on down the highway and believing no damage had been done, he went on.

Commenting that there were "too many hit and run cases," the Magistrate said there may be something in defence counsel Trevor Clarke's argument that Joy did not believe there had been an accident and dismissed a second charge against Joy of leaving the scene of an accident.

Mr. Clarke submitted that Joy had driven slowly into Havelock after the accident and had not made any effort to escape or evade liability.

2nd Traffic Case

In urging Magistrate Philp to dismiss a careless driving charge against Harold Roberts, 772 Romaine St., Gordon H. T. Farquharson argued that the evidence indicated the other driver was not watching ahead of him. When he saw Roberts' door open, he applied his brakes at the last minute and slid into Roberts' car, Mr. Farquharson said.

Roberts was pulling away from the curb on George St., on December 10, when he was in collision with a car driven by Lucien Gelinas, 101 Romaine St.

Gelinas was travelling south on George St., and as he approached the Roberts car which was pulling away from the west curb, he said he applied his brakes, struck a strip of ice and slid into the car driven by Roberts.

After opening his door to see if there was any traffic coming south, Roberts said he closed the door to let one car pass then opened it again and was just closing the door on the driver's side a second time when he saw the Gelinas car, and the collision occurred.

He said his car was stopped at the time of impact. Gelinas denied this and said he believed Roberts was trying to make a "U" turn. Roberts said he had no intention of making a "U" turn.

Magistrate Philp ruled that the "onus is on the car pulling away from the curb to see that it can be done in safety."

Head-On Crash

Reginald Harran, 75 Hunter St., east, was also convicted of careless driving.

Harran was involved in a near head-on collision on the Buckhorn road on the night of November 24 with a car driven by Edward Flaherty, 757 McKellar St.

The accident occurred as the two cars were meeting on a curve about five miles south of Buckhorn.

Flaherty was driving south, and Harran was proceeding north when the two cars collided near the middle of the curve.

Seeing the approaching car coming toward him on the wrong side of the road, Flaherty said, he tried to swing to his left to avoid a collision but was unable to avoid the accident.

Harran said he was on his right side of the road, when he rounded the curve but seeing the approaching car swing to the east, said he swerved to the west to avoid an accident and his car was over the centre line when the collision occurred.

Defence counsel Gordon Farquharson argued that "no doubt the civil aspect will have to be ironed out," but he added, a driver approaching a curve is not in as good a position to judge the position of an oncoming car with respect to the centre of the road as he would be normally.

In resolving the two contradictory stories of Harran and Flaherty, Magistrate Philp stressed the evidence of OPP Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick who said that the debris at the scene, indicated the accident occurred on the west side of the road.

Only Two Ontario Cities Still Operate Street Cars

By The Canadian Press

Only two Ontario cities, Ottawa and Toronto, have street cars. Private companies still operate public transportation systems in most centres. Trolley-buses, which require overhead power lines, aren't numerous. Fares have risen in recent years and prospects are for further increases.

The facts and figures came today from a Canadian Press survey of 29 Ontario cities. It showed that many municipalities, small in area, with walking common, are worried over a declining passenger rate. But few transportation companies are in serious financial difficulties.

Whether the systems are publicly or privately-owned, increasing population and expanding industrial activity in almost every centre have made municipal authorities more transportation-conscious than ever before. Their interest has been heightened by the current transit strike in Toronto.

On the systems in the four largest cities—with populations of more than 100,000—those in Toronto, Ottawa and Windsor are owned by the municipality. Hamilton's is privately-owned.

Other municipally-owned systems are in London, Kitchener-Waterloo, Fort William, Guelph and Brantford.

Fares Go Up

Rising costs of operation have forced an increase in fares in most cities during the last few years. The rate now in most cases is three tickets for 25 cents, but in Kingston, Cornwall, Oshawa, Guelph, and Timmins tickets are still four for a quarter.

In Timmins, however, a passenger can ride for a nickel a trip if he buys 20 tickets for $1. Seventeen buses operate in the Northern Ontario town.

Windsor, which operates 190 buses for its 73,000 daily passengers, has the highest fare—four tickets for 45 cents or a straight cash fare of 12 cents.

Ottawa, with 126 street-cars and 133 buses, boosted its fares from three tickets for 25 cents to a straight fare of 10 cents at Jan. 1.

In Toronto, whose more than 1,000 trams and 400 buses have been off the streets since Jan. 4 when some 4,700 operators went on strike, the fare has been three tickets for 25 cents since Aug. 1. The Toronto transportation Commission contends that it will be forced to increase the fare to a straight 10 cents if it meets the wage demands of its operators.

Woodstock, Stratford and Owen Sound each handle passenger traffic with only two buses on regular routes. In Brockville the system has grown to eight buses from two four years ago.

Kitchener has a problem it says is unique. Many persons there and in adjoining Waterloo, where the bus system operated by the public utilities commission also runs, go home for lunch but they walk. The PUC says that as a result, the system operates at a loss.

Bermuda's Gov't Upholds Right To Prevent Publication Of Debates

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 11 (CP)—The right to prevent publication of parliamentary debates has been upheld by Bermuda's House of Assembly as it condemned the daily newspaper, The Royal Gazette, for "breach of privilege and contempt."

Only two members of the Assembly rose to the newspaper's defence Wednesday as it debated the motion of censure, which arose when the Gazette defied an order of the Speaker banning publication of a debate on foreign exchange control last month. The debate was open to the public.

Edmund Gibbons, a merchant who is also a shareholder of the firm which publishes the Gazette, appeared to speak for the majority when he labelled the newspaper's action "presumptuous" and added:

"I think it ridiculous to say the editor acted in the interests of the public . . . Newspapers are in business to make money. They are in business to make a profit. If they can inform the public at the same time, well and good.

"There is no more abused figure of speech in the English language than freedom of the press—freedom to leave out what they please, freedom to put in what they please.

Would Curtail Freedom

"I think it is high time this freedom of the press was curtailed. We must protect ourselves."

The Assembly's vote condemning the Gazette followed adoption of a report from a select committee which investigated the incident. At the same time, it rescinded an order barring Gazette reporters from the House on the grounds that the ban invoked more hardship on the public than on the newspaper.

The select committee was informed by Solicitor-General Maj. David Huxley that the House had no power to impose any punishment on the Gazette. It recommended appointment of a study group to determine whether the press could pass legislation providing punishment in similar cases in the future.

The Gazette's editor, Edward Thomas Sayer, has been campaigning for some time for fuller press freedom and a better-informed public. He has had little response.

Not Much Information

Bermuda has no political parties and only land-owners may vote. Newspaper readers have received comparatively little knowledge of the operation of government units through the press.

The corporation of Hamilton, the municipal governing body for the towns of Hamilton and St. George, never has permitted reporters to cover meetings. It releases to the press only the minutes of its proceedings, which are published unchanged.

During the debate, F. C. Misick introduced a resolution which would have eliminated condemnation of the newspaper from the committee report, but this was defeated.

D. C. Smith, a lawyer, contended, "by inviting the public we invite publication, and, by inviting publication, how can we withdraw it?"

James E. Pearman, chairman of the investigating committee and a director of Bermuda Press, Ltd., which publishes the Royal Gazette, claimed the House's action has precedent in the British parliament.

"The position with regard to publication of debates at the House of Commons and House of Lords is that it has been since time immemorial a breach of privilege and, in point of fact, contempt of the House to publish debates except with the consent of the House."

Could Prevent It

Pearman contended that the fact that the House of Commons and Lords in Britain tacitly permit publication of their debates does not mean they could not prevent their publication.

"We are advised by the solicitor-general that the control over debates in this House is precisely the same."

An editorial published in The Royal Gazette Dec. 18, the day after its men were barred from the House, said the last rule making publication of British parliament debates a breach of privilege was passed in 1762, "in the days of long ago, before freedom of the press was established as a fundamental right in a free country."

It continued that The Royal Gazette did not challenge the right of the Legislature to hold secret session. It emphasized that the debate in question was open to the public.

"The House of Commons, indeed, has committed men to prison for reporting its proceedings—but not in this enlightened age. Parliaments have their duties and responsibilities. So, too, has a free press—the duty and responsibility keep the public informed as fairly and as objectively as possible of the activities of admittedly public bodies."

Request Renewed

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP)—Premier Frost said Thursday that since the Federal Government has eased consumer credit controls Ontario is again requesting Ottawa to restore the reduced down payment on home purchases. That is the answer to the housing and rental situation, the Premier said.

Hubby In Wrong Berth Wife Understands

EDMONTON, Jan. 11—(CP)—RCAF Cpl. A. E. Gervais and Mrs. Gervais, of Ottawa, were asleep in their lower berth when their train came to an abrupt halt.

"I shot forward," Cpl. Gervais said. "My head crashed through the partition into the next berth. When my wife awoke, there I was half way into bed with the lady in the next berth.

"That takes some explaining, ordinarily, but the news we had just been in a wreck straightened things out for me."

The Gervais' were aboard the westbound passenger train involved in Wednesday's head-on collision on the CNR line in Western Saskatchewan.

Toronto People Friendly Writer Finds

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Toronto writers on the city's street-car strike seem almost surprised to find that Toronto people are "friendly."

They find the friendliness in the manner in which people help one another—particularly in the willingness and even eagerness of car-drivers to pick up the plodding or thumb-waving pedestrian. Hardly any one has diffculty getting back and forth to work.

The "friendliness" need cause no surprise, for it is the usual response of people sharing a crisis. A crisis, for a while at least, seems often to cheer them up.

For a parallel, there were the Montreal street-car strikes of the early '40's, when motorists acted as do Toronto motorists now, and the gay Montrealers seemed gayer than ever.

The cheerful people of Vancouver rarely looked more cheerful than in the great snow-storm and thaw of 1935, which sent them all wading in the streets, and stopped the trains across British Columbia, for a week. (The men fortunate enough to have long boots didn't seem to mind carrying pretty girls across the intersections, at all, at all).

Has No Kick

Perhaps this writer, as a relative newcomer from a place in which Toronto is not particularly popular, may offer his view. He has found Toronto a friendly and pleasant place in which to live, and feels that if it ever was the place people still say it is, it must have changed a lot in recent years.

And perhaps that is the truest thing about Toronto — it has changed and is changing. There's a lot of color and activity spread over a large area.

Citizens of less-populous cities can be thankful that they don't have to share its traffic jams or in smoke. (Though there's a subway abuilding and a smoke law aborning).

Maybe we all need to learn to enjoy our cities for their differences—and to look for what each one has of interest, rather than approach it with a lifted nose that says, "this place smells."

For, with that expression on one's face, and that idea in one's mind, it generally does—to you.

Young's Point WA

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 11—(ENS)—The United Church WA met at the home of Mrs. Reed Crowe, with Mrs. R. Breaker, president, in the chair.

Arrangements were made to purchase material for a Santa Claus suit to be made by the members for use next year. The next meeting is to be an all-day quilting and pot luck dinner to be held at the home of Mrs. J. Jones.

A nice lunch was served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

Can't Get Material

DETROIT, Jan. 11— (CP) — Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor Company, said Thursday the United States auto industry will not be able to produce its second-quarter quota of 930,000 cars this year because it is being allotted copper and aluminum for only 800,000.

Fugitive Shoots Himself Holds 100 Men At Bay

AUBURN, NY, Jan. 11—(AP)—A desperate fugitive shot and wounded himself Thursday after holding a woman hostage for six hours in a cemetery caretaker's house surrounded by 100 policemen.

The man, whose name police did not know, toppled from a second-floor window. He landed at the feet of a 17-year-old girl who had been travelling with him before she was arrested Thursday. Doctors said the wound was not serious and that he would live.

He gave the name of Daniel Walker, 22, of New Jersey, but told a reporter that was not his real name.

The dramatic series of events began Wednesday when Walker fired at a state trooper who had stopped him near Syracuse for speeding.

Mrs. James Wadsworth, 66, who was held at gun point by Walker throughout the hours he was in her house, cried when he shot himself.

Talked Continuously

Throughout her ordeal, Mrs. Wadsworth had talked continuously to Walker and to police and two priests who stood outside appealing to him to leave the house.

The girl, Jacqueline Cooperman of Los Angeles, was brought to the scene from a Syracuse jail after police appeals to Walker failed.

Walker and the girl exchanged a few words and Walker dropped her a note from the window. Then he shot himself in the stomach and plunged to the ground.

He was reported to have written that he was sorry to have involved her.

Walker fled on foot Wednesday after Trooper Robert Barry had put two bullets through the rear window of the stolen automobile in which the couple was travelling. Walker had fired at Barry and missed.

He barricaded himself in the Wadsworth home at 8 am Thursday after two Auburn policemen found him walking along a highway and fired a volley of shots at him.

Troopers, sheriff's deputies and Auburn police converged on the house.

Walker fired one shot at them that went wild. They did not return the fire.

Walker then threatened to commit suicide and police began their six-hour attempt to talk him out of it.

Denies Taking Action

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP)—Premier Frost Thursday night denied a newspaper report that Provincial and city legal experts were hunting for legal loopholes through which the Toronto Transportation Commission and its triking employees could be forced to accept arbitration of their wage dispute.

3 Children Burned To Death When Flames Sweep House

Four Others Escape By Windows

One Child Suffers Severe Burns Fleeing From Fire

WANSTEAD, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—Three small children were burned to death early this morning in a fire that destroyed their frame home in the centre of this village, 20 miles east of Sarnia.

Dead are Leland George Knudson, 5, and his two brothers, David Frederick, 2, and Stuart William 3.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Knudson, escaped through back windows along with an older sister, Dorothy Jaqueline, 6, and Bride Kirk, a visitor.

Dorothy was badly burned and was taken to a Sarnia hospital where she was reported in serious condition.

The mother and father suffered severe shock.

The 30-yea-old Knudson is a Great Lakes merchant seaman in the summer time. He rushed into the house to save the children but was driven back by the flames.

The fire is believed to have started aout 1.30 a.m. Neighbors said Knudson awaken about 20 minutes earlier to check the stove in the kitchen. He is reported to have returned to bed without touching the stove fire, which had gone out.

Twenty minutes later he and his wife smelled smoke. The flames were so fierce they were unable to get from their second-storey bedroom door and they were forced to jump to the ground from a window at the back of the house.

A volunteer fire brigade from Wyoming, four miles away, was summoned but arrived too late to help save the children. The brigade, working with neighbors by flashlight, attended to the injured. Hydro service in the area was cut off when the flames severed the wires.

All the Knudsons' possessions were believed lost in the blaze.

INSPECTS HONOR GUARD—Old Warrior Winston Churchill inspected the guard of honor at Ottawa's Union station Friday on his arrival in the capital for talks with the Canadian government. He told guard commander Capt. Donald Morgan of London, Ont., left: "This is a good guard." Prime Minister St. Laurent, standing behind the British premier, accompanied Mr. Churchill on his inspection.

16 UN Planes Lost In Week Highest Figures Since Start Of Korean War

Losses Gradually Increasing As Truce Talks Drag On, Ground Action Light; Naval Planes, Warships Hampered By Storm

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Communists knocked down three Sabre jets in air combat and blasted 13 other United Nations planes out of the North Korean skies with ground fire in the week ended Friday. It was the costliest seven-day period for UN air forces since the war began. The United States Fifth Air Force said UN jets shot down 12 Russian-made MIG-15s and damaged 14 in the same period. Red planes have not yet ventured within range of UN ground fire.

A US Eighth Army communique said UN ground forces raided Communist positions along the western and central fronts Saturday. Light to moderate engagements resulted.

The 16-plane loss was far above the recent weekly average of about 10 planes lost to Red planes and groundfire.

Losses have been gradually increasing since the ground war slowed down and UN offensive action was shifted to the air force.

Tangle Briefly

MIGs and Sabres tangled briefly several times Saturday morning. The fifth air force said no Red planes were damaged. There was no announcement of UN losses, if any, in the short sharp fights that lasted up to 10 minutes.

Far East air forces, in its weekly summary Saturday, gave these figures of Communist jet losses since the war began:

201 destroyed, 51 probably destroyed and 325 damaged. Figures for Red aircraft of all types were 336 destroyed, 100 probably destroyed and 380 damaged.

Naval planes and warships were hampered by snow squalls and rough seas Friday but they continued their attacks on both Korean coasts.

A US Eighth Army briefing officer said ground front activity Friday was confined mostly to patrols.

The Reds made three light probes and engaged United Nations troops in a few moderate to heavy patrol fights.

South Korean forces fighting guerrillas in southwest Korea reported they killed 161 and captured 124 Thursday and Friday.

Cobourg Plane Hops For Home, Few Farewells

TORONTO Jan. 12 — The bystanders paid no attention Friday morning when a big, whale-shaped airliner taxied out to a Malton runway and gunned its engines for the takeoff.

Just two days before, this C-46 Curtiss Commando had been the subject of press and radio comment throughout Canada and the United States when it winged safely out of a farm field near Cobourg.

It had belly landed Dec. 20 after straying over Lake Ontario on a Major Air Coach non-scheduled flight from Chicago to Cleveland. Forty-four passengers and three crew members emerged wtihout injury.

On Wednesday, after inspecting a 2,500-foot runway of hard-packed snow, Pilot Charles Rector of North Continent Airlines lifted the craft into the air and flew it to the RCAF station at Trenton. On Thursday he flew to Malton.

Technicians of Sanderson Aircraft, the firm which set up the farmyard repair depot and improvised the runway, gave the C-46 a further inspection. Both engines were again tuned, the undercarriage warning signal was repaired and the airliner was pronounced fit for the long flight back to Burbank, Calif., home base.

Rector's plan was to make the trip in early stages, from Malton to Detroit and from Detroit to several other airports along the route. At Burbank, the C-46 will be thoroughly overhauled before returning to regular service.

Intensify Search As Debris Seen In Vessel's Area

SEATTLE, Jan. 12 (AP)—Spurred by the finding of debris and floating cargo, air and sea searchers pointed today to a smaller area southeast of the spot where the freighter Pennsylvania and its 45-man crew last were heard from Wednesday. The floating material, sighted by both aircraft and surface vessels, was found in a region 24 to 34 miles south-southeast of the last known position of the disabled ship. It included a hatch cover, lumber and plates, boxes, drums and an oil slick. The material was seen just before dark Friday from the Canadian weather ship Stonetown and from a cruising coast guard plane.

It resulted in immediate change of plans, cutting down the search area from the 10,800 square miles covered Friday to 600 square miles today.

Six planes were due over the region at daybreak, dividing the sector into three sections. They are to sweep the area for three hours, then give way to five other planes. Daybreak begins in the region about 9 am PST (noon, EST).

Six ships already are cruising in that region in the widespread search.

Moderating seas and warmer weather were seen as a major help in the task of finding the seamen who took to their lifeboats Wednesday evening in 35-degree temperatures and high seas kicked up by 40-mile winds.

Coast guard officials said the location of the material was almost exactly where it normally would drift from the position radioed by the freighter just before the crew said it was abandoning the ship. The spot was approximately 465 miles northwest of Vancouver Island.

Russia Keeps Trade Mission To Woo Japan

TOKYO, Jan. 12—(AP)—Russia is planning to keep a trade mission in Tokyo as part of a plan to woo Japan away from the West, informed sources said today.

These sources, Japanese and foreign, say the Russians already have laid the groundwork for the mission.

The Russians want their representatives in Japan even though they refuse to accept the Japanese peace treaty drafted by the west.

A trade mission would serve their purposes even without full diplomatic relations. The Russians now are in Japan only as members of the Allied Council for Japan, a powerless advisory group under the Supreme Commander for the Allied powers. When the peace treaty is ratified the Allied council will go out of business.

Good Excuse

The Soviets would then lose their only reason for remaining in Japan. There is where the trade mission comes in.

In preparation for the changeover, the Russians have drastically overhauled their mission.

Uniformed guards carrying tommy-guns no longer stand at the gates of the old Russian embassy.

At one time, the Soviet delegation was made up roughly of two military men to one civilian. Now the ratio has been reversed—two civilians for each soldier.

Foreign diplomats say the handful of persons the Russians have brought to Japan recently have been mainly economists.

The changeover in the Soviet mission is regarded as only one symptom of the growing Soviet interest in Japan.

There have been other signs recently. The big attraction—which the Japanese find hard to ignore—is cheap raw materials from Siberia, Manchuria and other Communist areas. The Russians are reported to have offered the Japanese coking coal from Sakhalin, former Japanese-controlled island north of Hokkaido, for about half the American price.

Terrorists Raid Big Rail Yard

ISMAILIA, Suez, Jan. 12 (Reuters)—One British soldier was reported killed and three wounded when Egyptian terrorists attacked railroad freight yards at Tel el Kebir today.

The attack on Tel el Kebir—biggest military ordnance depot in the Middle East—came after an explosion in which a British locomotive engineer was injured, according to first reports. Troops were rushed to the scene.

The terrorists attacked a British four-man patrol as they were searching for mines after the explosion, a British military spokesman said. A company of Britain's crack Coldstream Guards was rushed to help the patrol.

Earlier British troops raided two Egyptian villages near here for the second successive day searching for arms and ammunition used in attacks on British convoys.

Colombo's New Mayor To Boycott Princess

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Jan. 12—(AP) — Colombo's new mayor, chosen two days ago by a coalition of Marxists and breakaway members of the United National party, announced today he will boycott all ceremonies connected with the coming visit of Princess Elizabeth.

The mayor, C. T. Grero, said the Colombo Municipal Council would deny all assistance to the central government of Ceylon in receptions and ceremonies organized for the Royal visit. The Princess, with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is due here Feb 14 for a week's stopover on the way to a royal tour of Australia and New Zealand.

New Evidence Hints Foul Play

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12 (CP). — The search continued for a pretty Montreal bride today amid mounting indications that she had met foul play.

A week after Mrs. Huguette Lemay disappeared in the Florida Keys area while on a fishing trip with her husband, deputy-sheriff James Barker said Friday night new evidence had been found indicating that the 21-year-old girl who was a Montreal beauty queen in 1950 had met violence.

Barker declined to say anything about the nature of the new evidence.

Mrs. Lemay was last seen when she strolled to the Lemay car, 150 yards from where her husband, George, was fishing, to change her clothes.

A Montreal detective joined the search party Friday.

Rain Maker Has Faith In Work Sets Up Fund

DENVER, Jan. 12—(AP)—Dr. Irving P. Krick, the West's largest operating rain maker, today set up a $100,000 fund for independent studies of his claims about the merits of cloud seeding.

Dr. Krick, head of the Water Resources Development Corporation of Denver, told the National Weather Improvement Association the United States Weather Bureau is "ultra-conservative."

He said the bureau was reluctent to accpet radiosone or long-range weather forecasting. (Radiosone is the practice of sailing radio-bearing balloons into the stratosphere to check weather conditions.)

"Now the bureau is adopting the same attitude toward cloud seeding and its possibilities," Krick said.

He requested the independent studies be made by a group of qualified field scientists from the US Weather Bureau, the General Electric laboratories, one of the rainmaking firms and one geophysicist "of international repute."

Earlier, Vincent J. Schaefer, of Schenectady, NY, who pioneered dry ice experiments in modern rain-making, said the over-all picture for eventual control of weather is "very encouraging."

He told the association, however, that "a great deal more basic research is needed" before rain-making becomes an exact science.

Acquit Driver In Bus Deaths

SUDBURY, Jan. 12 (CP)—Bus driver Edouard Carriere Friday night was acquitted of manslaughter in the death of nine bus passengers in a level-crossing collision between a bus and a train at nearby Coniston Feb. 9, 1951. A jury in Ontario Supreme Court deliberated 95 minutes.

Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan, presiding said he agrced with the verdict. He asked Carriere whether he had anything to say and Carriere, smiling broadly, replied:

"No, I haven't, sir—but I thank you."

During the four-day trial 30 witnesses testified about circumstances of the accident, which occurred at fog-shrouded level-crossing in the 47-below-zero weather.

In addition to those killed, 30 persons were injured.

Carriere told the court that he stopped the bus and opened the door before he headed the vehicle, filled with nickel miners on their way to work, onto the level crossing.

Churchill Busy Preparing For Ottawa Conference

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill rested today, with few official functions scheduled, preparatory to opening a round of talks with Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet. Those discussions presumably will get under way Sunday, when Mr. Churchill and his party lunch with Mr. St. Laurent at his official residence here. They will reach a more concrete stage Monday when the British prime minister confers with the Canadian cabinet.

Today, Mr. Churchill will place a wreath to honor Canada's war dead in the memorial chamber in the parliament buildings and then will go to the parliamentary press gallery to receive an honorary membership. Both ceremonies will be brief.

Mr. Churchill will lunch with Commonwealth high commissioners in Ottawa and is expected to tell them of the need for closer Anglo-American policy co-operation in the Middle and Far East.

The luncheon also will present an opportunity for the Prime Minister to brief the Commonwealth representatives on his four day conference with President Truman in Washington.

Dinner Party

Tonight, he will attend a dinner party at Rideau Hall, home of Governor-General Viscount Alexander, with whom he is staying until he returns Tuesday morning to Washington.

The 77-year-old Prime Minister arrived here Friday from Washington, where he met earlier this week with President Truman to strengthen the ties of Anglo-American friendship and to discuss key east-west problems. He spent two days in New York before coming on to Ottawa for his first visit to this capital since wartime 1941.

UN Approves Of World Army

PARIS, Jan. 12 (Reuters). — The United Nations General Assembly today approved a western-backed collective security system designed to check any future aggression in the world with a standing international army.

Despite bitter Russian opposition, the system was approved by a vote of 51 to 5 with three abstentions.

The resolution enacts the basic principles of a unity-for-peace resolution introduced by State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States.

It further strengthens the veto-free UN general assembly in meeting threats to peace, such as the Korean outbreak, when the security council finds itself hamstrung by the big-power veto, used most frequently by Russia.

The resolution would permit the UN to call on regional security forces, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to meet aggression anywhere.

Moonshiners Trap Chinese

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP)—The army Friday told the story of the "moonshiners" in Korea who put the finger on the Chinese Communists at night.

The "moonshiners" are a group of specially-trained Canadians of the 25th Brigade who service and operate three powerful searchlights which illuminate no-man's land and the Communist positions.

Every time a Chinese is seen moving in the bright light, a keen-eyed artillery officer calls down a barrage of 25-pounder shells on him.

The "moonshiners" are camped on a high peak overlooking the Allied lines. The 16-man crew is under command of Sgt. Leo Laroche, Lac St. Jean, Que.

Rumors Flying Again On Royal Engagement

LONDON, Jan. 12—(Reuters)—The News Chronicle today front-paged the latest rumor that Princess Margaret will soon become engaged. The newspaper said society tongues have been wagging knowingly ever since the vivacious young Princess went up to Scotland for a holiday a week ago.

Most of the time she has been with the six-foot, red-headed Earl of Dalkeith, 28-year-old son of the Duke of Buccleuch, a farmer, dog breeder and forester, who rarely comes to London because he dislikes city life.

Meat For Britain

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sidney Holland of New Zealand, here for Tuesday's Commonwealth financial conference, today promised meat-starved Britain as much meat from his country this year as Argentina and Australia would export together.

De Tassigny Made Marshal Of France

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—The French government today gave the posthumous title of Marshal of France, the country's highest honor, to old soldier Jean de Lattre de Tassigny.

The 61-year-old general, commander-in-chief and high commissioner to Indo-China, died Friday.

The French cabinet held a solemn meeting this morning and arranged to give him a full military funeral Wednesday.

The funeral will be in the Invalides, where France's great soldiers traditionally are given their last honors.

After the funeral, a cortege will drive with the body of General De Lattre to the little village of Mouilleron Enpareds, his birthplace, where he is to be buried.

Skipper Not Interested

Capt. Carlsen Turns Down Hollywood Movie Offer

FALMOUTH, England, Jan. 12—(AP). — Kurt Carlsen, the shy little sea captain, today turned down the glamor of Hollywood and its money—offered for rights to his saga of courage and endurance aboard his ship, Flying Enterprise.

Firmly, the 37-year-old skipper said nobody was going to buy him away from the sea.

Carlsen said he just isn't interested in offers totalling between £30,000 and £40,000 for the film and story rights to the 13-day duel with the sea aboard his ill-fated freighter, which sank 37 miles out in the Atlantic Thursday.

He came back to Falmouth today from an undisclosed hideout where he rested to make an official report to shipping agents on the loss of the Flying Enterprise in the worst North Atlantic hurricane in half a century.

Now, he said, he wants only two things—to get back to his wife and two daughters in Woodbridge, NJ, "and then get another ship."

Hans Isbrandtsen, head of the Isbrandtsen Lines which owned the Flying Enterprise, already has said Carlsen will get a new command.

Isbrandtsen collected insurance totalling $800,000 Friday from American marine insurers. The rest of the $1,200,000 insurance on the ship was reported held by British firms.

Isbrandtsen said it would cost more than $5,000,000 to build another Flying Enterprise.

The payments did not include insurance on the 2,650 tons of cargo in the 6,711-ton ship. Insurance on cargoes usually is left to the shippers, who make their own arrangements.

Carlsen may spend a day or two in London on business before he goes home.

Residents Find $930 In Bills Along Street Take To Garden Snooping For $3,000 More

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 12—(AP)—Folks along South Congress Street were out early today among their hydrangeas, camelias and azaleas looking for more of that soggy, old money they've been finding lying around.

Whether they find more or not won't change the fact that some Jackson folk never had it so good as they did Friday, when $930 was picked up in no time at all.

Mrs. Valentine, the wife of the Rev. W. S. Valentine, started the money hunt Friday morning by plucking a soggy $100 bill from an alley next door to her home.

Valentine turned out in a hurry and under the house next door he snared another $100 bill. His pansy bed was littered with dirty, wrinkled $50 bills.

Before the Valentines could rake the stuff up in piles they had competition. A drainage ditch produced $70 for another searcher, an investigating police officer picked up $150.

The gold rush news also turned up a cab driver who said he could explain how all that lovely green stuff got caught in the shrubbery.

The cabbie, Junior Clark, first said everybody should keep looking, that another $3,000 was kicking around.

Then he told police that all that wealth got spread around when one of his fares tossed $4,000 out of the cab window Wednesday night. Clark said the rider "thought he was being taken for a ride" and heaved his money where the imaginary "robbers" couldn't get it.

MENTIONED FOR POST—Louis O. Breithaupt, 61-year-old Member of Parliament for Waterloo North, is being mentioned regularly as Ontario's next Lieutenant-Governor. Federal government officials have declined to confirm or deny the reports. The five-year term of Hon. Ray Lawson, present Lieutenant-Governor, expired last month and was extended "for a time." Mr. Breithaupt is a manufacturer and president of a leather company in Kitchener, Ont.

Just Like Dynamite

Exploding Sweaters Sold By Peddlers Across US

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP) — A month ago a young man in Los Angeles lit a cigarette. His flashy new sweater exploded in flames.

A few days later the same thing happened to another man.

Since then explosive sweaters have turned up in many parts of the United States.

They are dangerously inflammable, police chief Earl Hoyer of Middletown, NJ, put a match to one.

"I thought I had lit a barrel of gunpowder," he said.

In Albany, NY, police chief Philip G. Coffey said anyone who wears one is risking his life.

In every reported case the sweaters were bought from travelling peddlers. Legitimate stores don't handle them.

The peddlers charge whatever they think the traffic will bear, from $2 to $24.

As near as police can determine, the cloth comes from New York. But the name of the maker has not been disclosed.

Los Angeles authorities said there were from 50 to 100 peddlers working the west coast before police scattered them. California has a law against selling clothing that is dangerously inflammable; many places don't know of any law to use against the peddlers.

Capt. John G. Degenkolb of the Los Angeles Fire Prevention Bureau knows of at least a dozen cases where the sweaters burst into flames. He said at least eight persons have been burned.

At Providence, RI, police located two manufacturers who apparently were turning out the inflammable sweaters. They said they got the cloth from New York.

Providence authorities are trying to find some local law to halt manufacture of the sweaters.

Reds Warned Not To Meddle In S. East Asia

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (CP)—Anthony Eden flashed a caution signal at the Chinese Reds Friday against "volunteering" to intervene in Southeast Asia.

"It should be understood" the British Foreign Secretary told a special Columbia University convocation, "that the intervention by Chinese Communists in Southeast Asia—even if they were called volunteers—would create a situation no less menacing than that which the UN met and faced in Korea.

"In such an event the UN, I trust would be equally firm to resist it."

Eden, in the United States with Prime Minister Churchill, was awarded an Honorary Doctorate of Laws by Columbia.

The Foreign Secretary spoke sharply to the Communist world.

May Have Doubts

"Already," he said, "there must be serious doubts in the mind of any aggressor who might be tempted to dare a direct trial of strength. But there are parts of the world where it is not clear beyond doubt how grave will be the consequences of open or concealed aggression. That is dangerous for us all. We can afford no breach in the dike at any point."

The bulk of Eden's 4,000-word text was devoted to achievement of peace and to Britain's role in world affairs in relation to Europe the Middle East and the United States.

"If our two countries stand together, there is no problem we cannot solve," he said. "United we lead the world. Divided we falter, maybe to disaster."

Eden said he can already see the beginnings of a kind of world peace, achieved "not all at once, but agreement by agreement."

SMOKING RUINS—Smoke rose from the gutted garage and warehouse of the North Shore Construction Company almost 12 hours after fire destroyed five frame buildings at Sept Iles, Que., Ungava iron ore frontier town. Bulldozer operators working in 20-below-zero weather were credited with saving the town by building huge snow drifts around the centre of the fire.

3 Million Dollar Fire Destroys Paper Plant

LONGVIEW, Wash., Jan. 12 — (AP) — Fire Friday night destroyed the main plant building of the Pacific Paper Board Company. Loss was estimated at $3,000,000.

The fire apparently started in the beater room of the plant. Thirty-six employees on duty escaped just ahead of the fast-moving flames.

They were driven out before they were able to hook up fire hoses.

The damage estimate was made by a company representative.

Triplets, Surprise

TORONTO, Jan. 12 (CP)— Toronto's first triplets of the year arrived Friday, addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Haines, a young couple living in a one-room apartment. "Not only a surprise that they were triplets but a surprise that they were all girls," was the fathers' comment. He had hoped for "one boy at least." The mother is 28. She and Roy were married 14 months ago.

Invent Way To Print Newspapers Without Type Or Stereotyping

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12 (AP) —A Cleveland printer and metal-working firm have found what they call the "missing link" to make it possible to print newspapers without type or stereotyping.

The inventors are W. F. Alexander, superintendent of engraving for The Cleveland Press, and R. W. Hendrich, president of the Wire Coating and Manufacturing Co.

They think their invention may make possible an increase in the number of smaller newspapers, because it will reduce printing costs.

In brief, their invention is a zinc-coated magnesium plate which can be engraved and then put directly on a high-speed, rotary letterpress.

By using it, newspapers can use photosetters rather than linotypes and can escape costly processes of molding the printed page onto press cylinders, the inventors said.

Alexander thinks the plates can be used at once by newspapers with less than 100,000 circulation, but says that larger papers would have trouble. Larger papers print in multiple units—the same page may be printed on many presses at the same time to gain speed. It takes longer to make the new plate than it takes to roll mats for the present method.

Better Impression

The inventors claimed the new plate can be etched much more quickly than the current copper or zinc plates. It can be put through a machine and curved to fit the press, and, by printing directly from the plate, you get a better impression.

Newspapers now set words in type. They put a matrix made of paper over the type and engravings of photos and apply pressure which ushes impressions from the type and engravings into the mat. The paper is then curved and hot metal is poured on it. When the paper is taken away, the indentations formed by the type stand out. Ink is rolled over the indentations and then paper—the result is printing.

The new plate would do away with all that, the inventors said. Newspaper stories can be copied on photographic machines which give you a negative on which words are pasted together with negatives of photographs and the whole works is then engraved onto the new plate.

Labor Federation Protests Crowding

HAMILTON, Jan. 12 (CP)—In a move against overcrowding of streetcars, buses and trolley coaches, the Ontario Federation of Labor (TLC) Friday unanimously agreed to call on the provincial government to enact legislation which would set specific capacity limits on all public transit vehicles

The members, meeting here on the first day of their sixth convention, suggested no definite limit, but urged the move as a means to safer transportation.

Federation president A. F. MacArthur of Toronto, told the 321 delegates that "we are being packed in like sardines on our system." He said it was time Ontario adopted the English system which sets a limit on standees.

The Federation also decided to petition the government for fair wage scheduled on all construction work contracted for by the Ontario government.

Find Boy 8 Habitual Marijuana Smoker

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—An eight-year-old boy has been sent to hospital as an habitual smoker of marijuana cigarettes.

Capt. Peter Terranova, of the Narcotics Squad, revealed the child's plight after a roundup of 'teen-aged dope users in the Bronx.

The young dope addicts, he said, had their own strange caste system. For some unexplained reasons, younger members never mingled with older boys.

The eight-year-old addict was discovered when questioned about skipping school. The child said he got the marijuana from a 16-year-old boy.

Almost Like Summer

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 12 (AP) — Fairbanks was basking in a comparative "heat wave" today after warm breezes from the Pacific snapped a cold spell that had sent the mercury tumbling to as low as 56 degrees below zero. The thermometer edged up to zero Friday at this inferior Alaskan city just as a severe shortage of fresh food was developing.

Denounce Pyjamas As Vicious Invention Come Out Strongly In Favor Of Night Shirt

LONDON, Jan. 12 — (AP). —The trade journal Tailor and Cutter denounced pyjamas as 'vicious" Friday and came out four-square for the old-fashioned night shirt.

Recalling the quotation from Cervantes, "Blessings on him who invented sleep,' the journal said in an editorial:

"Curses on him who invented pyjamas."

The editorial especially deplored the tendency of pyjama sleeves and trouser legs to creep upward oft in the stilly night. It said this "invariably produces the necessity for a somnolent adjustment which eventually grows into a wakeful and irritable tugging, and before one knows it, vexation hath murdered sleep."

Night shirts are roomy, at least, said the journal (sometimes known as the Bible of Saville Row) and "we are quite willing to touch them with our wand of sponsorship."

For men who have trouble keeping their night shirts in place, it suggested a simple curative: Put your garters on upside down and connect the fasteners with the hem.

Would Give Gas For Tariff Cut

EDMONTON, Jan. 12—(CP)—The head of a Montreal firm of chemical engineers said Friday Alberta natural gas should be traded for US tariff cuts.

In an address to the Albert and Northwest Chamber of Mines and Resources convention here said the chances of building up the Alberta chemical industry will be reduced if exported Alberta natural gas is used to create a tariff-protected US chemical industry.

". . . the export of natural gas from Canada to the US should be conditional upon the reduction of tariff on products in which natural gas is a major raw material," he said.

"In Eastern Canada another phase of the same problem has resulted in the refusal to permit the export of wood pulp from Crown lands, and this has led to a greater development of the wood pulp industry in Canada, and export of higher-priced products."

MORE ABOUT—

Churchill Party

Only Lord Ismay, Commonwealth Secretary, arrived in Ottawa Friday, aside from his personal staff. The rest of the British party, including Lord Cherwell, the British cabinet's atomic expert, and Admiral Sir Roderick McGricor, First Sea Lord, are expected today.

Works on Speeches

There was one unscheduled arrival—Lt.-Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, former vice-chief of the Imperial General Staff and now head of Britain's internal eastern military command. Mr. Churchill unexpectedly summoned him to Ottawa amid persistent reports he is planning to appoint a new leader to the anti-Communist compaign in Malaya and that Templer is going to get the job.

Mr. Churchill spent a quiet day after his noon arrival at Ottawa's Union Station, where a throng of spectators cheered him as he inspected a guard of honor and then drove off to Rideau Hall.

He lunched and dined with Viscountess and Viscount Alexander. Between periods of social relaxation in the afternoon and evening he worked on the address he will deliver at a state dinner here Monday night and gave thought to the speech he will make before Congress in Washington next Thursday.

OBITUARIES

PETER BRAWLEY

MARMORA, Jan. 12 (ENS). — Peter Brawley died Thursday of a heart ailment after being sick for about a week. He was 66.

He moved to Toronto at the age of 26, having been born in Bishopton, Renfrewshire, Scotland.

He took up residence in Marmora in 1913 and entered the employ of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited for whom he worked for several year in their oxide plant.

He was married to Rose, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle by the late Rev. Thomas Murhagh, being a widower at the time. There were two sons born of the first marriage, one Charles who belonging to the merchant marine, was killed during the Second World War, and John who is resident at St. Vital, Manitoba. Of his second marriage there are three children, Thomas, Deloro; Mrs. Carl Heath (Mary), Marmora; and Patrick, Kingston. He is further survived by one brother Roderick, Brooklyn, NY, and four sisters, Mrs. Joseph Cochrane, Mrs. Catherine Murray and Mrs. Arthur McKenna, Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Annie Cairns, Glasgow, Scotland.

He was interested in public affairs; in various forms of sport including association football which he had played in Scotland, and in music, being a talented accordion player.

Havelock Churches Hold Week Of Special Services

HAVELOCK, Jan. 12 (ENS)—The Rev. A. E. Toombs, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, was guest speaker at special evangeslistic services in the Havelock United Church from Monday to Friday night, with the exception of Wednesday evening when the Rev. James McElvoy, of Burnbrae, was the speaker in the absence of Mr. Toombs.

These special services were the joint endeavour of the Protestant churches of the village and were largely attended.

Ministers assisting in the leadership of the services were the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Knox Presbyterian Church; the Rev. M. Esler, of the Pentecostal Church; the Rev. E. W. Rivers, of the Apostolic Church; the Rev. L. Bigelow, of the Baptist Mission; and the Rev. R. G. Newman, of Havelock United Church.

Missionary In India

Mr. Toombs, formerly a missionary in India, brought a series of stirring messages, illustrated by his experiences in the Far East. In his closing message Friday, Mr. Toombs chose two texts. The first from St. Paul's message to Timothy, "For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men; the man Christ Jesus," and the second, uttered by Job many centuries before, "Neither is there any daysman betwixt us that might lay his hands upons us both."

Mr. Toombs gave a detailed account of the different religions of India, telling of the devotion of the Indian people to their different beliefs; how they incorporated religion into everything they do and how each form has something of the truth, but they all lack the essential part in recognition of the Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus.

Changes In Law Affect Market

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 —(CP)— Changes in Canadian customs law have had a serious effect on prices and sales in the Canadian textile market in the last year, Gerald L. Bruck, president of Bruck Silk Mills Ltd., said in the annual report released Friday.

Heavy imports of textiles from the United States, which increased in 1951 by more than 50 per cent over average imports for the last three years, led to disruption in the normal pattern of Canadian orders and deliveries and contributed to a generally depressed condition in Canadian textile markets, Bruck asserted.

Materials sold in certain foreign markets at below cost, he said, are permitted entry into Canada without incurring dumping duties, creating unemployment and distress selling in Canada.

For the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 last, the company had a net profit of $522,609, or $1.79 a share on class A and $1.19 on class B stock. This compares with a net profit of $938,608 in the previous year, or $2.90 and $2.30 on the respective shares. Net working capital declined from $3,144,811 to $2,727,142.

The company operates a mill at Cowansville, Que.

He was welcomed to Rideau Hall by Governor-General Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander. Truck Driver Fined $50; Pedestrian Died

LINDSAY, Jan. 12 —(ENS)— Lawrence Moore, Coboconk, was fined $50 plus costs of $18.60 in police court Friday when he was found guilty of dangerous driving by Magistrate E. A. Gee. Moore was charged after Russell Irwin, 57, died from injuries received when struck by the truck driven by Moore on the Peterborough Highway on November 9. The accident occurred at the Riverside cemetery, south of Lindsay.

Moore pleaded not guilty to the charge, saying that he had been blinded by the head-lights of an on-coming car. Just before the lights of the car blinded him, Moore said he noticed a figure of a man on the road about 15 feet ahead of him and walking about three feet from the right hand side of the road. When cross-examined by the crown, Moore admitted that he made no attempt to stop but had merely slowed down when the lights blinded him. As a result the protruding portion of the box of the truck struck Irwin in the back causing multiple injuries which proved fatal.

ON TOP OF THE WORLD, Canada offers an infinite variety of scenery to her travelling citizens and one of the most thrilling and loveliest is through the Kettle Valley in British Columbia. Here travellers can cross the mountains on a railroad built on stilts at many points, which climbs almost to the top of the mountains. This picture shows a beautiful view of one of the Arrow Lakes taken as the train rounded a curve.—(Canadian Pacific Railway Photo).

TRAVEL—with Jean Stenton

Train Crossing High Mountain Trestles Big Thrill For Kettle Valley Visitor

Travelling along the edge of the mountains thousands of feet in the air, where the train track is laid over narrow trestles on stilts in many spots, is a thrilling way to cross British Columbia from Vancouver to Calgary.

Canadians don't have to go rushing off to the United States or Europe to find something very special and unusual in the way of scenic attractions. In British Columbia's Kettle Valley they have something a lot of countries would like to have.

The amazing thing is that so few people seem to know about it and so miss one of Canada's greatest beauty spots. Although there are mountains here, they are very different from the rest of the Rockies on the main CPR line between Calgary and Vancouver.

There are two ways to enjoy this trip—(1) by boat and CPR train or (2) by train all the way from Calgary to Vancouver via MacLeod or vice versa.

Named By Chance

Both ways are delightful. The ideal choice is to take the main line through the Fraser Canyon to Vancouver and return via the Kettle Valley Express or part way by boat and the Express.

Kettle Valley came by its name quite simply. It is believed to have been designated when railway surveyors came upon a river. Since they had to choose a name, they solved the problem on finding an old prospector's kettle in a shallow part of the stream. They called it Kettle River and the valley took its name from that.

Not only is the Kettle Valley route a scenic one, but an amazing engineering feat. The terrain is very difficult and for many miles this CPR line is built on trestles along the edge of the mountains at great heights. The views are superb and constantly changing. It is one of the loveliest parts of Canada I have visited.

Coming from Vancouver to Calgary on this route, the real thing begins at Odlum BC where the line climbs to Brookmere. The greater part of this is situated in the gorge of the Coquihalla River. There are a great number of bridges and tunnels in the canyon and in the 36-mile section between Hope and Coquihalla there are 40 trestles and bridges as well as 16 tunnels and snow sheds.

Shakespearian Names

The Coquihalla Gorge is noted for a phenomenal snowfall which not infrequently amounts to more than 600 inches a season. The operating points on this section all bear the names of characters in Shakespearian plays: Othello, Lear, Jessica, Portia, Iago, Romeo and Juliet, in that order.

Eastward from Penticton, the train climbs more than 3,000 feet in less than 50 miles. The most interesting part lies about 45 miles from Penticton where the railway encounters the impassable gorge of Canyon Creek. The line is laid along the canyon wall upstream for several miles. It crosses both the East and West forks of Canyon Creek returning downstream on the other bank. In this six-mile section, there are 16 trestles and two steel girder bridges, one 365 feet long and 158 feet high over the East Fork of Canyon Creek and the other 721 feet long and 182 feet high over its West Fork. There are also two tunnels.

Around Zamore and Midway, the country reminds one of the steppes. There are few trees and the rock formation is a gold color that seems to go in waves. After passing Cascade with its gorge and swirling river, you soon reach the tunnel shields and catch your first glimpse of the Arrow Lakes. Actually a broadening of the Columbia River, these lakes are jade green fjords with beige colored mountains, breathtaking to behold. The train in this section hangs on the edge for miles rounding curve after curve. The train crews all consider this the highlight of the trip.

From Bonnington at the Basley Power Dam, you see lovely emerald colored water spewing out in huge clouds like a series of soft marshmallows. This is getting into the Doukhobor area in advance of Nelson and the Kootenay Lakes.

Boat Picturesque

Doing it by boat is a most picturesque and exciting trip. E. J. Heard, agent at the CPR ticket office, George St., or any of the staff can make arrangements or give details about transportation. The boat plying the Arrow Lakes is a 51-year-old sternwheeler called the Minto.

Built in Toronto in the lusty days of the gold rush, the boat was shipped in 1,000 parts to the Pacific coast where she was supposed to run on the Stikine River north in the Klondike area.

Before she was put together however, the Minto was loaded back onto flat cars and brought to the Arrow Lake town of Naksup which has been her home port ever since. There it was put together by a crew of white and half-breed shipwrights. During the past 51 years, this ship has travelled 2,000,000 miles on these lakes. The scenery is wonderful. The boat seems almost as if it were going to smash into sheer canyon walls when suddenly there is a sharp curve and a new part of the lovely lakes is exposed.

Fares for the Minto range around $5 for the journey between Arrowhead and West Robson with stateroom and berth running about $1.50 extra. Though it is a small boat, it has made a name for its excellent meals.

Tourists can go via the main CPR line to Revelstoke and from there at 9:50 am to Arrowhead by train arriving at 12 noon.

The boat goes to West Robson twice a week, leaving Arrowhead Wednesday and Saturdays at 1:05 in the afternoon and arriving at Naksup at 5 pm. It stays here overnight and leaves the next morning arriving in West Robson at 2:50 in the afternoon. Then the visitor can either go by train on to Vancouver or travel back to Calgary and the better known mountains.

The Royal William, built at Quebec, in 1833 was the first vessel to cross the Atlantic under steam.

Whole World Pays Tribute To Capt. Carlsen

Turin, The Stampa — Carlsen turned a ship disaster into a work of art, a shipwreck into a masterpiece. He gave it the fantastic flavor of an epic, the dynamic vigor of battle, the mysterious breath of thrilling adventure.

Corriers Della Sera of Milan—We shall not forget you, Captain Carlsen: Argonaut, Viking . . the blood of a hundred generations of sailors flows in your veins.

The Royal Mail Again

Elsewhere on this page today we publish a letter from a reader in Ottawa who has a low opinion of this paper's intelligence, particularly as it relates to our observations on the disuse of the term "Royal Mail" by the Post Office Department. Mr. Calhoun seems to think that The Examiner has an axe to grind in this matter, and says that we will not publish his letter; but as we wish only to uncover the truth, whatever it may be, we do publish his letter today. Mr. Calhoun lays claim to 60 years of adult life; that suggests that he is at least 80 now; we marvel that in so long a life he has not learned the most elementary lesson of controversy, which is—never underestimate those who disagree with you.

* * *

The information which Mr. Calhoun offers is all well-known to us. Certainly the mail trucks are property of contractors, and not of the Post Office Department. But if he implies that contractors are free to decorate mail trucks according to their own fancy, we know him to be wrong; there is some choice in the matter, but not a great deal. And if, as he suggests, the term Canada Mail has been correct since 1867, why did the present Postmaster General attribute the change to a predecessor, the Hon. Charles Murphy? And how could the Postmaster General be "stampeded" twice? Once, perhaps, but men who become Cabinet Ministers do not permit themselves to be caught off guard twice.

* * *

We are no stickler for old forms and outworn traditions, but we do not want to see something removed from the face of Canada which has become familiar, without some good reason. If we are to do away with all that relates Canada to Britain and the other countries from which our people come, very well, let us set about it methodically. We can supply a list of observances, outworn allegiances and irrational survivals which might reasonably be abolished. But we have observed that whenever Canada is to be separated from something associated with its past, that something always has a British flavour. There seems to be no anxiety to quash other, equally outworn allegiances. But if the British survivals are to go, let us make a clean sweep of all the rest.

Fifty Years Of 248

Today Local 248 of the International Typographical Union—the Peterborough branch—celebrates fifty years of existence, and it gives us great pleasure to offer our congratulations. During its life 248 has had only one serious dispute with management, and this must be considered an excellent record. The I.T.U. is a craft union with a very high sense of responsibility, not only to its members, but to newspaper publishers and the public which is served by newspapers. There can be few unions anywhere in the world with a finer record of goodwill and fair dealing.

Let us say that this is not surprising to anyone who has had dealing with the men engaged in the printing trade. That trade seems to attract, upon the whole, men of a superior type of intellect and character. A stupid printer is an unheard of thing; a printer without a sense of humour is are rare as a white crow; an ill-tempered printer, though not entirely unknown, is an exception to the rule. And because a printer is the possessor of a craft for which the demand is fairly constant, he is not haunted by fear of lay-offs and the ills which affect less skilled workers. As a result, printers are easy to get along with and the relationship between the I.T.U. and proprietors in the various branches of printing has usually been a cordial one; the fact that a good many proprietors have held, and may still hold, union cards, has much to do with it.

To Local 248 we say, Long Life and Happiness. The printing trade has been in existence for just about 500 years, and your association covers a tenth of that period. May the spirits of all those who have shared in the work of distributing the printed word in all its glory and all its occasional folly, be with you in your celebration.

Canada's Voice On Foreign Affairs

Canada has had a Department of External Affairs since 1909, but it amounted to little more than an office desk twenty-five years ago. Even then, and until the war, the Department was merely a branch of the Prime Minister's tree. Foreign policy was virtually the personal property of Prime Minister Mackenzie King during his long tenure. He acted as Minister of External Affairs until after the war, and Parliament had little to say about them. For instance, during the Ethiopian crisis, he advised the House of Commons to be careful what it said about Hitler and Mussolini lest talk in Parliament endanger peace. The M.P's kept quiet.

After the war the Department of External Affairs increased very rapidly, in numbers and the scope of its work. In his last two years as Prime Minister, Mr. King gave up his part-time office as Secretary of State for External Affairs, and Mr. St. Laurent became Canada's first full-time External Affairs Minister. When Mr. St. Laurent became Prime Minister, he put Mr. Pearson in charge of the Department. Now the portfolio of External Affairs is one of the most sought-after posts.

Meanwhile, Parliament itself has taken external affairs as a chief matter for its debate. Members are no longer silent about the rest of the world—and, be it said—are much better informed about foreign affairs than their predecessors. All these facts point to the growing importance of Canada in international affairs, and to the increasing impact of foreign conditions on Canada's domestic concerns.

The Department now has 253 officials and is operating 42 foreign missions abroad. And when the Prime Minister of Great Britain visits this continent, he does not come up to Ottawa merely to pay an obligatory courtesy call. Mr. Churchill, in Ottawa today, is fully aware of the importance of Canadian action and opinion in international matters and the necessity of Canada's role in them.

Apprehension In Winnipeg

There are times when we so far forget ourselves as to think of Winnipeg as an Eastern Canadian city—comparable in its enthusiasm for the spiritual and sophisticated aspects of life with such Ontario settlements as Perth and Napanee. But something always happens to bring us to a sense of the reality that Winnipeg is inescapably Western: a couple of years ago it was an attack on finger-bowls which was made by a citizen of Winnipeg; this time it is an editorial in the Winnipeg Free Press about men's vests. (They call them "vests" in the rugged West; here in the smooth East we are inclined to call them waistcoats.) Apparently somebody has been frightening the males of Winnipeg by telling them that the vest is going out of fashion. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (which gets itself mixed up in some very queer things) has published figures showing that in the U.S.A. 52 per cent. of men do not want vests with their suits, 37 per cent. want them and 11 per cent. don't know what they want.

What will happen to men without vests, moans the Free Press. Where will a man carry his pencils, his pen, his pocket comb, nail file, cigarette lighter, pipe reamer, and other odds and ends? (We thing it curious that a Western paper makes no mention of an instrument for taking stones out of horses' hooves.)

We of the smooth East may reassure the disturbed West. Men's waistcoats are not going out of fashion. The conservative waistcoat, made of the same cloth as coat and trousers is in eclipse, but fancy waistcoats of interesting and pleasing patterns are gaining wide popularity. And a good thing, too. Men's clothes are too dull.

We expect that the rugged West will reject the fancy vest for a few years. But it will get around to fancy vests eventually, when they are going out of style here. They are just taking up spats in the West, now that in Eastern Canada they are rarely seen except on those whose clothes are provided by charitable institutions.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Canada now has one car for every seven people, and not seven cars for every pedestrian, as sometimes appears to be the case.

A woman is in the news because for 17 years she has had a peanut stuck in her nose. And every one of those years she has been a bad example to naughty children.

A once dreaded Chicago gangster died recently, after he had overdone it when shovelling snow. A good many gangsters began their careers with a shovel in their hand, but few have died that way.

In Brighton, England, the schools are using slates, to save paper. Naughty boys will be quick to learn grandpa's technique for giving the teacher the screaming meemies with a squeaky slate-pencil.

A New York man is in trouble because he hid his mother-in-law's false teeth to keep her quiet. Whether he further tortured her by putting her on a diet of apples and peanut brittle is not recorded.

A Texas woman gets into the news because she lured a fox into her house with a turkey bone. Pooh, the wolf will pop in without any such inducement.

The Americans have invented a new gadget: spectacles with wedge-shaped prismatic lenses, said to be ideal for reading in bed. You look straight out in front, but you see what lies in your lap. Not recommended for love-making, we presume.

Coarse Hairs From Spanish Mane

THE GREAT DAYS OF PIRACY, by George Woodbury (McLeod).

THIS IS A FASCINATING book for anyone who really wants to know the facts about piracy. Let it be stressed that it is a book of fact; if you want to go on thinking of pirates as romantic, dashing, courageous fellows, with vast fortunes in buried treasure, you had better leave it alone. Pirates were nothing of the kind.

Of course nobody who has ever thought intelligently about pirates for five minutes could accept the romantic notion of them. Pirates were a particularly desperate group of thieves, engaged in a type of felony in which no special skill was required, in which the rewards were infrequent and uncertain, and in which the hardships were endless. What sort of men would seek such a life? The scum of the criminal world, obviously. Do romantic figures, and men of immense wealth, emerge from the scum of the criminal world? They do not. Pirates were unskilful, improvident, ill-organized, stupid ruffians.

This is not to say that pirates were not a dangerous nuisance. The laws respecting them were as cruel and intransigeant as all other eighteenth century laws relating to felony; therefore, when they captured a ship and robbed its passengers and its cargo they were not likely to be especially merciful though they apparently never killed without provocation. But their villainies lacked style; Mr. Woodbury has been unable to find any record whatever of pirates forcing anyone to walk the plank. They do not appear to have been mighty ravishers of women, which might have been expected of them. They marooned people they wanted to be rid of, but that was the specialty of their own. There is no record that any of them buried treasure; it is not to be expected that much documentary evidence of such secret hoards would exist, but the fact that virtually no buried treasure has ever been found, in spite of hopeful searching, suggests that it was not the common practice of pirates to cache their swag; they do not seem indeed, to have gained much more by their robberies than was necessary to keep them going. Even Captain Kidd, according to Mr. Woodbury, was a failure in his attempts to amass wealth through piracy.

Then what gave rise to the great reputation which pirates enjoy for picturesque villainy and buried treasure? The law appears to have fostered the notion that these men were cleverer and richer than they were. And the clergy, who roared against piracy with special fervour, seem to have vastly exaggerated their villainy, and as it is always good business to associate villainy with riches, their wealth, as well. The wretched, stupid, clumsy ragamuffins who manned the pirate ships under their inept commanders would have been astonished if they could have foreseen the brilliant light in which posterity would place them. THE SWAN, by Marguerite Steen (Clarke, Irwin & Company).

THIS ENGLISH NOVEL has much to recommend it. It bears the unmistakable touch of a writer who has something to say and knows her setting. Its style is full; this reviewer found her parentheses rather too frequent for the story. It takes too long to get people and their actions into focus.

The scene of "The Swan" is a small country house in the Thames Valley during the opening years of the last century. The story is about Hariot and her possessive love for her sixteen-year-old adopted son. There is a love story, and even casual readers may find themselves so engrossed in it as to miss the first call to dinner. The book is nicely set up in print, and in chapter headings.

THE SIXTH COLUMN, by Peter Fleming (Clarke Irwin).

THIS CURIOUS and amusing book begins with the discovery of a plan "to accelerate the current deterioration of the national character with a view to undermining and eventually eliminating British influence in the affairs of the world"; the plot concerns the working of the plan and its failure. In the course of a short and funny novel it takes a number of hearty swipes at broadcasting and our modern tendency to exaggerate the omniscience and charm of popular broadcasters, and at planning generally. The book is clearly meant to be a light satire; but any satire which is worth its salt has serious matter at its root; the roots of this book are so serious that I confess that they alarmed more than they amused me. It is for this reason that I recommend the book; it is easy to take, but in taking it the reader may find himself giving new and serious thought to aspects of modern governmental life and modern methods of spreading news and opinion. It is a good political thriller, but it is also an alarming comment on our vulnerability to propaganda. O.D.C.

RENNY'S DAUGHTER, by Mazo de la Roche (Macmillan Co. of Canada).

MAZO DE LA ROCHE hardly needs an introduction to Canadian readers; not only is she the authoress of one of the most famous family series in the world but she has collected quite a few enviable honours in the literary scene culminating this year with the University of Alberta's national award medal for her distinguished contribution to Canadian letters.

To readers who have followed the Whiteoaks family fortunes through the years, this latest book in the family chronicle is obviously a must, although even the most avid admirer of the saga would perhaps appreciate a brief resume of the other eleven books of Whiteoaks history so that they know where they are to start with. However if one is willing to ignore the references to grandmothers, great-grandmothers and other numerous long-dead relatives this makes an enjoyable story in itself. Adeline Whiteoaks (the daughter of the title) at the age of eighteen goes on a trip to Ireland with her uncle Finch and cousin Maurice and there falls in love with a young Irishman—who unfortunately has pride and nothing else and is therefore unwilling to pursue the romance offered. Adeline, showing the grim determination that is a family characteristic, tries to overcome the trials and disappointments of this first love but owing to the equal determination of her 'Maitland' does not appear to have much success. After visiting London, Adeline returns to Jalna and with the aid of an overseas telephone call and the understanding of Renny, her father, finds the promise of a solution to her troubles. As neither a reader nor admirer of the usual 'continued-next-year' type of family novel, this reviewer still managed to be both entertained and interested by Renny's Daughter. Mazo de la Roche has the most delicate perception when writing of children and the young, so that her eighteen-year-old heroine is sufficiently genuine to appeal to the reader's sympathy.

CUB REPORTER, by Jack Hambleton (Longman's Green).

IF YOU KNOW a boy who is eager to get into the reportorial side of the newspaper business, this would be a good book to give him. It is not difficult to identify the newspaper which is the scene of much of the action of the story, and several of the leading characters are recognizable and kindly portraits of men who are well known in Canadian journalism. The book does not attempt to disguise the fact that much of newspaper work is routine, and often dull routine, but it gives a lively picture of the more exciting aspects of a reporter's life. Seasoned newspaper men may be somewhat surprised by the extreme benevolence, the almost Santa Claus-like goodness of all the editors who appear in this book, but any boy who reads it, and believes that the newspaper world offers a good life for intelligent and ambitious young men, will not be misled. R.D.

FOR OUR quotation today, let us return to pirates, and read something which Horace Greeley, the great editor of the New York Tribune, wrote to an applicant for a job, in 1855: "If I were to advertise in my paper tomorrow for fifty young men to go on a pirate ship and for five men to work on my farm, there would be five hundred applications for the situation on the pirate ship and not one for the farm." But why would anybody want to be a pirate? Romanticism: sheer, bone-headed romanticism.

Letters To The Editor

SMALL MINDS AND SMALL MATTERS

Sir: It seems to me that the time has come when a full explanation of this "Royal" business should be put before you people who seem to want to make an important issue of it. Right here and now, let me say that I know perfectly well you will not publish this letter; I base my assumption on long reading of newspapers through my 60 adult years. That is the protection the newspaper has over the arguments which may be put forth to defend any controversial subject.

Let us once and for all get this matter straight and have done with it. Actually its none of my business but I'm an Irishman and I can't let the matter go any longer without at least a bit of a fight.

I have no connection with the Post Office beyond the fact that for a few years of my life I was a railway mail clerk on a couple of the Western runs. But, like all people who have been connected with the Post Office, I have learned a considerable amount of the background of the Service—and because happened to like to browse among old records and documents, perhaps I have picked up more than the average Postal employee on the subject of the Postal Service.

I think the Postmaster General was more or less stampeded into making his remark that the term "Royal" is now obsolete. It is not as regards the term itself; as regards the actual items of mail from and in Canada it never existed! How do you like that? But the explanation is this, and it is purely technical: Canada has to pay her bills internationally on all her own mail; she also has to sort it out in a rather complicated manner to the layman, from the mail of other countries which pass through her hands. Therefore, if they used the term Royal Mail in their Post Office Act or in the various documents which pass between various countries in the routine handling of accounts and methods of despatch, what in the name of God would Royal convey to, say France, or Italy? It could be mail from Scotland, from England, from Australia, and (God help her) my own country in her days of servitude to the Sassenach! But when they see "Canada" mail, "Australian" mail, "African" mail and so on, then they know how each country should be billed by the country in transit! Is that at all clear?

In the earliest act of 1867 Canada Mail was used since the Act only applied to the mail of this country. Had they written Royal Mail, the act would not have applied. But the Post Office has no objection at all to the use of "Royal" mail on trucks, signs, mail boxes or anywhere else where it may apply; there has never been any instruction given out to the effect that the word Royal was to be dropped.

I have talked to some of my old cronies about this crazy tempest in a teapot since the member of parliament, for want of something better to do, brought up the matter in the House of Commons and started the whole stupid thing. Being a Conservative member, this stupidity was not at all surprising. The word still appears on many of the trucks used to carry the mail. If it does not, then it is the whim of the contractor and not the desire or action of the Post Office. Remember, these trucks are not owned by the Post Office which may be something else you don't know!

So could the small minds that concern themselves with small matters in this age of terror from abroad, accept this explanation once and for all and not have kittens with bells on them every time they see a truck without "Royal" on it—and vice versa, when they do?

ROY. CALHOUN.

SOBBING NIGHTINGALES

Sir: In reply to the letter from A. J. J. Strange of Bailieboro, I would like to try and clarify some of the very warped ideas he or she has in regard to nursing.

In regard to the thought of any nurse entertaining the idea of being a "big shot", this may be their feeling on entering their training, but after those first three years, you consider yourself only a very small spoke in a very large wheel.

As for being "merely professional working girls," does that not entitle us to a decent salary. "Professional working girls" do require food, clothing and a roof over their heads, the same as the other average people.

I think that nursing can be classed somewhat with the poor country minister; we are supposed to do our work for the love of God and humanity and are supposed to be above the thought of a decent salary. But somehow that same love of God and humanity doesn't feed or clothe you.

As to nurses looking at their white cap with reverence—let it be compared with a field of wheat that a farmer has grown. After days of fertilizing, tilling and then planting the seed, he looks on the field of wheat with pleasure and with pride and has a feeling of a good job done. That is the way we look at our caps—as something we have worked hard to get. When that cap is placed on your head—on your shoulders is also placed a great deal of responsibility and a lot of hard work.

If some of the nurses are considered only as personal maids, it is because the patients make us that way. Some patients when they recover never remember the hours of kindness and good nursing given them when they were ill. Many times the little words like "please" and "thank you" are omitted, but these we overlook. No! nursing is not all one big bowl of cherries.

No nurse regardless of how many years of nursing can ever put herself first. It is very obvious to any nurse reading A. J. J. Strange's letter that he or she is very ignorant of the whole nursing profession. This is easily proved to us by that small statement "putting yourself first", that is completely impossible for us to do.

We all feel fully compensated for our hard work when we see our patients get well—but this feeling does not keep us from getting hungry or from feeling the cold in winter. We are not merely machines that work with the push of a button.

How long must we be treated as just a convenience?

I would suggest to A. J. J. Strange that he or she obtain the book "The Lamp is Heavy" and read it, if, after reading that book your warped ideas are not just a little straighter, then they never will be.

To A. J. J. Strange I say "Do not try to discourage us for feeling proud of our cap—to us it somewhat takes the place of Florence Nightingale's lamp, don't try to completely blow out our flame".

Our reward will come in heaven, I'm sure—and may each nurse be forgiven if it is not her right to ask for a decent salary.

Thank You,
ONLY A NURSE

LIKES OLD PHOTOGRAPHS

Sir: Your old time pictures give us old birds a real thrill. Your lacrosse picture was the hit of 1951. As a very small lad I saw many of the games played by the boys in your photo. If you look at the shed in your picture right back of Mr. Packingham's head you will see there a small window. My brother and I found a way of getting in there and had a close-up of the game. Just how we were able to get in there is still a secret.

This picture of George Street (feature page, last week-end) is remarkable; there has been so little change and the street and stores still look first class.

About the time this picture was taken I was running messages for the G.N.W. Telegraph—Mr. Ed Dawson manager and Fred Skitch operator.

I have been away from Peterborough for almost fifty years, with one small stretch of a year or two back, in 1912-1913. I have now retired and moved here last July 10th from Ottawa. I have written this letter for one purpose only — to ask for more old time photos.

Yours truly,
H. R. BLADE.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth . . . And God said, Let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness. (Gen. 1: 1, 3 4.)

* * *

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? . . . I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living. (Ps. 27: 1, 13.)

* * *

And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God . . . And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Rev. 19: 1, 6.)

And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ. (Rev. 12: 10.)

And here we have Mrs. J. Walker maintaining that all motorists should be taken off the road, if only by sending them up on the pavement.

NICK NICKELS

Trenton: If you have business to do in this bustling lakefront town, make sure of your timing. As clocks creep towards four these winter afternoons the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, firemen policemen, undertakers and all, pack up as the Town Hall clock bongs the hour.

It is time to get ready for the evening's ice fishing.

Firemen drop their pinnochle cards in the back room and pull on rubber boots. Restaurant proprietors doft white coats and slip into heavy outdoor clothing. Merchants adjust ear muffs. They stream down the short block from Main Street to the waterfront.

They step onto the ice besides the shored-up Kawartha tug "Waketa", the frozen-in colliers and sprawling warehouses and follow well-beaten paths over the ice of the Bay of Quinte.

In front of them the Trent River widens into the Bay that stretches east for 60 miles and south three miles to the Prince Edward County shore. They can count 50 small huts—fishing shanties—dotted over the ice and know the location of other colonies of them out of sight on Donk's Bay on the Island side.

Firemen Jesse Baker owns the closest one. He left his shift at the Hall at 3:30 and is already inside stoking his little stove—it is the size of a large lunch pail—and getting his hand lines and bait ready for an evening of fun.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

Chick Sale-r On Ice

His shanty is four by six by four feet high. A good kick at the low door bids you enter which you accomplish like a dog crawling into his kennel.

"How's fishin'?" you ask.

Jesse says that it's a bit early to tell, yet, but come in and have a chair. And there is a chair, without legs of course, in fact, two of them. Jesse calls his shanty a two-holer. It is neat, crowded and very dark in there but presently he lights the stub of a candle stuck in the top of a bottle and from between his outstretched legs uncovers the ice fishing hole and hauls out a bucket of fresh minnows.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

Minnows are the only bait ice fishermen use. They net them in spring creeks north of the town in fall, keep them in spring-fed tanks and feed them oatmeal and suet daily. They carry them to their shanties in bait pails as required and leave them to float in the ice holes when there is no fishing.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

Jiggedy-Jig And . . . .

Jesse's stove is going great guns in no time. He baits his triple gang hooks with a couple of minnows and feeds the line, very heavily sinkered, down the hole until 12 feet has been paid out. And starts jiggling. That is the technique. Just keep the line jigging. The rest of the time is spent sitting cramped up like a pretzel, stoking the stove, and, in the case of Jesse's two-hole arrangement, talking to his fishing companion for hours on end. The subject, of course, is fishing.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

. . . Yakety-Yak

"The other night," says Jesse," Grant Goodsall and I caught seven pickerel in about half an hour. They averaged about 4½ pounds. Wonderful luck. You can sit here sometimes for a week without a nibble. Now and then we take a few perch and very occasionally a pike.

Fish start biting in the evenings at 4 p.m. and stop about 5:30. In the morning it is from sunrise till 9 a.m. The shanties are crowded on Wednesday afternoons and weekends. Some years I have seen more than 110 shanties out here on the Bay. But, would you believe it? this is the only place in the Bay where fish bite. They've tried it at Napanee, Belleville and Deseronto, but it's no go.

I've been ice fishing for 50 years and commercial fishing with my father before that. It is great sport for those who like it.

See that closest shanty? Charlie Wong owns that one. He runs the Lotus Cafe. Over there in that tall canvas affair you will find the Wright brothers, Ed and Don; they're just getting their hands wet at the sport but they will catch on.

What do I do with my catches? Give them away, sick people and the like. Some of the fellows try selling them now and then but it's against the law and if Game Overseer Fred MacDonald hears about it he settles their hash. We just fish for the sport of it.

Now don't tell all your fishin' pals in Peterborough to come down here. In the first place, we have no spare shanties, to lend or rent. And bait is awfully scarce. If they will go to the trouble of building their own shanty—it'll cost them about 25 bucks—and bring it down by trailer, there's lots of room, as you can see."

Big Strike, Poor Little Perch

Jesse had a strike!

But whatever it was took a lot of his slack line and got off somewhere under the ice. He was beaming.

"See what I mean? Nearly had a fish to show you."

It was dark and time for me to leave for home. I saw Charlie Wong struggling to worm backwards out of his shanty. He all but stuck in the doorway.

"No fis'," he grinned, "Come back to-mollow."

On the way back to the car I DID see a fish—a perch curled and frozen, five inches long. Some disgusted fisherman had tossed it out on the trail.

Yeah, yeah, great stuff, this ice fishing. I could enjoy it, too, if (a)I had patience. (b) If I had a shanty of my own, (c) If I didn't have claustrophobia.

Old Photograph Recalls His First Business Days In Peanut Cart On George St.

By A. J. THOMAS

"Sure, I remember that picture", said Thomas Anthony, smiling affably under his brown fedora and moving to the counter from the basin full of lake trout he was washing. "That was my peanut cart at the corner".

He looked at the picture that had appeared in the Examiner on this page last week, a picture of George Street taken from the corner of Hunter sometime in the last century. "It was about 1891. My brother Louis—he died a little while ago, you remember—and I pushed it."

Customers came up to the counter, but Mr. Anthony was immersed in his recollections of sixty years ago, when he was a school boy, roasting and selling peanuts at the push-cart.

It was a long time away, and many changes since, for this prosperous Peterborough business man who operates the fruit, vegetable and fish store under the town clock.

Whistling Business

"That was Jim Dolan's corner" he said, pointing to the picture of the drygoods store at the southwest corner of Hunter and George.

"We used to push the peanut stand up to the corner from our house on Aylmer and roast the peanuts there and then sell them.

It was quite warm. It had a little stove". He chuckled with the memory of it. "It was whistling all the time."

"I remember one Saturday night. It was the time Sullivan was keeping the Palace Hotel. We were taking the peanut stand home, Louis pulling it, I pushing. A drunk came along and started shouting abuse at us. He spoke very roughly. Frank Merino came running across the street to help us, but the drunk beat him off. I pulled the handle out from the cart, took a swing and knocked the drunk down. Then a policeman came and arrested him." The memory of his youthful victory over the drunk was vivid in Mr. Anthony's eyes.

"They used to call us Dagoes in those days. That was our biggest trouble." The old gentleman said it without bitterness.

Out In 1889

Thomas Anthony's father, Frank, came out to Canada and Peterborough in 1879, the year Thomas was born in a village 30 miles from Salerno, Italy. Ten years later his wife and sons Louis and Frank came to join him.

Besides the peanut stand, the boys had to run a fruit and vegetable barrow. Every morning before school they made the rounds of all the hotels in town—"there were twelve of them"—keeping them supplied with oranges and lemons, particularly lemons. (Taverns used a lot of them.)

"We had a stable with our house but my father would not get us a horse and rig. It was hard work pushing that fruit cart." And after school the boys had to restock the cart and go about town selling the fruit.

About this time (1896) Frank Anthony got a store, on George St. North, off Brock, where the Coleman store is now.

"My father rented it from Mr. Burnham, who put in a new store front. We had a garden along the street, and a house over the store. The rent was $14 a month."

Mention of rent brought Businessman Anthony bang up to the present. He began to talk vigorously about present rents on his store. In between he served a couple of customers oysters, trout and salmon, talking cheerfully to them, and after weighing the fish, said "$1.25 only." Each customer got the word "only." "Sure," he said, "we used to sell that for 25 cents." Times had changed.

Back To Italy

The customers served, Mr. Anthony went back to the last century. His father became a foreman on the Trent Canal when it was building, and left his wife and the two boys to run the store most of the time.

Then, at the end of 1899, Frank Anthony had acquired enough money to satisfy his yearning to go back to Italy. He exchanged a property he had in Peterborough for one which another local person had in his native village, bundled up his family, and went off to Italy, arriving in Naples New Year's Day, 1900.

The Canadian-raised boys were not at home in the remote backward town, with its two communal wells, one at each end where everybody in town came to draw his drinking water by hand. And there was the traditional communal washing place, beside a stream. Every woman in the village did her washing there, beating it clean and scrubbing it on the stone paving laid by the bank.

Another reason Thomas Anthony, aged 20, was not happy was that the Royal Italian Government got hold of him and conscripted him for three years of military service. As soon as that long period ended, he came right back to Peterborough. "It was good to get back."

He left behind his father and mother. The father had meanwhile spent much of his money putting the disused property he had got by exchange into habitable shape.

City Tenanut 43 Years

In 1909, Thomas Anthony rented a store in the Ashburnham Town Hall from the city and went into the fruit and vegetable business for himself. "I have been a tenant of the city continuously for nearly 43 years," Mr. Anthony said. "But apparently they don't want me any more." (He was referring to the recent rent increase.) He moved into the store under the town clock in 1928, taking over the Pringle stand in the city-owned block.

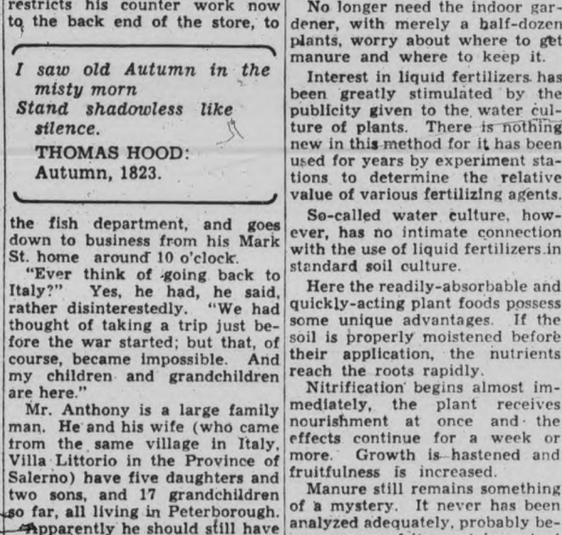
His father, Frank, came back in —— and worked at the George Street wharf. But his wife in Italy became ill and died. He went back in 1914 to attend to affairs in Italy. He re-married, but in 1915 he died. (Mr. Anthony placed the date by the Quaker Oats fire, as many Peterborough people do—after or before The Fire.)

Success Story

"Yours is a real success story, Mr. Anthony." In 1891 he had peddled a peanut stand; now he is a substantial business man and he and his family are owners of considerable residential and business property in the city.

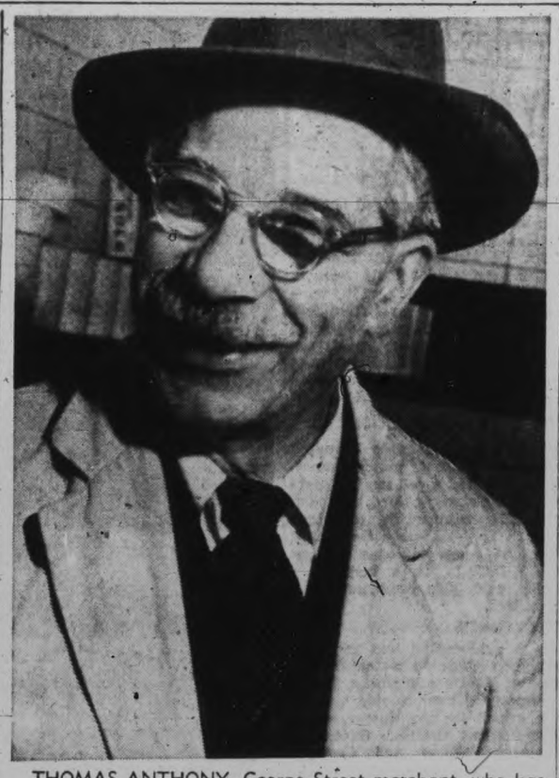
Mr. Anthony snorted. "If my father had bought that George St. store as Mr. Burnham begged him to do—all that block at Brock St. for $4,000—I wouldn't be working here now at my age."

But perhaps he would. Mr. Anthony obviously enjoys his store life thoroughly, and talking with his customers, many of them old friends of very long standing. His steel grey hair still plentifully black, his benevolent bushy moustache, his cheery eyes gleaming and his voice brisk and jovial, Mr. Anthony is too young to take off his apron. But he restricts his counter work now to the back end of the store, to the fish department, and goes down to business from his Mark St. home around 10 o'clock.



"Ever think of going back to Italy?" Yes, he had, he said, rather disinterestedly. "We had thought of taking a trip just before the war started; but that, of course, became impossible. And my children and grandchildren are here."

Mr. Anthony is a large family man. He and his wife (who came from the same village in Italy, Villa Littorio in the Province of Salerno) have five daughters and two sons, and 17 grandchildren so far, all living in Peterborough. Apparently he should still have title to his father's property in Italy, but he does not know for sure, and is not very interested in it. The old place has changed, he knows. He gives credit to the Mussolini regime for improving its ways. They now have running water and electricity and buses. "Mussolini's mistake was in going with the Germans." But Mr. Anthony is content with Peterborough, his real home.



The peanut stand and fruit cart have fonder recollections for him—and more amusing—than his native town of Villa Littorio in the province of Salerno, southern Italy.

In rivers and bad governments the lightest things swim at top.

Bottled Fertilizer Takes Place Of Liquid Manure

For centuries the human race has depended for sustenance on lands fertilized only with manure.

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Liquid manure, long recommended by gardeners both for gardens and house plants, has given way to bottled concentrated liquid fertilizers. This change is due largely because of the scarcity of manure, and the messiness attached to making and keeping it in solution.

These objections are overcome by simply putting a specified amount of the concentrated fertilizer in just the amount of water required to feed the plants.

No longer need the indoor gardener, with merely a half-dozen plants, worry about where to get manure and where to keep it.

Interest in liquid fertilizers has been greatly stimulated by the publicity given to the water culture of plants. There is nothing new in this method for it has been used for years by experiment stations to determine the relative value of various fertilizing agents.

So-called water culture, however, has no intimate connection with the use of liquid fertilizers in standard soil culture.

Here the readily-absorbable and quickly-acting plant foods possess some unique advantages. If the soil is properly moistened before their application, the nutrients reach the roots rapidly.

Nitrification begins almost immediately, the plant receives nourishment at once and the effects continue for a week or more. Growth is hastened and fruitfulness is increased.

Manure still remains something of a mystery. It never has been analyzed adequately, probably because some of its most important constituents exist in proportions so minute as to defy the chemist.

Manure contains relatively small proportions of nitrogen, phosphorous and potash, not nearly encugh to account for its effects, and yet its ability to maintain soil fertility remains unequalled.

For countless centuries, the human race has depended for its sustenance on lands fertilized cnly with manure, and today such ancient soils show fewer signs of exhaustion than many of our new fields. Manure must contain something, some substance peculiar to itself, that other fertilizers have lacked.

Thanks to the friendly Indians, the Pilgrim fathers early learned of the value of fish as a soil builder and as fertilizer. Just as the processors of meat learned to use much of their waste as a by-product in the making of fertilizer, so, too, is fish used by manufacturers of fertilizers along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

However, it remained for one Californian to put fish, America's first fertilizer, in liquid form. The old gardener has used this emulsion to his satisfaction on tuberous begonias, roses and house plants.

Liquid fertilizers, being highly concentrated, are very powerful and should be treated with respect. Never make stronger than recommended by the maker. In fact, it is better to apply a milder solution once a month than one stronger once a year. The analysis of virtually all liquid fertilizers is similar, they contain nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash in proper strength, plus the minor elements, iron, copper, zinc, boron, manganese and magnesium. Once used, the indoor gardener will never again think of messy liquid manure.

VARIOUS METHODS OF COOKING HEADS, ETC.

Pig's Ears and Feet may be Stewed and Fried. Boil the ears and feet till the bones of the latter nearly drop out. Cut the ears into long narrow strips, and stew them with a little good gravy, half a glass of white wine, pepper, salt, a pinch of cayenne, and a little mustard. While the ears are stewing, split the feet in half, wet them with the yolk of egg, and dredge them with breadcrumbs; then fry them in some nice lard, to a light brown. Serve them nicely ranged round the stewed ears in a dish. Two sets of feet and ears make a good dish.

Calves' Ears may be Stewed for a delicate Side Dish: Take two or four ears, cut off deep and even at the bottom, so that they will stand; clean them well; boil till tender, in milk and water; fill them with a nice Forcemeat; tie them with thread, and stew them in a little of the liquor they were boiled in; season it with pepper, salt, mace, and a small onion minced. Before serving, thicken the sauce with the yolk of an egg, beaten in a little cream. Or, the ears may be filled with a Stuffing of calf's liver, fat bacon, grated ham, bread soaked in cream or gravy, herbs, an unbeaten egg, a little salt, and a small piece of mace. Or, substitute cold chicken for the liver. Or, the ears and stuffing may be rubbed over with egg, and Fried of a light brown.

Hastings' Bogus Dr. Cyr "I Am Studying Medison" A Boast From Denver, 1866

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

Since it is unlikely that the Silent Service (Canadian Edition) will explain how the bogus Dr. Joseph Cyr made a monkey of it, perhaps a similar attempt at impersonation, told in the aspirant's own words with his own spelling, may offer a key to the puzzle.

Before we delve into the private affairs of an ex-resident of Hastings, whom we shall call Mr. J. B. Blank, I may say that it is quite probable that even now some old timer will remember and say how that would be Old So-and-So, and perhaps some one will explain how Mr. Blank made out with his attempt to fool the Yankees.

Writing from Denver City, Colorado Territory, on December 16, 1866, Mr. Blank, inquired first about his wife and family, whom he had left behind him, and then plunged into his narrative:

Know Sunday Here

"Dear Sir;—I now imbrace this opertunity of writing to let you know i am in good health—it is a very different Life that people live here to what the (y) live in Hastings here all men mind their own business and one man Looks at another as though he thought that he was goeing to pick his pocket or shot him there is very littel or so sociability here as every man will cheat a nother if he gets the slightest chance the(y) think nothing off nocking a man down and robing him of all he had, and if he do not be still he gets a bite of lead which finishes him at once. There is know Sunday here, the stores are all open, there is all sorts of musick and bolalleys (bowling alleys?) all running on Sunday. The(y) also have all sorts of churches, but the(y) are of Little or no account as every man here goes in for making money, that is the motto, i expect to stop here to the spring and perhaps longer

"i am making a good living here but i cannot save mutch money as every thing is so dere, i pay $40.00 per month for bed and board washing is from 25c a pease to one dollar, flower is $24.00 a barrel, beef is 25c per lb. and clothing is from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and eighty for a sute of clothes, comon boots is from $12-$25 per pair and everything is in proportion."

"I am studying medison" boasted the far-away Blank, "and i have got some good first class works on medison but i can do no more at the dentil business. i have got $150.00 worth of instrument which i found very hard to procure here."

Brass and Blarney

"Dear friend, there is one favour i wish of you witch i hope you will be abel to accomplish for me the onely thing that stands betwixt me and making money is the want of a diploma if you could get me one and send it to me it would be as good as one thousand dollars per year to me in this country all a man wants is brass in the face and a good share of blarney i thought you might get Dr. Coats or Dr. Wilson of Seymour do all you can for me and i will sell the Yankies the best i can one favour i ask is that you will say nothing of this to anyone and keep it to yourself write soon it maters not about the name on diploma."

I hope Mr. Blank's ghost will not haunt me for making use of his highly interesting and informative communication, preserved among the papers of my grandfather, whom as a magistrate, very likely wrote to his absent townsman warning him of the probable unpleasant consequences and penalties of fraudulent impersonation, particularly of doctors. But beyond this peep into his past, I have no idea what happened in the end to J. B. BLANK, M.D., as he directed his mail should be transcribed.

Two Hastings Doctors

There had been a doctor, or dentist, named Wilson, in Hastings as early as 1853. In the books of the Fowlds store he was charged rent for a house from Sept. 13, 1854 and against that had an account for twenty pounds for attendance on Henry Fowlds and his family at Westwood. But there were so many Wilsons in Asphodel and Otonabee that were not inter-related that it seems hard to identify this particular member, and whether or not he was the Dr. Wilson of Seymour, who was, apparently, dead when the distant Mr. Blank, M.D., wrote from Denver. In fact, Dr. Wilson was a bit of a mystery man himself since the Rev. David McAleese, writing for news of the Presbyterian congregations of Hastings and Norwood, to whom he had ministered in 1853-4, asked "Did Dr. Wilson fail in his lumbering operations, or why did he clear out?"

The other doctor whose diploma was coveted by Mr. Blank of Denver was Dr. Coate, who came to Hastings early in 1861 and whose first patients included Ellen McDonald and Pat Hoolahan, but later on in [illegible] he must have been away. Dr. Poole had a busy time of it and collected a matter of $25 from Frank Mocassin (Morgusson), Henry and James Fowlds and Andy Orr, the great-grandfather of our late Reeve, Art Orr. In June, 1861, Dr. Coate paid $8.00 freight on his furniture down the lake on the Forest City and $1.50 for fares, so probably he had gone to fetch his family. Evidently popular as a doctor he attended Joe White, Joe King, Andy [illegible] again, John Hutchinson, James Doyle, Henry Griggs, Oliver Courtemarche, and Xavier Orishaw.

"Henery and Ritchard"

Dr. Coate also lived in the house now owned by Dr. Hess and apparently died there in 1862. Miss M. E. Blacklock wrote that she did not remember the doctor but knew his daughters, Mamie and Sophie, who moved with their mother to Cobourg afterwards where Mrs. Coate had a private school. They visited in Keene and Hastings, and Miss Eleanor McCrea of Keene will probably remember them.

To return to Mr. Blank of Denver City, who was evidently rather homesick since he inquired about the Hastings Volunteer Company and its captain, Henery and Ritchard Johnson, Mr. Baragen, the Teviotdales, and all inquiring friends, may we leave him with this portscript:

"rite and Let me now all the particulars since i left no more at presen but remains yours truely, J. B. Blank, MD, and be sure to direct to Dr. J. B. Blank, MD, Denver City, Col. Territory."

Wouldn't it be nice to know if he sold the Yankies as well as his present day counterpart, Dr. Joseph Cyr, so-called, sold the Silent Service (Canadian Edition).

Oddfellows Defeat Vics By a 10-6 Verdict In Fine Junior "B" Fray

Johnny Godfrey's colorful Oddfellows treated about 800 fans to a glittering display of junior hockey Friday night at Civic Arena as they defeated Kingston Vics 10-6 in a lightning fast, game that held the crowd on its toes from start to finish. It was father and son night again and hundreds of youthful Peterborough fans, boys and girls, had an opportunity to cheer their favourites to the echo as Oddfellows racked up their fifth win of the season and took firm possession of third place, three points ahead of the Limestone City crew. Play was fast, open and hard throughout and though Links had a telling advantage after an even first frame, Vics fought strongly all the way.

Led The Way

Ab Buckton, start left-winger of the Robinson-Ferguson line, led the local sharpshooters with four sparkling goals and one assist in his most effective offensive effort to date, while every man on the squad continued the kind of teamwork that has proven so fruitful in recent games. Each man pulled his share of the load, both ways.

Action aplenty featured the first frame as both teams stormed to the attack and Oddfellows clicked at the three-minute mark when Buckton nicked the left corner on a whistling 30-foot drive from the pot-side just inside the blue line on a fast rush with his mates. Vics pressed furiously in rebuttal and were finally rewarded midway in the frame when Chevrefils scored on a screened drive about 15 feet out. There was no further scoring in the opener—a clean period as was the entire game.

On The Prowl

Oddfellows opened strongly in the mid-frame to take the lead with the first line setting the pace at the start when Buckton hit the twine early on a rebound from Clapper and Robinson, then followed less than a minute later with a blooping drive from the left boards that found the mesh behind the harassed Senior. Bob Vallier gave Vivs a spark seconds later, as he popped in a neat one close in from Roy; but Bill Stewart returned the delivery as he flew down right-wing to outdistance the pack and parked a flaming drive into the left corner as play reached a withering pace.

Tozer and Chevrefils combined at the three-quarter mark to score the former potting directly in front on a straight pass, close in; but Buster Jensen, who played a smart game and fired three goals, came through on a fast blue line break to cut in on Senior and park a sizzler low into the cage and give his team a 5-3 edge on the frame.

Brian Robinson opened the third with a pair of sterling counters; the first on a picture pass from Buckton to the right of the goal mouth; the second on an Armstrong pass almost identical, from the right side as Links outplayed their rivals by a good margin, at this point. Jensen from Stewart and Buckton from Robinson gave Oddfellows a commanding lead at the eight-minute mark, but Kingston staged a strong rally with some success in the final half as Whyte, Senior and Gerow found the range and Jensen nailed his third from Stewart at 11:15.

Pt. Hope Coach Free Resigns

PORT HOPE, Jan. 12.—Increasing dissension between the players and the executive and among players themselves reached a climax Thursday night when playing coach Doug Free resigned as both player and coach of the Port Hope Redmen. Entered in the OHA Lake Shore League, the Redmen are in third place in the four-team circuit. No replacement has been named.

In tendering his resignation Free said that two or three of the players would not co-operate with him and that they could not take stiff coaching. He refused to join the team as a player only.

Free's work brought him to Port Hope last year from Belleville where he played with the senior "B" club there. Previously he had been a member of the Sudbury team which represented Canada at the Olympics a few years back. He also played hockey in Scotland.

We draw curlers' attention to a very important notice hanging on the notice board. Read it and let your conscience be your guide. It is all about the big three-day bonspiel.

After two days' playing over at Lindsay, B. Dench's rink came in for third prize in the main event. He had on his rink Mrs. G. Renwick, Mrs. C. Coons and C. Coons.

Gar Braund's rink of Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. H. Worton, and Dr. H. Worton came second in the secondary event. Nice going, folks.

Eagles Beaten By Hawks In Extra Heat

Belleville Hawks edged out the Eagles 10-9 in overtime last night in Belleville before 1,200 excited fans. It was the most thrilling game there so far this season, Jackie Wardaugh sinking the winning counter on a pass from Red Doran at 2:10 of the extra period as Keith Montgomery sat it out in the penalty box. Samolenko had tied the count at 9-all with less than two minutes to go of regulation time.

Eagles led 3-2 in the first frame, and each side counted three in the hot middle stanza. Belleville had a 4-3 scoring margin in the sizzling third, and then got the winner in overtime, though Eagles pressed them hard the last seven minutes of that short inning. In a fast, clean game, each side drew but three penalties.

Went Good

The goaltending was good for an open game at a torrid clip. Moher, MacDonald, Doran, Wardhaugh and Goyer carried most of the attack for the Hawks, while Samolenko, Brabin, Greenlaw, Stewart, Wilson and Crowley were all prominent for Ned Vitarelli's pack. The whole team gave it a rousing try to almost upset the Belleville leaders right on their own ice, but that overtime penalty beat them.

Moher scored early from Doran but Eagles drove then for three in a row. Samolenko got in first to register fom Monty and Brabin, Stewart soloed neatly and Greenlaw counted one late on Munroe's good pass. MacDonald got one back from Goyer as the gong went. Semark and Montgomery drew minor penalties in this chukker.

Fred Mortimer tallied to start the second period, Stewart and Greenlaw being in on it. Crowley got through alone for a fast one but then Goyer counted in close on Moher's assist. After Samolenko weaved in to score with Brabin and Wilson, Day dented the twine on Barrett's pass, and MacDonald got one more from Goyer and Wardhaugh. Berwick and Day drew the only period penalties.

Tied It Up

Greenlaw turned on the light for Eagles to begin the third on assists by Fred Mortimer and Stewart. But Hawks flew back for two, Doran on a solo thrust, and MacDonald from Goyer and Moher inside. Hill tallied for Eagles from Vitarelli and Crowley, but Jones hit the mark for Belleville from Doran, and then Goyer put the Hawks in front on Moher's pass with two minutes to go. Eagles drove relentlessly and sewed it up at 18:32 on a neat in-close drive by Samolenko, assisted by Brabin and Wilson. Goyer drew a penalty in this heat.

At 2:10 of the extra inning, with Montgomery in the penance pew, Wardhaugh got right in to smash the rubber into the rigging after taking a pass from Doran. Eagles fought furiously the rest of the way and had Hawks hanging on grimly at the last gong. Teams:

Eagles — Goal, Milne; defence, Montgomery and Munroe; centre, Hill; wings, Crowley and Vitarelli; alternates, Samolenko, Wilson, Berwick, Stewart, Greenlaw, E. Mortimer and Brabin.
Belleville — Goal, Leforte; defence, Semark and Bastedo; centre Moher; wings Goyer and MacDonald; alternates, Jones, Wardhaugh, Doran, Barrett, Day, Graham and Reeves.

Anthony's Hit 3696

Anthony's of the Men's City Bowling League put on a fine bowling display this week as they racked up high pinnage for the season to date of 3,696, displaying the highly regarded McGillis crew which has led the league all year. Led by their captain, Len Anthony, with a neat triple of 823 and a single of 349 for individual scoring honors; it was left for Madill & Post to cop single game with 1,310. Vern Ferguson also of Anthony's had a triple of 812 and single of 305 to close the gap on Claude Cornwell in the average race. Other good single games were rolled by Jack Playford 339; Tic Caccavella 300-316; Jack Wade 305 and Johnny Basciano 292-287.

Clean sweeps were racked up by Bassel's over Moores and Anthony's over Kawartha Garage for 6-0 count as 4-2 win margins were taken by McGillis; Madill & Post and Sunocos over De Laval; Clappers Sports and Bonds respectively.

Deepest sympathy to the family of the late Tom Curvin is extended on behalf of the Men's City Bowling League. He passed away this past week and took away with him the greatest thrill a bowler can have in rolling a perfect game which he did in 1936 at Duffus Alleys.

One of the Old Timers "has gone"; Tom has rolled his last game.

ROCKET RICHARD is home nursing a stomach malady which may be ulcers, or just constant nervous stomach. He will rest for a while. He will be under observation while recuperating. Dick Irvin fears he will be out a month. In the meantime his effort to overhaul the Nels Stewart mark of 323 goals in fourteen years in the NHL will be suspended. The Rocket had only eleven to go to set up a new record.

Bobo Brazil gets another crack at Lord Athol Layton in the pro mat bout here Tuesday night. The popular Bobo used his head—but illegally — to butt down his nibs and the ref here last week after Layton had judo slashed him all over the place, also illegally, so the ref disqualified the big, colored guy. But he got a rematch and thinks he can whip Athol this time if those slashes to the jugular are curbed. Should be quite a match. And this bout has a real supporting semi-final when rough Fred Atkins (the Australian husky) tangles with Chief Suni War Cloud, well-liked Indian grappler. Prelim puts Warren Bockwinkle in against Stan Mayslack to round out a promising mat card.

George Chenier, American snooker champ, was in London, Ont., the other day. Told a story of a chap dropping into a Wingham pool parlor and seeking a game. The native weren't having any part of a strange pool player, especially when a side bet was mentioned. But a bit later in walked a guy who allowed himself to be talked into a game. He even agreed to bet sight unseen on the game up to a hundred smackers. Well! First guy broke the balls and then the late arrival proceeded to clean the table. On investigation, the would-be shark found out he had been playing Chenier. One of the natives knew the champ was in town so he slipped out and phoned him to drop around and pick up some soft dough. We suppose there's a moral there somewhere.

Thev've Got 'Em, Too

"For years," writes the Windsor columnist, "we have been under the impression that newspaper men had a monopoly on all the stomach ulcers in the world. It comes as a rude shock to discover in what a Fool's Paradise we have been suffering. The blow is not softened to find out that the other segment of the human race laying claim to this affliction as an occupational hazard are all pension-seeking members of the Friendly Brotherhood of Hockey Coaches." He goes on then to list some of the unfortunate coaches. Ulcers, we believe, are encouraged by hurry and worry, and we suppose puck coaches are fair targets. Wonder how the stomachs of Jim Ellis, Ned Vitarelli and Johnny Godfrey are standing the pace this cold semester.

Belleville Hawks tackle the Petes at 8.30 Monday night in Civic Arena, a rather important senior "B" fray. These teams lately have been battling it out for top spot in the keen group race in Central Ontario, with first one and then the other taking over the high rung, though sometimes they share it uncomfortably with each other for a few days. Quinte crew figure they have more success as a general rule when playing Petes than they have against Eagles, and they think they can take the Ellis outfit right here. Well, we'll see what's what on Monday. This struggle deserves a goodly gallery of fans.

Two Of Our Teams Won

Accounts of local OHA games last evening are in elsewhere, and we won't go into detail on 'em here. Oddfellows won a neat junior "B" one over Kingston Vics 10-6 before 800 fans to take a firm grip on third place in their group standing. They tackle Lindsay here next Wednesday. The Quinte juniors edged Lindsay 7-6 last gloaming. Belleville had to go overtime on home ice in their senior "B" fixture to yank out a 10-9 decision over Eagles in a terrific tussle. Meantime, Petes were flying high in Kingston to take a 9-3 victory. That leaves Belleville still atop with 20 points, Petes with 18, Kingston 13 and Eagles 11. Only game coming up early in the week is the Hawks-Petes' joust here Monday.

* * * * * *

Lots of basketball activity around and about this weekend, the results of games here last gloaming being in this p.m. At Lindsay, St. Peter's took part in a triple-header, but only the SPS juniors won out. Senior and bantam Saints dropped decisions to strong Scugog squads. There's an Eastern Ontario group fixture tonight at eight in the YMCA between Trenton Flyers and Outboard Marines, a classy male cage crew. Nurses and Lindsay pick up their postponed girls' game Monday night in the YWCA. There'll be plenty of hoop tussles at home and away for the girls, the Marines, PCVS and SPS teams from now on till spring comes to the land.

Ryan May Lose Licence After Fisticuffs

By MURRAY ROSE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP). — State boxing boss Bob Christenberry was ready to revoke manager Tommy Ryan's licence today and possibly plaster him with a big fine for his assault on referee Ray Miller in a wild aftermath to the Ernie Durando-Rocky Castellani fight in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The raging manager stormed into the ring and threw punches at Miller seconds after the referee had stopped the fight at 2:04 of the seventh round of a 10 rounder and awarded a technical knockout to Durando over Castellani, Ryan's fighter.

Castellani had just staggered to his feet at nine after being clipped with a terrific right uppercut when Miller intervened.

"I stopped it because Castellani would have been hurt," Miller said. "You know how hard Durando can punch."

This observer and an overwhelming majority of ringside writers agreed that the referee acted wisely.

Hard Hitter

Durando, a stocky, powerful puncher from Bayonne, NJ, is one of the hardest hitters in the middleweight ranks.

Christenberry suspended Ryan on the spot, ordered Castellani's purse of some $7,000 held up, and advised Ryan by telegram to appear at a 10:30 am (EST) hearing at the commission offices today.

Asked if he planned to take away Ryan's licence, Christenberry said:

"Yes. I'll do everything in my power to see that he regrets creating such a disorderly scene."

Ryan, who lives in Teaneck, NJ, had left the Garden by the time Christenberry decided to hold the hearing today. At first he had ordered one for next Friday.

Before quitting the Garden, the fuming manager threw some more punches — this time at matchmaker Al Weill.

Hugh Bradley, of The New York Journal-American, and some other boxing writers were present in Castellani's dressing room when Weill entered.

Bradley said Ryan kicked and bounced the middle-aged bespectacled matchmaker; knocked his glasses off and cut his face. Weill declined to name his assailant and said he would not press any charges.

Rocky, who weighed 158½ to Durando's 157½, was a 9 to 5 favorite. He had looked like a sure winner through the first five rounds. He seemed a breeze to sweep his 11th straight win and his second over Durando whom he had whipped two years ago.

Art Ross To Coach US Olympic Team

BOSTON, Jan. 12 (AP). —Boston Bruins' general manager Art Ross will return to the coaching bench after a 10-year lapse to pilot an all star college club against the United States Olympic hockey team Jan. 18.

Ross, one of the game's great bench bosses, agreed Friday night to run the collegians.

The Olympians got a good workout Friday night as they bowed to the Boston Bruins 7-4 for their second loss in nine games on a New England fund-raising tour. The contest added about $1,000 to the team's fund for its trip to Oslo, Norway, for the winter games next month.

Manager Bob Ridden of the Olympic squad said forward Dave Hackett, former McGill University star from Dedham, Mass., has been added to the team.

Two Sign Contracts

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP). — New York Giants announced today they had received the signed contracts of Don Mueller, the club's regular rightfielder, and Jake Schmitt, rookie pitcher who was with Baltimore last season. The Giants have brought their list of farm clubs to 13 by signing a working agreement with Kingsport, Tenn., of the Class-D Appalachian League.

Petes Down Kingston 9-3 In Kingston To Keep On Hawks' Heels

KINGSTON, Jan. 12 (ENS)—The high-flying Petes walloped Kingston Sacs 9-3 here last night in an OHA senior "B" fixture before 830 fans. The win kept the Ellis squad up in second place, two points back of the leading Belleville team, while Kingston remains in third position. It was a fast, rugged encounter, with the Petes having a good margin on play most of the distance. Goalie Don Dougall was hurt on the knee halfway through the first period and had to retire, Anderson replacing him between the pipes.

Early Lead

The Petes took an early lead and never looked back as they played sound hockey going both ways and had nifty netminding by Young Byers, sub-goalie for Ray Harding. Dugan, Steele, Gus Leonard and Wade were prominent on the attack for the winners, while Ohlke, McGregor and Murray looked best for the losers.

Collins started the Petes off early with a neat one in close from Garvey, and later Wade made it 2-0 on a neat solo. Dugan followed up with a fast thrust on a pass from Mason to make it 3-0, and Steele closed off the period in the final minute with a quickie unassisted after Anderson took over in the home cage. White, Stewart and Goodfellow drew penalties as the K's roughed it up somewhat.

Closer In Second

Kingston drove harder in the second to whittle the lead some, White tallying first from Murray, and McGregor later getting right in to sink the rubber on a play started by White and Sweetman. West got that one back shortly on a three-way rush with Gus Leonard and Steele. Collins, Floyd, Larmer, Dugan and Gus Leonard drew penalties, the Petes' sentences hurting in this frame.

Again the Petes pounded in there through the third to dominate play easily. Dugan and Steele got neat ones unassisted before Ohlke hit the mark with McGregor's pass. But the visitors were not to be stopped and they pushed two more home before the finish. Gus Leonard got through neatly to slap home Wade's pass, and then Steele finished proceedings with a smart tally from Horton. The latter drew a penalty, Larmer, Collins and Aitken also serving sentences, and Goodfellow being chased twice through

Richard's Stomach Ache Rumbles Through NHL

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The rumblings of a stomach-ache which may or may not prove expensive to the third-place Montreal Canadiens can be heard these days all the way around the National Hockey League. But don't take it too seriously. Although X-rays, proddings and medical conferences have failed to come up with an answer to Maurice Richard's mysterious pains, the league's top right winger is still sitting on the sidelines. He complains of stomach cramps while Montreal coach Dick Irvin moans that the Rocket will be out of action at least a month.

The average fan doesn't seem too concerned though. He's sitting back to watch the fun. This weekend may see some of the best.

While Chicago moves into Montreal tonight against the Richardless Canadiens, Detroit's mighty Red Wings will meet the second-place Maple Leafs at Toronto. The Leaf-Wing battle may be a preview of the Stanley Cup finals.

Sunday, Toronto plays at Detroit while Chicago moves into Boston and Montreal engage the fourth-place Rangers in New York. The Gotham game may prove to be the best of the weekend.

Not Caught Napping

When Dick Irvin made the tearful announcement that Richard would be out of action for at least a month with his stomach ailment, Rangers' manager Frank Boucher retorted that his club was not going to be caught napping by the Montreal mentor's laments.

"We expect Richard to play, and to play well, against us Sunday night," Boucher said. "We are not going to be lulled into a false sense of security by Irvin's cry-baby acts, which contribute nothing to the promotion and advancement of hockey.

"For a long time Dick Irvin and his Montreal Canadiens have been the NHL's worst cry-babies. They've proved it again now by announcing Richard has a belly-ache which will keep him out of action for at least a month."

Irvin didn't waste any time in replying to that one though. Friday night the silver-haired Canadiens' coach vowed he would take Richard's place on Montreal's first line if the Rangers' coach, Bill Cook, would appear in Blueshirt uniform.

Take To Ice

Boucher, in the official position of coat-holder, quickly snapped up the offer. He knows a crowd-pleaser when he sees one.

"You can tell Mr. Irvin," orated Boucher, "that while I can't talk for Bill Cook, I will guarantee if he will skate out in Canadiens' uniform Sunday night, Bill Cook will skate out at the same time in Ranger uniform and make him look sick.

"After all, Cook always made Irvin look sick when they played against each other. It will be an old story for Bill."

Interest will be high tonight when Detroit skates into Toronto. There'll be many a fan wondering what the trailing Hawks can do in Montreal. But tomorrow all eyes will turn toward New York.

Will Irvin dress? What number will he wear?

Will Bill Cook lace on his skates? What position will he play?

Or will Maurice Richard's tummy-ache be all better and the famous Rocket be back with the Habs in their fight for second place?

Hornets Drop Bears In AHL Tilt

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets held a 12-point lead over Cleveland Barons in the western division of the American Hockey League today.

The Hornets, who still have not reached double figures in the loss column, defeated the Hershey Bears, eastern section leaders 4-1 in the only game scheduled Friday night.

The Hornets netted two goals in each of the first two periods, then stayed back and tried to help goalie Gil Mayer to a shutout. At the 16-minute mark in the third period, however, Ray Barry of the losers slapped one past Mayer.

Pittsburgh marksmen were George Armstrong, Ray and Gordon Hannigan and Tim Horton.

Jesus Called His Disciples To Become Fishers Of Men

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

"Come ye after Me," said Jesus, to the four fishermen, Peter, Andrew, James and John, whom He called to be His first apostles, "And I will make you to become fishers of men (Mark 1: 18-20).

Jesus always taught by examole as well as by precept, and His ability and power to teach the fishing for men was demonstrated in His successfully securing these four.

It seems obvious, I think, that there was something more to the incident, and the calling of these four, who were to occupy such a foremost place in the Gospel story, than appears in the bald and direct way in which both Mark and Matthew (4:18-25) have related the story.

Luke 5:1-11 considerably enlarges upon it, with the incident of the catching of a multitude of fishes, after they had toiled all night and caught nothing.

John, too, in John 1:35-42 has a somewhat different, and illuminating account of the calling of Andrew and Peter. I call this account "illuminating" because it suggests that there was more to the sudden call and decision by the lakeside than just a young man coming by calling to four young men, and their immediately leaving their nets and their work to follow Him.

Andrew and Peter, James and John, probably knew more concerning Jesus than appears in the narrative of Mark and Matthew. They no doubt had heard of Him; probably they knew of John the Baptist. They may have been among the people who "were in expectation" (Luke 3:15); they may have been of the patriots who were dreaming of shaking off the Roman power, and setting up a Jewish kingdom.

We do know from the later account that their vision was of an earthly kingdom in which they honed to have place and power.

What is significant is that the thrust of ambition, the fishermen's daring and patience, the initiative, and capacity for leadership, that Jesus perceived in them, all became sanctified and enriched as they became detached from personal ambition and the idea of worldly power, and became dominated by devotion to the Gospel of love and redemption.

I wonder what innate capacities, or unused powers, Jesus would perceive in you and me, if we, similarly, should find our vision enlarged, and our devotion attuned to His supreme mission and purpose in the Gospel business of becoming fishers of men!

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIV. No. 10 — SATURDAY, JANUARY 12, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

ELECTED FOR FIRST TIME

Charles J. Watkins who was on Monday elected a member of the board of School Area No. 2 Douro was not seeking re-election as previously stated in the Examiner but was a candidate for the first time.

LIVING BONUS

A $100 cost-of-living bonus was granted all 33 high school teachers in the district at the Victoria County District High School board meeting Wednesday. It was also decided to raise the salary schedule to pay specialists and heads of departments an additional $100 per year.

VETERAN BOWLER

B. Dench, 79, Lakefield, was a member of the third place rink at the Walkwood bonspiel held this week. The veteran curler was up at 5:30 am, did the chores and then drove 33 miles to Lindsay, playing two games Thursday and two games Friday. He does his curling in Peterborough.

PLAN NEW RINK

Tweed is planning to build a new rink, replacing the old one that collapsed recently. The Tweed branch of the Canadian Legion has offered to take responsibility for planning the project. Cost of a new rink is estimated at $35,000.

FIRE SPOILS PIES

An oven fire ruined a batch of pies Friday that had been made by Mrs. Weldon MacCourt, 485 Bolivar St. Mrs. MacCourt left the pies in the oven while she visited a neighbor and when she returned the oven was afire. Fearing that the blaze might spread she called the fire department.

ASK TWUA MONEY AID

Lionel Jones, president of Local 743, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO-CCL) has asked the seven Ontario joint boards of the union for financial assistance. The money is for Mrs. Josephine Doan who lost her home and all her possessions in the Campbellford fire two weeks ago. Mrs. Doan is employed at the Campbellford Cloth Co. and is a member of Local 743. The company directors have already contributed a cheque for $250 and the Trent Valley Joint Board of TWUA has also made a donation.

Scarlet Fever Disappearing As Health Threat

Scarlet fever is fighting a losing battle in Peterborough according to Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH.

And he should know, for all cases of communicable diseases (and scarlet fever is certainly a communicable disease) are reported to him.

Fast disappearing are the days when people are terrified of the symptoms—nausea, temperature, headache, sore throat and a scarlet rash—which used to mean that a case of scarlet fever had set in.

Dr. Kelly has realized for the past few years that scarlet fever was on the way out, but it was the comparative scarcity of this disease in 1951 that really proved this was so.

17 In Year

The past year saw only 17 people suffering from this disease. For five months of the year there were no cases in the city. Seven years ago (1945) there were 35 cases.

Not only is the disease becoming scarcer in quantity, but its quality is also diminishing so to speak. For the MOH reports that the wonders of medical science with the discovery of penicillin and other new drugs have reduced it from a serious illness of two weeks to a mere annoying nuisance of three or four days.

Change Methods

Gone are the days when the family doctor injected an antitoxin as a cure which quite often caused the patient more suffering and discomfort than the disease itself. Also, those serious after effects that often used to play havoc with ears, kidneys and heart are no more.

The winning battle against this disease was heralded with a special event Friday. Dr. Kelly took down the scarlet placard quarantining the only case of scarlet fever in the city—a hangover from 1951.

100 Volunteers Build Home For Burned-Out Family

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 12 (ENS)—Campbellford's community spirit made itself manifest when more than 100 volunteers went to the scene of the fire that earlier this week destroyed a four roomed house and left a family of six homeless. The workers propose to build, from the ground up, and to completely furnish, a four roomed home. The furnishing will be simple, but will include everything from a tooth brush holder to a stove. It will be built on the style of a cottage.

The home will be completely insulated, and all this will be accomplished before sundown this evening.

Began Friday

The preliminary work was begun on Friday afternoon, when workers started clearing away the debris of the fire and levelling the ground with a bulldozer. A local lumber company has provided the lumber at less than cost, and citizens have donated furniture and other household necessities including clothing.

Members of various local organizations will be on hand to serve meals to the workers, and free transportation will be provided for workers to and from the site, which is about two miles north of the town.

H. S. Staples, chairman of the Emergency Relief Committee and the Campbellford Citizens Association has been busy with his committee arranging the affair and expects everything to run smoothly. A large moving van of Meyer's Transport was standing by early this morning, waiting for the roof to be completed on the building, in order that the load of furniture could be moved into the new house.

The project displays what can be accomplished when a group of citizens work together in a spirit of co-operation.

Dog Corners Fox Man Gets Bount'

You don't have to be a sportsman—in the accepted meaning of the word—to pick up your $3 fox bounty.

G. W. Booth of Woodview collected his bounty when he found that a dog had caught a fox on the 5th concession of Burleigh township. Mr. Booth beat the fox to death with a stick.

Just what the dog got out of the transaction has not been disclosed.

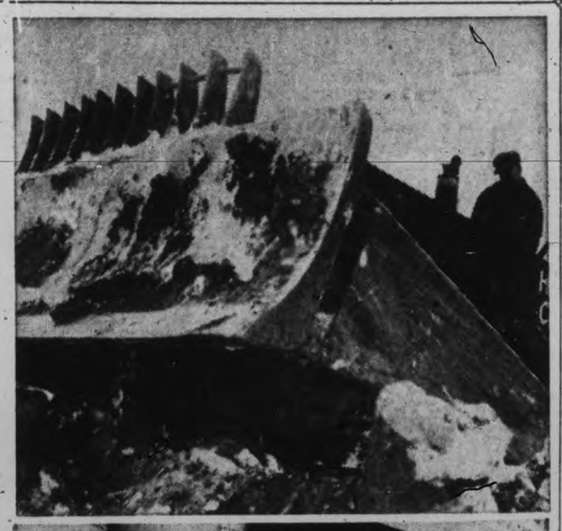
A South Monaghan man, A. Sanderson of RR 1, struck a fox and killed it as he drove along a road in Otonabee. So far as the county is concerned that's just as good as bagging the animals with sporting rifles, or trapping them.

Paid Out $132

This week the county clerk and treasurer paid out $132 on 44 pelts that were brought in Thursday. That's the most number of pelts since the bounty became payable on Dec. 1.

Top marksman of the week is Dow Taylor, Curve Lake, who shot eight foxes in Harvey township.

Here is the list of bounty winners: Ken Wellman, Hastings, one shot in Asphodel township; William J. Shearer, Otonabee, one shot in Otonabee; Joseph Condon, Peterborough, one shot in Douro; G. W. Booth, Woodview, killed one with stick in Burleigh; Elwood Coppaway, Curve Lake, three shot in Smith township; R. C. Smith, Peterborough, seven shot in Otonabee; Percy Thompson, Burleigh-Anstruther, one shot in Burleigh; Erie Pearson, RR 1, Lakefield, one shot in Smith; Bill Wood, RR 1, Peterborough, one shot in Otonabee; A. Sanderson, RR 1, South Monaghan, killed one with car; Stewart Whittington, RR 6, Otonabee, two shot in Otonabee; Howard Connelly, RR 1, Coe Hill, one shot in Chandos; Howard Robinson, Bridgenorth, five shot in Otonabee and two in Douro; Arthur Hannon, RR 1, Norwood, two shot in Dummer; Dow Taylor, Curve Lake, eight shot in Harvey; Ben Taylor, Curve Lake, five shot in Harvey.



This brings the total bag since Dec. 1 to 79 foxes.

The $3 bounty will be paid out by the county clerk and treasurer on Thursdays only. The pelt must be cleaned and dried when it is brought in.

The county will cease paying the county Feb. 28.

Wrong Again

People who expected consistently correct time from the shiny new clock in the shiny new tower of the new city hall have been consistently disappointed. The clock is seldom accurate. Usually it is running about three or four minutes ahead. Perhaps it is set that way deliberately to help visitors to the city hall keep their appointments on time.

Iron Deposit At Marmora Readying For First Blast To Start Digging For Ore

MARMORA, Jan. 12 (Staff)—Marmora's iron mine is taking shape. Within a month, a dynamite blast will shatter the first few tons of the 2,500,000-ton limestone cap that covers the millions of tons of low-grade ore. Work is moving quickly. At the site of the mine, more than 100 acres of land have been cleared. Much of this land, now frozen and snow-covered, was mere woodland a few months ago.

Railway Siding

A new road has been bulldozed from the site, half-a-mile north to Highway 7. A utility building, 200 by 40 feet, is being built about 200 yards east of the ore body. To the south, a railway siding is laid out.

On the west side of the road, enough land has been cleared for the beginnings of a townsite.

For the future, there is planned:

A smelter, to be built near the siding.

Three more buildings for machines, office workers, and garage workers.

Those buildings are for the near future. And in addition to them, Bethlehem plans nine houses for senior staff employees.

Extent of the ore body at the site southeast of Marmora has been expertly guessed at by engineers. They estimate it would take 20 to 25 years to empty the body even if they could take a quarter-million tons daily. Actual production will be nowhere near this figure.

That's a lot of iron ore. But the iron ore is low-grade, and so far, only guesses can be made to the eventual value of the mine.

Open Pit Mine

It will be an open pit mine. That is, there will be no shaft sunk. The mine will be a hole in the ground, but it will be a big hole in the ground.

Estimated measurements of the ore body place its size at 1,200 feet by 2,500 feet. The hole on the surface will be a good deal larger, and it will go 475 feet deep.

When the mine hits its full stride, between 200 and 300 workers will be employed there. That is looking into the future, but it will occur in time.

Already, the bustle of a new industry hat hit this small town in Hastings county. People are talking about the mine, discussing it and looking to see what it is going to do to their small community on Highway 7.

The first two pieces of machinery have already arrived: A road grader painted bright yellow and a bright blue air compressor stand outside the metal-roofed building that workers are completing.

It is a massive operation for the district. Turning off Highway 7 onto the mine road, the driver sees first the shining, corrugated roof of the utility building, and the acres of cleared land.

To the south, beyond the railway siding, are wooded hills that looked blue-green and white in Friday's dark, cold weather. There was a promise of prosperity in the air.

Elderly Couple Hurt In Crash

A husband and wife from Hamilton township were both hospitalized Friday when their car collided head-on with a transport truck on Highway 2.

Taken to Port Hope hospital were Mrs. Bess Wallace, 61, RR 1 Cobourg, with a deep cut over her right eye, and other facial and head cuts; and her husband, William, 73, a wrenched right shoulder. Both suffered from shock but neither is in serious condition.

The accident was four miles west of Welcome. Mrs. Wallace was driving east and started down the Roseberry Hill incline. A westbound Smith transport, driven by Earl D. Clark, Toronto, was coming up the hill.

A car following the Wallaces suddenly braked as it started down the hill. The brakes didn't hold and the vehicle struck the Wallace car, shunting it out in front of the transport which was carrying a 15-ton load.

Both of the Wallaces were injured in the crash. Mrs. Wallace's injuries were mainly from flying glass. Their car received about $550 damage.

Clark, the transport driver, was uninjured. And the transport received minor damage — dented left front fender, and a bent bumper and running board.

OPP Constable Lorne Galbraith, Bowmanville, investigated.

S-O-S

Three young men holding a meeting in the basement of the library Thursday night came upstairs to find that they had been locked in and the place deserted. They couldn't get out any of the doors. When a trio of men coming from the collegiate appeared across the street, they banged on the doors to attract them and then asked them to go for help. Some time elapsed before the caretaker could be tracked down and in the meantime the trapped men were pleading for more help by blinking the globe lights on the steps of the library in the S-O-S code.

County Council Meets Tuesday Name Warden

First duty of Peterborough's 1952 county council when it holds its inaugural meeting Tuesday afternoon will be to choose a warden. And there is considerable speculation in rural areas on whom the choice will be.

Peter Pearson, reeve of Galway-Cavendish, was the warden in 1951.

There is some indication that both Reeve Dick Stewart, Otonabee township, and Reeve Ernest J. Leeson, Havelock village, will let their names stand, if nominated. But neither has said so publicly.

The last Otonabee warden was Peter J. Mather who was elected in 1943, and Ernest W. Seeney, reeve of Havelock, was county warden in 1941.

38 Years Without a Warden

Harvey township has not had a reeve elected warden in 38 years. The last man to hold that post in Harvey was the veteran county councillor Robert Shaw. He was elected in 1914.

Charles Flynn, the present reeve, has given no indication of his intentions.

Three other municipalities have also gone unrepresented on the wardens' roll during the last 20 years or more.

Belmont-Methuen has not had a reeve elected warden since J. F. Breckenridge took the chair in 1929. Norris Whitney, 1952 reeve of Belmont-Methuen, is a newcomer and it is unlikely he will contest the wardenship, even if nominated.

The same situation exists as far as Lakefield is concerned. The 1952 reeve, Elwood E. Nortney, is taking his seat in county council for the first time. Lakefield has not had a warden since Charles S. Tanner in 1931.

And it is exactly 20 years since Norwood has been represented The present reeve, Rork Ferguson was warden in 1934 when he represented Asphodel township. Mr. Ferguson has several times suggested that the standing committee chairmanships should go to younger men; so it is doubtful if he will allow his name to stand for warden.

The last warden from Chandos was Russel Hales in 1935. James Gifford, now beginning his 19th term as reeve of Ennismore, was warden in 1936. Whether he would allow his name to stand again this year could be one of the question marks when council meets Tuesday.

Another possible "dark horse" is Willard G. Waterman, reeve of North Monaghan. Mr. Waterman is beginning his second year as reeve but he is a former deputy reeve and a veteran municipal councillor.

Credit Moves May Boost Sale Of Cars

18 Months To Pay May End Slump In Selling

Modified consumer-credit restrictions extending the time in which the customer must pay the bill are expected to give new and used car dealers in Peterborough new life.

Thursday the federal government eased the restrictions on automobiles by extending the payment period to 18 from 12 months. But the down payment was left at 50 per cent and the minimum payments at $10 a month or $2.50 a week. The modifications take effect Monday.

A survey of car dealers revealed that during the period when the 12-month restriction prevailed used car sales slumped considerably.

One dealer said, "We had a fair month in December but were down on the year's total sales. The 12-month restriction on payments certainly curtailed business."

Hit High-Priced Cars

Another dealer pointed out that the more expensive car, from the 1946 models and up, were hit harder than the cheaper and older cars.

"During that time the market was much better for the older cars than the newer; it really hit the high-priced cars."

He admitted that his sales since last March slumped about 25 per cent as compared with the same period during 1950.

When asked if they expected business to pick up due to the modifications, most of the dealers answered, "I sure hope so".

"For this time of year the sales have not been too bad; the restrictions definitely had a bearing on them. We're expecting the sales to pick up, but it's hard to say when."

The dealer added that although modified restrictions are not in effect until Monday "we've had a few inquiries."

"The people were holding off during the period in which 12-month payment scheme was in effect, but now they can work a deal. It's still 50 per cent down, but the 18-month period will help."

Two dealers believe the modified restrictions will not help sales right away because these months are the poorest during the year.

"I don't expect too much relief in sales until March", said another dealer.

Saints Capture One Tilt In Three Frays

St. Peter's dropped two of three basketball fixtures to Lindsay last evening in cage play on the Lindsay floor. The local seniors took the short side of 56-19 count, the SPS juniors won 33-30, while the bantam Saints lost out 31-12.

McDuffy, Maidens, Graham and Logan were the big snipers for the Lindsay seniors, who showed plenty of power on the attack and also checked well. Farley led the losers with nine points, Jones getting six and O'Leary four. Logan, McDuffy and Maidens each counted 12 points and Graham 10 with some fancy work under the basket.

St. Peter's juniors had to hustle to earn their win in a fine fray. Simmons and Galvin each counted nine points for the victors and Legrow was good for six as the whole team battled hard. Graham led Lindsay with 10 points as Leal got eight and Traux five.

G. Simmonds had seven for SPS bantams and Killen six but Lindsay dominated play in the last half to roll up the tally. Truax was the big sniper for them with 14 points, Laidley being good for six and Webster five as they drove hard after the rest intermission to break up a neat cage contest.

THAT FINGER DID IT—Bryon Young (4) for the PCVS senior "A" Garnet and Grey cagers jutted his finger out in time as he flew past the Marines' Hugh Dibben Friday night at the collegiate. That finger stopped the ball in its flight for the basket. But that one field goal didn't matter for the Marines went on to win easily 52-34.

The third period got under way with some good hockey, and at 5.00 minute mark J. Barr scored to make it two for Buckhorn. At 18.06 S. McNaughton was given a tripping penalty and while he was serving it, B. Shearer tied it up. The period ended with a 3-3 tie.

Tamworth Defeats Bancroft 9 to 3

BANCROFT, Jan. 12—(ENS)—The largest crowd of the current season saw Tamworth win from Bancroft Pontiacs by a score of 9 to 3 in a Hastings-Addington Hockey League game in the local arena Thursday night.

This win brought Tamworth into a tie with Bancroft for first place in the loop, as both teams now have four points.

A goal-hungry crew from the neighbouring county started the game by crowing around Pontiac's goal like a swarm of hornets buzzing around a hive. Before the first period was over the visitors had scored five times and put the game on ice.

Markle and Marshall were the stars of the game. They skated miles each way, backchecked at every opportunity, did almost everything but flood the rink, and each flashed the red light three times. The other Tamworth goals were by Brady, Weiss and Cox.

For Bancroft Stewart Stringer and Norman Bough scored in the second and Ted Maxwell in the third.

Lineups:

Tamworth—Goal, Storings; defence, Hinch and Jones; centre, Fisher; wings, Markle and Cox; alternates, Brody, Marshall, Weiss and Reynolds. Mgr. Davidson; coach, Rambeau.

Bancroft Pontiacs—Goal, Young; defence, Stringer and McAlpine; centre, E. Brough; wings, N. Brough and Delyea; alternates, Hattin, Dugald, Bruce, T. Maxwell, G. Maxwell, Stuckey, Green, Hogarth and D. Maxwell; mgr. Shapiro; coach, Tanner.

Referees, Fitzpatricak of Belleville and Follis of Bancroft.

Time-keeprs, H. Kirk of Tamworth and E. Mather of Bancroft.

Warsaw Triumphs

WARSAW, Jan. 12 (ENS). — In an EPL game here last night, Warsaw beat St. Peter's 8-1 before a fair crowd. It was a better game than the score indicates. L. Lonsberry scored from Eadie and Evans got one from Paterson in the first inning, as Basciano tallied for Saints on a pass from O'Donnell. L. Lonsberry added two and Evans got one in the second, Paterson helping on two and M. Batten on one. Paterson, S. Lonsberry and Paterson again were the snipers in the third, L. Lonsberry and McMillan each having one assist. The losers drew six of the 10 penalties. Paterson was in on five goals, L. Lonsberry four and Evans two. Teams:

St. Peter's: Basciano, Bacon, Crough, Conway, J. Basciano, Vyse, Richardson, Killen, Collins, Alberico, O'Donnell, O'Connell, Berry, Brioux, Morrissey.

Warsaw: W. Payne, G. Payne, Eadie, Paterson, L. Lonsberry, S. Lonsberry, Evans, Watts, Clements, E. Payne, McMillan, M. Batten, W. Batten.

Referee: J. McNamara; linesman, W. Flint.

YOUNGEST SKIER—Lucille Wheeler, 16-year-old Canadian Olympic junior entrant, is the youngest skier to be sent by Canada to the Olympics. She is a four-time winner of the Tachereau downhill and was a triple winner in the Junior Dominion Championships when only 14.

Quinte Juniors Get Win Over Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 12— (ENS)—A last-minute goal by Gilmour gave Belleville's junior "B" hockey team a 7-6 win over the Lindsay Kinsmen Friday night in Lindsay.

Lindsay had fought an uphill battle in the third period which netted them four goals to tie the score six-all. But McDonald of Lindsay received a penalty for elbowing and Gilmour on a passing play with Brown and Green notched the winning tally at the 19-minute mark.

The Kinsmen pulled goalie McGuire out for the remaining minute but the strategy failed to work.

Belleville skated fast and passed neatly to outplay Lindsay during the first two periods. During that time they built up a 4-2 score in the first period and added two more in the second.

Players from both teams shared the scoring honors when Carey of Belleville and Dysart of Lindsay each performed hat-tricks.

Lineups —Lindsay—goal, McGuire; defence, Shervington, Lucas; centre, Powell; wings, Schinkel, Dysart; alt., Hall, Copeland, Deeth, Vasey, Smith, McDonald, Marshall, Cameron.

Belleville—goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, Green; centre, LaLonde; wings, DeGray, Doran; alt., Brown, Munroe, Mason, Therrien, Gilmour, Carey, Houle.

Havelock Boys Defeat Hastings

HASTINGS, Jan. 12—(ENS)—Hastings intermediates just lacked that extra kick Thursday night as Havelock came out on top with a 6-4 count in local arena.

It was a fast, well played game, by far the best the local fans have seen this season. Red Hill was in the nets for the first time for the locals.

Goal-tending has been one of the bugbears of Manager Peck, but Hill looks like a fixture.

Hastings—Goal, Hill; defence, Nichols, Taylor; centre, Stevenson; wings, Oliver, Morrow; alternates, Calby, Isaacs, Crawley, Jeffs, White, Herrington, Huard, Petticrew.

Lakefield Victors

KEENE, Jan. 12 (ENS)—Lakefield took an 11-8 EPL win here over the Otonabee Combines before a large crowd last night. It was a swell tussle, well-handled, with Lakefield driving hard toward the finish to yank out the verdict. Play was fairly clean throughout.

Cowie counted three goals and Davidson one for Keene in the first, Stock aiding on two, and Kempt and Shearer one each. Lakefield also got four, Henry hitting the twine twice, and Birch and Chittick once each, the latter also having two assists, as had McIlmoyle, with Wanamaker in on one.

Whaley from Kempt, and Gooley from Davidson added two for Keene next heat, but Lakefield scored four. McIlmoyle, Henry, Wilford and Chittick tallied, the latter having one assist, McIlmoyle and Birch one, and Henry two. Cowie and Brown counted in the third for Keene, Stock, Close and Cowie earning an assist each. Henry hit the mark twice for Lakefield and Chittick once. The latter aided on two and Birch and McIlmoyle one each. Teams:

PCVS Cagers Pull Out Close Victory

Basketball games rarely are more exciting than the opening collegiate cage game Friday night in the PCVS gym. In one of the most exciting finishes in past seasons the Jack Cullis-coached junior "A" Garnet and Grey edged Oshawa collegiate juniors 35-33.

The second game saw the powerful Marines, intermediate "B" team, hand the senior "A" Garnet and Gray a 52-34 setback in their 1952 season's debut.

The junior game stole the show from the older boys' game in the last second, PCVS leading 31-29, Oshawa's Sutherland dropped in the tying basket as the final whistle blew. In the first three minutes of overtime, unusual in Peterborough basketball, first Oshawa scored, then in the final minute of that session Armstrong tied the score 33-all forcing another overtime period.

But the game was soon to end; Danny Griffin in five seconds of the second overtime period dropped in the winning basket with ease.

Oshawa actually was far from PCVS equal. The student-coached Motor City cagers were poor on both the passing and shooting but knew enough to make the best of every opportunity. The opportunities were many in the fourth quarter when PCVS' passing and shooting was off and Oshawa crept up to tie the score.

The teams battled on even terms throughout the first half keeping the large tsudent crowd yelling throughout and the score ended even at 16-all. But PCVS broke loose in the third quarter to take a 10-point lead at the quarter 29-19.

Sutherland led the Oshawa rally in the fourth and topped off his dribbling and scoring performance with the tying basket. PCVS just managed to keep the tie on two foul shots on which they were poor throughout the game.

Experience Pays Off

The second game between the Marines and the PCVS senior "A" team saw the experienced Marines slowly work up a healthy lead which was never threatened after midway through the third quarter.

The seven-man collegiate team thanks to the accurate shooting of Don Ash and Lionel Hempstead kept the Garnet and Grey in the game during the first quarter which ended 12-10 for the Marines. Foul shots by Joe Stewart and his teammates enabled them to hold the slim lead.

But the Marines with Hugh Dibben, Ab Stewart and Neil Thompson leading the way began to add to the score early in the third. They took a 19-point lead by Ted Cranfield on long shots and Lionel Hempstead from close in whittled that lead to eight points at the three-quarter mark 39-31.

The fourth quarter saw the Marines tighten on the defence, saw the collegians miss on their shooting and passing and saw the Marines add 13 more points to PCVS' three.

JIMMY "GOGGLES" McCOY, 50-year-old grandfather, returned to active racing this year at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, and has a perfect record so far with two winning mounts. McCoy got his nickname of "Goggles" back in 1924 when he appeared in a race wearing goggles to protect his eyes from flying clods of dirt. He was one of the first jockeys to sport the protective eye gear.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The touring world champion Edmonton Mercurys Friday night trounced Falkirk (Scotland) Lions 9-2 in the third game of their exhibition hockey swing through Europe.

Centre Billy Gibson and right-winger Gordon Robertson picked up two goals apiece in the one-sided contest.

The win gave Mercurys, Canada's contender for Olympic hockey honors in the tests at Oslo starting Feb. 13, a clean slate in their pre-championship tour. Earlier they beat Ayr Raiders 6-3 and Perth Panthers 9-8.

The Montreal Forum, home of the National Hockey League's Canadiens, Friday announced winger Maurice Richard will be given X-rays in an attempt to locate the cause of the stomach pains which have plagued him recently.

Richard reported to Dr. Gordon Young, the club physician, Friday and after a thorough examination was sent for X-rays. Their findings will determine when he will next play.

Manager George Gainford said Friday night in New York that middleweight champion Ray Robinson's charity title fight with Carl Olson has been called off because the champion's mother is seriously ill. The 15-round bout for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund was to have been held in San Francisco Jan. 24.

No wives, automobiles, swimming, card playing, dining out, or dog tracks, but plenty of hard work is the order for the 1951 Philadelphia Phillies' training camp at Clearwater, Fla. Manager Eddie Sawyer Friday in Philadelphia outlined a rigid code of discipline for the team that slipped from a 1950 pennant-winner to a dismal fifth in the 1951 National League race.

Toronto Nortown Tri-Bells opened a weekend basketball exhibition trip by defeating Queen's University 65-58 Friday night in Kingston. Led by their scoring aces, Max Grossman and Freddy Thomas, the Bells overcame a ten point halftime deficit to top the fast-running Gaels.

The Jacques Cartier rink from Quebec City remained in the running in the 17th annual Douglas Medal bonspiel at Mt. Hope, NY, last night after a first-round victory but the Montreal St. George Club rink which won the tournament here a year ago was upset.

Canadian rinks have won in the last four years and to retain the Dominion's supremacy in this event, the Jacques Cartier Club must continue to win.

Four Games Played In Midget League

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 12 — (ENS). — Four teams of the TVMHL played a double header here on Friday night. The league is the embryo of Campbellford's future TVL teams.

Legion defeated Kinsmen by the score of two to one while Fish and Game defeated Seymour West by a four to two count. There were no penalties in either game. Don Free of Campbellford was referee.

Norwood Beats Hastings In TVL Contest

NORWOOD, Jan. 12 (ENS) — Winning their fifth straight game in the northern division of the Trent Valley League, the pace setting Norwood club defeated Hastings 12-11 at Norwood Arena Friday night.

The appearance of veteran defence man Red Creighton, making his first appearance in a Norwood uniform in 17 years drew a burst of cheers and applause from the near capacity crowd when his name was announced over the loudspeaker.

Norwood ran up a three-goal lead in the first period, before Jeffs scored Hastings' first marker unassisted at 14.50.

George Bridges sent Norwood out in front on a pass from Bobby Thorpe. Thorpe beat Hastings' goal-tender Hill on a passing play from Brydges, and Robinson made it 3-0 for Norwood unassisted. After Jeffs made it 3-1, Webb added another for Norwood from defence player Rogers. Morrow ended the first period scoring at 18.32, on a goal from Jeffs, and the period ended with Norwood leading 5-2.

Goalie Hurt

Finishing the first period under difficulties when a flying puck burst stitches in a mouth injury, Norwood goalie Reg. Jones was unable to continue. Sub-goaltender Ross Aldred took over between the Norwood posts for the remainder of the game. Jones received a cut in the mouth requiring several stitches in a game with Lakefield here Wednesday night. Payne was given a ten minute misconduct by Referee Bill Leggett.

Norwood opened the scoring in the second period on a goal from Rogers, assisted by Robinson. Hastings replied with three.

Paul Stevenson made it 6-3 when he scored unassisted for Hastings at the five minute mark. Isaacs put Hastings back in the game 36 seconds later with Morrow getting an assist. Jeffs put Hastings within one goal of tying it up on a pass from Huard.

Norwood then rapped in four goals, Brydges scoring twice unassisted. Red Creighton rammed another home from Ferguson. Payne added to Norwood's total when he scored unassisted. The second period ended with Norwood leading 10-6, when Isaac scored for Hastings from Morrow with two minutes to go.

At 3.22 of the third, Whitnall beat Hill to boost Norwood's total on an assist from Rogers. Hastings replied when Huard scored from Herrington and Stevenson. Morrow scored another for Hastings unassisted.

Norwood then picked up their final two goals when Thorpe scored from Brydges and on a play by Payne from Webb and Rogers.

Hastings scored three to come within one of tying the score. Jeffs from Lockhart made it 12-9, then Pittcrew from Stevenson and Isaacs outguessed Aldred, and Morrow and Stevenson ended the scoring with only 30 seconds to go.

Owen Sound Mercurys Slump Dumped 9-0 By Stratford Indians

By The Canadian Press.

Owen Sound Mercurys have been doing pretty well in the six-team Ontario Hockey Association Senior A circuit the last few weeks, and in a recent flurry showed every sign of climbing up the steep standings to third or even second place.

However, Friday night they definitely weren't themselves. Skating as if in a fog, the Mercs took a 9-0 lacing from the league-leading Stratford Indians.

The victory moved Stratford two points ahead but they failed to gain anything on the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen who downed the trailing Sarnia Sailors 5-1 right in Sarnia.

Brantford Redmen, in fifth place, made Hamilton look like anything but the third-place club they are as they humbled the Tigers 10-0.

In the Junior A circuit, St. Catharines resumed their winning ways with a 5-2 decision over Waterloo Hurricanes. Guelph Biltmores held second place with a 5-4 win over Toronto St. Michael's.

Down Spitfires

At Barrie, the Flyers won their first game in four starts with a 4-3 decision over Windsor Spitfires.

Up north, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds stretched their Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A lead with an 8-3 victory over Sudbury Miners.

At Stratford, Larry Lemenchick tallied twice for the Indians while Bill Walsh, Dinny Flanagan, Jack Thaler, Pat Wilson, Billy Click, Jack White and Mickey Roth scored singletons.

Three goals by Joe Holota led Brantford against Hamilton. Walt Hnatiuk and Bill Ferguson tallied twice and Don Oberholtzer Bob Hewson and Bill Schill picked up the others.

For Kitchener Dutchmen Ed Stankiewicz banged in two while Harry Psutka, Maurice Levesque and Mike Dzuira added the others. Vern Gardiner spoiled pat Boehmer's shut out attempt with Sarnia's lone goal.

At St. Catharines, Carl Boone snared two Teepee goals while Frank Martin, Pierre Pilote and Bob Schnurr got the rest. Jerry Horton and Ron Murphy scored the Hurricane markers.

Chuck Henderson scored three big goals and Ken Laufman scored two for Guelph. Ron Wallace tallied twice for St. Michael's while Murray Costello and Neil Buchanan added singletons.

Don McKenney clicked for two Barrie goals and Hilly Menard and Larry Thibeault potted the others. Jack Miller, Bob Rawlyk and Bobbie Brown lit the red light for Windsor.

City Printers In ITU For 50 Years

By HARRY THEOBALD

In the dignity of half a century of experience and achievement and wisdom, Peterborough Local No. 248 of the International Typographical Union is celebrating tonight the 50th anniversary of its institution.

A news item of about a "stick" (the width of a column in length) announced in the Examiner of Jan. 5, 1902, the organization of the Local at a meeting the night before in the old Sons of England Hall. Those rooms were on the third floor above the present store of Campbell and Best on Hunter St.

Pejerborough was a town of three daily newspapers at that time, the Examiner, the Review and the Morning Times. The founding meeting was attended by 22 of their employees, with Hugh Stevenson, representing the I.T.U., present to guide the charter members in their first step.

The officers elected were: President, Albert Martin; vice-president, Fred Garden; financial secretary, Thomas J. Begley; recording secretary, A. Sheppard; treasurer, John Manning; Sergeant-At-Arms, George Paxman; executive committee, Reg. T. Hounsell, Walter Peters and Walter Dredge.

Mr. Hounsell alone of that group is still living in Peterborough.

1952 Officers

Occupying those same positions today are: Mr. Harold Dormer as president, continuously about 18 years; Vice-President, Fred C. Scates; financial-secretary Maurice Dunkley, 30 years in that office; recording secretary, John Anderson; treasurer, Robert Pearse.

The records of No. 248 mention only two minor incidents of disagreement with employers resulting in work stoppage. Otherwise it has lived and worked with the newspaper proprietors and management on abiding terms of goodwill, harmony and co-operation.

In the meantime it has steadily improved the circumstances of its members all the way from apprentice to pensioner, from the beginner in the ranks to the employee entering upon retirement. Local No. 248 has adhered to the policy of discussion and negotiation in the tradition of the I.T.U. One of the clauses in the parent book of laws affirms: "It is our policy that we continue to maintain our long standing reputation for integrity in performing our contracts and carrying out our union commitments . . . It is our policy that we maintain our historic rights and prerogatives, to which we are entitled, and which we have enjoyed for nearly a century."

The constitution of the I.T.U. precludes rash action and so-called 'wild cat' strikes. This is the safeguarding law: "In the event of a disagrement between a subordinate union and an employer, which in the opinion of the local union may result in a strike, such union shall notify the President, who shall in person or by proxy investigate the cause of the disagreement and endeavour to adjust the difficulty. If his efforts should prove futile, he shall notify the Executive Council of all the circumstances, and if a majority of the said Council shall decide that a strike is necessary, such union may be authorized to strike."

That is the instrument of check on the local union against the extreme resort to the right to walk out. It is the boast of the I.T.U. that theirs is the most democratic labor organization in the world. Elections for the chief administration are held every two years, and every member is entitled to a ballot. The result of the voting in each Local is published in the Journal of the I.T.U. In fact the Journal is a complete record of the affairs of the International. The information is there for every man, and woman, to read.

A Proud Boast

Receipt and expenditure of every cent is listed monthly, and, from their experience, members assert that their union is the cheapest or rather most economical in cost of administration.

The late Walter Peters estimated that he received in two years' pension allowance the equivalent of all the dues he had paid into the treasury.

The I.T.U. book of laws is a voluminous document apparently providing for every conceivable issue and contingency. It is a veritable Magna Carta of the membership. The rules pertaining to elections are meticulous in protecting the secrecy of the ballot and preventing any intimidation. In all its particulars it reads like a nation's code.

The attitude of the I.T.U. toward new inventions affecting their craft, such as the introduction of the typesetting - typecasting machine about 1890 is indicated in this official statement: "The organization did not attempt to block progress of the industry. The new condition was met in a sensible and constructive manner, and every effort was made to utilize the new system to the advantage of the members of the organization."

The I.T.U. steered clear of wasteful strikes and dissipation of its resources in that direction, but waged a vigorous campaign for its main ends of improved shop conditions, increased wages, reduction in the hours of the work week, plus pensions and other benefits.

Local 248 made its contributions to the total expenditure of $4,163,970 in 1906-7-8 for the eight-hour day, and the 44-hour week was secured at a cost of $16,077,471. That was a total of

Two Veteran Printers Recall Learning Trade In Old Land

The 50th anniversary today of the organization of Peterborough Local No. 248 International Typographical Union reflects in its membership craft standards that are universal in the English reading world.

Some of the members acquired their skills as compositors and operators in Great Britain. Others are graduates of virtually the same system in this country.

Unions of the craft came into being separately in Britain and and America, but with uniformity in courses of training that transpires from the memories of strict apprenticeships.

About the time Local No. 248 was formed here in Peterborough, within the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union which developed in the United States and extended eventually into Canada, English and Scottish typos were being accepted into similar associations in their home lands.

One of them was John Anderson in Greenock, Scotland, and another was Alfred O. Phillips in Manchester, England. Their recollections indicate conditions of apprenticeship strikingly similar to the requirements then in effect within the I.T.U. of Peterborough as elsewhere in this country and the United States.

Associations Closely Alike

These long-established associations, far apart in distance, were closely akin in the qualifications they required of their members at full fledging.

Obviously, the men who drafted the constitutions of the typographical unions were animated by the same high regard for their place in the industrial world and by a pride in their craft that continues to this generation presumably with no slackening of principle.

The reminiscences of Mr. Phillips and Mr. Anderson of No. 248 are only incidental to this anniversary, but they are significant in any broad appraisal of the ideals and traditions of the men of typography.

John Anderson, 195 Sherbrooke St., entered the typographical branch of journalism through the front door of the Greenock Telegraph, Scotland.

Just out of school, he got a job as messenger boy in the front office. After nine months of that leg work, his thoughts turned to a more permanent engagement, and he became formally indentured as an apprentice compositor at a wage of four shillings a week.

For the first year he was assigned to the proofreaders' box as copyholder. The word proof signifies the first draft of the columns of type before they are locked up in page forms and sent on to the press.

The proof sheets are scanned for typographical or other errors —"inadvertent," after the reporter's handy alibi, or otherwise. Perusal of copy enlarged the vocabulary of the reader and his assistant holder, and was a daily course of education in current events, editorial pronouncements and articles of general interest.

Mr. Anderson recalls that with his advancement through seven years of apprenticeship his wages increased by "leaps and bounds" to the princely sum of 13 shillings a week in his final year.

Setting Type By Hand

Meanwhile, he had been introduced to the 'case' from which type was set by hand from compartments distributing the letters of the alphabet, and was finally transferred to the study of the linotype machine.

Pulling galleys of type and helping the proofreader was humdrum work, but if you balked and walked out there would soon be another boy to take your place. Seven years were a long stretch, but it was the established custom in the newspaper and job printing business of those days.

While acquiring mechanical skill and something of the art of making up advertisements, Mr. Anderson also passed through a homely course of Scottish thrift. Week after week he took his wage envelope home unopened, its contents intact, and handed it to his mother.

In his first week as a full fledged journeyman printer and compositor, he had the thrill of hefting an envelope of 36 shillings, accompanying his employer's accolade that John Anderson had served his apprenticeship.

But, the maternal allowance remained six pence. It had to do the young Anderson until next pay. However, he was then passing through the last stage of his teens.

His mother was as happy as he in the attainment of a definite place in the newspaper industry, and not long after that graduation she apparently decided that her son's training in respect for money was complete. From then on, the pay envelope was his to dispose.

It is altogether likely that with so much silver in his pocket or to his credit, the young man of Greenock felt that he had reached a secure place in the world and could hold his head up among men.

Interesting Characters

There were interesting characters among the "comps" of those days, Mr. Anderson recalls.

One of them delighted in arguing, on almost any subject. Frowning over his spectacles, which he kept down near the tip of his nose, he would emphasize his opinions with his left fist smashing into his right palm, and usually a concluding: "Of course, that's hoo I look at things."

Most of those faces have vanished in Greenock or in far away places "to be seen some day when we, as they did, write "30" at the end of the journey."

At the threshold of manhood, Mr. Anderson joined the Scottish Typographical Society, and when he came to Canada, he transferred to I.T.U. Local 248.

"From the Old Land I came to Peterborough and the Examiner in June, 1910," Mr. Anderson said. "The years between have been happy and interesting all the way, but I still have a warm spot in my memory for Greenock, the city of sugar and ships, having three sisters residing there, and numerous cousins in Ayrshire and around Glasgow."

NATURAL MOUNTAINS

It has been estimated there are more geysers in Yellowstone Park in the United States than in all the rest of the world combined.

Alfred O. Phillips, of the Examiner's composing room, was an apprentice in Manchester, England, when Peterborough Local No. 248 of the International Typographical Union was organized Jan. 4, 1902, at a meeting in the Sons of England Hall.

Indenture of apprenticeship is a legal phrase signifying an agreement of service and employment. It was a contract signed by the employer, the apprentice and his father in the presence of two witnesses. The term of this engagement was seven years, the accepted period in Great Britain in which a youth was expected to learn his trade and craft.

Presumably, Joseph Phillips, father of a large family, consulted Charles Sever, proprietor of a job printing plant, specializing in railway timetables, literary productions and music, about an opening for his son, just out of school, equivalent to the senior grade in an Ontario Public school.

Legal Document Drawn

That was the preliminary step to the indenture of A. O. Phillips at the turn of the century.

The following is a long paragraph of conditions, in legal locution, that were required both of the apprentice, his father, and his employer or master:

"...and for a term of seven years to learn the trade or business of a compositor, and he the said Joseph Phillips covenants with the said master that during the said term the said apprentice shall honestly, faithfully and diligently serve and obey the said master and shall not do or commit or suffer to be done or committed any waste, damage or injury of or to the property of the said master, and shall not unlawfully absent himself from the service of the said master, and further contracts for himself, his executors and administrators that he or they shall or will at his or their own cost provide the said apprentice during the said term with sufficient and suitable board, lodging, washing and clothes, medicine and medical attendance and other necessaries, and also that during the first three years of the said apprenticeship the said apprentice shall regularly attend in the evenings such suitable educational or technical classes as the said master shall direct and the fees for which shall be paid by the said master."

The contract also provided for its cancellation by Charles Sever for wilfull disobedience, serious misconduct or inefficiency by Alfred O. Phillips. It was also stipulated that the apprentice would not be entitled to extra pay for overtime, and that his wages would be suspended in the event of illness.

The back of this legal looking document is written in bold hand: "This apprenticeship has been faithfull served. Charles Sever. April 30, 1907".

In accordance with the indenture, young Phillips had to attend a technical school in Manchester, three nights a week for the first three years of work. Subjects were: spelling, punctuation, English, writing essays, composition and linotype mechanics.

That night school is now the College of Technology, and at the end of the course the student had to pass the City and Guild of London examinations.

At the same time the apprentice attended Claxton Hall in Salford, adjoining Manchester, which was a printers' guild of the Manchester Typographical Union. It provided visits to other printing establishments, and further experience in all phases of their methods and work.

From the formal induction of the novice he must have been impressed by the seriousness of the undertaking to which he bound himself by contract. In the beginning his work was in the old system of setting type by hand, but the linotype made its appearance in Britain in 1900, and by the time A. O. Phillips was graduated he had learned its intricate structure and operation.

55-Hour Week

The Sever's plant had a staff of 150, more than 50 of whom were employed in the composing room. The working day was from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., with an hour at noon for lunch. The week was 55 hours but overtime often extended that week to 75.

One of the first changes Mr. Phillips remembers was the substitution of numbers for names of type sizes. In the old school there were brevier, pica, long primer, and so on, but from the United States came the numerical order, from 5-point up. (This is set in 7½ point).

The Sever's wage rate started at five shillings a week, increasing one shilling annually to the last of the seven years when the pay envelope was eleven shillings.

The compositors of 1900 regarded the linotype machine as a menace to employment. Average production by hand in 1900 was 1,000 ens an hour. (An en is one-half an em, and this column is 12-ems wide). Average linotype production today is 7,000 ens, or 3,500 ems. It was feared that the new machine would throw a lot of men out of work.

Contrary to those apprehensions, however, mechanical setting of lines of type provided a new speed and economy of production that have been the basis of the multiple-paged modern newspaper. Came next the rotary press, facilitating the vast increase in output and circulation that has been attained by the press within the later years of its progress in methods of publication.

One of Mr. Phillips' recollections is the tedium of setting pages of music by hand, long before the invention of the labor-saving process of lithography put an end to that vexation.

A detail of his work for a time in the Sever's plant was setting up the program notes by the celebrated Ernest Newman for the Halle concerts in Manchester. The notes were individual types, whole, half, quarter, eighth, and so on which had to be set in the five lines and four spaces, and also above and below the staff, together with the rests and other signs.

The whole note, for example, had to be set by hand or on rather than into a line, and so with the others, all precisely spaced.

After all that minuteness of setting music at an average rate of 1½ hours for one stave, three inches wide, Mr. Phillips sought relaxation in the concert hall.

Those were memorable years of the famous Halle concerts, by a choir of 300 voices and orchestra of 100 instruments.

So, time has counted off half a century, revolutionary machines invaded the newspaper field, newspapers sprouted all over the world. Some of the largest metropolitan papers in their Sunday editions, such as the N.Y. Times, comprise a veritable armful of pages. The English-speaking press is a current history of world events with high ideals and traditions, and in its background are the men of the International Typographical Union, more numerous and more skilled than ever.

Sees Little Difference In Provincial Laws

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP)—Rt. Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, Chief Justice of Canada, said Thursday night that differences between Quebec's civil law and the common law in the other nine provinces have disappeared within the last 25 years.

He told the Lawyer's Club of Toronto that English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians should "start to study our similarities and cease to single out our differences."

The same legal problems always led the court to the same result in Quebec and Ontario. "Diversity of legislation is more imaginary than real. And above all, it does in no way affect the essential unity of justice."

(Quebec laws are based on the old French civil law under which all laws are included in an all-embracing code. Other provinces use the English common law basis in which unwritten rules and judicial decisions are as much a part of the law as statutes passed by legislatures.)

Jaycees Learn Public Speaking

Twelve members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce attended the first Effective Speaking class at the Public Library Thursday night. It is the fifth course sponsored by the Jaycees to develop effective speakers in its membership.

Each of the members gave short sketches on their work, hobbies, personal history and Junior Chamber of Commerce association.

Attending were: G. Lathangue, W. Waye, Don Pruner, Sherman Killen, John Simpson, Ron Balaam, Joe Marino, Charles Boulter, Murray Hewitt, Ken Broadhurst and Bruce Edwards.

If is proposed to conduct a contest at the conclusion of the course to name the Peterborough entry in the National Oratorical Contest and entries for the Kiwanis Music Festival public speaking contest.

Al Tingley is chairman of the Effective Sepaking class.

Sinking Of Flying Enterprise Cost 2 Million

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The sinking of the Flying Enterprise with her general cargo stands to cost American and British insurance companies about $1,750,000, it was estimated today.

British underwriters were reported to be holding a 40 per cent interest, although a spokesman for Lloyds, the biggest group of shipping insurance agents, refused to give any figures.

The usual practice is to reinsure —or "lay off"—against total loss in such cases.

The rates originally were listed at $90 for $300 value when the Flying Enterprise was wallowing alone, dropped to $30 after the ship was taken in tow, rose to $60 when the tow-line broke and sky-rocketed to $180 just before the freighter sank.

FOR PARENTS ONLY

Children's Birthday Party Trying, But It's Worthwhile

By NANCY CLEAVER

No matter how carefully plans have been made for a party, there are two rather trying times at a small child's party—the beginning and the ending. There never was a party when some guests did not arrive a bit early and some came trailing late!

Occasionally a mother chooses to have her child open each guest's present, after outdoor wraps are removed. This does keep the children occupied for a few minutes. But other parents prefer to keep to usual "present-opening-time" at the end of the supper, immediately after the cake has been eaten. The guests are still seated at the table and each guest can be thanked for his gift after it is opened.

The first little visitor to arrive, or the first two or three may be shy and ill at ease. Do make them feel at home by having something for the early arrivals to see or do.

Don't wait until everyone has come to begin the party games. A simple skill game like bean bags, or dropping clothes pegs into a quart bottle, can include the others as they appear. A very bashful youngster may be too self-conscious to want to participate in a game. Let him watch, rather than insist that he take his turn.

The end of the party is often difficult because some of the children are bound to be a bit fatigued and over-excited. A few of the guests may have eaten too much for comfort! Some of the parents may call early to take their child home—and it is not easy to look after parents and see to the conclusion of the party. If the child is a pre-school youngster, have the parents assist with their child's outdoor clothes. One way out of the awkward ending time is to give the guests a little inexpensive favor such as a balloon, or a ginger-bread man, a gum-drop figure of a marshmallow snowman wrapped in wax paper, just as they leave.

The old-time favorite games such as drop the hanky, and musical chairs are good lively ones to use. Everyone knows them and so they don't need many directions. Then when the party is well "under-way" work in a few new games. There are excellent books on recreation at any public library. Copy out the directions for half a dozen fresh games which look interesting.

Have a few quieter games, alternating with more strenuous ones. Jot down more games than you will need, so you have some extra ones in reserve to use in an emergency. Don't play any one game very long. Have small prizes for the winners, if you wish—but do leave out awards for the player with the lowest score! What child at a party wants to be embarrassed by being presented with a "booby prize"?

Food is important at every age—but especially to children at a party! Make it attractive and fun—and keep it simple enough to avoid upset digestions next day.

The cake deserves very special attention. Boil the ring, the other small trinkets and the coins, wrap carefully in wax paper, and if at all possible, slip one of these into each child's piece of cake. This can be accomplished by making small slits in the bottom of each piece after it is cut.

To the guest of honor, there are few times in the whole year which can compare with the moment when there is a hush, the cake with candles all ablaze is carried into the room while everyone else sings — "Happy Birthday to You!"

A party may be quite a task—and involve planning and some outlay of money and big expenditure of patience—but a mother feels it worth-while as she catches a glimpse of a small son's or daughter's face as the candles are blown out!

Key To Success Understanding Of People

A message to student nurses in the Civic Hospital School of Nursing was delivered at the capping ceremony Friday evening by Miss Edith R. Dick, director of the division of Nurses' Registration.

She stressed character requisites for a good nurse and suggested success as a nurse depends on the respect that is shown the patients and the understanding of them.

Possibly too often the nurse forgets the pain and apprehension of the patient in her efforts to correctly manipulate the equipment for treatment, Miss Dick remarked. "The hospital and its equipment are much less important than the people within," she warned.

"Understanding people means listening to them, rather than talking at them," she said. "It means too that your supervisor will understand you and commend you for understanding."

Miss Dick emphasized her point by reading her own condensation of a classic story illustrating the effect of co-operation of all parts for a successful whole.

The speaker, who is a graduate of John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, served four years as matron in an overseas hospital.

Workshop Being Held Here By Young People

First session of the Officer's Week-end Workshop conducted by the Young Peoples' Unions of the United Church was held Friday night at Knox United Church, beginning with a fellowship banquet served by the WA.

Presbytery president Lloyd Starke explained briefly the purpose of the workshop: to instruct newly-elected officers in the details of their program and activities. The Rev. H. G. Douglas extended the welcome of the church and the greetings of the Peterborough Presbytery Conference. Young Peoples' president Bill Piercy brought greetings of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Assembled members were led in a sing song.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Paige Rowell, who, on the topic of parliamentary procedure, pointed out the duties of officers, the rights of members, and the proper use of parliamentary procedure.

Following a short question period the assemblage divided into small groups for the purpose of discussions of the various commission groups. These groups, with their leaders are: Faith and Evangelism, the Rev. B. S. Morwood, Mark St.; Missions and World Outreach, the Rev. Clare Kellogg, Janetville; Stewardship and Training, the Rev. A. E. Larke Springville; Citizenship and Community Service, the Rev. W. Tonge Lakefield; Recreation and Culture, Miss Margaret Hillis of Belleville; and for Friday evening only, Administration by Bill Piercy, Peterborough.

The evening closed with a worship service conducted by Springville Young Peoples'

Sessions will con[illegible]rough today and Sunday.

Fenella WMS

ROSENEATH, Jan. 12—(ENS)—"Thoughts by the Way on Security" was the subject of an address given by Mrs. Gordon Jewell at the January meeting of Fenella WMS. The speaker stressed the security of everlasting life in preference to financial security.

The meeting was held on Friday afternoon at the parsonge in Roseneath, with Mrs. R. C. White as hostess.

Mrs. Frank Down was in charge of the devotional period with Mrs. Laurie Hope as pianist. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Carl McNaught. The roll call was answered by a verse of scripture beginning with the letter "L".

The business period was conducted by the vice-president, Mrs. Gordon Jewell, owing to the unavoidable absence of the president, Mrs. N. C. Leach.

It was decided to send a car with six delegates to the presbyterial meeting in Campbellford on January 30.

Mother Thwarts Marriage Her Actions May Prove Wise

DEAR MISS DIX: My age is 20, and my problem that I have been engaged twice and every time my mother has stepped in and broken it off, while giving the impression to others that the fault was all in the young man. I am just wondering how I can get my independence from mother without hurting her. I do love her but I think I have the right to live my own life. My mother and father have been separated for several years, and mother seems afraid that I'll make the same mistake she did. I have promised I would never run away and get married; now I am going with a very nice boy but am afraid to even hint to my mother that I intend marrying him. She tells people she will be glad when I am settled in my own home, that all she wants is my happiness and security, yet when the time comes that I have all this within reach—in she comes and breaks things up.

Dorothy Dix

RENEE SUE K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The ease with which you acquire and discard fiances, Renee, leads me to wonder if your mother is as much at fault as you indicate. Perhaps she realizes, as you may not, that your heart is not as much involved as you think. While it is lamentably true that many mothers try desperately to keep their offspring from marrying, these situations are not nearly as commonplace as young people think. Frequently the maternal attempts to break up altogether, or postpone, a proposed marriage is truly motivated by anxiety over the child's welfare. Before condemning your mother too thoroughly, make sure it is not you who are making the mistake.

Give Yourself Time

If you still feel, after close self-analysis, that you are right, and mom is wrong, give yourself a year or even longer to make sure that this young man is the right one. If your mother continues her opposition in the face of what you are convinced is the path to happiness, you will be justified in marrying without her approval.

Don't rush into any marriage; don't marry at all until you're 21; and be as sure as possible of your young man's worth before taking him on as a husband. Don't assume that mom is wrong simply because you don't agree with her.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My daughter has fallen in love with a sailor she has known for several years. We have never inquired of his family, but now that they are planning to marry we became interested in his background. I discovered that he is an orphan, brought up by foster parents. Do you think she should marry him in this case, or would people look down on her for marrying an orphan?

G. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since when has it been a disgrace to be orphaned? If you like and approve of everything else about the young man, his unfortunate lack of parents should make you doubly anxious to help him establish a good home of his own. You have been, to say the least, extremely lax in waiting so long to inquire of his background; usually cautious parents learn all they can about daughter's male friends as soon as they become regular visitors.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Some time ago I was going steady with a boy. We had a quarrel, I left him abruptly and went home alone. Now I'm sorry and more than willing to make up. He says a girl will treat him like that only once. I've pleaded and begged, but can't change his mind. All I live for is the day he'll relent. Can I do anything to hasten that day?

PATSY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Hurt pride is one of the most difficult obstacles to overcome. Your present methods of pleading and begging are particularly ineffective. Why not try leaving him alone altogether and see if a little solitude will do what coaxing couldn't accomplish?

Novelty Scarves Add Color Note

PARIS. — Scarves add colored notes to many current accessory displays. Among the most original are the Rodier designs featuring "The Queen of France" as taken from old-fashioned engravings. There is also a series of Persian scenes inspired by Oriental enamelwork and equally vivid in color.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I wish to thank you for sending me the Cranberry Orange Relish. Will this relish keep any length of time? I heard this recipe over the air, and it said to make it just a couple of days before required. I would also like to have the recipe for your Christmas hermits, and have you a special recipe for Christmas cookies with the tiny gum drops? . . . (Mrs.) EEL.

ANSWER: I have a jar of the orange cranberry relish in our refrigerator that I made the week before Christmas and we had some from it this week for dinner and it was even better than when it was first made. There is nothing in this to deteriorate if it is kept cold.

Gum Drop Party Cookies

One-half cup butter or margarine or shortening, ½ cup each brown and white sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon each salt, soda and baking powder, 1 cup each rolled oats, corn flakes and finely chopped gum drops, ½ cup cocoanut. Cream the shortening very well then beat in the sugars. Beat in egg until mixture is fluffy. Sift the flour and measure it then sift it with the soda, salt and baking powder. Sift again. Sift the dry ingredients over the creamed mixture and mix well. Add all remaining ingredients and mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 12 to 15 minutes.

I have sent you the Christmas hermits.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I find your column in the paper very helpful. In fact sometimes it is the only page I have time to look at. I wonder if you could help me out. Would you tell me how to fry pineapple slices? That is, exactly what batter to dip slices in, how much lard or shortening and at what temperature. Are these served as cookies? I saw them on television and they looked very good. J. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No, pineapple slices dipped in batter and fried are used as a fritter—that is they may be used as a garnish and served with ham or other pork product or roast goose or duck or used as a dessert with powdered sugar or a lemon syrup.

Pineapple Slices In Batter

(or Pineapple Fritters)

Drain canned pineapple slices well and dip in the following batter: One and one-third cups unsifted flour, 2 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup milk, 1 egg. Sift together baking powder, flour and salt. Beat the egg well and add the milk to it. Stir into the sifted mixture until smooth. Fry in deep fat at 380 deg. Fahr. until puffed and golden, turning over once. Drain on unglazed paper, but serve as soon as possible. For a very special dessert serve these with—

Cream Sabayon Sauce

½ cup milk, ½ cup cream, yolks 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons pineapple juice or cooking sherry, ½ teaspoon vanilla, few grains of salt, 2 egg whites. Scald milk and cream in double boiler. Beat yolks until thick then add sugar. Pour milk and cream gradually, while beating constantly, on egg mixture and cook in double boiler until mixture thickens. Add pineapple juice or sherry, vanilla, and salt and pour over egg whites which have been beaten until stiff.

Letter From Reader

While preparing for Christmas dinner I wonder if some of your readers would like to share my favorite Mock Mincemeat (for 2 med. pies): 6 med. tart apples, ½ orange pulp and rind, ¼ lemon pulp and rind, 1½ cups brown sugar, 1 lb. seedless raisins, 2 teaspoons cassia, ½ nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon each cloves and salt. Put apples, orange, lemon thro' food chopper, add sugar, seedless raisins and spices and let stand 2 hrs, before using. I add ¼ cup corn syrup to each pie just before using. Keep cold. Westwood WMS Plans Crokinole Party

WESTWOOD, Jan. 12 (ENS)—The first meeting of the new year of the United Church WMS was Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gordon Warner.

Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge, the first vice-president, Mrs. E. W. Sargent, took charge of the opening exercises and business discussion.

It was announced that the Peterborough Presbyterial will be held in St. Andrew's church on Jan. 22, with the special speakers the treasurer of the dominion board and the Rev. W. H. Tonge of Lakefield.

Reports for the past year were given: associate helpers secretary, Mrs. W. Breckenridge; literature, Mrs. A. Wood; temperance, Mrs. W. Morris; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. J. Sargent.

The treasurer's report by Mrs. E. Sargent showed a successful year and the allocation of $250 had been met; also contributions had been made to the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis and to the United Church of Canada for Overseas Relief.

It was decided to hold a crokinole party on Friday in aid of the new Training School for Leaders.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Gordon Warner, commenced with a hymn and a Bible reading in unison. Mrs. A. Wood gave a reading on some of the last writings of the late Mrs. Nellie McClung.

The chapter of the Study Book on French Canadian evangelism was taken by Mrs. William Breckenridge. Further highlights on the French Canadians in Quebec province were told by the Rev. N. Cole, who also closed the meeting with prayer.

Giddy Gloves For The Darkest Days

PARIS. — It is fantasy time in Paris. The average woman is on the outlook for something to brighten her appearance on these darkest days of the year, so the "frivolite" trade is booming.

Jeanne Lafaurie, for one, shows long evening gloves of pale pink satin with gold and pearl embroidery running from the fingers to the very tops, well above the elbows.

Henry a la Pensee favors lace gloves this season, some long and simple in design; others short gathered tight on narrow black velvet ribbons. Gloves which are really mock mitten appear with the mitten section in black Chantilly lace and the fingers in fine black tulle.

More glove interest comes in sets of gloves, belt and handbags. There is an evening bag of black velvet, embroidered with brilliants and colored stones. The bag closes up on silk draw-strings like an old-fashioned reticule.

Look Ladylike For Leap Year In Modified Lines

NEW YORK—(AP)—New York designers, previewing spring styles for the visiting fashion press, have arrived at a happy medium this season.

There are no contorted convolutions of the silhouette to confuse the shopper and amaze the beholder. There are no drastic changes to make the 1951 wardrobe obsolete.

Clothes for spring follow, in general, the same lines as those of last fall, with modification of the more extreme full skirts and with a general tendency toward greater wearability.

Most fashionable color for spring suits will be, as usual, navy blue, with yarn-dyed beiges and grays also high on the preference chart.

Suits will be softly feminine, some with flaring bell skirts, others slim in line, with walking ease assured by discreet fullness placed low at the back of the skirt, or achieved by subtle handling of trouser pleats at the waistline.

Fabrics are handsomer and more varied than in many seasons, most of the woollens being feather-light in weight but with much texture interest. Tweeds are soft as chiffon, yet manage to retain their tweedy characteristics. New smooth suitings include a handsome shantung weave that looks like silk, while many of the rich new silk fabrics have the look of wool.

These trends were demonstrated at showings by three New York houses — Originala coats, Hannah Troy and Ben Zuckerman, all of whom pointed up the importance of the ladylike look for leap year.

Jellied Juices Make Refreshing Salad

Both vegetable and fruit juices make light, refreshing salads when jellied with plain gelatine. With tomato or other vegetable juices, meat, cheese, hard cooked eggs and vegetables combine well to make the salad course of the meal. Cottage cheese and fresh or canned fruits, jellied in fruit juices, may be used for either a zestful salad or a sweet dessert, depending on the amount of sugar added.

USE COLD WATER

To soften residue on dirty dishes, use cold water. You'll find hot water tends to cause adherence.

Cooking With Canned Soup Proves Money-Saving Secret

Because a dollar hardly fills the corner of your market basket these days, we're anxious to let you in on every little money-saving secret we know.

Soup cookery is one of them. It's fast becoming a national habit—one you'd do well to adopt. Here are just a few dishes that save your money but guarantee plenty of downright delicious eating.

Here's a Penny-wise Chicken Pie, for example, made with nothing more than leftover vegetables and a can of condensed cream of chicken soup. And it's just about the most tempting chicken pie you've ever tasted too.

There's so much deep-down real old-fashioned chicken flavor, such a wealth of tender diced chicken in that can of creamed soup, your folks will never guess you didn't start with meat right off the bone.

Penny-Wise Chicken Pie

2 11-ounce cans Condensed Cream of Chicken Soup, undiluted
1½ cups unseasoned, diced cooked potatoes
1 cup cooked, sliced carrots
1 cup cooked peas
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
Pastry based on 1 cup flour

Combine first 5 ingredients. Place in a 1½ quart casserole. Top with pie crust which has slits in it to allow for escape of steam. Bake in a hot oven 450 deg. F. 25 minutes or until browned. Serves 5 to 6.

Or try velvety cream of mushroom soup with canned salmon for a delightfully different casserole.

Salmon Baked In Mushroom Soup

1 16-ounce can red salmon
1 11-ounce can Cream of Mushroom Soup, undiluted
¼ cup milk
Buttered bread rounds or triangles

Drain salmon, remove skins and bones. Break salmon into large pieces and arrange in 1 quart casserole or 6" x 10" x 2" baking dish. Combine soup and milk. Pour over top of salmon. Arrange overlapping rounds of buttered bread on top. Bake in moderately hot oven 400 deg. F. 20 minutes or until soup is hot and bread is toasted.

Costume Jewelry Most Glittering

PARIS. — Costume jewelry has never been larger and more glittering than it is at the moment. Dior's large round clips feature colored cabochons encircled with giant brilliants, while Jacques Fath shows tight chokers of sparkling white paste and pearls.

Original jewelry from the Manguin boutique is designed for sportswear in the form of simple strings of beads in mixed semi-precious stones; onyx, agate, chrysophase, rock-crystal, and jade. Strings of these beads look most effective twisted several times round the throat over simple grey or oatmeal-colored sweaters.

The Fad Is Gone!

Looks like the big doings are over for short-skirted evening frock, except for those worn by very young women. The floor-length gown registers at every important social event, gowns such as a beauty in red silk faille, the skirt with pointed overlapping tiers, each tier stiffened and corded and the whole skirt stiffened underneath. Very low neckline for the very snug, strapless bodice.

Cross Streets With Dignity The Law's On Your Side

Pedestrians long at the mercy of jay drivers, assert your rights. You have the law on your side. Jay drivers, sometimes known as "curb sneakers" are the characters who pull their cars out of the line of traffic when the light is red, ease up along the curb, then scare pedestrians out of their toe rubbers, by making right turns.

Drivers who lurch ahead the instant traffic lights change to make left turns or go straight ahead without letting people who have started across the street are in the same category. These eager car jockeys whizz around stragglers stranded halfway across when the light changes and hardly give the hapless pedestrian a caterpillar's chance of reaching the far curb safely.

Don't Be Timid

However, there's no reason to be timid about crossing the street when you have the green light. Step down briskly from the curb, and stalk across the street with dignity. If the light changes to red when you are in the centre of the street keep on going. Don't let those inconsiderate drivers worry you. After all, you have the right-of-way.

Mr. Justice McKay made this ruling in an Ontario Appeal Court decision this week.

Naturally, knowing you had the right-of-way isn't going to ease the pain of injuries if you are run down crossing the street. But, you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have a good chance of winning a damage suit if the light was in your favor when you started across. Providing of course you are not killed.

Jay walkers who disregard lights are as bad a traffic hazard as inconsiderate motorists but in an argument between a pedestrian and a car, it's obvious who has the advantage.

As a case in point, there was the driver at Simcoe and George Streets at noon one day this week. As soon as the light turned green, a column of pedestrians started across the crosswalks from both the east and west sides of George Street.

Eager to make a right turn, a car coming east on Simcoe St. cruised slowly in to the intersection. The driver was in too big a hurry to wait until there was a break in the pedestrian traffic and after making two jackrabbit starts and stops, he had both pedestrians and east-west Simcoe St. traffic thoroughly confused.

Then, pedestrians caught out from the curb, started running around both the front and back of the car, to get across before the lights changed. Meanwhile, the impatient motorist fumed at the wheel, inched through the people and drove off up George St. in a clash of gears, obviously convinced everyone was to blame but himself.

Such situations often result in injuries and fatalities, particularly when someone steps into the path of a car, hugging the curb as it makes a right or left hand turn.

In this connection, a common practice in Peterborough whereby drivers pull to the right, out of a line of traffic and ease up to the crosswalk beside a line of cars stopped for a red light, then continue to make a right turn, is violating the Highway Traffic Act.

Lanes Marked

In some larger cities, scene of traffic mazes deluxe, traffic lanes are clearly marked on main streets and the practice is permitted. Here however, passing on the right is against the law, as a local driver discovered recently when he was fined in police court for the offence.

Incidentally, the role of the pedestrian in Toronto is such a hazardous one, that it gave rise to a rumor which cropped up during the subway excavations. According to the story, workmen found some strange fossil-like formations at several intersections, between layers of asphalt paving surface. On analysis, it is said the fossils were identified as belonging to the specie "homo sapiens." It is understood they were the remains of stray pedestrians, who had been run over unnoticed in heavy rush hour traffic.

Mr. Justice McKay's ruling may have the result of causing some drivers (who heed the implied warning) to be more careful and give pedestrians a break.

After all, pedestrians are not just street poachers, intent on fouling up traffic. They have as much right to use the streets as motorists.

$20,241,442 for the reduction of working hours for the membership in the United States and Canada, an objective that was largely designed to gain advantage of new speeds in production.

Incidentally the I.T.U. was a charter member of the American Federation of Labor, an evidence of its early and long service in the improvement of conditions of employment.

In Interests Of The Men

Mr. James Browne, who began his apprenticeship with the Daily Review and was with the Examiner 25 years prior to his retirement said yesterday, looking back into that past: "Local No. 248 never asked me to do anything detrimental to my own interests or anything unfair to the employer. When matters of dispute arose, we always sought to settle them by discussion. We always tried to co-operate with the boss.

"I know that in my relations with management, I used to look on Frank Dobbin of the Review, and two successive editors, A. J. Toker and Simon R. Armstrong, who was afterward City Clerk of Peterborough many years, as friends. And they were. The same applied to the late R. M. Glover of the Examiner. Our Union was a fraternal society, and I can look back and say that we never did anything contrary to the ideals of the I.T.U.

"We had job departments with both newspapers, and it was not uncommon for employees to suggest printing jobs they heard about. In fact I was paid quite a number of commissions for informing the management about such work that could be got."

Mr. Browne recalled that William H. Robertson was the proprietor of the Morning Times. Ernest Bartlett was one of its compositors and Ernest H. Howson was a machine operator. The late Charles H. J. Mitchell was the superintendent of the Times. He had come to Peterborough from the Mail and Empire. Max J. Swanston, Peterborough's recent Mayor, manager of the Peterborough Printing Co., was another member of No. 248.

Since that night 50 years ago when the Local received its charter, some scores of men have moved on to other cities. Jim Northcott in California was recently joined there by Jim Webb. George Rose went to Windsor, Robert Wyllie to Toronto, Jerry Cullen to Montreal, Jerry Donoghue to Niagara Falls, NY, Bill Collins to Detroit, Garry Johnson to Toronto, and many others.

All of them served their apprenticeship here, and it has been long noted that qualified Peterborough men could step into any company of operators and compositors.

In training of its members, in the skill and qualifications of its members, in its public relations and co-operation with local management, No. 248 has an enviable record.

These are only some glimpses of its past. The story could be expanded and not least in the competence of its craftsmen and their loyalty to the I.T.U. and their employers. Its resources provide pensions of $80 to $100 a month.

May Close Churches

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 12 (AP)—Archbishop Spyridon, head of the Orthodox Church in Greece, was reported ready today to close all churches under his authority if the government seizes the church's estates. Under the new constitution, estates of more than 100 acres are liable to seizure for distribution among cultivators who own little or no land. The land subject to expropriation is mostly in the hands of the church and monasteries.

More Films Expected On Germany

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12 (AP)—American movie fans can expect to see more German actors on the screen and more films about Germany.

German actors and film subjects have been seen in such 20th-Fox movies as "The Big Lift," "The Desert Fox" and "Decision Before Dawn." The studio now is planning "The Steeper Cliff" to be made in Germany with Oskar Werner. MGM will star Gene Kelly in "The Devil Takes Three," a story of black marketing on the Autobahn.

More studios are expected to follow suit. The reasons go deeper than the search for new and exciting locales and actors. The fact is that the German film market is becoming increasingly profitable. One producer estimates that a top picture will be able to take $1,000,000 out of Germany.

Industry Hits Back

One of the most significant film industry moves in recent months: The $1,000,000 libel suit filed by Stanley Kramer against the organization which has been picketing his picture "Death of a Salesman." The pickets alleged Communist connections of the film's makers.

This marks the first time that a member of the industry has made a frontal attack on those who sought to boycott a picture. The important factor is that the entire industry is behind Kramer in his battle. Frank Freeman, speaking for the major producers, offered "complete support". So have independent producers.

Credit Union Starts Drive For Membership

BANCROFT, Jan. 12—(ENS)—North Hastings Community Credit Union officials reported considerable progress at the monthly meeting at the home of J. W. C. Hutton, on Tuesday night.

To show the growth of the organization, secretary G. C. Ward read the membership roll showing that the group had expanded from six to 34 in 10 months. Mr. Ward also informed the members that the capital had grown from $2.50 to $380 in the same period, and that to date five loans had been made to members.

After a discussion, the meeting, which was a joint affair for all committees, decided to embark on a membership campaign to double the present enrolment in the next month. The present members are mainly people who were members of a study group who investigated and studied credit union problems for eight months before they formed the actual body a few months ago.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on the first Tuesday in February in Bancroft Community Hall as all felt that the gathering would be too large for an individual home. An outside speaker, probably a member of the provincial executive body, will be brought to town for that meeting.

In charge of the meeting was the president of the local credit union, Dr. R. Y. Haryett, assisted by the chairman of the supervisory and credit committees.

HOUSE NO. 632—This fascinating little white clapboard cottage with a narrow frontage was erected on a corner lot. Notice the huge bay window in the living room facing the street. Shutters and roof are dark brown. There is a full basement, with gameroom, laundry, washroom with shower, and utility room. The latter could easily be converted to a third room—or a den. The house contains approximately 23,000 cubic feet.—For working drawings write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Perimeter Warm Air Heating Applied In Several Ways

Along with the rapid acceptance of perimeter warm air heating has come an understandable confusion in identifying its various applications. When perimeter heating was originally introduced the only application used was in homes built on concrete slab floors where the warm air ducts were buried in the concrete slab. It became natural to assume that perimeter heating referred only to this particular system. This was all right as long as no other application of this newer heating concept was being used. But other uses were quickly developed.

Therefore, members of the industry soon felt that the terminology "perimeter heating" should be general in nature and apply to any heating system where the warm air is introduced into the rooms through registers located along the outer walls and preferably underneath the windows.

Warm Air Perimeter Loop

This is a system for houses built upon a concrete slab set directly on the ground. Its air distribution system consists of a warm air duct imbedded in the concrete slab floor that extends around the perimeter of the house in a continuous loop. The loop is placed close to the outside walls and delivers heat into the room of the house through perimeter registers placed beneath the windows and by radiant means from the warm floor surfaces about it. The loop is supplied by feeders extending to it from the plenum chamber beneath the furnace.

Warm Air Perimeter Radial

This is a system for use in either a slab or crawl space house. Its distribution system consists of air ducts in or beneath the floor, with separate ducts extending from the plenum chamber like the spokes of a wheels to each individual perimeter register located along the outside walls. It is particularly adaptable to small houses built over a crawl space, those on a concrete slab with a floor area not exceeding 800 square feet. Since heat is not supplied along the entire perimeter this system is not as satisfactory in a slab house as a loop system.

Warm Air Perimeter Lateral.

This system is designed for use in a structure set upon a concrete slab on the opposite walls. Air is delivered into the rooms through a continuous slot or opening beneath or part of the baseboard, or through perimeter floor registers.

Warm Air Perimeter Crawl Space Duct

This is a system for use in a house built over a crawl space. Its air distribution system may be one of several general designs. In a small structure the radial system may be used with individual runs from the furnace plenum to each register. In larger structures an extended plenum or conventional trunk and branch system may be used. The distribution system in either case is suspended from the floor joists and the branches terminated in perimeter registers placed preferably beneath the windows or other glass areas along the outside walls. To supplement the heat loss from the ducts some warm air may also be circulated through the crawl space to keep the crawl space warm, thus maintaining warmer floors.

Warm Air Perimeter Crawl Space Plenum

This system is used only in houses built over a crawl space. The entire crawl space area is used as warm air supply plenum. Stub ducts from a metal plenum chamber under the furnace are used to direct the circulation of air around the crawl space area. Warm air enters the rooms from the crawl space through floor registers.

Jessup Attack "Stab In Back"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman (Dem. Oklahoma) said Friday a new Republican attack on Ambassador-at-large Philip Jessup is a "stab in the back" for the US delegation at the United Nations meeting in Paris.

A resolution, introduced Thursday with the backing of 38 Republican Senators, asked the Senate to advise President Truman that Jessup "does not command the confidence of the American people."

Sparkman, who serves on the foreign relations committee to which the resolution was referred, said its "only practical effect is a stab in the back for our delegation fighting for us at the United Nations."

Jessup has had to carry an extra load at Paris because of the illness of Warren Austin, chief American delegate to the UN, Sparkman said.

"According to all reports, he is doing an excellent job," the Senator added. "I don't think it's becoming at this time to take out after the man who is representing us in opposition to (Andrei) Vishinsky (Russian foreign minister)."

Miss Pauline Weir Heads Auxiliary Group

NORWOOD, Jan. 12—(ENS)—Installation of officers and annual reports were the chief items of business at the January meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the United Church WMS. The meeting was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Jack Stewart.

A poem entitled "End of the Year" was read by the president, Miss Pauline Weir. The financial reports showed $281 sent to the Presbyterial during 1951. The corresponding secretary's report showed 29 annual members, four life members, an average attendance of 22 and three members by removal.

The installation of officers was conducted by the Rev. H. K. Wright. The officers are as follows: president, Miss Pauline Weir; vice-president, Miss Lila Kirk; recording secretary, Mrs. Armar Weir; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Percy Kempt; treasurer, Mrs. Russell Gardner; missionary monthly secretary, Miss Clara Jenkins; associate members secretary, Mrs. Earl Hamblin; Cristian Citizenship and temperance, Mrs. Jack Stewart; community friendship secretary, Mrs. Gerald Baker; press secretary, Mrs. David Hall; group leaders, Mrs. John McConnell, Mrs. Gerald LaBrash, Mrs. Stanley Flett.

The year card was adopted to be used again as a means of raising funds during the coming months. The presbyterial meeting of the WMS is to be held January 22 at St. Andrew's United Church in Peterborough.

Mrs. John McConnell, leader of the group in charge of the program, conducted the worship service, assisted by Mrs. Irwin Warren and Mrs. Allan McNab.

The study period, based on "From Lakes to Northern Lights," was presented by the question and answer method by the leader, Mrs. McConnell, assisted by Mrs. D. Hall, Miss Florence Nevins and Mrs. Fred Patterson, and dealt with French Canadian evangelism. Protestant churches are concerned, they said about two classes of people in Quebec Province — French Protestants who are in scattered minority groups without separate educational and religious privileges, and some former French Roman Catholics who are drifting into atheism.

The Rev. H. K. Wright closed the meeting with a bendiction.

Congressional Group Investigates Kissing

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—The topic of kissing—and its dangers—was studied Thursday by a Congressional investigating committee.

The committee technically is investigating the use of chemical in cosmetics.

Dr. Marion B. Sulzaberger, a Fifth Avenue dermatologist, said at a committee hearing that a man can incur skin irritation by kissing a woman if he is allergic to ingredients in her lipstick.

"I have seen men with lipstick dermatitis from kissing their wives' lips," she said.

"Necessarily from their wives?" asked Rep. Gordon McDonough (Rep.-Calif.).

The reply, if any, was lost in laughter.

Western Oils Dominate Toronto Market

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Western Canada's oil possibilities captured speculative and investment interest on Toronto's Stock Market this week as the Exchange's oils index climbed to the highest level in its 15-year history.

Sparked by reports of new strikes on Scurry's Alberta holdings, Western oils dominated trading and brought renewed confidence to hesitant traders.

Friday's session climaxed the mounting enthusiasm as the Exchange's index posted five consecutive highs for a gain of almost two points.

The rest of the market fared poorly. Leading industrials traded steadily and a gradual spread was noted toward the weekend. Base metals made little headway.

Point Way

Toronto opened the week with indications of what was to follow. Reports of Western oil strikes bounced the index to a high while selected issues, notably Scurry, posted advances ranging to 47 cents. Industrials showed little trend while golds and base metals wavered uncertainly. Papers and industrials were firm in Montreal.

Profit-taking Tuesday checked Western oils advance in Toronto. Papers strengthened in Montreal, but industrials eased.

Slowly strengthening final-hour support in Toronto Wednesday turned back a steady decline. In Montreal, papers and industrials turned downward.

The Federal government's relaxation of credit restrictions boaster a few selected industrial issues in Toronto Thursday. Western oils turned upward again. Montreal papers and industrials edged higher.

Western oils and industrials climbed strongly in Toronto Friday, but other sections made little headway. In Montreal, papers and industrials continued a slow, steady advance.

Selected issues were in demand Monday in New York, but the list was generally mixed. Mild selling pressure Tuesday pushed the prices slightly lower. Trading was irregular Wednesday. Broad buying lifted the market Thursday, while oils and rails led a general rise Friday.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 1.27 at 341.29, golds down 2.18 at 82.67, base metals up .28 at 196.19, and Western oils up 4.40 at 129.51.

Cavan WA Continues Pot Luck Dinners

CAVAN, Jan. 12—First W. A. meeting of Cavan United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Tinney, with 15 members present. The president, Mrs. Ray Syer, was in the chair.

A balance of $105.16 was reported by the treasurer, and Miss Annie Tinney moved that the usual amount of $60. be sent to the WMS in Toronto.

Mrs. Fred Byers was named parsonage board treasurer, and Mrs. H. Braithwaite press secretary. Pot luck dinners will be carried on this winter, and hostesses will be: Miss Tinney, Mrs. Fred Byers, Mrs. Milton Carr, Mrs. D. Tinney, and Mrs. H. Braithwaite.

Mrs. Newell and Mrs. Melville Carr were named to be the program committee for the next three months. Members presented a program an old hymns and their origins. A Biblical contest was conducted by Mrs. H. Snyder.

Mrs. A. M. Butler said the benediction.

Telephone Commissioners Say Told To Find New Man

BETHANY, Jan. 12—(Staff)—The case of the dismissed telephone lineman took on a new light today with the statement by commissioners of the Manvers telephone system that Clarke Pomeroy had told them in November to "go ahead and find someone else".

Since the fracas started, the commission chairman, Ernest Cavano, has resigned, and one group of shareholders has circulated a petition suggesting the Pomeroys were dismissed in an unfair manner.

Commission's Explanation

The nub of the situations is this, according to the commission's view:

When Mr. Pomeroy was told by the commission that in future two men would do the job he had been doing for the past 10 years, he told them to go ahead and find someone else.

When the time came for applications for the 1952 job of lineman, Mr. Pomeroy did not submit one. At a special meeting, he reiterated his stand, and said he was not interested in continuing.

Reason for the separation of the jobs of lineman and nightwatchman was a 300 per cent increase in business since Mr. Pomeroy was first hired.

Because of that increase, said the commissioners, Mr. Pomeroy told them he was on duty practically the whole night, and was unable to do his daytime work as lineman.

Sent Notice

The commissioners were of the opinion that notice was necessary about vacating the house that goes with the job. On December 13, however, they informed him by letter that the house should be vacated for the new lineman by January 1.

This letter was disregarded, said the commissioners, and a further notice was sent January 2. Unless he vacates without delay, say the commission's solicitors, "proceedings will be necessary".

"The commission had no other course to pursue," declared the solicitors.

Heads Federation

TORONTO, Jan. 12 — (CP).—C. A. Milligan, dairy and general farmer of Napanee, was elected president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture at a directors' meeting yesterday. He succeeds J. C. Broderick, St. Catharines. Executive members include: Roy Lick, Oshawa, H. L. Crise, St. Catharines, and Alec McKenney, Brampton.

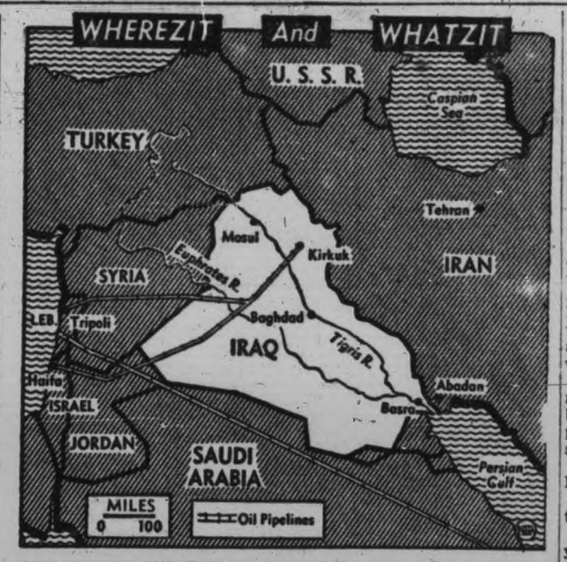
SUPER-SACK FOR ACHING BACKS — Ground-bruised and weary soldiers in the Far East are now being equipped with this lightweight inflatable sleeping pad. Made of nylon and rubber fabric, the pads can be blown up by lung-power and provide a welcome three-inch air cushion between the soldiers and the cold, hard ground. Two soldiers show how two pads fit a pup tent.

Farmers Urge Ottawa Reduce Tobacco Tax

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP)—The Ontario Federation of Agriculture Friday asked the federal government to reduce the tax on Canadian tobacco "to a point where Canadian cigarettes may be sold competitively with American products."

A resolution, passed near the close of the federation's annual convention, said high prices caused by the tax have cut down the use of tobacco and threatened the welfare of Ontario tobacco growers.

It said another result was an increase in smuggling of United States cigarettes which were starting to change the tastes of Canadian smokers.



Other Topics

Federation members also got onto the subject of retail price fixing. It said in a resolution:

"The federation does endorse and support the principle of price regulation where such regulation is considered to be in the public interest and where such regulated prices are open to public review and subject to change by an authorized public authority."

Another resolution asked that something be done to protect farmers agains hunters, whose "carelessness is equalled only by their arrogant insolence."

Members said a commission should be set up to inquire into methods of selecting hospital boards; the extent to which such boards are responsible to the public; and what safeguards are provided to make certain hospitals are built and operated in an efficient manner.

IRAQ (called Mesopotamia before World War I) is a land of strange paradoxes. It is a land of incredible wealth (oil and agriculture), but also a land of abject poverty. Most of its 5,000,000 inhabitants are Moslems, many of them are roving herdsmen. Ancient Iraq is the cradle land of our Bible, between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, and land of the Garden of Eden, but in the family of nations it is a comparative youngster. Carved from the Turkish empire after World War I, it was mandated to Britain in 1920. The present kingdom was established in 1921. It remained under mandate until 1932, when it became independent under King Feisal I. The present king, Feisal II, born in 1935, has been ruler in name (under regency of an uncle) since he was four. During World War II, Nazi intrigue threatened to get control of the country and the British occupied it to forestall the Germans. Our GI's remember Iraq as incredibly hot and dry, a nation of strange customs and many diseases, with its mosques and its women "off limits." They went there to help defend the strategic "land bridge" between Europe and Asia and keep open the Persian Gulf "back door" to our then-ally Russia. Now, Britain is responsible for keeping Iraq free of Soviet aggression, but in the wave of nationalism sweeping the Arab nations, Iraq, too, has recently given out rumblings that it wants to shake free of British influence. The world's eighth largest oil producer at its Mosul and Kirkuk fields, Iraq stands in greatest need of harnessing its rivers for power, irrigation and flood control.

Hanging Set April 8 For Monette

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 12 — (CP)—Richard Monette, 28-year-old roofing contractor, Friday night was sentenced to be hanged April 8 for the beating death Nov. 10 of Harper Harris, 83, in what the Crown contended was an attempt to force Harris to reveal the hiding place of his money.

After a jury in Ontario Supreme Court brought its verdict before Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen pronounced the sentence, Monette said in a clear voice:

"My Lord, I did not kill Harper Harris."

Mr. Justice Aylen told the jury that had convicted Harris:

"It was the only honest verdict you could return on the evidence."

Monette, in his own defence, testified that he called on Harris, bachelor farmer who lived alone on the outskirts of St. Catharines, at 4 am to discuss additional roofing repairs. He said Harris fell down the cellar stairs and suffered fatal injuries. When he saw Harris was dead he said he became frightened and ran away.

Alex Belz, summing up the Crown's case, termed Monette's story of going to the Harris home to discuss roofing at 4 am "fantastic." He said robbery was a more likely motive.

Bruno Falvo, taxi driver from Niagara Falls, NY, had testified that Monette asked him to go into the cellar of the house with him to get money.

Defence counsel M. A. Seymour told the jury there was no evidence that Monette's visit to the house was planned.

"Would he have had a taxi driver take him right to the scene if he were contemplating robbery?"

A pathologist told the court he doubted if Harris could have suffered all the injuries found on his body in a fall down stairs.

Lakefield Seeks To Clear Algae

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 12—(ENS)—Newly elected president, Harold Hamblin presided for a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce held on Tuesday evening in the Council Chamber of Memorial Hall. A good attendance was present.

W. D. Sheppard reported that the Santa Claus parade sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce had been a very successful event.

Health and Family Welfare convener, Dr. R. H. Campbell stated that the drain at the public school was in a very bad condition and suggested that the committee in charge should look into the matter as soon as possible. He also reported that Dr. Wilson would help with the routine dental inspection of the public school pupils.

William C. Grant brought to the attention of the meeting the undesirable conditions of the 6th line of Douro road and suggested that the chamber do all it could to have the road improved.

The prevalence of algae in the waters of the Kawartha Lakes was viewed with decided alarm and the secretary, Mrs. William O'Brien was asked to write the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Montreal and state the concern felt by the members over this condition and see if they could suggest some course of action to be taken.

C. J. Davis stated that a similar condition had existed in some bodies of water in Quebec and suggested that those areas should be contacted with a view of ascertaining from them if they had been successful in clearing the waters and if so, in what manner.

Tourist entertainment was discussed and suggestions for same will be asked for at a general meeting to be held in Memorial Hall February 12th. The suggestion was also made that during the months when the tourists are here the stores should be open on Wednesday afternoons and some evenings as well for their convenience. A program of more organized water sports was also suggested.

Britain Buys Canadian Parkas

By BILL BOSS.

SEOUL, Jan. 12 — (CP). — Britain is buying 2,000 Canadian Army "winter suits" from Canadian stores in Korea to remedy deficiencies for her own troops, it was announced today.

Col. P. R. Henderson of Advanced Headquarters, British Forces in Korea, said a special dollar allocation was authorized today by the British Treasury to make the purchase.

Maj. C. F. Hamilton of Brandon, Man., chief administrative officer to Brig. John Rockingham, said the suits are parkas and will be drawn from 6,000 now in Korea. They will be replaced from Canada as soon as possible.

At $43.66 for each suit, the deal represents $87,320.

Britain has encountered a size problem in outfitting men more than 5 feet 10 inches in height. Hamilton said the parkas to be transferred should be the answer.

Campbellford Man Elected Vice-President

TORONTO, Jan. 12 — (CP) — Ontario cheese producers last year opened at Belleville the province's first processing and marketing plant to be operated by a producers' association. They moved Friday to take a hand in controlling foreign competition.

Delegates attending the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association annual meeting Friday voted to ask the federal government to bar import of cheddar cheese into Canada unles it had the approval of the association.

The cheese men also voiced objection to the importation of vegetable oils.

W. O. Coon, of Elgin, in Leeds county, was named president of the association. Hector Arnold, of Campbellford is vice-president.

Up To Canada If Meyer Freed

OTTAWA, Jan. 12—(CP)—Germany is expected to take over jurisdiction of impnisoned Nazi war criminals in the next few months, but it still will be up to Canada to decide whether Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer should be released, officials indicated today.

Negotiations proceeding in Bonn are likely to result in prisoners being turned over to West Germany when she assumes virtual sovereignty but still provide that German recommendations for releases, paroles or cuts in sentences must get the final approval of the country or countries which sentenced each individual.

External Affairs Minister Pearson suggested Thursday that the pattern for Germany might be found in the Japanese peace treaty, but then again it might not. That treaty gives the Japanese control over war criminals and the power to recommend changes in sentence, but the final power in each case rests with the country which sehtenced the criminal.

2 Coboconk Youths Asphyxiated In Car Accident

LINDSAY, Jan. 4. (ENS)—Two Coboconk youths were asphyxiated early Sunday morning while driving home from Lindsay on Highway 35. The two men—George Weaver, 23, and Gordon Hannivan, 21—were asphyxiated by carbon monoxide fumes that came from a defective exhaust pipe.

Coroner Dr. G. C. Grahame, of Fenelon Falls, said there would be no inquest. They were discovered about 10:30 am Sunday by the Rev. G. H. Parke-Taylor, Anglican rector of Fenelon Falls, who was travelling to Cameron village to conduct morning service. He saw the car wedged in a snowdrift and when he investigated he found the two bodies, and the vehicle reeked of exhaust fumes.

Mr. Taylor went to the nearby farm of Allen Gillis and called OPP Constable Fred Rawlings of Fenelon Falls.

The story pieced together by Constable Rawlings is this:

Attended Dance.

The youths had been at a Saturday night dance at Coboconk with two Lindsay girls. Apparently they brought the girls home to Lindsay and were on their way home to Coboconk when they began to be affected by the fumes.

For a short distance the car went down the wrong side of the highway and then ran into a snowbank on a deserted stretch, four miles south of Fenelon Falls.

It is believed they left the motor running to keep warm. When Constable Rawlings investigated he found that the heater was turned on and the ignition switch was turned off. One of the men is thought to have had enough presence of mind to turn it off before he succumbed to the fumes.

All the windows were closed.

Broken Exhaust Pipe

When the car was examined it was found to have a broken exhaust pipe in front of the muffler. Fumes had seeped up through the numerous cracks and holes in the floor boards of the car.

Both youths had been dead for some hours when found. Constable Rawlings was told by the two Lindsay girls that Weaver and Hannivan left Lindsay about 3:45 am Sunday. And it is likely they became stuck in the snow half an hour later.

They were found by Mr. Park-Taylor at 10:30 am. A farmer who lives nearby saw the car a couple of hours earlier but thought it had been abandoned and didn't pay much attention to it.

Weaver is a son of Norman Weaver and had been employed as a snowplow driver on the provincial highway. Hannivan is a son of Edward Hannivan and was working as a trucker.

Canada Agrees To Field Division If War

OTTAWA, Jan. 14 (CP)—Canada is understood to have agreed to field a division in Europe within a matter of months if war breaks out there. She has a brigade—roughly one third of a division—there now.

The government is expected to discuss this and other matters with Prime Minister Churchill's party today, and also to tell Mr. Churchill that Canada rejected certain other proposals by the Atlantic Pact's committee of "three wise men."

These are believed to include proposals that Canada should ship raw materials to Britain and other European allies free and that she should boost her mutual aid program—arms, air training, radar and other equipment—for this year to a fairly moderate extent.

Mr. Churchill and three of his cabinet ministers arrived at the east block at 11:15 am EST, today for a meeting with the cabinet.

Mr. Churchill was with Foreign Secretary Eden, Lord Ismay, commonwealth minister, and Lord Cherwell, atomic expert.

Abbott Absent

Finance Minister Abbott was absent. He left Sunday night for Europe and informed quarters said he was authorized by cabinet to accept some and reject other proposals put forward by the NATO three-man committee which made recommendations for a redistribution and increase in the joint Western defence load.

Under her $2,000,000,000 defence program for the next fiscal year, Canada does plan substantial aid to Europe in arms, air training, equipment shipments and a share in the cost of airfields, communications and other factors under the so-called "infrastructure" program.

The "three wise men," headed by Averill Harriman of the US, proposed that she do more than already planned for Europe. Canada apparently feels that her present program is large enough.

Reports Grow Invasion Near

By The Associated Press.

Unconfirmed reports that Red China is mobilizing for an invasion of southeast Asia came anew today from Hong Kong and Formosa. And from Moscow came a charge that the United States France and Britain are conspiring for "new war ventures" in the same area.

The official Red newspaper Pravda repeated charges that the American seventh fleet has been carrying Chinese Nationalist soldiers to Thailand, Burma and Indo-China near Communist China's southern border.

The Nationalist Chinese defence ministry in Formosa said Red troops are massed at South China bases awaiting the signal to move southward. It said huge supplies of food and war material are ready and more than 30 seagoing ships are loading supplies at Whampoa near Canton.

French authorities in Indo-China Monday said the Reds apparently are getting ready for a big push on the isolated Boa Binh Basin, 40 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Communist-led Vietminh rebels have concentrated anti-aircraft guns in the area to shoot down French planes airlifting supplies to the isolated strong point at Hoa Binh.

Mayor Changes Mind About Royal Boycott

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Jan. 14 (AP)—Mayor C. T. Grero has changed his mind about boycotting Princess Elizabeth's visit here next month. He now offers his co-operation.

Grero, elected Thursday by a coalition of Marxists and breakaway members of the United National party, said Saturday he would have nothing to do with the ceremonies welcoming Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during a stopover on their way to a Royal tour of Australia.

Today, however, he sent Prime Minister Don Stephen Senanayake a letter offering his co-operation, and that of the Colombo municipal council, during the Royal visit.

Investigate Factory In Sweater Scare

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP). — City officials on the trail of inflammable sweaters, planned to visit today a New York plant which two manufacturers say supplied material for some of the garments.

A small-scale national scare has been stirred up by the sweaters, which burn to ashes in less than a minute if ignited. Police in various areas reported that many of the sweaters have been turned over to them. One was reported to have burned when the wearer lit a cigarette, another when the wearer stood too near a gas stove.

City Fire Marshal Martin Scott said Sunday night he would visit the plant of the Empire State mills here today.

Two sweater manufacturers in New York and Cleveland Sunday told officials that the Empire State mills had supplied them with material for their products. Scott called the material "brush rayon."

Plane Crashes In River, 36 Rescued

Police, Coast Guard Aid Passengers As Aircraft Sinks

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (CP)—A Northeast Airlines passenger plane, trying to land in a dense fog by radar, crashed into the East River today. The 36 persons aboard were saved.

The twin-engined Convair, inbound to LaGuardia Airport from Boston, hit the river half a mile short of the landing strip.

Passengers scrambled out and huddled on a jutting wingtip or thrashed about in the water as a dozen rescue craft swarmed to the scene.

Survivors were carried to an improvised emergency hospital at Queens Pier. Fifteen were taken later to hospitals, but only two were reported in serious condition.

None Left Behind

The airline said it was advised by the plane's pilot, Captain Al Marsh, that he was the last to leave the aircraft and that none was left behind. Stewardess Carolin Hull also said all were rescued. Two persons were reported seriously injured.

No Canadians were listed in the passenger list.

The two - engined Convair plunged into the water at a point near where the river joins the boroughs of Queens, Manhattan and the Bronx.

A heavy overcast, with fog limiting visibility to a half mile and the ceiling 600 feet, shrouded the metropolitan area as the plane came in.

It was reported heading for runway 22 at La Guardia field, southeast of the scene of the crash. At Portland, Me., an airline spokesman said the flight left Boston at 7.45 am EST and was due at La Guardia at 8.52 am.

Resume Search For Crew Of 45

SEATTLE, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Search planes awaited clearing weather today to resume scanning the storm-tossed North Pacific for the freighter Pennsylvania and her 45-man crew.

Hope for the missing crew members, who took to lifeboats during a howling Pacific storm last Wednesday, was fading, but the Coast Guard ordered a thorough search of an area southeastward of the last position reported by the stricken freighter.

A gale force storm with winds up to 75 miles an hour forced the Coast Guard to cancel all search flights Sunday.

Seventeen planes were put on the alert to take part in a search planned for today, weather permitting. Four surface vessels also were in the area but the Coast Guard reported them "hull down in very high seas" and unable, until the weather moderates, to participate. The ships were battling 35-foot waves, the Coast Guard said.

EIGHT LOCAL AIRPLANES flew in formation from Peterborough to Bewdley for breakfast where they landed on the ice of Rice Lake and lined up as shown here. (Seven are shown; the eighth was taking the picture. It was the largest group ever to land at Bewdley. Pilots were Ed. Browne, Al Warren, Howard Berry, Gord Griffin, Alec Ingram, Doug MacPherson, Vert Reynolds and Harry Oakman.—(Harry Oakman Photo)

Ask A-Plan Go To Committee

PARIS, Jan. 14. (AP)—The western Big Three formally proposed today that Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinky's new atomic proposals be shunted from the United Nations' General Assembly to the new Disarmament Commission. Britain, France and the United States circulated a resolution to that effect following a three-hour private meeting called to draft a reply to the Russian proposals. The three powers were treading carefully until they could get a chance to gauge the effect on world opinion of Vishinsky's offer to make a ban on atomic weapons simultaneously with establishment of a control system and to permit continuous UN inspection—rather than only periodic checks of atomic energy facilities.

Propaganda Triumph

Many high sources felt that the Russian diplomat had scored a propaganda triumph that the West must counter with extreme care and delicacy.

The western position so far was that the Vishinsky proposals offered nothing that the general assembly could take up profitably now, and that the disarmament commission is the proper forum for discussion of the Russian move.

A British spokesman saw in Vishinsky's move a victory for western persistence in resisting the earlier Russian demands for immediate and unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon.

These modifications, the spokesman said, evidently resulted from the secret Big-Four disarmament talks held last month.

This, he said, gave rise to a hope that discussions on atomic control in the disarmament commission might bring the east and west together on the subject.

American delegate Ernest Gross said Vishinsky's proposal was "double talk words without meaning."

British spokesmen said Russia's latest plan could not be branded propaganda immediately. But the delegates were keenly aware of the propaganda punch Vishinsky packs into such moves.

Report Alexander Offered Top British Defence Post

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Jan. 14. (CP)—A reported move by Prime Minister Churchill to put Field Marshal Viscount Alexander back into military harness emerged today as one of the key developments of Mr. Churchill's long weekend stay here. Official sources indicated Sunday that Mr. Churchill has asked the 60-year-old Canadian governor-general, one of Britain's top generals in the Second World War, to accept a British defence post. This post is expected to be quite possibly that of defence minister in the British Cabinet, a portfolio which Mr. Churchill himself now holds along with the prime ministership.

Mr. Churchill, who arrived here Friday and returns to Washington Tuesday, has been staying with Viscount Alexander, an old friend, at Rideau Hall and they have had a number of private conversations together. It was then, presumably, that Mr. Churchill offered him the post.

There was no indication when Viscount Alexander, whose term as Governor-General has been extended to next fall, might leave this country. His departure is not believed to be imminent.

Second Report

In the speculation that swirled around the new development, it also was reported that Viscount Alexander might become a sort of military co-ordinator of an Anglo-American-French military front against Communism in the vital Far East.

REPORT ALEXANDER (Continued on Page 2)

Police Fear Car In Lake

HAILEYBURY, Jan. 14 (CP)—Ontario provincial police fear an automobile and its occupants are on the bottom of Lake Timaskaming, three miles off-shore from this Northern Ontario town.

Residents reported Saturday that a car seemed to disappear as it travelled across the ice to Ville Marie on the Quebec shore. Police found auto tracks leading straight into open water, a 16-foot opening in a pressure ridge running down the centre of the lake and no signs that the vehicle turned around.

They probed the bottom, 232 feet down, with a weighted line Sunday, but were unable to prove a thing.

Quebec provincial police reported no one missing from their side of the lake, but said an entire farm family may have driven into the lake on a return trip from Haileybury.

Late Saturday night a second car nearly dropped into the same hole. It managed to stop with the front wheels in the water and the running boards resting on the brink. It was driven by a group of Haileybury youths.

Rinfret, Ross Macdonald Also Considered As Possible Successors

Want Canadian To Fill Position Now But Not Easy Task; Political Ties, Lack of Chatelaine Problems

OTTAWA, Jan. 14. (CP)—Reports that Prime Minister Churchill has offered Viscount Alexander a new post today led to speculation on possible choices as Canada's next Governor-General. There have been unofficial reports that the Canadian Government plans to name a Canadian to the post once Viscount Alexander's extended term expires this fall. Traditionally, a prominent citizen of the United Kingdom has been given the post.

Canadians mentioned as possible successors to Viscount Alexander have been Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, 65, Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, 73, of the Supreme Court of Canada and Ross Macdonald, 61, Speaker of the House of Commons.

Not Easy Task

Sources close to the government have indicated it will not be an easy task to find an acceptable candidate if the government adopts a policy of appointing a Canadian as Governor-General.

For instance, they say, Mr. Massey, Chancellor of the University of Toronto, might be ruled out on the grounds that he is a widower. It is customary for Government House to have a chatelaine.

Chief Justice Rinfret serves as Deputy Governor-General when the Governor-General is absent. He might be ruled out on the grounds that the first Canadian to be Governor-General should be English, rather than French-speaking.

Mr. Macdonald, popular Speaker of the House of Commons, might be eliminated on the grounds that he is still too close to politics to be appointed to a post that is considered above politics.

Unionists Urge Speeding Up Labor Mediation

HAMILTON, Jan. 14 (CP). — Representatives of some 200,000 Ontario trade unionists, Sunday approved a series of motions designed to speed up conciliation proceedings in labor disputes.

Delegates to the sixth convention of the Ontario Provincial Federation of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada (AFL) also decided to shorten the name of their body to the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor.

Communism was outlawed in the Federation by a motion which declared that no organization controlled by Communists or members of the Labor-Progressive party could be allowed representation.

The Federation asked that Ontario law be changed to allow a union freedom to strike 90 days after notice has been given to bargain in a wage dispute.

Long Delays

Delegates said that long delays resulted from present legislation which demands a waiting period of seven days after a conciliation board report is made before a strike is legal. Some unions had to wait six months for a report.

The Federation asked for increased grants for the Ontario Department of Labor to acquire a sufficient staff of experienced officers for the rapid settlement of disputes. Another motion asked that the minimum period before a request for conciliation can be made be reduced from 50 to 30 days.

Delegates approved in principle a resolution calling for a 30-hour, five-day week but suggested that the 40-hour week be first established firmly in all trades.

Search Everglades Trail For Missing Canadian

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP) — Search for the missing Canadina beauty who disappeared in the Florida Keys 10 days ago centred along the wild Tamiami Trail through the Everglades today.

Roger Nedeau, private detective from Montreal, said he had "definitely established" that Mrs. Huguette Lemay, 21-year-old beauty, was seen on the trail west of Miami two days after she disappeared on Jan. 4.

"We have found four persons who saw her on the Tamiami Trail last Sunday," Nedeau said Sunday. "We have every reason to believe she was the person they saw, because the description tallies exactly. I am positive she was seen there.

"It is still possible that she is alive. I believe she either was kidnapped or hitch-hiked away from the scene. I don't believe she was drowned."

Egyptians Attack British Troops

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 14 — (Reuters). — Egypt's reinforced "liberation army" of terrorists opened full-scale attacks on British troops today ambushing a reconnaissance patrol in a deadly crossfire and duelling heavily with a rescue party.

First British reports listed one officer and one enlisted man killed in the morning-long battle.

Terrorists staged the ambush near the main gate of the huge Tel El Kebir ordnance depot, scene of frequent skirmishing during the past week. They caught the Cameron Highlanders patrol in a three-way fire with rifles and automatic weapons.

Troops of the Grenadier Guards rushed forward to rescue the Camerons and dispersed the Egyptians with three-inch mortars. The Camerons withdrew under cover of heavy fire to a roadblock.

Report Two Envoys In Moscow Prison

BERLIN, Jan. 14 (AP) — A diplomat recently returned from Russia said today that two British foreign officers missing since last May are being held in a Moscow prison.

This authority requesting anonymity, said it was almost "common knowledge" in the diplomatic corps in Moscow that Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean are in Lubiyanka jail, reserved for high priority prisoners.

MacLean was head of the American department in the British foreign office and Burgess was a former secretary at the embassy in Washington.

Mossadegh Won't Change Orders UK Consulates Shut

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 14. (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh stood fast today against British urging that he withdraw his order for the closing of Britain's nine consulates in Iran.

The shutdown order, he told British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd, will stand as long as he is premier. The consulates have been ordered closed by Jan. 21 because, Iran charges, they have been agitating against the government and interfering in Iranian affairs.

Britain has denied the charges. Iran has no consulates in Britain, so the United Kingdom can't retaliate.

In London political circles felt generally that the two countries are heading for a complete diplomatic break unless Mossadegh alters his course. British officials could see no alternative to compliance with Iranian order to close the consulates.

The aged premier, who received Shepherd from his bed Sunday, also refused the Briton's request that he intercede for the release of the jailed Reuters correspondent, Ghegham Megerdichian, an Iranian. Megerdichian had represented the British News Agency since the expulsion last month of its regular correspondent, Leopold Herman. The government charged him with false reporting and engaging in activities detrimental to the nation.

Mossadegh continued to have his troubles on the home front. A scheduled session of the Majlis could not be convened Sunday because only 39 of the 56 deputies required for a quorum were on hand. At the session the premier had been expected to charge his opponents in parliament with being British stooges.

Expect Templer New Malay Chief

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Reuters).—Gen. Sir Gerald Templer 53, now in Ottawa for talks with Prime Minister Churchill, is expected to be named as Britain's new chief in Malaya within the next 48 hours.

Templer will be appointed High Commissioner in a drastic reshuffle of the organization to fight Communist guerrillas.

At present Commander-in-Chief of the Eastern Command in Britain, he will have wider powers than his predecessor—Sir Henry Gurney, killed in a guerrilla ambush last October.

Oliver Lyttelton, Colonial Secretary, who recently made an on-the-spot inquiry into the security set-up in Malaya, forecasts that Templer will be in command of military as well as civil forces.

Another post to be filled is police commissioner, left vacant by the resignation of Col. William N. Gray, announced today in Singapore. The military intelligence directorship also is vacant.

Wedding Bell Rumors Strong About Princess

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Reuters).—Predictions of Royal wedding bells grew strong today as Princess Margaret returned hospitality and welcomed the Scottish Earl of Dalkeith to her family's country home at Sandringham.

Ultra-proper officials at Buckingham Palace still give a tight-lipped "no comment," but to avid followers of Royal romances this rates almost as high as a direct confirmation. They usually expect indignant denials from the palace staff.

The red haired six-footer who will one day be Duke of Buccleuch was host to the Princess during the post-Christmas season at his home in the Scottish border district, squiring her to hunts by day and dances by night.

The 28-year-old Earl ("Johnny" to the Princess) has been a steady contender for Margaret's attentions since she was 17.

Warm Clothing Rushed To Front Lines For British

TOKYO, Jan. 14. (Reuters) — Warm clothing was rushed to Korea by air today following the diclosure than an estimated 10 per cent of the front-line British troops are without their full issue of winter clothes.

A British spokesman said today's shipment consisted of 650 Canadian parkas. An additional 1,350 should reach the Commonwealth Division area in two days. He added that the clothing was purchased with an emergency dollar allocation.

(A four-engined plane left Nicosia, Cyprus, today carrying 13,000 pounds of winter gear to the British in Korea.)

The Canadian parkas have been tagged "the button-soup parkas" because the buttons can be ripped off and used for making soup. Designers say that stranded soldiers can boil the vitamin-packed buttons and make a nutritious, if not delicious, broth.

Canadian soldiers who have tried them say the result tastes "awful".

British officers said the reason for the winter-clothing shortage was that much of the equipment received in Korea was too small —resulting in not enough clothes for troops over five feet, nine inches tall.

Gen. James Van Fleet, Eighth Army Commander, offered to give American winter clothing to the Commonwealth Division today.

"The British can have anything they need to be combat fit," he said. "The Commonwealth Division is part of the Eighth Army."

Clark Withdraws From Job As Vatican Envoy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP) —President Truman has definitely decided to buck widespread opposition and nominate a United States ambassador to the Vatican. But he has withdrawn the name of Gen. Mark W. Clark for the post.

A 45-word White House announcement Sunday night said Clark's name was being withdrawn at the general's request, and added:

'The President plans to submit another nomination at a later time."

Sources close to the White "House emphasized that Truman's granting of Clark's request not to involve him in the controversy was not a first step in a move to drop the whole idea.

But they said they did not know who Truman might have in mind for nomination as the first full-fledged American ambassador ever sent to the Vatican, seat of the Roman Catholic church in Rome.

Likely Civilian

They said they were not sure that Truman himself knew at this time. In any event it is not likely to be another military man because of the extra complication of requiring special legislation to enable him to retain his military status while serving in a diplomatic post. Clark is commander of the US Army's field forces.

Clark's appointment, announced just a few hours before Congress adjourned last October, drew fire from both Protestant churches and Congress members. Roman Catholics generally approved.

Clark said the widespread religious criticism is what influenced him to ask Truman not to renominate him.

"The controversy that has developed has impelled me to ask the White House to withdraw my name," he said through an aide at Fort Monroe, Va., on Sunday night.

It is almost certain that whoever is named by Truman to the Rome post will face the same opposition Clark did. The criticism was almost entirely against the policy of sending an ambassador to the Vatican. Few were against the move because of Clark personally.

Forgery Trial Of H. Imming Begins In Court

Hugh F. Imming, 32, formerly a Peterborough resident, pleaded not guilty today when he was arraigned in county court on a charge of forgery.

Imming protested to Judge J. A. McGibbon when he appeared claiming that he had suddenly been left without defence counsel. But Judge McGibbon ruled that the acused man had ample time to settle the matter of counsel and ordered the trial to proceed.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw alleged that Imming, while employed by his brother Paul at the Ideal Auto Body car lot, Hunter St. W., forged a conditional sales contract. Imming is said to have signed the name Hugh F. Douglas on the false conditional sales contract in April, 1949.

The 12-man Peterborough county jury heard Ronald Seabrooke, 310 Maitland Ave., say that Imming rented a room at his place in the spring of 1949, and gave the name Hugh F. Douglas.

Stayed For Week

Seabrooke said that Imming stayed about a week and returned later to pick up a letter that had come through the mail to him.

"It was addressed to Hugh Douglas," said Seabrooke.

Seabrooke said he did not know Imming's true identity until the accused man's preliminary trial at the old police station. In the meanwhile he had seen Imming working at Ideal Auto body.

Imming put Seabrooke through a stiff cross-examination to try and shake Seabrooke's positiveness in identification. He asked the witness whether he was wearing a hat when he came to the house.

Imming also asked the witness how he could be so sure of identifying him when he couldn't remember the licence plate numbers in 1949. And he suggested that Seabrooke was mistaken in his identity.

Seabrooke, however, said there was no mistake. Imming was the man who roomed at his place and he went under the name of Hugh F. Douglas.

Writing Similarities

John McKone, handwriting expert, said that there were three similar characteristics in specimens of Imming's signature and the signature of Hugh F. Douglas on the contract. In his opinion they were written by the same person.

The Crown's evidence was in by noon.

The case is continuing later today.

Reds Call UN Delegates Liars In Hot Truce Debate

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 14. (AP)—Communist negotiators shouted "Lie" in a heated debate over prisoner exchange today and charged that Allied planes flew over several cities in northeast China Sunday. Allied negotiators on the truce supervision sub-committee switched tactics Monday after failing for three straight days to get a statement of the Communist stand on airfield reconstruction. Instead the UN asked the Reds to agree to restrictions.

The request got a chilly reception.

The Reds charged that Allied planes flew over Mukden, Wushien and other Chinese communities but did not say any were attacked.

A UN spokesman at Panmunjom said "we assume the charge is similar to a lot of other allegations they have made and completely irrelevant to the meeting."

A Fifth Air Force spokesman at Seoul denied that any Allied planes flew over northeast China Sunday.

Outburst of Temper

The outburst of Communist temper came after Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby explained that the Allied voluntary prisoner repatriation plan would be advantageous to the Reds as well as the UN.

"If your statement has been prepared in order to deceive a part of the people of the world who are ignorant, it would be all right," said North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho. "But it would not suit us."

"You had better not say any more that you would do us any favors.

"Should you continue to say so, it would mean that you tell a big lie."

Strong Inference

Libby retorted:

"I do not know whether I have personally been called a liar, but I got a strong inference. I shall study the record and make sure."

Both sub-committees agreed to meet again at 11 am Tuesday (9 pm EST Monday).

"There is one action that your side could take which would clearly overcome the evidence of your apparent desire to gain a cease-fire for the purpose of developing air power," Maj.-Gen. Claude Ferenbaugh told the Reds.

"You could agree with the United Nations command that there be no developments of military airfields on either side during the armistice. When you take that step the world will breath easier, for you would have given your first positive indication of sincerity toward a stable armistice and therefore toward peace."

Mr. Churchill is believed to have acquainted Prime Minister St. Laurent with the decision when he had a private hour-long chat with the Canadian Prime Minister at his official residence Sunday. Later, they were joined by cabinet colleagues from both sides for luncheon.

Meanwhile, Mr. Churchill's atomic expert, Lord Cherwell, will confer for a second time today with Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, head of Canada's National Research Council which oversees Canadian atomic research. They conferred for a time Sunday.

These meetings are believed a followup to Mr. Churchill's Washington discussions with President Truman regarding exchange of atomic secrets.

British informants said Mr. Churchill's purpose in coming to Ottawa was to have a good heart-to-heart talk with Canadians and to renew friendships. It is his first visit to this capital since wartime 1941 and his first since he became Prime Minister again last fall.

To Make Speech

Mr. Churchill will address a state dinner—the speech will be broadcast nationally at 10:15 pm. EST tonight—and Tuesday he will fly back to Washington for an address before a joint session of Congress Thursday.

While here, he has made few public appearances, but substantial crowds have gathered to cheer him lustily whenever it was known he was going to have an outing.

Hundreds congregated at the parliament buildings Saturday when he arrived to place a wreath in the memorial chamber honoring this country's war dead and to accept an honorory membership from the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Later, he attended a luncheon of Commonwealth High Commissioners in Ottawa and presumably briefed them on the results of his conversations with Mr. Truman.

Early Settlement Hoped From TTC Talks

TORONTO, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Hopes for an early settlement of Toronto's street-car and bus strike are pinned on talks scheduled today.

The Toronto Transportation Commission and the Street Railwaymen's Union (AFL-TLC) have agreed to make the new effort to end the strike called Jan. 4 to enforce wage demands by 4,700 operators of the publicly-owned transit service and its subsidiary Gray Coach Lines bus system.

Citizens generally were optimistic that the talks, due to start at 2 pm, in the office of Labor Minister Daley of Toronto would get the street-cars and buses running again. But many also expressed the view that, if the negotiations do not result in an agreement, there is little hope for any resumption of public transportation in the near future.

Prepared To Compromise

There were unconfirmed reports Saturday that the union was prepared to compromise on its demand for a 15-cent-an-hour increase to a basic rate of $1.55 an hour if the TTC would make concessions. However, the company gave no indication it would increas its ofefr of a five-cent increase—to $1.45—or let arbitration binding on both sides settle the dispute. The company has said it cannot pay more than $1.45 without increasing fares, now three for 25 cents.

The union has said repeatedly that it favors mediation but not arbitration.

Syd Hare, secretary of the Toronto union, said in Hamilton Sunday that union negotiators "are going into the meeting with the thought of settlement."

He was interviewed after he and George Wilson, union president, addressed a convention of the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor on the strike issue. The convention endorsed the strike of the TTC workers in what its resolution called their "fight for better wages."

Workers Reject New Ford Offer

WINDSOR, Jan. 14 — (CP).—Another try will be made this week to settle the long and bitter wage dispute between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and its workers.

Ford officials and representatives of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) announced Sunday night they will sit down together again in an effort to reach agreement on issues over which they have been at odds since last spring. The dispute was an underlying cause of last month's 12-day strike by 9,000 production workers.

Union members Sunday voted to reject a wage increase offer made last week by the company. Ford President Rhys Sale said the offer would have made Ford wage rates and benefits "as good as any in the Canadian automotive industry."

After Sunday's meeting at which 6,000 of the approximately 9,000 members of the union's local 200 voted almost unanimously to turn down the latest Ford offer, George Burt, Canadian UAW director, said in a statement:

"Mr. Sale sadly underestimated the spirit of Ford workers. By their vote today, (they) accepted Mr. Sale's challenge and re-emphasized their determination to fight for demands which the Conciliation Board found reasonable."

Any Indian Orders Will Be Filled–Soviet

BOMBAY, Jan. 14 (Reuters)—N. V. Novikov, Russian ambassador to India, said today that the Soviet Union is prepared to supply capital goods to India and accept payment in rupees or any other currency.

MONTREAL, Jan. 14 — (CP)— The United States dollar today opened at 23/32 of one per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1/32 from Saturday's close. That is, it took $1.00 23/32 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.80⅛, up ⅛ from Saturday.

Parked Cars, Icy Streets Cause Collisions

Icy streets combined with cars parked near intersections, blocking motorists' vision were blamed for most weekend accdents in the city.

Driving west on Hunter St., Saturday morning, George D. Boreham, 476 Donegal St., was crossing the intersection at Aylmer St., when his car was in collision with a car driven by Leslie Wright, RR 5 Lindsay.

Wright was going south on Aylmer St.

Borham told constable W. A. Scott who investigated that he saw the light change to green when he was about 60 feet from the intersection.

Damage estimated at $85 resulted when a car and truck collided at George and Perry Streets Saturday morning.

Blocked View

Each driver said he did not see the other car in time to avoid a collision because of a line of cars parked along the west side of George St.

After stopping at Perry St., before makng a left hand turn, to go north on George St., W. L. Storey, 751 Brown St., proceeded to make his turn. He had not completed the turn when a southbound George St. car, driven by Albert Brooks, Marshall St., Millbrook, came through the intersection and the two cars collided.

An estimated $35 damage resulted to Storey's car, with $35 damage being done to Brook's car. Constable Pat Gillis investigated.

As he was driving south on Armour Rd., Saturday evening, Leo J. Delaire, 299 King St., pulled out to pass a bus which had stopped at Carlisle Ave.

An oncoming northbound car, driven by James L. Wileman, 54 Redput St., Lindsay, was unable to stop in time and the two cars collided.

Both cars were damaged slightly.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Plane Crashes

Sank Swiftly

Witnesses on Riker's Island, a small strip of land in the river, said the plane plopped into the water, and sank swiftly. Only a tip of metal was left showing.

Police harbor launches, Coast Guard vessels and rescue helicopters sped to the scene.

The river, at that point, has a strong current, and shoved the craft downriver as rescue workers worked to get passengers out.

A tug took the first load of survivors ashore.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration said weather conditions were such that the pilot probably was trying to make an instrument landing.

Denmark Honors Capt. Carlsen

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Reuters).—Capt. Kurt Carlsen, Danish-born skipper of the Flying Enterprise, today received the Officer's Cross of the Order of Dannebrog conferred upon him by King Frederik of Denmark.

The cross, awarded for his bravery in the Enterprise saga, was presented to him by Count Eduard Reventlow, Danish Ambassador here, in a ceremony in the Danish Club.

An hour before he was due to arrive for the presentation, crowds began gathering at the club entrance hoping to get a glimpse of the seaman who made a 13-day struggle to save his crippled ship from Atlantic storms.

Extra police were brought in to control the crowds.

In an adjoining room was an oil painting of the Flying Enterprise drama. It was still wet.

The painting, depicting the moment when the tow line connecting the British tug Turmoil and the Flying Enterprise parted in the raging seas, is the work of a British marine artist, Maj. Tom Lewey. He painted as he listened to radio reports of the sinking last week.

Carlsen's next move will be to catch a plane for the US, and his long-awaited reunion with his wife and two children at Woodbridge, NJ.

The time of his departure has not yet been settled.

200 Fathers, Sons Attend Annual Banquet

More than 200 fathers and sons were banqueted at the Empress Hotel Saturday night by the Peterborough Christian Businessmen's committee which was holding its second father and son night.

Guest speaker was Leon Sullivan, vice-president of the Arthur L. Wright Investment Corporation of Philadelphia. He is the originator of the federal deposit reserve which stabilized the banking systhem in the United States during the depression.

Mr. Sullivan with passages from the Bible pointed out how some sons have changed the course of history, and dwelt on the responsibilities of father to son.

Other highlights were the presentations to the oldest father and to the youngest son. A book was presented to Harry E. Connolly, 585 King St., as the oldest father, 86 years old. A pen and pencil set and a New Testament was given Johnny Halliday, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Halliday, 545 Brioux Ave., as the youngest son.

The fathers and sons were entertained by The Forwardaires, a male quartet from Toronto, Terry Huffman, a vibraphonist from Peterborough and Ellis Bignell, a tenor soloist from Toronto. The weekly radio program was held over Station CHEX from 9 pm until 9:30.

US Navy Plans Atom Carriers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Secretary Dan Kimball said Sunday night the Navy plans to build a series of ten 60,000-ton supercarriers, one a year for a decade, and that it hopes some will be driven by atomic power.

He presented this project as part of a picture of how US naval power has expanded since the start of the Korean war and how it will grow in the future if the Russian menace continues.

Prototype of the new family of carriers—bigger by about 15,000 tons than any now afloat—will be the USS Forrestal, under contract for building at Newport News, Va. The Forrestal will be an entirely new type carrier, a true flattop. The usual island superstructure will be retractable to allow use of the full width of the flight deck. This will mean that big atomic bomb carrying planes can take off and land.

Drag Detroit River For Plane Wreckage

DETROIT, Jan. 14—(AP)—The ice-encrusted Detroit River was dragged today for the wreckage of a United States Navy patrol plane and the body of one of the two airmen who died when the craft crashed Sunday.

The plane, trying to land at the Grosse Ile naval air base in a pea-soup fog shortly before noon Sunday, plunged through the thick river ice after the pilot lost contact with radar signals being sent from the base, officers said

Both the men aboard lost their lives. They were identified as Lieut. Robert Lupton Cusick, of Millburn, NJ, and Lieut. William Barrow Collett, of Washington.

One body was found on the ice, about 100 feet from the crash. The other was believed to be in the submerged cabin. Navy and civilian salvagemen were working to recover it.

A storm in Colorado is preceded by a large area of southern winds, so that as the storm moves toward Lake Superior on Tuesday the mild weather will even spread some distance further north.

Extremely warm air lies just a little south of the Great Lakes where temperatures are close to 60 and there is a possibility that this air may reach extreme southwestern regions Tuesday. In the south, the storm is expected to bring rain on Tuesday while this will merge into snow in central and northern regions.

Two fires—one in Ontario and one in New Brunswick—claimed six lives during the weekend. Thirteen other persons in eastern Canada were killed during the same period.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed 10 persons killed in Ontario and three each in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Traffic accidents took five lives, four persons died of asphyxiation and one man was crushed to death.

Two soldiers and a civilian were killed at Moncton, NB, when fire swept through an airman's lounge. Dead as Pte. Frank Millson, Chatham, NB; H. A. Barkhouse, Sheet Harbor, NS; and Edward Simpson, Springhill, NS.

A house fire at Wanstead, Ont., killed three small children. Leland George Knudsen, 5, and his brothers, David Fred, 2, and Stuart William, 3, died in the flames. Wanstead is 20 miles east of Sarnia.

Carbon monoxide gas from a leaking exhaust pipe caused the death of George Weaver, 23, and Gordon Hannivan, 21, both of Coboconk, as they were driving near Fenelon Falls.

Poisoned by Fumes

In Toronto, Doreen Setback, 16, was poisoned by gas fumes from a defective heater in her home. John K. Rutherford of Ayr, was crushed to death by a 1,400-pound cement tile in an accident at his home.

A NEW HOME WAS BUILT IN ONE DAY by neighbours for the family of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis whose home was destroyed by fire earlier in the week. Early Saturday workers had erected the frame work (top left) and had started to put on the sheeting. Two boys of the family helped carry lumber (top right) to the workmen. The boys are Charles Ellis, Jr., 10, and Brian, 5, with Mrs. Ellis and two other children in the background. In the lower photo the job is nearly completed as the workers race against early darkness. In all about 100 turned out to help.

Dog Saves Master

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14 (AP)—A dog that barked furiously was credited Sunday with saving the life of a man who police said tried to kill himself and then changed his mind. Police said George B. Lewis, 47, went into his garage after a domestic spat, started his car engine and waited for carbon monoxide gas to overcome him. But as he began to lose consciousness, Lewis told police, he changed his mind. Too weak to move, he began yelling for help. His cries made the family dog bark. A neighbor awoke and rescued Lewis.

New Home Erected In Day For Family In Seymour On Site Of Burned Home

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 14 —(ENS)—A monument to a group of well organized and hard working citizens, in the form of a four room home stands today where less than a week ago was only a pile of charred rubble.

Volunteer workers labored from dawn until about 10 p.m. Saturday night to complete a new home for the family of Charles Ellis whose home was destroyed by fire Tuesday.

Funds for the project were furnished by the Campbellford Emergency Relief Fund which was established recently. No money from the original fund was used, but fresh donations of money, clothing, furniture and other household necessities came from citizens of both the town and township. More than 100 volunteers sawed, hammered and fitted to complete the house on Saturday.

The house boasts an asphalt shingle roof, permastone siding, double floor insulated with rock wool and insulated walls and ceiling. A picture window in the front of the home adds to the attractive appearance. A wiring job, complete with wall outlets will be completed later.

A brick chimney from the ground up was also provided.

Boss carpenter on the job was Ed. Little, building contractor of Campbellford, who supplied his knowledge, tools and equipment to help finish the job. The Godden Lumber Company supplied lumber at cost, and when darkness fell, Wallace Stapley provided his truck equipped with a generating unit and a welding equipment to supply lights inside and outside the house, so that the inside trim could be completed.

Headed Organization

H. S. Staples, pastor of the Campbellford Baptist church was in charge of the organization of the affair, being chairman of the Emergency Relief Fund and the Campbellford Citizens Association. He paid tribute to such women as Mrs. Ken Cairns, Mrs. Leo Doherty, Mrs. H. Bennett, Mrs. S. Anderson and Mrs. C. Newman, as well as many others, who looked after the procuring of the household necessities. A whole van load of these was moved into the home when it was completed and everything from a tooth-brush to a kitchen stove was included.

The ladies also took over the plant of the Rowe Bros. Silo Company nearby, and used the building as a huge dining hall where meals and lunches were served to the workmen throughout the day. All food was donated, and even with the large number of workers at the scene, enough food to look after the requirements of the average restaurant for many days was left over. This was given to needy families in the district.

Worked With Volunteers

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis watched the completion of their home with mingled feelings of appreciation and gratitude. Mr. Ellis worked with the others, hardly stopping to eat. Mrs. Ellis and her four children, who were staying at the St. Lawrence Hotel in Campbellford, saw the new home for the first time when she was taken to the scene by an Examiner reporter. As the car drew near the house, the family became speechless. Mrs. Ellis stared at the home for some seconds, then tears came to her eyes.

"It's too good to be true, I can't believe it", she said. The little group was hardly noticed by the workmen who were swarming over the home. It was almost completed at this point, late Saturday afternoon.

The committee in charge of the building campaign said no work had been planned for Sunday, and that the little cleaning up that remained to be done could be finished by a few of the committee on Monday. However, many workers returned to the scene on Sunday morning, and while there was no organization of the work, the little home was made tidy and neat by these willing workers.

Send In Money

Residents of Seymour Township, where the new home in located are contributing money for the fund. A number of donations have come in, and it is expected many more will contribute to the fund, as Seymour residents usually give generously to funds of this nature.

The project also had its humorous side. Saturday in mid-morning, workers were busy putting sheeting on the uprights of the walls and were hammering fast and furiously. One worker leaned against the building to rest for a moment, and when he tried to move away, he found himself nailed fast to the wall. Workers had placed the boards on the uprights, pinning the man's coat to the wall, and had not noticed this in their haste.

The family will not be moved into the new home until Monday, in order to give the building a chance to become thoroughly warmed through, and to avoid dampness.

Difficulties In Malaya

A war is being fought in Malaya and it is not going well for the British. The British Foreign Office and Mr. Churchill are aware of this and of the importance of Malaya in Western strategy. It is not mere chance that the South-East Asian situation was discussed in Washington during the Churchill visit and that Mr. Eden gave a warning to the Chinese Reds against intervention there; and that Mr. Churchill sent hurriedly for General Sir Gerald Templer while visiting Viscount Alexander. The general officer commanding in South-East Asia has one of the most vital and vulnerable posts in the western defences today.

* * *

The war in Malaya is a war of political ideology and of bullets. Communists parading as nationalists are waging the former; guerrillas under their inspiration are shouldering the arms. Military service (conscription is in force) has little appeal to the majority of young men in the Federated States, but if they do serve, they are as likely as not to join the Communist forces which are considered to be the Malayan races' liberation army. The twenty-five army battalions in Malaya are having difficulty defending the peninsula against the Communist guerrillas.

* * *

In the middle of 1950 a new plan was launched by the British. It had three objectives: to resettle the scattered population of squatters (about 500,000 of them) and thus bring them under the Administration; to concentrate troops in different areas by turns and wipe out the terrorists in those areas; to bring the people into the war and extend protection to them. Only the first of these objectives is being met at all. The political and social conditions in Malaya, where a majority of the population is now Chinese and the Malayans themselves are apathetic towards the British is as difficult as the purely military situation, of which it is a part. It is a situation requiring the ablest British generalship in the South-East Asian Command, so as to preserve Singapore and the Federated Malay States in their extremely important strategic role.

Strange Pollmates For Eisenhower

When General Eisenhower let it be known that he would accept the Republican Presidential nomination, expressions of satisfaction appeared in most United States newspapers. Twenty-four hours after the announcement, the score among major dailies was twenty-six for Eisenhower, nine for Senator Taft, and eight undecided. Those favouring the general as Republican candidate were most enthusiastic and optimistic; none of these, from the excerpts we have seen, emphasized the fact that if General Eisenhower receives the Republican nomination, a fresh set of political problems will be created.

For one thing, there is a strong possibility that a party division at present hazily outlined will become sharply defined. The Republican "Old Guard" and its isolationist supporters are perhaps stronger today in relation to total party strength than the rebel Southern Democrats are in relation to their party, and interested observers know only too well how effective the Southern Rebels have been in hamstringing the Truman Administration whenever they felt like doing so. General Eisenhower, if he wins the nomination, might thus find himself leading a party less united than that led by President Truman four years ago.

For another, there is a strong probability that General Eisenhower will find himself with some strange pollmates. The "ticket" ballot system prevails in the United States; that is, in each State the name of the Republican candidate for President will be accompanied by the party's candidate for Senator, Representative, and possibly a number of minor offices. And it would be strange indeed to see General Eisenhower's name on ballots containing those of isolationists and demagogues—strange to see it on a Missouri ballot with that of James P. Kem, on an Indiana ballot with William E. Jenner, an Ohio ballot with John W. Bricker, a Washington ballot with Harry P. Cain, a Nevada ballot with George W. Malone, a Utah ballot with Arthur V. Watkins; strangest of all to see it on a ballot with that of Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin. Voters could be forgiven some bewilderment at these incongruous associations.

The general's supporters may attempt to remedy this by seeking to have state organizations name candidates whose beliefs are more nearly in accord with his own. It will be interesting to see if this is done, or whether the demands of practical politics will be served by an association of strange pollmates.

Quebec's Biggest Year

The Quebec budget was brought down last week in the Provincial Legislature. It showed a record in revenue and outlay, both far surpassing the estimates made of them a year ago. And it showed a substantial surplus. The revenue for the fiscal year ending next March 31st is set at $270,590,400 and the expenditures at $269,421,000, leaving a net surplus of $1,169,400. Actually, the surplus on ordinary account was $63.6 millions, nearly $18½ millions higher than the original estimate.

The province of Quebec has been building roads at a tremendous rate—chiefly to open up new industrial areas. It has been this new industrial activity, combined with the general prosperity in the country as a whole, which has accounted for the great increase in provincial revenue—$40,000,000 above what was estimated last January. Quebec is no longer the quiet province of hereditary farms, tolling church bells and hooked rugs. It industrial capacity and future are prodigious. And Quebec enters upon this future with her finances in good order. Its total Provincial debt is constantly being reduced and its per capita debt is the lowest among all the governments in the country.

Overhead Signs On Yonge Street

From the point of view of a visitor to our Provincial capital and chief metropolis, we heartily endorse the Toronto Globe and Mail's campaign to rid Yonge Street of its overhanging advertising signs. Until the recent improvement of University Avenue, Toronto had no down-town street worth looking at twice; in fact, none that could be looked at without wincing. The building of the subway has provided the opportunity to remove the Yonge Street clutter and make it look what it should be: a decent even handsome commercial thoroughfare in Canada's second largest city. Its appearance has suggested some shacky mining-town's main street or the suburbs of a large American industrial city.

The Toronto Council legislated against overhanging signs two years ago. The time-limit was extended to the end of last year. And now again the legislation is being ignored by the Board of Control, which has weakly given an extension of life to the signs "until the subway is built." It seems as if the hope of visitors who want to be proud of their capital city will be forever blighted by the mess of Yonge Street. Torontonians themselves may be so used to the garish shoddiness of the street that, like a dowdy crone of a housekeeper they never notice the litter. But outsiders do. Yonge Street; the main shopping avenue in the city, looks squalid. It is certainly a disappointment to visitors that officialdom is not using the best opportunity it has ever had to rid Yonge Street of its overhanging signs, at the time when its street car lines and overhead wires are disappearing.

Britain Weighed In The Balance

We have been much amused by an editorial in the New York Times of January 9, headed Do We Need Britain? Inspired by Mr. Churchill's visit to such speculation, the Times weighs Britain's usefulness to the U.S.A. against Britain's faults and tiresome qualities, and decides at last—have you been holding your breath in anxiety?—that the U.S.A. needs Britain. One reason, by the way, which is of special interest is that "with Britain as an ally one can count at least on Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, and many colonial possessions."

We are amused because the editorial will undoubtedly make many British people extremely angry. It is something new for Britain to be weighed and appraised as an ally; for more than a century ambitious countries have courted Britain's favour. We are amused also that the Times, usually one of the most brilliantly intelligent and well-informed newspapers in the world, could have published such an unsophisticated piece as a leading editorial.

The inescapable fact is, of course, that the U.S.A. has Britain, whether the U.S.A. needs or wants Britain. For Britain is a fact, not a whim to be embraced or banished at will. It may be said with equal justice that Britain has the U.S.A., and cannot get rid of that sometimes mortifying alliance, even if she were so foolish as to wish to do so. It is amusing that in a time when the western nations are more at one than ever before, a great newspaper should choose to discuss another nation in such unreal terms.

NOTES AND COMMENT

During a recent hockey match in Victoria, B.C., somebody threw a dead duck at the referee. We presume that he declared it a foul.

France has had fourteen governments during the past six years. How does the legend persist that the French are a logical, highly intelligent people, governed by a calm devotion to reason?

A contemporary says: "The Toronto strike is a further proof of the advantages of living in a small town where you can always walk to work." As opposed to Toronto—so small in some ways, but so inconvenient for walking.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

I HAVE just received from the United Kingdom Information Office a most interesting list of approximately nine hundred recordings of British music, from the famous, though seldom heard forty-part motet of Tallis, father of English church music, to the latest confection of Britten. Scores are available for some of these works. In addition to this there are recordings of poetry readings. All these are available for free loan to representatives of groups with a view to the dissemination of English (or should I say British?) culture overseas. The benefits of this imaginative gesture are twofold. On our side we are afforded the opportunity of hearing new and out-of-the-way recordings of some of the finest achievements in music and literature and gaining a new insight into the varied culture of the British Isles, and perhaps a deeper appreciation of our common heritage. On the other hand the United Kingdom is hoping to foster greater understanding of the "British Way of Life". Thus for a fraction of the cost of a fighter aircraft a double purpose is achieved. It is propaganda, of course, but I personally am all in favour of this type, whatever its origin.

✧ ✧ ✧

I NOTICE in the list that I have mentioned above that Handel is included as a British composer. As he is usually regarded as a German in spite of the fact that he took the formal step of becoming a British subject I was prompted to look up one or two dates. Of his 74 years Handel spent 49 in England. During his residence in that country he took an active part in the life of the country and his style shows undeniably the influence of Purcell. Musically speaking he was, of course, a cosmopolitan, an eclectic. He took whatever was to hand and incorporated it into his own personality, unlike most eclectics, whose work is a jumble of undigested "influences", reminiscences and scraps from other men's tables. In his work German solidity was enlivened with Italian grace, dignified with French pomp and elegance and seasoned with the bluff forthrightness that was once the characteristic of John Bull's island. He had an amazing capacity for assimilating other influences and remaining himself. Even in his much-discussed borrowings he transforms the original material into something far superior. A mediocre concerto movement by Stradella is transmuted into the thrilling hailstone chorus in Israel in Egypt. Handel belongs to the world rather than to any particular country, but England, the land that he set out to conquer in 1710, has at least as much claim to him as anywhere else. Besides, if Handel is to be regarded as a German, what of our Healey Willan, who did not come to Canada until he was 33 years old and has spent only 39 years in our midst?

✧ ✧ ✧

I WAS talking the other evening with one of our gifted young painters. Like many creative artists his sympathies are rather narrow: as though the inspiration of the artist must flow through a narrow channel in order that it may be deeper and swifter. The man of broad sympathies is too often shallow and sluggish. I took the liberty of mentioning the case of Delius, an extreme example of narrowness of sympathy: apparently he was only really interested in his own music. He was mildly interested in Grieg, but everything else bored him! We talked of correspondence between the arts—a fascinating subject. We agreed that there is a striking correspondence between Rembrandt and Beethoven. One might have added Debussy and the French impressionist painters. My painter friend confessed that he saw nothing in Bach beyond great technical competence and a lack of "something" that he found in Beethoven and Brahms, especially the latter. I suggested that he hear more Bach and familiarize himself with Bach's style, and then he would discover a new world of pathos, grandeur, humour, tenderness and humanity. All Chinamen look the same to most white men unless they have many dealings with them. Likewise a Chinese friend told me that all white men look the same to the Chinese unless they have much to do with the whites. In the same way Bach's music sounds all the same to those unacquainted with his idiom. It is necessary to get to know it first: then it is infinitely rewarding.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS century is sometimes spoken of unthinkingly as the age of rhythm, as though rhythm had somehow or other only just come into its own. The reverse is surely the case. Rhythm is probably the most ancient form of music. All music presupposes the existence of some more or less complicated rhythm. Even in un-measured music, such as recitatives and Gregorian chants the music follows the rhythm of speech after a fashion. The Elizabethans employed cross-rhythms as subtle as anything written today, as anyone who has sung a few madrigals can tell. The rhythms of Arab music make the average "bebop" sound as tame as a Sunday School outing. Thus it is not surprising to find that rhythm and time are usually the weakest feature amongst young students; at least that is my impression. They will grasp the complexities of intervals and key signatures without batting an eyelid: but when it comes to giving a bar of music its correct time signature or tapping a simple rhythm one gets the most extraordinary answers. This rhythmic haziness undermines their whole musical achievement. The time values of notes and rests, especially the latter, are often not known correctly. Not that one should fall into the vulgar error of confusing time and rhythm. The distinction between the two should be stressed, though they are best studied concurrently. It is not that students are rhythmically incapable; it can be brought out, but it is usually undeveloped.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is time that someone exploded this myth of the "age of rhythm". To me it is quite obvious that we are living in the age of harmony, though some more recent effusions may lead me to doubt even this. As soon as somebody invented the art of combining melodies counterpoint and harmony were invented at one stroke. Harmony is the distinguishing feature of the music of the white man; speaking by and large all Asiatic and African music is innocent of it except where the influence of the white man has penetrated. I remember Miss Margaret Deneke of Oxford telling me of her researches into West African folk music while on a visit to Dr. Albert Schweitzer at Lambarene. According to her there was only one West African folksong discovered which had a trace of harmony, and this was a song imitating the reed organ of one of the missionaries!

SINGAPORE PIVOT

Singapore, the "Suez of the East," dominates the intersecting trade routes of the Indian and Pacific Oceans. With political independence resting increasingly upon economic stability, the whole of South-East Asia depends on the security of Malayan waters through which runs the exchange between the resources of the East and the capital and markets of the West.

As shown in the top inset, cargo tonnage cleared at Malayan ports during the last three years has passed the pre-war level and during the first eight months of last year (upon which the 1951 monthly average is based) has reached a record figure.

Upon Singapore—British Centre of Command and H.Q.s for the three British services which garrison Malaya, Singapore and Hong Kong—depends also the external security of Burma, Siam and Indonesia, which lie as stepping stones between Communist China and the Commonwealth of Australia.

Letters To The Editor

FROZEN ASSETS

Sir: This reader was impressed with that picture on your editorial page the other day, titled "Frozen Assets" (by Charles E. Bell in Regina Leader-Post) and showing Old Man Winter sitting on "Half Of The Wheat Crop" in our prairie fields.

Does this mean that there will be a 10-million-acre harvest job synchronizing with the seeding in the spring?

While I realize that the Western farmer is a mighty resourceful fellow, the situation seems crammed with danger not only to the grain itself but, also, to the 1952 plans? As one of the farm papers put it: "The combine harvester and the seed drill will rub shoulders in the same fields before the last of the 1951 crop is safely garnered. It is indeed tough luck!"

There is, fortunately, a brighter side to the above scene. Apparently, if one may be guided by the tenacious way in which the experts are maintaining earlier 'bumper crop' estimates—despite Old Man Winter's currently dominant attitude—there are reasonable chances that the above snowbound grain will in large measure be "safely garnered"?

This opinion assuredly is based on the experience of earlier years? I confess that it is a comforting thought that, within the next few months, the aforesaid "Frozen Assets"—between three and four hundred million dollars' worth of grain—will be "safely garnered".

It seems to me that too few folk 'up in the city' remember the fact that for peace, or war, or defense plans, food is a master-weapon!

PRIMARY PRODUCER.

FIRM OPINION ABOUT 'DOMINION'

Sir: The following statement issued by Mrs. Cecil L. Brown, president of the Provincial Chapter of the Ontario I.O.D.E., was given to Municipal Regents at their executive meeting in Hamilton on Friday. It so emphatically endorses the point of view which the Examiner has taken in the matter of the words 'Royal' and 'Dominion' that you may like to print it.

Yours sincerely,
MARY E. MEDD,
Municipal Regent.

"We, in Canada, can never repay the debt that we owe to the Motherland. The very principles undergirding our very freedom and our justice, our form of government and our dignity amongst the nations of the world, are largely the reflected glory of England's greatness.

"Now, in the hour of her economic travail and her national austerity, having been brought to her knees, as she stood alone, defending the rights of all free people of the world; and further, now, as small democratically immature and undisciplined minority nations take advantage of her plight to yap at her heels, at this time, some of our leading Canadian statesmen seem to feel that they must join in the popular hue and cry, by obliquely and in many ways directly and deliberately deleting from our government and our Dominion, every vestige of both symbol and nomenclature that link us in historied past and love and devotion to our Motherland.

"Shame, indeed, on any Canadian son or daughter who, having been given a fair education and wholesome, healthy start in life by their struggling pioneer parents and who, then, having reached an enviable status in life, turn in apparent disownment and endeavour to disassociate themselves in every way possible from the parents to whom they owe their very lives.

"The gradual, yet deliberate attempt on the part of some leaders in our Canadian Government to eliminate every vestige of British symbolism and nomenclature from seemingly everything on a Canadian Government national level is justly antagonizing to thousands of loyal Canadian women in every province of our Dominion.

"Now we are informed that we are in error, if we use the word Dominion. If there ever was a time in Canadian history when these childish, devisive tactics seem ill-mannered, ill-considered and ill-advised, it is now. Now is the hour for unity; not for needling the loyal sentiments of British Canadians everywhere. Now is not the time to sell or weaken our Canadian national unity for a mess of political potage."

EDUCATION IN DOURO

Sir: A great many veterans and their wives, now residing in the two projects on the Warsaw Road, are somewhat bewildered and sadly disillusioned over the turn of events at the election on Monday, January 7th. In their minds this question keeps turning over and over. "Can it be that all Douro township wants from us is our taxes?" The election results show that they don't want our men in the council. They don't want our men on the board of school trustees, and what hurts most of all, they don't seem to want our children. Yes! It is now very evident that as far as progress in the educational field is concerned, Douro and Otonabee (School Area No. 2 in particular) want none of it, and if we, of the V.L.A. projects, want to secure better educational facilities for our children, we must seek elsewhere for them.

In their "platform pamphlet", the two members who were elected to the board of school trustees stated, "We want to maintain our high standard of public school education". Allow me to tell you what they consider a "high" standard. A one-roomed school, in which 35 or more pupils—or six different grades—under one teacher, put in approximately six hours a day. A one-roomed school complete with poor lighting, inadequate ventilation, old-fashioned desks, and those abominations in architecture and sanitation, commonly known as "out-houses", situated less than twenty feet from the school-room. That is School No. 1 in the area. In some respects School No. 2 (Auburn) is in a more unfortunate position, for there one teacher is expected to handle eight grades.

How can any thinking parent look on this situation without concern? What is to become of our boys and girls? They are starting off in life with two strikes against them. When the time comes for them to enter High School, they will realize how badly they are prepared for what lies ahead of them. They may pass their first form work, and enter into second form, but by that time they will know beyond a shadow of a doubt that they can't cope with their studies, or hope to compete with the children from the city schools. They will become discouraged, and either fail completely, or decide they might as well leave school. They will feel that they have had no chance, and believe me, they will be quite justified in so feeling. What will become of them then, we ask ourselves? At sixteen or seventeen or eighteen, they face the job of becoming useful citizens. They haven't the education or qualifications required in starting to learn a trade. A profession is out of the question. So they finish up as unskilled labourers, messenger boys, hired men, or the like. Is that the best we can do for children? If it is, then we, as parents, are letting them down very badly.

It seems to me, that in their anxiety to keep the mill-rate down, our members of the Board of Trustees have completely lost sight of the child, and their obligation to him. Should not the child be of primary importance? Is it a greater crime to increase the mill-rate than to neglect the child? Any parent worthy of the name puts his child's interests before his own. Sacrifice is something parents take for granted, so if our mill-rate should go up at the same time as a new school goes up, should we not feel that with this extra sacrifice, we are investing in something far more valuable than land, or bonds, or securities? We are investing in the future citizens and leaders, not only of our community, but also of our country.

Respectfully yours,
"ALL FOR EDUCATION"

Funnel Uranium, Minerals Via Edmonton—Drummond

EDMONTON, Jan. 14—(CP)—A scheme to funnel the far north's uranium and other mineral wealth through Edmonton was disclosed Saturday.

It would involve construction of a 500-mile railway to the Alberta capital from the southern shore of Great Slave Lake in the northwest territories.

Uranium concentrates would be processed in plants fueled by Alberta's plentiful low-cost natural gas.

The scheme was outlined in the annual report of Leonard E. Drummond, secretary-manager of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines and Resources.

No Costs Given

Mr. Drummond mentioned no cost figures, but others at the chamber's annual meeting here said that together with Alberta industrial projects already under way, expenditure of a minimum of $1,000,000,000 would be involved.

Mr. Drumond said Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada is investigating the merits of Pine Point on Great Slave Lake as the northern terminus of a rail link with Edmonton.

A second company reported interested is the Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining (1944) Limited, set up to exploit the far north's uranium, vital ingredient of atomic energy.

Mr. Drummond said Edmonton eventually could become the "Pittsburgh of the Prairies." He drew a parallel with the shipment of iron ore to Pittsburgh from the Mesabi Range in Minnesota, 1,000 miles away.

Quiz Kid Glad To Substitute TV Sex Appeal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14 (AP)—Vanessa Brown, once a "Quiz Kid," thanks television for substituting sex appeal for brain appeal.

Around Hollywood, she's known as a weighty thinker. She arrived with the reputation of having spouted facts on the radio with the Quiz Kids. While pursuing her movie career, she attended university.

But the publicity of being a brain did not exactly further her movie career.

"You know how things get exaggerated in Hollywood," she explained. "Because you can add one and one, you immediately get the repuation of being a mental marvel."

As a result, she was largely limited to playing staid, reserved roles. She was a proper Bostonian in "The Late George Apley" and a prim maid in "The Heiress". The studios wouldn't presume to ask her to pose for cheesecake.

Scenes Stolen

Her fortunes began to turn when she was cast as the scantily-clad Jane to Lex Barker's Tarzan. But her sexy scenes were largely stolen by Cheetah the chimpanzee. Not until she ventured eastward for TV did she get roles she was seeking.

"In my television roles, I have played fiery, exciting women," she remarked. "It has been a complete reversal of what I played on the screen. Also, last summer I played for the theatre guild in Shaw's 'The Philanderer'. It was a part similar to that of Scarlet O'Hara."

Vanessa is here to make a film called "The Fighter", and then returns to New York for more TV. She has appeared on about 50 TV shows in the last year.

"It's stimulating," she said. "I like to move around and learn new things. You can learn a lot in television, where you have to study, rehearse and perform an entire show in 10 days. I know a lot more about acting than I did a year ago."

Springville WMS Returns All Officers

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 14 (ENS)—Mrs. Allen Stevens opened her home to the Springville Woman's Missionary Society for the January meeting. The president, Mrs. O. Murray, opened the meeting with inspirational thoughts on the New Year and prayer.

The WA conducted a short business session returning the officers for 1952. Mrs. Dunford suggested dividing into groups for assembling of quilt tops for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Percy Johnston and Mrs. Lytle were appointed delegates to Presbyterial to be held at St. Andrew's Church on Jan. 22nd. The treasurer reported $245 sent to the Presbyterial. Mrs. H. E. Larke invited the society to meet at the Manse for Feb. meeting. The Rev. A. E. Larke conducted the Installation of Officers. Mrs. Murray thanked the members for their co-operation in 1951.

Mrs. Cecil Neals, program convener then took charge. Mrs. Percy Johnston said prayer gave a scripture reading and Mrs. M. Cathcart gave a scripture reading and Mrs. Preston gave scripture comment. Mrs. Larke sang a solo. Mrs. Cecil Neals gave some lovely thoughts on the New Year as an Open Door. Mrs. Lytle gave instruction on Chap. II of Study Book on Urban Area Church Work. A vote of thanks to all partaking in the program and the hostess was moved by Mrs. Cecil Neals.

Damage to the truck was about $5.

But she is no newcomer to New York. She was the featured skater at the Roxy Theatre following her Olympic triumph in 1948 and her decision to become a professional skater just before her 20th birthday.

Toronto's Car Pool Drivers Nearing Nervous Collapse

By WILLIAM HARCOURT

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (CP)—I've never had it so bad.

Toronto's streetcar strike may be a picnic for the free-rider, but it's no fun for the car driver. Responsibility in Toronto's traffic, high at any time, is pushing the ceiling.

It's nerve-wracking to see those trusting faces—your free-riders—beaming from the back seat, trusting your ability to pilot them safely through rush-hour madness, but we drivers are part of a car pool.

In the dark hours before dawn you stumble out to your car and, if it starts, drive miles out of your way to pick up those selected to ride with you.

Some mornings, the car won't start. Time passes. You grow frantic thinking of those trusting faces waiting on corners, depending on you to get them to work.

A week of it and you're a bundle of nerves.

Hard To Take

Now and then you pick up a pretty girl hitch-hiker whose gratitude knows no bounds. It's hard to take.

Like that pert little thing the other morning who wished all the way downtown for a boy friend who would call for her and in reply to a polite expression of hope that her search would be successful, said:

"The trouble with you is you're just not agressive enough."

Insomnia is common now among motorists. If you manage to get to sleep, nightmarish dreams of traffic tangles, grateful girls and snowbanks lying in wait for an unwary rear wheel leave you exhausted in the morning.

And the things these free-riders leave in cars — purses, scarves, overshoes, gloves, hats and lunches.

Then there's "clutch-leg," a disease peculiar to Toronto motorists of early 1952. It comes from innumerable manipulations of the clutch during innumerable stops and starts.

But the free-rider sits back relaxed and comfortable as he awaits the end of the strike.

As one has said, he's never had it so good.

Marines Defeat Trenton By a Count Of 71-51 For Lead In Cage League

Coach Gord McIntyre's Marines once again lead the Bay of Quinte section of the Eastern Ontario Basketball League after a comparatively easy 71-51 victory over the Trenton RCAF Flyers Saturday at the YMCA gym. In a preliminary game the Y-Knots opened their season with an exhibition game against Lindsay but found that height was necessary to win basketball games. The collegians from Lindsay won handily 51-37.

In the opening minutes of the Marines-RCAF game, the Marines built up a healthy 12-point lead which was never whittled down by the Flyers, who were checked closely throughout the game.

Except for a brief moment at the beginning of the second quarter, Marines always carried play to the Flyers to rack up an 18-7 score in the first quarter and then settle for a 33-21 lead at halftime.

Add To Lead

Marines closely guarded the 12-point lead in the third quarter and were up 12 points, 48-36, going into the fourth when they again broke loose for 23 points, eight by former PCVS star, Al Northcott.

Marines worked a slow-moving game, broken several times by the fast break, as they seemed to blend their fast game with Clapper's Bruins' slow opportunity basketball. At times they seemed confused, especially when the Flyers' defence tightened.

Whenever Trenton tried a man-to-man defence, Marines' forwards pulled the system into a tight knot, and then fed the guards passes for long field baskets. Harold Grafstein dropped through nine points with this strategy.

Ab Stewart again led the scoring with a 12-point effort, most of the points scored in the first quarter when he worked from in close with Neil Thompson whose faking pulled the Flyers out of position. Thompson fed his teammates passes.

Joe Stewart gave brother Ab a close run for scoring honors with nine points. An opportunist, Stewart caught the Flyers unaware with quick checking jabs to recover the ball and score from close in.

High Scores

But game scoring honors went to the Flyers' Watson, Dube and Eckley who took turns at plaguing Marines' defence, Watson who totalled 16 points, was a thorn in the Marines' side with one-hand key-hole scores in the second quarter, but he was closely checked in the second half.

Dube and Eckely took over for Watson in the second half, Dube's shifty dribbling paying off for 13 and Eckley's height for 12 points.

The close-checking resulted in 37 personal fouls called by referees Summers from Belleville and Dick Burrows of Peterborough. Marines received 26 and had Gord Burns and Joe Stewart leave late in the game with five fouls each. O'Hara was lost by the foul route for Trenton.

In the preliminary game the Y-Knots, coached by Fraser Wade had trouble with Lindsay Collegiate's height. The taller Lindsay cagers passed over the Y-Knots' heads and snared rebounds at both backboards to control the play after the first quarter.

With long throws the Y-Knots went up 8-5 in the first quarter, only to give way in the second quarter to Lindsay. The collegians went ahead 22-16 at half-time and added from there in. They led 36-27 at three-quarter time.

Lindsay's Maidens and the Y-Knots' Butcher led the scoring with 13 points each.

Lineups:

First game, Lindsay Collegiate (51)—Logan 11, McDuffee 6, Maidens 13, Schenk 4, Graham 6, Tozios, Warden 6, Teel, McLean, Taylor 5.

RCAF (51)—Watson 16, Dube 13, Steadel 4, Blythe 2, O'Hara 4, Eckley 12, O'Dell.

Nationals Clip All-Stars 30-13

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14 (AP)—Travelling 89 yards in a touchdown drive that featured the aerial brilliance of quarterback Bob Waterfield and end Elroy Hirsch, the National Conference All-Stars came from behind in the fourth quarter Saturday to defeat the American Conference All-Stars 30-13 in the second pro bowl game played in rain and mud.

The Nationals, gaining revenge for a 28-27 setback in the first pro bowl game a year ago, turned two fumbles into two more touchdowns in the final quarter.

Waterfield hit Hirsch, his all-pro teammate of the Los Angeles Rams for gains of 17 and 9, and then unleashed a 21-yard throw to the enemy two-yard line. Here, fullback John Dottley of Chicago Bears barged through the middle for the winning points.

Veteran Sammy Baugh of Washington Redskins, sent into the struggle in the closing minutes to replace Otto Graham of Cleveland, was the victim of two bobbles with the soaked ball. Twice he fumbled and twice the winners tallied.

Leo Nomellini of the San Francisco 49ers fielded the first one when Baugh tried to hand off to his fullback, Ed Price, and rumbled 20 yards to sew up the contest.

Don Paul recovered the other bobble on the six, and three plays later, Doak Walker of Detroit lofted a throw to the leaping Hirsch in the end zone for the final touchdown, just as the gun sounded.

Great Jumper May Be Killed

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 14 (AP)—Arete, one of the greatest jumping horses in history, may have reached the end of the trail.

The favorite mount of Col. Humberto Mariles, the 1948 Olympic winner, will undergo a delicate operation today on a broken leg suffered Saturday.

Dr. Joaquin D'Harcourt, Sr., father of one of Mexico's Olympic riders, who will perform the operation, said he thinks there is a chance to restore the leg by inserting a piece of metal in the broken bone.

Even if it is successful, he indicated, Arete will not be available for the Olympics this year.

If the operation fails, Arete will be destroyed.

Arete, a 12-year-old, took top honors at this year's horse shows in Toronto, New York and Harrisburg, Pa., despite the fact he is blind.

Hockey's Big Seven

Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens maintained his hold during the weekend on top place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Lach, who scored a goal and assisted in two others, brought his total to 40 points, including 30 assists—tops in the league.

But only a point behind and tied for second place are teammate Maurice (Rocket) Richard, and Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe.

Richard, who leads the roster in goal-getting, scored three goals during the weekend and brought his total in that department to 24, one ahead of Howe who scored a goal and assisted in another.

Jim Georgas of Queen's University won the down-hill slalom in 78:7 seconds. J. Soames of the Canadian Armored Corps, Camp Borden, was second while J. Emery of Queen's University came in third.

The down-hill race went to D. Gill of the Canadian Armored Corps, Camp Borden with a 60-second run-over. Jim Georgas of Queen's University placed second and W. Georgas of Queen's finished third.

NHL Coaches Feel Sorry For Themselves

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP). — The mortality rate among National Hockey League coaches is not nearly as high as among baseball managers or college football coaches, but a pool taken among the ice strategists shows an alarming tendency for self-sympathy.

All but coach Tommy Ivan of the league-leading Detroit Red Wings admit that normal digestion and sleep were hard to come by and that there was considerable more to coaching a hockey team than opening and shutting the gate.

"I don't know," Ivan says. "I don't feel any strain. I eat at regular hours. I get my sleep. I work at my job 11 months in the year, and find it all very enjoyable."

"It's easy for Tommy to feel that way," comments Ebbie Goodfellow of the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks.

"Any time he's in a jam he looks down the bench and he sees Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay, Sid Abel, Red Kelly and Leo Reise. They're all all-stars.

Loses Both Ways

"Me, it's different. If we win one, I'm so excited I don't want to sleep. And when we lose, I can't sleep."

Lynn Patrick, coach of Boston Bruins, regularly turns down offers to meet him for dinner before a game.

"I'm terrible company," he says.

Joe Primeau, who piloted Toronto Maple Leafs to the Stanley Cup championship last spring in the face of rumors that he would retire, says:

"My day-of-game routine is pretty much the way it was when I played. I generally eat with the players at 4 o'clock and nap for an hour before the game. That way I'm pretty sure of getting some sleep. After games it's tough —particularly on trains."

Primeau has his own concrete block business in Toronto.

"Sometimes I will make a mistake in this business," he says. "But if I do, only I know it. In hockey, the whole world knows."

He describes Neil Colville, who coached New York Rangers until early December before quitting "because my ulcers never stopped bouncing," as a very sensible fellow.

Bar Joe Louis Because Of Race

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 14 — (AP).—An angry Joe Louis was at war with the United States Professional Golfers Association today over its ban on him and other Negroes from tournament play.

The long-standing US-PGA rule against non-white players fell on Louis when he arrived here Sunday for this week's San Diego open.

Tournament officials said the US-PGA rule, which they said they had learned about only two days ago, would bar the former heavyweight boxing champion and two other Negroes—Bill Spiller and Eural Clark, Los Angeles professionals.

The usually mild-speaking Louis denounced the rule as un-American and declared that US-PGA president Horton Smith was "another Hitler" in enforcing it.

The old ring warrior, now 37, said it was the first time he personally had experienced racial discrimination in sports.

He disclosed that he had long been aware of the US-PGA rule —"It's been causing Negro players trouble for three years"—and came here intending to "bring it into the open."

The tournament committee invited Louis, before it learned of the ban, to play as an amateur.

Belleville Wallops Frankford Team 14-2

FRANKFORD, Jan. 14.—Paced by their first-string line of Earl Cousins, Brian Mulvihill and Timmie Williams, which registered 23 scoring points, Belleville Glen Roys defeated Frankford Merchants 14-2, in a Trent Valley Southern Division game here Saturday night.

Brian Mulvihill collected five goals and three assists, Timmie Williams had four goals and as many assists while Earl Cousins, last season's Trent Valley scoring champion, scored twice and drew five assists. John McLay and Ron Mitts tallied for Frankford.

England Defeats India By Eight Wickets

KAMPUR, India, Jan. 14 (Reuters).—England defeated India today by eight wickets in the fourth test of the present tour and thus clinched the series. The first three tests were drawn, and one remains to be played.

England was in a winning position Sunday and soon dismissed the last three Indian batsmen this morning for the addition of 32 runs.

This left England needing 76 for victory and they were knocked off in good time for the loss of two wickets.

Malcolm Hilton's six for 61 in India's second innings gave him match figures of nine for 103.

Tom Graveney claimed 48 of the 76 England runs.

Final scoreboard read: England 203 and 76 for two. India, 121 and 118.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Belleville Hawks play the Petes here tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena. Jim Ellis' local puckists can climb into a first-place senior "B" group tie with Hawks by taking this tilt. But a Belleville win will lengthen the lead for the Doran dudes. The Petes dropped their last home game to Kingston, but then trekked to the Limestone City and pasted the bejabbers out of the K's. However, the Hawks were winning the same night to keep a step ahead of Peterborough. Both these clubs play a speedy style of hockey and this tussle should be a nip-and-tucker before a good-sized crowd of fans.

* * * * * *

Some scoring figures run recently by the Quinte columnist show that large Vern Goyer leads the Hawks with no less than 26 goals and nine assists for 35 points. That was in 16 games, meaning he did better than two points a contest. A potent sniper. Keith MacDonald is second on the Hawks' list with a total of 28 points, 16 of 'em being on assists. Jerry Moher, also of this production line, came up with 16 points, and that line garned 79 scoring points out of the team total of 196. They'll require a lot of checking by opposing teams. Pete Jones had 23 points and Jack Wardhaugh 17. Hawks are a solid squad and aren't atop the heap by accident.

Remember This Fellow?

Ford Loucks had a Saturday letter in the Star panning those who would do away with the Eastern Canada football final between the ORFU and Big Four winners. He points out that this gives the struggling ORFU a chance at some real money, and that Union develops a lot of fine Canadian footballers. Whereas the Big Four puts the snatch on the pick of the Canuck gridders and then imports a flock of starry USA players to pack their pro clubs. He concludes his missive to Milt Dunnell thusly: "I trust that you, along with your confreres, will endeavor to keep football Canadian—and also keep a few Canadians in it."

* * * * * *

A sound suggestion from a guy who was fine footballer just before the war. Ford Loucks—or Mike, as he was nicknamed—lives now at Arvida, Quebec, but he was a Lindsay boy. Shone in collegiate football there before coming to Peterborough to play for our senior Orfuns in 1938 and '39. Later played for Queen's till a knee injury finished him. Big Mike was a dandy backfielder, he and Don Crowe quickly catching the eyes of grid experts in Montreal, Toronto and Sarnia when we played in that good group. Loucks kicked the winning field goal that memorable Saturday here before 3,000 when Orfuns startled Canadian football followers by pulling out a 3-2 win over the mighty Sarnia Imperials, whose lineup included such top stars as Tony Golab, Bummer Stirling, etc. Yes, Ford knows whereof he speaks.

Marines Ground Flyers

Flying higher than Trenton Flyers here Saturday night in cage play at the "Y", Gord McIntyre's intermediate Marines took a 71-51 victory to again lead their Eastern Ontario loop. Ab Stewart tossed in a dozen points for Outboards and brother Joe clicked for nine. Team worked well and didn't have too much trouble taking this decision, even with Gord Burns and Joe Stewart side-lined late via the personal foul route. A prelim exhibition joust saw Lindsay Collegians use their height to advantage to rack up a 51-37 win against Fraser Wade's Y-Knots. There's a girls' game listed for the YW tonight, Nurses vs. Lindsay.

Canadian Press is asking sports writers to name the top two Ontario athletes of the year, and the scribes are having trouble. The athlete must be a Canadian who performed for Ontario during 1951, so that eliminates a lot of NHL-ers and pro ballsters and gridders. A good bet to win probably will be Marlene Stewart, the 17-year-old Canucks golf star from Lookout Point. We'd be inclined to chuck in a runner-up vote for Don Crowe as he had the 1951 distinction of playing on two Canadian championship clubs, being playing coach of the Mann Cup lacrosse champs, and spare halfback for Rough Riders who took the Grey Cup and football title.

Wood Shatters 440-Yard "Y" Pool Record

Thirteen years ago Stan McBride set five free style swimming records at the YMCA pool and not until Saturday had a Peterborough swimmer come close to those marks.

Donald Wood, protege of Coach Gord Minty, Peterborough YMCA Swimming Club, shattered the 440-yard free style record Saturday night in an official swim.

Before officials Kenneth Kingston, chairman of the YMCA physical committee, Gordon Dobbin, chairman of the swim committee, and Stan McBride, Wood swam the 440 yards in 5:24.6 minutes. This mark was 5.4 seconds less than McBide's record of 5:30 minutes set in 1939.

A member of the swimming club for the past four years, Wood won distinction in the backstroke and free style swimming competitions across Ontario. This year, under Coach Minty, the senior competitor started practising with the one desire to break one or more of the pool records.

Close Before

Saturday's record - breaking swim was not the first time Wood had clipped off seconds in the same 440-yard event. Late in December, after a week layoff, unofficially he swam the distance in 5:28.9 minutes. His best time a year ago was 10 seconds off McBride's record.

The 440-yard record may not be the only record broken for Wood has now as his aim breaking the mile record held by McBride, set in 1939 at 24:30 minutes. Recently Wood zipped through the water within 14 seconds of the mile record without even trying for that mark.

Wood's times for the various laps were: two, 24 seconds; four, 53 seconds; six, 1:23 minutes; eight, 1:52 minutes; ten laps, 2:22; 12 laps, 2:54; 14 laps, 3.24; 16 laps, 3:55; 18 laps, 4:26; 20 laps, 4:56; 22 laps, 5:24.6.

Wood last year was the Ontario junior backstroke champion in outdoor swimming competition.

Besides the mile record for free style, McBride, once destined for an Olympic tryout before the Second World War, still holds record pool marks for the 40-yard, 100-yard and 200-yard free style events.

Mohawks Blank St. Louis 2-0

By The Canadian Press.

Cincinnati Mohawks and Buffalo Bisons, using shutouts for springboards have climbed up a notch in the western and eastern division scrambles in the American Hockey League.

The Mohawks, with Emile (The Cat) Francis in the nets, blanked the St. Louis Flyers 2-0 Sunday night on third-period goals by Ian MacKintosh and Paul Masnick. It was Francis' third shutout of the season. The Mohawks took over undisputed possession of third place in the western loop.

The Bisons whitewashed the Cleveland Barons 1-0 as Buffalo goalie Lou Crowdis thwarted 40 shots. Veteran Ab Demarco tallied the lone goal of the game in the first period. The victory moved the Bisons into second place in the eastern section, six points behind the front-running Hershey Bears.

Hershey made up a two-goal deficit to tie the Providence Reds 2-2 in overtime. Providence scored twice in the opening five minutes of play on shots by Paul Gladu and Pete Kapusta. The Bears' first marker was scored by Obie O'Brien and their tying counter came late in the third session on a 30-foot blast by Sam Bettio.

At Indianapolis, the Capitals defeated Pittsburgh 8-2 in the worst drubbing of the season for the leading team of the western division.

After last week's sizzling go between this pair, when Brazil went haywire and lost on a disqualification, a rematch was a natural. The semi-final brings together the Australian hard rock Fred Atkins and the popular Indian grappler, Chief Suni War Cloud. The opening match has Warren Bockwinkle pitted against Stan Mayslack. A capacity crowd of local and district fans is predicted for this outstanding card.

Saw a picture postcard the other day. It clearly showed Ray Best winning the Examiner road race—the finish was right in front of the Examiner office, at that time located on the west side of George Street, half-way between Hunter and Brock Streets. There was quite a crowd, and we noticed that the men (all classes) were wearing bowlers and white starched stiff collars. You could see the tracks of the old street railway. The year? Oh, yes, that was 1906.

District No. 3, Ontario Curling Association, comes to the front this week. Over at Lindsay on Tuesday the Ontario Tankard games are being played. Our club will be represented by rinks skipped by D. Charlton and F. Green.

And here at home on Tuesday, play for the Governor-General's Trophy will commence at 9 am. F. Stenson and V. Brown are skipping the local entries.

We would like to see some more entries for our big three-day bonspiel.

This Saturday bonspiel is purely local—14 rinks are needed, of schedule calibre. Start at 9 am, finish by 6 pm.

The winning skips in Saturday night's bonspiel were Dr. R. Morgan and A. Jones.

70 Skaters To Compete In Championships

OSHAWA, Jan. 14 (CP).—About 70 skaters from Montreal to Vancouver will shoot for big game here Jan. 17-19 when the Canadian figure-skating championships are staged. At stake is a trip to Oslo to compete in the Feb. 14-25 winter Olympic games.

The senior ladies' title will change hands. Suzanne Morrow of Toronto, 1951 champion and the only skater selected so far for the Olympics is practicing in Europe for the games. It is probable she will be joined by the men's and ladies' senior champions.

The ladies' event is a wide open affair with at least five skaters given a chance to succeed Miss Morrow.

Good Lineup

Prominent is 15-year-old Elizabeth Gratton of Toronto, junior titleholder and one of the best free skaters in the country who has jumped to senior ranks. Others are Ottawa's Jane Kirby, second to Miss Morrow in 1951; Marlene Smith, Vivi Smith and Barbara Gratton, all of Toronto.

Only three entries have been received for the men's senior singles. They are Peter Dunfield and Peter Firstbrook, both of Toronto, and Bill Lewis of Vancouver.

Dunfield won the junior championship at Vancouver last year and Firstbrook took the senior title.

Junior men's and ladies' singles and junior and senior pairs titles will be decided in three days.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson

Jersey Joe Walcott is not one of the great all-time heavyweight fistic champions. But he is a most unusual one. He is a fine man, deeply religious, very sincere, and a long and often disheartening career in ringdom has neither embittered nor disillusioned him.

We met up with Jersey Joe in Montreal not long ago, at a press conference. Someone asked the big quiet Negro, with the pleasant white-toothed smile how long he intended to keep on fighting, and he answered in his easy, level tones: "Just as long as God allows me to keep feeling fine as I feel today." He said it with a sincerity that left no doubt about his reverence, which surprised no one. For long ago, Jersey Joe had expressed the profound belief that he was destined to be the world's fistic champion, because he had long prayed that he might achieve this success, and that he had complete faith in prayer.

"My next fight" said Jersey Joe, "will probably be against Rocky Marciano."

"Then you'll try to avenge Joe Louis" said one of the scriveners.

"No" said Jersey Joe. "I am not a vengeful man." And he quoted the Biblical Phrase: "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord, I will repay."

"It isn't a matter of vengeance at all" he said. "Marciano went in to beat Louis, and he beat Joe fairly and squarely. He is quite a good fighter, and fighting is his business. There is no hatred, no vengeance, in these things. You fight as best you can, you try your best to win, but you don't have to hate."

Fistic champions and, indeed, the champions in most sports are more prone to talk about themselves, than about anybody else. Walcott is different. When we talked to him, he continually switched the topic of conversation to Joe Louis, who a few days before had been ingloriously knocked out by Marciano.

Said Jersey Joe: "I wasn't surprised at Joe's defeat, but I felt very bad, for Joe Louis had been a very great man for boxing, a very great man for the Negro race, because all his fights were so honest, and because there never was any scandal or suspicion about them."

"But I was very sorry to see him go that way. I knew he wasn't the Louis of his great days. It was getting more plain every day that he was burned out. The reflexes were gone and these don't come back."

"So I hope Joe Louis will retire now. I know that as soon as I feel I have passed my peak, I'll retire, even if I'm champion. I don't want to go out the way Joe Louis did."

Not a great champion, perhaps, as measured by the fictic standards of Jeffries, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Dempsey. But as fine a man as any of these is quiet Jersey Joe Walcott.

Your agent remarked at the outset of these paragraphs that Jersey Joe is not one of the great all-time champions. But then, perhaps, he is by no means the worst. He is certainly not the least courageous, for he overcame tremendously disheartening difficulties, including a defeat by Joe Louis that really rated as a win. But he continued to pray, to believe that one day he would be champion.

It isn't wise to use adjectival superlatives in athletic ratings. That way lies danger. Years ago, there was a very good sound middleweight champion, named George Chip. He was the best of his weight in the business, or so he was rated. He was matched up, quite casually, to box a journeyman middleweight named Al Rudolph, a young man who boxed as best he could under the name of Al McCoy. This match was rated as an easy workout for the champion. There was no comparison, in the minds of the expert viewers, between the two. But Mr. Rudolph showed a strange lack of respect for the opinions of the expert viewers. As soon as the bell rang, he stepped alertly from his corner and smote Mr. Chip heavily on the chin. Mr. Chip the greatest, quietly collapsed. Mr. Rudolph, the not-so-great, was suddenly champion and continued to rule that division for three years.

Jersey Joe is the Mr. Rudolph of today. A champion is one who is the best among those who are engaging in the same type of contest. Jersey Joe, despite his age, is all of that. And there hasn't been a finer man to hold the title.

Poor, Sick Rocket Scores Only Three Goals; Leafs Sink Red Wings 5-3

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's no connection between Barnum's famous saying about a sucker being born every minute and the National Hockey League's screwiest weekend in years, but there's some high-faluting fancy-Dan stuff going on around big-time hockey's front. A celebrated stomach ache and some rash promises of return to action of one-time greats probably more than anything else sent the turnstiles clicking at a furious rate — the greatest weekend box offfice returns in years. Now you decide whether they fell for the pre-game gab or have they suddenly renewed interest in the game.

When it was all over, the score went something like this: Detroit Red Wings remain 12 points in front with a split in their games against the second-place Toronto and a 2-1 victory before a crowd of 15,668, the largest ever to jam Detroit Olympia Arena.

Montreal Canadiens drew to within one point of the Leafs with an 8-3 Saturday victory at home over the inept last-place Chicago Black Hawks before 14,252 fans and a 2-2 draw at New York on Sunday before the largest Manhattan crowd of the season, 14,457.

The Hawks' losing string stretched to seven Sunday night when they lost 5-4 to the Bruins at Boston.

Something To Consider

Those are the hard facts of the weekend ice goings-on, but ponder the long-distance screaming and threatening that led up to this what-is-it.

Coach Dick Irvin started it at Sudbury last week when he said that Maurice Richard had tummy pains and that he would be out a month. Manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers screamed "cry-baby," said it would hurt the gate for Sunday night's Montreal-New York game, and, in effect, added "nuts, Richard will play."

Irvin carried the ball from there saying he would take Richard's place if coach Bill Cook, one of the greatest players in the early '30s, would appear in the Ranger line-up. That was okay with Boucher and the hockey public gobbled it up.

The Montreal populace was in a bit of a dither about Richard's ailment but the Rocket, after X-ray examinations Friday, appeared at the Forum Saturday night and fired home three goals in the humbling of the Hawks. He also appeared at Madison Square Garden Sunday night (Cook and Irvin kept to their regular positions as bench jockeys) but didn't figure in the scoring.

The Richard-Irvin-Boucher to-do snt 14,457 fans to the Gardens and everybody should be happy.

Hurt Receipts

But after Sunday night's Gotham fray the usually-quiet spoken Boucher said Richard's weekend showing proved that Irvin "damn well knew he was lying." Frank maintained "such statements that Richard will not play only tend to hurt gate receipts."

But Frank proudly added: "We killed Irvin's prop-wash in time so that the fans knew he would appear and the result was we got one of the best crowds of the year."

The Detroit-Toronto games were the humdingers.

Out for their first victory in four tries against the Wings at Toronto, the Leafs chilled and thrilled a crowd of 14,091 before making it a two-point game. Down three goals early in the first period, they staged their greatest comeback of the season with a goal in the first period and two each in the second and third sessions.

At Detroit Sunday, Toronto jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by left-winger Ray Timgren, his second in two seasons, and the Wings put it away with third-period goals by Ted Lindsay and Enio Sclisizzi.

Eleven penalties were called in this game, including one against Toronto goalkeeper Al Rollins for roughing Glen Skov.

Sacrament Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world including First Church in Peterborough on Sunday.

The Golden Text was "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." (Psalms 24: 3, 4).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Isaiah 1: 16, 17 (to;). "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well;"

Correlative citations from the Christian Science text book included the following, "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds. To keep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done. Outward worship is not of itself sufficient to express loyal and heartfelt gratitude, since he has said: "If ye love me, keep my commandments."

ANCIENT ICELAND

Iceland was an independent republic from 930 to 1262 when it joined Norway, coming under Danish rule in 1380.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIV. No. 11 — MONDAY, JANUARY 14, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

NEW FLOORING.

New floorng is being laid today in the centre display hall of the second floor of the Peterborough Public Library.

GOOD FOR 20 YEARS

Mrs. Nelson Howard of Campbellford says a 15-watt electric light bulb she bought for her bed lamp 20 years ago is still working despite the fact that it has been lit every night since. She figures that at the present cost of 19 cents, the bulb cost her about 1/365th of a cent for each of the 7,300 nights she has used it.

FRACTURES ANKLE.

Walter Griffin, 31, 746 Chesterfield Ave., is in Civic Hospital with a fractured right ankle. He received the injury while skiing Sunday and was admitted to hospital at 6 p.m. His condition is reported as good.

TWO FOR ONE

Harry Orser of Trenton made quite a name for himself Saturday when he went on his first rabbit hunt. He hit two rabbits with his first shot. One of them weighed 25 pounds. He says a third one got away.

WRECK STOLEN CAR

A car belonging to Richard Olsson, 251 Rubidge St., was found wrecked Sunday afternoon after it had run into a telephone pole on the Centre Line of Smith township. The telephone pole was snapped off. The accident occurred three and a half miles west of Peterborough, some time after the car had been reported as stolen to city police. OPP Constable Wallace Mohns is investigating. As yet there have been no arrests.

ESCAPE INJURY

Alexander Murray, 23, 563 Armour Rd., and two passengers escaped injury Sunday night when their car rolled over in the ditch after manoeuvring to avoid a collision with a second car. Murray was driving east along Highway 7, four miles east of Peterborough, when he applied his brakes to avoid striking a westbound car, driven by George H. Chamberlain, 48, RR 7, Peterborough, which was making a left turn. Murray's vehicle hit an icy patch on the highway, skidded 180 feet down the south side of the paved surface; then it altered direction and rolled over in the snow-filled north ditch. None of the trio was injured but the car roof was damaged. OPP Harold Armstrong investigated.

Two Veteran Printers Given 50-Year Lapel Buttons

Celebrating the receipt of their International Typographical Union charter in January 1902, Peterborough Local No. 248 presented 50-year lapel buttons to two of its members at dinner Saturday night at the Empress hotel. The recipients were James Browne, and, by proxy, Reg. T. Hounsell, whose uncertain health did not permit him to attend.

At the head table with Harold Dormer, president, as chairman, were: Peter J. LaBranche, Harold L. Garner, former Mayor Max J. Swanston, Harry Finch of Toronto, Canadian representative of the ITU, G. Wilson Craw, Maurice Dunkley, Peter McCombe and Mr. Browne.

The anniversary dinner and its significance in time and accomplishment elicited many felicities from guests present and from others who sent regrets of intervening engagements. Mr. Dunkley read letters from: Woodruff Randolph, president of the I.T.U., and Harold F. Clark, 2nd vice-president, Indianapolis; William R. Lucas, secretary of the Toronto Local; John Wyllie of Niagara Falls, Mr. Hounsell, Robertson Davies who had to be in Ottawa for the weekend, John Barringer of Millbrook, Jerry Cullen of Montreal, E. R. Bartlett of Peterborough, a charter member; and a telegram from A. K. Whyte of Peterborough Local who had an engagement in Toronto.

Thanks The Examiner

Replying to Mr. Swanston's toast to the I.T.U., Mr. Finch warmly thanked the Examiner for its friendly publicity of the I.T.U. and particularly Local No. 248.

"The editorial in the Examiner today is one of the finest tributes I ever read to our I.T.U. and to local members of that organization," Mr. Finch said. "I know that editorial will be read with satisfaction in the Typographical Union. I think I'll carry it around with me, because we don't get tributes like that from every newspaper publisher I come in contact with.

"I remember one comment by the Examiner's editor that a stupid printer is an unheard of thing. I would agree with him entirely if he had said an I.T.U. printer. I could show him quite a number of stupid printers, but they are not in the I.T.U."

"Speaking seriously," Mr. Finch said, "I want to acknowledge that editorial, because I read it with a great deal of thankfulness and humility. It was a splendid tribute coming from your local paper, and I may say that we don't get that kind of tribute all over the country."

Congratulates Local

He congratulated the Local on its good relations. "Usually, the only time I'm called in is when there is some dispute. I think this occasion is a very happy augury. I'd like to call on you now and then, but I hope that my presence here is an official capacity will not be needed before your 100th anniversary. This is a very happy visit. It is the kind that tempers the life of an International representative."

Mr. Finch said relations generally throughout Canada were good, and he was certain that "a great many publishers are as anxious as we are to preserve them".

"In dealing with you, they know that the Locals are backed by an organization whose word is as good as its bond, and whose contacts are founded on good faith."

Mr. Finch surveyed conditions in the publishing business today, and stressed that fact that innovations concerning the I.T.U. membership were extending throughout the country today, just as radical changes were affecting the trade 50 years ago.

Secret of Success

Harold L. Garner, replying to Mr. McCombe's toast to Our Guests, congratulated the Union on its progress, its traditions and its record.

"I read Jim Browne's statement that as a member of No. 248 he had never been asked to do anything that was not strictly honorable. I think that spells your success," Mr. Garner said. "By living up to your traditions, you are bound to succeed. In the days ahead I hope you will keep as your guide the standards you have cultivated through the years. I hope you will take the bird's-eye view of things, not the keyhole view. I trust that you will see to it that you elect strong leaders. You will then have sound leadership. I sound that note because there is some leadership today that is not all it should be."

Proposing the toast to the I.T.U., Max Swanston said the 50th anniversary of No. 248 brought back to him pleasant memories of the friendships and training of his apprenticeship on the Examiner. He had the privilege of being president of Peterborough Local. "The training I received was a big help to me as a member of the city council of Peterborough. Anything I was able to accomplish as Mayor was due to men like you of the Examiner and Review, and as Mayor Waddell said to the 37,000 other people of this city."

Mr. Swanston said the I.T.U. was one of the oldest and best managed Unions in America. He spoke of the major benefits it had established for its members, and on the other hand it had set down the amount of work a man should be expected to do in one day as a guarantee of efficiency to employers.

The program for the evening included music during dinner, sleight of hand tricks by Bob Hardy and a vocal trio by Jim Browne, John Anderson and Alf Quemby.

Three Liquor Raids In City Result In Charges Of Bootlegging Being Laid

Quantity of Liquor Seized In Three Homes During Weekend; Men All Plead Not Guilty In Court

Three liquor raids during the weekend resulted in the arrest of a trio of bootlegging suspects and the seizure of a considerable amount of liquor. All three raids were made by city police, as the result of investigations carried out by Constable Douglas Farthing. Saturday afternoon Constables Farthing and Dennis Traynor searched the home of Cyril Anderson, 84½ Douro St. Anderson was arrested and charged with keeping liquor for sale. In police court today, he pleaded not guilty and was remanded on $400 bail until January 23.

Albert Leahy, 52, RR 10, Peterborough, was arrested in Anderson's house and charged with being found in a place where an offence under the Liquor Control Act was being committed. Leahy pleaded guilty to the charge in police court today, but since the crown was not ready to proceed, a plea of not guilty was entered and the charge was also adjourned to January 23.

Second Raid

Early Sunday morning, another raid led by Constable Farthing, accompanied by Constables Dennis Traynor, William G. Scott and Sherman Keliele, resulted in the arrest of Robert Williams, 340 Armstrong Drive.

Williams was charged with selling liquor and knowingly supplying liquor to minors when he appeared in police court today. He was represented by Robert Carley, and V. J. McElderry, KC, representing the Crown, agreed to an adjournment on both charges until January 21.

Using his knee to force the front door, Constable Farthing led a squad of officers into the home of Norman Manley, 206 Lansdowne St., Friday night. This is the second time in two months police have raided Manley's house and seized a quantity of liquor.

In police court Saturday, Manley was charged with bootlegging and permitting drunkenness on his premises. He did not enter a plea on either of the charges. Bail was fixed at $500 on the charge of selling liquor illegally and he was remanded until today. The second charge was also adjourned until today.

W. J. Arthur Fair, KC, represented Manley in police court today, and both charges were remanded until January 21.

Found in the house, Everitt Byers, 745 Walkerfield Ave., was arrested and charged with being found in a place where an offence under the Liquor Control Act was being committed.

The charge against Byers was adjourned until today when he was given a further adjournment until January 21.

On January 9, a bootlegging charge against Manley was dismissed when two Crown witnesses exploded the Crown's case by denying the truth of a statement they gave to police December 2.

Both men, William Sorg, of Ottawa, and Neil Paudash, RR 2, Keene, were later charged with perverting justice by giving statements to Sergeant Gordon Puffer and Constable Farthing that they had purchased three pints of beer from Manley.

Sorg and Paudash pleaded not guilty to the charges and were remanded on $200 bail until today. Mr. Fair appeared for both men and both charges were adjourned until January 21.

While following up an investigation of a disturbance on Queen St., about 5 am, December 2, Constable Farthing obtained the statements from Sorg and Paudash. A raid on Manley's house netted 21 dozen pints of beer, 16 bottles of wine, two 26 ounce bottles of liquor and another 12 ounce bottle of whiskey.

By coincidence, Max Meharry, 675 Comeron St., and Raymond Mark, 467 Parnell St., who were charged with causing the disturbance, appeared in court Saturday. Both pleaded not guilty and after hearing evidence, Magistrate Philp dismissed the charges. Mark claimed he had been assaulted by Paudash and Sorg and said he went to the police station to report the incident. Meharry said he had stopped the fracas in which Mark said he had received two broken ribs.

Paudash pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance before the Manley trial, and the same charge against Sorg will be heard when he is tried on the charge of perverting justice.

Acting Patrol Sergeant Claire McGillen and Constables William G. Scott, Grant Gillespie and Ted Stephens assisted Constable Farthing on the Friday night raid.

Chief Smith Investigates Fire At Rubidge St. Home

Fire Chief George Smith is investigating a fire that broke out Saturday night in the bathroom of the home of Charles Bencze, 617 Rubidge St. The fire filled the two-storey home with smoke and spread underneath the floor boards of the bathroom into the hall, 10 feet away. Damage will be about $100.

Flooring in the bathroom had to be ripped up and doused with water and part of the upstairs hallway was also ripped up. Water seeped down through the ceiling into the kitchen and at least one corner of the kitchen will have to be re-plastered.

Chief Smith said today that he is still investigating the cause of the blaze.

Something Wrong

Mrs. Bencze sad she was sitting in the kitchen of her home Saturday night when Mrs. Charles Gabriel, a tenant, came and told her something was wrong upstairs. Mr. Gabriel then came in, said there was a fire, and got a bucket of water to douse it.

The Gabriel family was moving out at the time and when firemen arrived all their possessions had been removed. Mrs. Bencze first called the police and the police notified the fire department.

A booster line and handpump were used by the firemen to extinguish the blaze.

Seriously Hurt When Hit By Car On Street

Seriously injured when struck by a car on Otonabee St., Saturday night, Murney Martin, 68, 267 Simcoe St., regained consciousness in hospital Sunday morning.

He is sufferng from a broken left leg, concussion and cuts on the forehead and chin. His condition is described as reasonably good.

Martin was walking along the north side of Otonabee St., about 11.30 pm when he was struck from behind by a car driven by Elwood McIlmoyle, 33 Armour Rd.

The accident occurred just past the Short St. intersection.

McIlmoyle, who was driving east on Otonabee St., told police he pulled out to pass another car and did not see the man until it was too late to avoid hitting him.

The McIlmoyle car travelled 66 feet until it came to a stop after hitting Martin, constable Harold Andrew reported.

The accident occurred near the home of Police Chief John Thompson, and Chief Thompson, one of the first to arrive at the scene after the accident, directed traffic.

Martin was taken to hospital by ambulance and treated by Dr. R. E. Pow. Dr. Pow said that a successful operation was performed on Martin's leg Sunday morning.

Car, Truck Collide $250 Damage Done

A car-truck collision at King and Stewart streets Sunday afternoon, resulted in an estimated $250 damage to the two vehicles.

LaVerne Sutton, 302 King St., was driving a truck west on King St., and as he was crossing the Stewart St. intersection, a southbound car driven by Gordon Hutchinson, St. Lawrence St., Winchester, was in collision with the right side of the truck cab.

Damage to the front end of the Hutchinson car was estimated at $150. Approximately $100 damage resulted to the cab and fender of the truck.

Each driver said he did not see the other vehicle in time to avoid an accident. Both the car and truck skidded more than 30 feet before the impact.

Constable Arthur Beardsmore investigated.

Roderick Grant Electrical Engineer Dies

President of Grant and Loucks Electric and its subsidiary, Kesco Electric, Roderick Grant of 132 Brock St., died on Sunday in hospital. He had been in poor health for the past year. Mr. Grant was born in Inverness, Scotland, son of the late David J. Grant and Jamesina Cameron and was educated at Inverness Academy and the University of Aberdeen. He graduated in electrical engineering and served in Scotland and England with the contracting firm of Malcolm and Allan Ltd.

In 1911, he came to Canada and worked for a year with the Maclean Publishing Company, Toronto. He was a distant relatives of the late Col. John M. Maclean. The following year Mr. Grant came to Peterborough to take charge of the district branch office of the Seymour Light and Power Company and was later its secretary-treasurer. When this company was taken over by the Ontario Hydro Power Commission in 1913, Mr. Grant did not join the municipally owned organization, but formed with the late Charles Thorpe the electrical business of Grant and Thorpe. A retail store was opened on George St. and in time the business expanded and general contracting in the electrical trade was commenced. In the latter Mr. Grant has played a very important part in this community for many of the major electrical jobs in the past 30 years he has personally been interested.

In 1933 Donald A. Loucks joined the partnership and in 1948 the subsidiary Kesco Electric was organized.

Mr. Grant was highly regarded in the electrical trade and while he was of a rather retiring nature he was well thought of by all who knew him. He was an adherent of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. A member of Corinthian lodge AF & AM No. 101; Corinthian Chapter, RAM No. 36; Moore Preceptory, Knights Templar and Rameses Temple, Toronto. He was also a member of the Peterborough Club and the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

He leaves his wife the former Jane Bell and one brother, John Grant, in Glasgow, Scotland.

A masonic service will be held at the Belleghem funeral home on Tuesday evening at 7:30 and funeral service will take place from there on Wednesday at 2 pm. The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

An emergent meeting of Corinthian Lodges No. 101 A.F. & A.M. is called for 7.30 o'clock on Tuesday evening at the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter St. W., to attend a Masonic funeral service for our late Brother Roderick Grant. Brethren of our sister lodges are also invited.

Writer Recalls Great Difficulties Of Scott Expedition To Antarctic

(Editor's Note: The fury of the elements in the desolate vastness of the Antarctic are well known to the writer of the following story. Early in 1947 Alton Blakeslee spent five weeks in Little America with the second Byrd expedition to the South Pole.)

By ALTON S. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Five men trudge south, always south, into a pitiless cold wind blowing from the bottom of the world.

The South Pole lies near, after 73 days of marching on ski and foot.

It is a day 40 years ago in a famous race between two explorers to reach the Souht Pole first, a day in one of history's greatest dramas. They are seeing things man never saw before, solving some mysteries of the last great unknown continent.

Behind them the five men haul a sledge, laden with food, fuel, and tent for their only shelter.

Capt. Robert Scott and his four companions are hoping to be the first to claim the pole in England's name.

But a question gnaws them. Where is Roald Amundsen?

It was Amundsen who made this a race. Amundsen came with dogs to pull his sledges.

Scott planned a many-sided scientific expedition and discovery of the pole. Amundsen made the pole his main goal.

Both reached Antarctica in the summer of 1911. Their camps lay 350 miles apart. The pole was nearly 900 miles away.

Find Flag

Scott starts out Nov. 1, 1911. On Jan. 17 the wonder over Amundsen's whereabouts ceases. They see a flag left by the Norwegians.

Amundsen reached the pole in 55 days on Dec. 14, 1911, 34 days before Scott, and started home Dec. 18 with two sledges and 11 dogs.

Amundsen, 41, made it home, 870 miles, in only 38 days with food to spare. He arrived Jan. 25.

With him he brought rocks from the glacier-ringed mountains, new knowledge of the fabulous Ross Ice Barrier, of mountains thrusting 15,000 feet high, of explorations of King Edward VII Land, visited by other members of his small party.

Scott, 43, came to the pole Jan. 17, 1912.

"It is a terrible disappointment," his diary tells. "This is an awful place and terrible enough for us to have labored to it without the reward of priority . . . now for the run home and a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can make it . . ."

Terrible Price

Jan. 19, they start home.

Jan. 23, Petty Officer Edgar Evans, 37, the huskiest man of the five, suffers frequent frostbites.

Jan. 31, Evans' fingernails start to come off. Dr. Edward A. Wilson, 39, physician and zoologist, has snowblindness.

Feb. 4, Capt. L. E. G. Oates, 32, British army officer, finds his toes blackening.

Down the glacier they come. Evans, weakening rapidly. Dies is his sleep Feb. 17.

Oates' feet grow worse. March 6, he cannot pull anymore. For 10 more days, the four men push on.

March 17, they pitch their tent. Oates knows he is compromising the chances of three other men. Oates walks out into a blizzard. They never find his body.

Three men walk on for two more days, then put up tent.

Only 11 miles on lies a one-ton depot, with food and fuel for another week's march. They now have only food for two days, fuel for one.

New Blizzard

The blizzard begins again. Scott's foot is so badly gone from frostbite he knows he will have it amputated, if he lives. The plan is made—Dr. Wilson and Lieut. Henry Bowers, 28, will try to reach one ton depot and come back for Scott. They will start when the blizzard stops . . .

The blizzard rages on for nine days . . .

The last entry in Scott's diary is March 29, five months after the start: "I do not think we can hope for better things now. We shall stick it out to the end, but we are getting weaker, of course, and the end cannot be far . . ."

Nine months later, after the dark Antarctic winter, a search party found the snow-covered tent, marked by skis and the bamboo mast of the sledge, visible above the snows. Three men lay in frozen death, 11 miles from a depot, 177 miles from the safety of their base.

Bethany Women Plan Paper Collection

BETHANY, Jan. 14—(ENS)—Mrs. T. J. Jackson entertained the members of the Women's Missionary Society on Wednesday. It was decided to have a paper collection in the village in the spring. Andy Watson has offered a place to store the old papers. It was also decided to sell greeting cards to aid the treasury funds.

Mrs. Orlo Wright conducted the worship service, assisted by Mrs. Donald Lowes. Mrs. Jackson read a letter from the Rev. Meryl Ferguson, a missionary in Africa, which was of special interest as his brother, the Rev. Clarence Ferguson had at one time been the minister on the Bethany circuit. In his letter, Mr. Ferguson spoke with enthusiasm of the work being accomplished through their mission.

Mrs. Clarence Rowan gave a number of interesting facts from the work in India.

A chapter from the study book "From Lakes To Northern Lights" and "The Home Missions Digest" was given by Mrs. Herb. Coppins and Mrs. Ernest Stacey.

Mrs. Jackson served lunch at the close of the meeting.

Bitter Soviet Criticism Likely To Develop On Libya

By STAN SWINTON

TRIPOLI, Libya, Jan. 14 (AP)—Bitter criticism of Libya's new independence is expected soon from the Soviet bloc at the current United Nations General Assembly.

But the architect of Libyan independence, UN commissioner Adrian Pelt, feels creation of the North African country represents a "fairly successful" accomplishment of his mission.

Strategic Libya is the UN's first example of planned parenthood. A General Assembly resolution passed Nov. 21, 1949, called for establishment of an independent and sovereign state by Jan. 1, 1952. Independence was proclaimed Dec. 24, 1951.

Late this month Pelt makes his final report to the General Assembly. When he does, Russia and her satellites are expected to attack the new state as a western puppet set up to safeguard British, United States and French bases which exist here.

Don't Like Bases

Basis for charges is that under "status quo" agreements with free Libya the United States continues to keep a big air base at Wheelus Field, just outside Tripoli; Britain retains an estimated reinforced infantry brigade and France maintains three desert air strips and a company of infantry at Fezzan Oasis.

Pelt, a jovial Dutchman who formerly served as UN assistant secretary-general, admits the new state does not represent perfection. But, in an interview before he left for Paris, Pelt said "Independence was the only solution".

"Situated between Tunis and Egypt, wide open to the impact of the western world, of course Libya felt the impact of nationalism," he said. "The problem was to guide it."

Pelt is convinced the most discussed alternative to independence—a 10-year British protectorate over Cyrenaica province and a 10-year Italian protectorate over Tripolitania—"would not have worked."

Anti-Italian Feeling

There is a strong anti-Italian feeling in this former Italian colony.

A major problem in Libyan independence is the country's poverty. UN experts consider it the poorest independent nation in the world. Average cash income of the Arab and Berber population is only $30 a year.

Pelt admits "There is no doubt Libya for years to come will require (outside) financial support."

Under present plans Britain will meet the nation's budgetary deficit of about $6,000,000 annually. France will contribute $600,000 annually. The US has promised $1,000,000 in point four aid.

The Soviet charges of western influence are expected to refer to these direct grants.

● All over Ontario the demands of war industries for more and more power are growing greater as the pace of turning out essential material for war and defense quickens.

For a plentiful supply of power these defense industries look to Hydro . . . and Hydro men and women are seeing that it is supplied. For they are the vital human force that puts life into the vast and intricate Hydro system. It is men and women . . . like the typical members of the Hydro family pictured in this message . . . who operate and maintain the system that produces the power so essential to the continuance of our way of life.

The combined knowledge, skill and labour of these men and women of Hydro . . . today, over 22,000 strong . . . is one of the greatest assets of this Province. Through their teamwork Hydro is meeting the ever-increasing call for more electricity for homes, factories and farms, as well as maintaining an uninterrupted flow of power for our rearmament program.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission at this time extends sincere thanks to the men and women of Ontario Hydro and the members of the staffs of the municipal systems, for the splendid co-operation and support on the part of everyone in the all-out effort to meet the growing demands for power.

Ontario is a great and progressive province. Let us all make every effort to make it an even better place in which to live, work and raise our families.

Publisher Sure US Will Meet Responsibilities

TORONTO, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Confidence that America will match her physical strength with moral strength was expressed Saturday night by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of The New York Times.

In an address to the Royal Canadian Institute and the Empire Club, he said America has demonstrated its willingness and ability to mobilize its power.

In the strategy of world affairs today, "many moves must be planned at the same time and worked out with patience and foresight and this requires a habit of mind which our people do not prefer."

"Nevertheless, you must not assume —as Imust say frankly a great many of my British friends assume — that America will not stay the course, that we will not match the physical strength with moral strength.

Great Provocation

"Certainly there has never been a time in which there have been more provocations to make war and more opportunities to go to war than during the last three or four years. Ransom is not happily paid. Yet always, as with a Berlin airlift . . . a way has been found to deal with the problem short of war.

"When the issue involves life and death, the wide masses of the American people are not impetuous. Despite all the glitter of modern life, they still make moral judgments on political events, and the government is still responsible to their will."

Better Tax Deal

VANCOUVER, Jan. 14—(CP) —The Vancouver Sun said Saturday that British Columbia has won a vastly improved taxation deal from the Federal government. "It is learned that a new agreement will be signed that will give this province approximately an additional $5,000,000 a year for the next five years," the Sun said.

Seaway Bill To Go To Senate Says Wiley

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)— Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) said Saturday that backers of the St. Lawrence Seaway have enough committee votes to send legislation on the project to the Senate floor.

He wrote chairman Tom Connally (Dem., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that suporters plan to report on it out of that committee for floor debate early this session.

Connally told reporters that he does not object to the seaway bill coming to a vote in his committee but added: "I am sure the committee will not report it." He is strongly opposed to the project.

Wiley wrote that he hopes an "harmonious agreement" for consideration of the bill can be worked out in the committee.

"It is my firm belief that a working majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been ready, willing and able to report the seaway to the Senate floor," he said.

Top administration officials tried unsuccessfully to persuade the House of Representatives Public Works Committee to approve the bill last year.

Wiley said Congress must quit delaying on the measure now because Canada has decided to go ahead on its own with construction of a seaway and an Ontario power project.

There was a good representation of the lodges of the district present.

Wor. Bro. Bateman before vacating the chair said the healthy condition of the lodge was due to the good work of the officers and members in 1951, and thanked them for their fine support.

Treasurer H. Belch reported the finances were in good shape and showed a slight increase. K. J. Moncrief, County Master, conducted the election which resulted as follows:

Wor. Master H. Cunningham; deputy master, N. Hubbard; chaplain, H. Elgar; recording secretary, H. Nelson; treasurer, N. Belch; marshall, D. Graham; lecturers, A. Jones and C. Follis.

African Paper Rejects Criticism Of King

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 14 (Reuters).—The Cape Times today rejected criticism by two London Sunday newspapers of the King's acceptance of an invitation by South African Prime Minister Daniel Malan to spend a short recuperative holiday at Botha House, Natal.

The paper said "Malan is Prime Minister of South Africa and as such the King's adviser here."

In an editorial entitled "The King's visit," the Cape Times said the main ground of the London newspapers' criticism "is that they imply the King's acceptance will identify him with certain policies pursued by the government headed by Malan."

"If this were so, in regard to South Africa and its race policies, then it must be so in any other country of which the King is King; and a visit by any member of the Royal family to Canada or Australia, for example, must be regarded as an endorsement of the policies of parties that happen to be in power there at the time."

Cause of Furore

In London, The Observer and Reynolds News Sunday criticized the King's plan to spend a recuperative vacation this spring in South Africa as guest of Prime Minister Daniel Malan—advocate of racial segregation.

The Observer said the African natives would regard it as an act of friendliness towards a man they regard "as the Poles regarded Hitler."

Reynolds News declared that Milan is trying to force 9,000,000 colored South Africans into a position of "permanent and degrading untouchability."

Gas Workers Accept Offer

TORONTO, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Consumers' Gas Company employees Sunday voted overwhelmingly in favor of accepting a new wage agreement which will avert a strike and mean a minimum increase of nine cents an hour for 680 workers.

The agreement — kept secret until after Sunday's meeting — gives the workers a total increase of nine cents and the incorporation of the 25½ cent hourly cost-of-living bonus into the basic wage rate—now $1.37½ an hour.

The membership meeting voted 427 to 39 in favor of accepting the new agreement recommended by the executive of Local 161, International Chemical Workers' Union (AFL).

The cost-of-living bonus becomes effective immediately while six of the nine cents increase is retroactive to July 8, 1951, and the remaining three cents are retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year.

Gibson-Ferguson Wedding

Grace United Church was the setting Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Carol Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ferguson of 16 Cricket Place, to John Ward Gibson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gibson of 483 Parnell St.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland performed the ceremony. Wedding music was played by organist Mrs. Frances Turner who played "Because" during the signing of the register. The church was decorated with pink and white 'mums banked with fern.

French blue velvet styled in ballerina length was the bride's choice. The dress featured a keyhole neckline with stand-up collar and three-quarter sleeves. Her headdress was a braided halo of the same material and she carried a matching muff trimmed with red roses and white carnations. She was given in marriage by her father and attended by Miss Beverley Gibson, sister of the groom. Miss Gibson's dress was of winter rust velvet, made similarly to the bride's and she also wore a braided halo of the velvet and carried a matching muff trimmed with bronze and yellow 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. Lorne Eakins and the ushers were Lloyd Prophet and Lou Clark, brothers-in-law of the bride and groom.

The reception was at the bride's home where her mother received wearing a navy tricotine dress with navy velvet hat and corsage of American beauty roses. Assisting her, the groom's mother was dressed in silver grey tissue faille and wore a black velvet hat and corsage of red roses.

Leaving later on a wedding trip to Toronto and Buffalo the bride wore a suit of gold charmaine with Kelly green accessories and a rust topcoat. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

The couple will be living at 16 Cricket Place on return.

Foster-Parents Scarce In Britain

LONDON (CP).—A shortage of "mums and dads" is worrying child welfare societies and government officials.

Under a government scheme, persons willing to look after children committed to government care receive a small wage and a 14-week training course. But so few applications are being received that one of nine training centres set up under the plan is being closed.

The foster-parents are required to provide a sense of home life for orphans and children committed to the country's care from broken and neglected homes.

RCAF Woman Often In Arctic, Supervises Food

MONTREAL (CP). — Distant stations in the Canadian Arctic are just routine stops on the frequent trips made by Flt.-Lt. Agnes L. Campbell, attractive superintendent of food supplies for the Royal Canadian Air Force Air Transport Command headquarters at Lachine.

She's frequently off on expeditions to such places as Yellowknife, Frobisher Bay or White Horse to check on food supplies at the northern air outposts. Since 1950 she has been responsible for providing staple supplies and fresh food at stations that extend from Edmonton to Goose Bay and as far north as the Arctic islands. She also keeps a watchful eye on kitchen staffs and supervises the preparation of menus.

She spent four days in December at Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island, but this is only one of the places visited in the past few years by the food expert, who comes from Wolseley, Sask.

Busy In Summer

During summer months, when Air Force photographic detachments go north, she is especially busy, for the mess facilities of each unit come under her supervision. She keeps in touch with the cooks to make sure they have a balanced supply of food on hand, and checks on the hundreds of details involved in appetizing meals for servicemen.

Most of her work is done at her desk in the Air Transport Command here. She handles such orders as 50,000 pounds of fresh meat or 50 tons of apples, which must be packaged in special containers for their long journeys.

Flt.-Lt. Campbell decided on the Air Force for a career in 1943, and after graduating from the University of Saskatchewan in household science, and a year's post graduate work at the Vancouver General Hospital, she enlisted as a messing officer.

Before coming east she served at air stations in Rivers, Man., and Portage La Prairie.

CGIT Doings

MURRAY STREET

First 1952 meeting of Murray St. Baptist Church was opened with games. Among the highlights of the evening was the report from Girls' Council by Nancy McNabb. Miss Blanche Quinn informed the girls of the city-wide service to be held this year in Knox United Church.

At next week's meeting, Miss Mary Haddon will be special guest. The girls of the intermediate Sunday School who are not members of CGIT are also invited. President Audrey Silvester named her committee to look after the lunch.

It is hoped the group will be able to have a mother and daughter banquet with fathers serving. The girls are to discuss this item at home and report at the next meeting. Elections of new officers will also take place at the next meeting.

Worship was conducted by Nancy McNabb and Joan Doughty assisted by Joy Arnott at the piano. Miss Marion Pogue spoke of "The Man At the Gateway of the Year," preferably 1952.

Fashion Flashes

A rainbow of glorious colors is the pleasing story of the cashmere coats seen at resorts, a nice change after all the drab shades, Mimosa yellow and heaven blue are two of the tones used for a handsome, full-length coat with a snug front that is self belted with a casual tie; it has a wide swinging back. Deep cuffs for the push-up sleeves and welt seaming for the collar and pointed, notched lapels.

Originality is the keynote of much of the new costume jewelry shown for mid-winter wear. Glitter-tipped jet drops stand up instead of dangling from a stiff collar of jet and rhinestones. Matching pear-shaped earrings.

MISS PAT MULLARKEY, of Dallas, Texas, models a red moire cotton waterproof coat over white corduroy knee length short pants as she braves New York's crisp weather on the terrace of her hotel. St. Joseph's School Accepts 18 Girls Into Junior Class

The probationary period ended for 18 girls of the September class of preliminary students at St. Joseph's Hospital, as they were formally accepted into the School of Nursing Friday evening in the impressive ceremony, the theme of which was "Nursing with Christ." They are:

Misses Agnes Doris, Rita Doris, Rita Healey, Isabel Leahy, Angelica LaPointe, Anna Marie O'Toole and Marie Woodhouse, all of Peterborough; Mary Curtin and Patricia Lucas of Lindsay; Thelma Dion and Vera Rivers of Tweed; Barbara Connelly of Kirkfield; Ann Houlihan of Codrington; Mary McCarthy of Keene; Theresa O'Rourke of Campbellford; Eunice Ricketts of MacTier; Marion Sprackett of Gilmour; Madaline Young of Ennismore.

During the first months of their course the students have spent most of the time in the class-room, the lecture hall, and demonstration room. Specialists in each subject have taught them anatomy and physiology, bacteriology, pharmocology, dietics, psychology and religion. This preliminary period afforded the Superintendent of the Nursing School and her assistants, the opportunity to observe the students and to decide if each has the inate qualities which can be developed to make of her a good nurse. To the student the bestowal of the cap symbolizes the hospital's acceptance of her and its confidence in her.

In an address to the class the Rev. R. MacEachern, chaplain of St. Joseph's Hospital, stressed kindness and impartiality as prime requisites in the true nurse. "In a hospital," the speaker said, "the question, who is my neighbor? finds its answer in the sick of all races, nationalities, and creeds, without discrimination. The true nurse is one who ministers with the same kindly concern to the rich and poor, to the attractive patient and the difficult or repulsive.

"The cap is only the symbol of the nurse, but the proof of excellence is kindly, efficient, bed-side care of the patient," the speaker emphasized. "St. Joseph's School of Nursing affords excellent teaching and an unsurpassed opportunity for learning nursing arts but with the opportunity goes accountability. You must strive to acquire the requisite knowledge. In the practice of your profession the saving of human lives will depend on your possessions of that knowledge, and heavy is the guilt of her who wastes her opportunity to learn," concluded Father MacEachern.

Presentation of the caps was made by Sister Gonzaga, Reg. N., B.Sc., Nurs., superintendent of the School of Nursing, assisted by Miss H. Zawadski, and Miss E. Pawlicka. Before pinning the prized crisp white cap on each student, Sister reminded the class that with the cap goes the responsibility of high ideals and that today, as all through the centuries, the nursing profession is motivated by Christian charity.

Singing of the school song, of a vocal duet, and of the hymn to St. Joseph by the student nurses was excellent. Very lovely voices and a sense of humor were evident in the class song, the words of which were composed by the preliminary students to fit the occasion.

With the music of O Canada sounding softly in the background the choral recitation by the juniors of the Jeanne Mance pledge was impressive and recalled that Jeanne Mance was the first lay nurse in Canada, having established the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Montreal in 1642.

Second Royal Tour To Leave Children Facing Loneliness

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Reuters)—It will be a lonely spring this year for Prince Charles and Princess Anne. They are due for their first taste of what Royal loneliness really means.

Their mother and father, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, leave here on their Royal tour of Australia and New Zealand Jan. 31—just over eight weeks after getting back from a six-week tour of Canada.

The two children—Charles is three, Anne 19 months—might go and stay with their grandparents, the King and Queen, except that grandpapa and grandmamma will be on an ocean cruise and vacation in Africa, where the King will convalesce from his September lung operation.

It wasn't too bad when the children's mother and father went off to Canada. They spent a lot of time with grannie and had lots of fun. But with no grannie it will be different this time.

Will they stay alone with their nurse at Clarence House, their London home? Or will they spend the waiting months at the homes of some of their younger cousins? Not even a Buckingham Palace spokesman could answer today. Too early to know what plans would be made, he said.

If they were a little older the problem might be solved by some one taking them along. But just now they are too young to stand up to a Royal tour, and children would not add to the peace of the King's rest trip.

Meanwhile arrangements for the tour are speeding up, and the day of separation is getting closer.

The 15,900-ton white-hulled luxury liner Gothic steamed out of Southampton harbor Saturday for Mombassa, where the Royal couple will meet her next month after a short vacation in Kenya.

Recently refitted especially for the tour, the Gothic now can provide the couple with day and night cabins.

Princess Elizabeth's cabin has two telephones, has a scrambler device so she can talk to London without being "eavesdropped" over the air.

Vice-Admiral C. E. Lamb, flag officer of the Royal Navy, is captain of the Gothic which, like any other vessel used by royalty, now becomes "the Royal yacht" for the voyage's duration.

Last week huge boxes of billowy ball-gowns for the Princess' most formal evening engagements were delivered to Clarence House. Packed under the close supervision of her personal maid, they were put aboard the Gothic along with most of the luggage the Royal party will need.

Dozens of trunks full of dresses and uniforms for the Princess and her husband were loaded abpard along with clothes for Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand required by the ladies-in-waiting and other members of the household.

Ordered in advance so they could go the sea route were dozens of photographs of the Royal couple and their children—to be signed and presented to people met on the tour.

Slashed Prices Mark London's New Year Sales

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP)—With New Year's day falling on a Tuesday, hundreds of British women greeted Hogmanay from a cold all-night stand outside the big department stores.

The annual New Year sales traditionally are held on the first Monday of the year. This time they were held on the last Monday of the old year, causing a break in holiday revelry for women intent on getting value for their money.

Bargains were the most phenomenal since the war. Prices were cut to the barest margin. All-night queues of women—and some men, too—braved the long, cold wait for such bargains as fur coats and beaver lamb coats selling as low as £3.

Two young sisters from the outskirts of London, 18-year-old Lynn Adams and 21-year-old Jill, stood from five o'clock Sunday evening outside a store near the Marble Arch to ensure getting a beaver lamb coat at £3—for mother. They had nothing but their winter coats to keep them warm.

"If we'd brought blankets and food mother would have been curious and we wanted the coat to be a surprise," they said, sipping hot tea provided by the store a half-hour before opening time.

Shy Bargain-Hunter

An all-night stand outside a Kensington store was made by a night worker hoping to buy his wife a three-piece suit, marked down from £21 to £11. "I'd be laughed at if I gave my name," he told a reporter.

Even the hard-to-please could find good buys on the second and third days of the sale, although the real prizes were snapped up in the first 20 minutes. There were stylish coats selling for £2, £3 and £4; frocks that would raise a whistle from the boy friend at £2 and under; taffeta, silk and moire cocktail and dance frocks priced as low as 25s., skirts at 10s., and blouses and jumpers below that.

For those willing to pay from £7 to £10 for a coat, suit or dress, there were classically-styled numbers cut to half-price and under. These garments will come up smiling even when the latest vagaries of fashion are disclosed late in January by top-rank London and Paris designers.

Many women pass up the sales under the impression that the goods are out-of-date or faulty. Usually, this is a mistaken idea. It's just that some trick of fate makes one new number a best seller while another ends up at the sales. It may just be the styling of the collar, the sleeves or the hips that make the difference.

L-O-G-Y

If you often feel "logy" on getting up—if tired, sluggish feelings drag you down all through the day—an inactive liver with resulting habitual constipation may be the cause. Millions of people who suffer this way find that Kruschen Salts help bring relief from these symptoms. The reason Kruschen is so widely recommended is because it contains active principles similar to those of world-famous Mineral Springs. Kruschen acts two ways—laxative and diuretic. It promotes healthy action of the bowels and the kidneys. You just take a little Kruschen in hot water or your morning beverage, when needed. Try it and you'll rely on it—as so many do—to help you to new pep and zest, by aiding healthy, natural elimination of the body wastes through bowels and kidneys.

Big Cities Unfriendly; Big Town Glamour Not All

DEAR MISS DIX: The entire 19 years of my life have been spent in this small town. I am an ambitious boy, and would like to see the night life of a big city, and meet new people. My parents, however, refuse to move. My 14-year-old brother and I are in favor of going to a large city, but our parents are set in their ways, and won't leave our home town. How can we convince them of the advantages we could gain by living in a metropolis?

J.C.R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Big cities are wonderful places, it is true, but they can be mighty unfriendly to a stranger—as hundreds of letters on my desk can attest. The glamorous life of the theatre and swank restaurants does not carry the accent for city dwellers that one might suppose from a perusal of magazines and books.

Its paradoxical that while the country folk yearn for the bright lights of Broadway or State Street or Market Street, city dwellers are beset with a desire for "a place in the country." Currently, there are many more books depicting the trials, tribulations, and ultimate triumph of the businessman who chucks finance in high places for the placid existence of a farmer than there are tomes extolling the smash success of a farmer in Wall Street.

Leave Family Alone

You are very wrong to try to move your family. Since they are content with small-town life, that's where they should stay.

Suppose you just continue with your schoolwork, or studying on the side for another few years, then you can brave the big city alone. Don't try it unless you have some definite objective in mind, with enough knowledge and practical information to give you confidence. While working in a city, trying to make friends, trying to get ahead in business among total strangers, your greatest asset will be the assurance that mom and pop are back home guarding you with their prayers, guiding you with their familiar homilies, and—most of all—ready to welcome you home should the big town fail to offer all you had hoped for..

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man of 19, in the air force. I am very much in love with a girl 18, but I don't think she knows it. Do you think I should write and tell her I love her, or wait for a while? JACK.

ANSWER: Why not wait at least until you are home for a visit, then tell her? A declaration of love is much too important to be trusted to a letter.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been married twice and have children by both husbands. Neither marriage was happy. My children are raised and I am able to work and have things I have always wanted. Now my mother wants me to break up my home, give up my job, and go take care of her. I have begged her to come live with me, but she refuses. I am very unhappy about it. M.O.G.

ANSWER: After all your unhappiness and trouble I think you are entitled to a little happiness and peace of mind. If you give up your job now, it will be much more difficult to resume when your responsibilities to mother end. If she won't come to live with you, try to get someone else to care for her. Readjustment now, and then again later on if your mother passes away, will be much too difficult.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Pot Roast Better With Chuck Cut

We are having a meat-eating field day. Since I have been giving you these special talks on meat cooking I have been obliged morally to try each one before it appears on this page, which prides itself on its tried and true formulas.

This week, long before the end of a baked ham was used up, and while a part of a roast loin of pork was awaiting demolition, I started off on this pot roasting spree.

How could anything, even turkey, taste better than a properly pot-roasted pot roast?

The gravy should be given its proper due too— so I suggest that instead of adding the potatoes to the pot roasting process (as I suggest below) you boil them separately and mash them to the fluffiest froth possible (see how below), so that the delicious pot roast gravy can nestle in the folds of them on your plate.

Favorite Pot Roast

Chuck is the cut of meat to buy—at least 4 or 5 pounds, but the more expensive rump makes splendid pot roast too.

To ½ cup flour add 1½ teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Dredge all surfaces of the meat with this and pat it in. Have ready in Dutch oven (without the trivet) or deep iron frying pan (or in bottom of pressure cooker) about 3 tablespoons hot fat—beef drippings are best. Brown the meat on all sides turning it almost constantly, until it is a deep golden brown. It must not have a wishy-washy pale look. Spread the top surface with ¼ cup horseradish. Add ½ cup boiling water, cover tightly and cook as slowly as possible for 3 hours. At the end of 3 hours, remove cover and add 8 or 10 each small onions, whole small carrots, 4-inch outside celery stalks, and same of potatoes if you want them done in the gravy, plus ½ teaspoon salt. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender. Remove meat and vegetables to hot platter. To make more gravy add enough boiling water to make it up to about a pint. Thicken this with a paste made of 2 or 3 tablespoons flour stirred into ¼ cup could water, stirring until it is thick. Serve very hot. I like this best with—

Fluffy Mashed Potatoes

Cook 8 medium sized pared potatoes which have been cut in halves in boiling salted water until tender but not mushy. Drain, saving the liquid for the gravy or for the soup pot. Shake over low burner to dry them off. Mash until your arm aches. Season with salt and pepper and add ½ teaspoon baking powder too. Add anywhere from 2 to 4 tablespoons butter and from ½ to ¾ cup hot milk. Beat some more. Keep hot if necessary by standing in larger pan containing boiling water.

Pot Roast Of Beef (in pressure cooker)

Use a 4-lb. shoulder or rump of beef, dredge it with salt, pepper and flour. Heat your pressure cooker and in it melt 2 or 3 tablespoons drippings or butter, and brown the meat thoroughly on all sides in bottom of cooker. Add 1 medium onion sliced and ½ cup boiling water. Exhaust with cover on, then pressure cook at 15 lbs. pressure for 45 minutes. Let indicator return to zero. If desired, vegetables may be added, and pressure of 10 or 15 lbs. applied for about 3 minutes. Use same vegetables as in pot roast recipe above. If desired tomato juice may be used in place of water.

Mrs. G. Chiles Honored In Havelock

HAVELOCK, Jan. 14 (ENS)—Mrs. G. W. Chiles, the retiring president of the WMS of Havelock United Church, was honored by having a letter of appreciation for her services in that capacity, read to her at a meeting of the society at her home on Thursday.

The letter was read by Mrs. P. Haig and stated that Mrs. Chiles' devotion to the duties of her office over a term of eight years had been an inspiration to all the members.

The president, Mrs. R. G. Newman presided. The study entitled "Our Fellow Canadians The French Protestants" was in charge of Mrs. N. Blakely assisted by Mrs. H. Agnew and Mrs. Cora Curtis.

Mrs. W. Forsyth and Mrs. H. Agnew were appointed as delegates to the Presbyterial WMS to be held in Peterborough on January 22.

Allocation Raised

Mrs. C. Spencer reported that the allocation of $330 for 1951 had been forwarded to the presbyterial treasurer.

Mrs. A. Anderson, the supply secretary owing to illness, was unable to pesent her report, which was read by the secretary and showed that much work had been done in this department. Three bales of used clothing (145 pounds) was forwarded during the year for overseas relief, together with the sum of $14.50 to defray the shipping costs to their destination. A bale for home mission work was sent to Peterborough, containing a large quilt, two cot quilts, stockings and mitts for boys six to eight years, and a parcel was sent to the Church of All Nations, Toronto, containing 14 pairs of stockings for children four to eight years of age.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Agnew with Mrs. R. Bonney in charge of the study assisted by Mrs. P. Haig and Mrs. C. Anderson.

A pleasant half hour was spent after the meeting when lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. E. Fennell and Mrs. C. Spencer.

Havelock WA Starts Study Of Mission Work In S.A.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 14—(ENS)—A study of mission work in South America was commenced by the St. John's WA at their January meeting held in the parish room of the church. Mrs. H. E. Peasgood, was appointed to take charge of the study but owing to her illness, the introduction to the course was presented by the Rev. H. E. Peasgood. The president, Mrs. H. W. Roche, presided.

Mrs. T. Cummins reported that over $60 had been received from the bags she distributed with the request that a cent a day would be placed in them for missions. Two large bales of clothing had been sent to Toronto for mission work.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the attendance of two members who have seen many years of service in the auxiliary in the persons of Mrs. Joseph Holdcroft and Mrs. John Anderson. The former has served many years in the office of president only retiring about a year ago.

Russian Move Seen Effort To Get Initiative

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Jan. 14 (CP). — The Russians' latest move on the tough old problem of international control of atomic energy is seen by western delegates as an attempt to snatch the initiative won so far by the west at the current United Nations Assembly.

But in the attempt started Saturday by Andrei Vishinsky, Russia appeared to make concessions to the western viewpoint on the problem—concessions which will give the new UN Disarmament Commission plenty of debate.

The Soviet foreign minister obviously was aiming at getting the assembly to call for a moral ban on the use of atomic weapons. The western powers oppose such a move as an attempt to wipe out the west's apparent atomic superiority on which it counts as an edge if Russia attacks Western Europe.

Nevertheless, western delegates will study carefully those parts of the Soviet resolution which appear to come closer to what the majority in the UN has already endorsed as necessary for international control of atomic energy.

Two Concessions

1. Continuity of inspection — previously Russia insisted on only periodic inspection of atomic plants and installations, a stand which the west said would leave loopholes for secret manufacture of atomic weapons.

Now Russia appears to concede the west's demand that inspection be "continuing," allowing inspectors to come and go when they wish.

2. Simultaneous control and a ban—previously Russia demanded an "immediate" ban on atomic weapons and said the international control system would be set up after the ban was declared.

Now Russia comes closer to the western position by saying the control system should be placed in operation before a ban is declared. This is the point where Vishinsky is trying to get the assembly to declare a moral ban on atomic weapons.

He says the assembly should "proclaim" prohibition of atomic weapons even though no legal ban on manufacturing weapons would come into effect until after an international control system is set up.

Western delegates will fight such a proposal in the assembly, but are expected to send the new Russian position to the Disarmament Commission for further study.

Skiers Crowd Local Slopes During Weekend

Peterborough skiers crowded hills throughout the district over the weekend as excellent skiing conditions prevailed for the third straight week. Some skiers even tried skiing in competition against Ontario's best at the Oshawa Ski Club's invitation meet.

Peterborough competitors, Adrian Langhorne, Dave Johnson, Cyril Monkman, Ab Vass and Ian Blaiklock, entered the downhill and slalom events in the Oshawa meet. But the Georgas family from Owen Sound, Canada's Olympic represetnatives in 1948, carried away most of the honors.

Most of Peterborough team were making their debut in skiing competitions. Several were making their second appearance in Ontario events. Ab Vass, in a class of more than 40 skiers, placed among the first 15 in the downhill and slalom while Ian Blaiklok was among the top 15 in the slalom.

Crowded Slopes

At the Peterborough Ski Club's Bethany playground the slopes were crowded throughout Sunday when ski enthusiasts from Toronto (a busload and several cars), Oshawa and Cobourg, as well as from Peterborough, zoomed down the packed snow.

A large number of non-skiers were content to stand by and watch.

Excellent conditions prevailed both on Saturday (a crowd used the big tow) and Sunday, the mild weather allowing the skiers to quickly pack the snow down. It was about 14 inches deep.

At Kemp's Hill, crowds used the tows and slopes both on Saturday and Sunday, but the highlight of the weekend was again the junior ski school Saturday morning. More than 175 elementary school children crowded in cars and buses were taken to the hill for the school's second session.

Peterborough ski club instructors again divided the children into two groups and continued with the first week's lessons. They were taught turning, stopping, techniques on going down a hill and climbing up again without using the tow.

The more advanced skiers were selected for special instruction with the hope that several may enter the junior ski meet at Bethany on February 9-10. They were started on the slalom course.

Bridgenorth Man Convicted As Drunk Driver

Harry Jopling, Bridgenorth was convicted of drunk driving by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today and sentenced to seven days in jail.

Defence counsel A. L. Elliott immediately served notice he would appeal the conviction which carries with it a seven day jail sentence.

Evidence on the charge was heard Thursday and adjourned until today by Magistrate Philp. After reviewing the evidence and judgments cited by Mr. Elliott, Magistrate Philp said he was finding Jopling guilty.

He ordered Jopling's car impounded for three months and said he would have to be held until notice of appeal is served.

The magistrate said the "prior acts of negligence in the case before the court were definitely greater, (than in the case of an appeal court judgment dismissing a drunk driving charge) and were repeated. Furthermore, they have not been explained."

Car In Ditch

Jopling was arrested and charged with drunk driving, leaving the scene of an accident and having liquor in a place other than his residence, when he was found beside his car in a ditch on Chesterfield Ave., the night of December 11.

Mr. Elliott based his defence on the assumption that Jopling was suffering from shock after his car had plunged into the deep ditch.

Jopling did not testify.

The symptoms of shock, lack of muscular co-ordination and its affect on an injured person's speech were, said Mr. Elliott, similar to the symptoms described by Constable Cecil Bowyer.

In his judgment, Magistrate Philp said "I prefer to accept the evidence of the two police officers (constable Bowyer and desk sergeant Leo Murphy) and from the symptoms related which I cannot find were definitely the result of shock or injury, I find the accused guilty."

Mr. Elliott agreed to let the same evidence heard in the drunk driving charge apply to the two other charges.

Representing the crown, V. J. McElderry, asked that the charge of leaving the scene of an accident be withdrawn.

On the charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence, Jopling was also found guilty and fined $15 and $2.50 costs.

Saw Parcel Thrown

Constable Bowyer said he saw Jopling throw a parcel into the ditch just before he arrived at the scene and on looking in the ditch found a half bottle of Scotch whiskey which was produced in court. A crown witness, Thomas Pritchard, 769 Chesterfield Ave., said he was at the scene before police arrived and saw Jopling throw a parcel in the ditch.

Mr. Elliott said that both witnesses had said they saw a parcel thrown in the ditch. There was no wrapper on the whiskey bottles entered as an exhibit argued Mr. Elliott and the inference that the parcel contained the bottle of whiskey was not justified on the facts he said.

Magistrate Philp's reply that "it is very unusual to find half bottles of Scotch in ditches in this county," drew chuckles from courtroom spectators.

Constable Bowyer described Jopling as being "quite drunk." His speech was quite thick and he definitely could not stand without staggering. His breath smelled of alcohol." Constable Bowyer said Jopling admitted he was the driver of the car when questioned at the scene.

Thomas Forsyth, 649 Downie St., said he saw a car come from behind him on Donegal St., hit the curb, then swing east on Parkhill Rd., and strike a parked car on the north side of the street, the evening of December 11.

Mr. Forsyth said the car backed up, and drove off, turning north on Downie St. Mr. Forsyth said he took down the licence number, U-3592, which was identified as the car found in the ditch on Chesterfield Ave., a short time later, belonging to Jopling.

Saw Car Hit

Herman VanWyk, 203 Hunter St. W., said he was sitting in his car and parked on the north side of Parkhill Rd., the same evening. He said there was a car parked a short distance ahead of him. He said he saw a car strike the parked car, then back up and head east, straight for his car. An oncoming westbound car had to swerve to avoid a collision he said. Mr. VanWyck said the number of the car was "U-3592".

Constable Bowyer was on his way to the hit-run accident on Parkhill Rd., when he received the radio call to investigate the accident on Chesterfield Ave., involving Jopling's car.

Commenting on Mr. Elliott's claim that Jopling was suffering from shock when arrested, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that "whatever shock, if any the accused may have received, he certainly wasn't suffering from it on Parkhill Rd."

Buckhorn Institute Hears William Graff

The Buckhorn WI met in the Hall. After the opening many thank-you letters were read from soldier boys, shut-ins and sick who had received gifts of fruit during the Christmas season.

As the convener for community activities was absent, Mrs. Ross took charge of the meeting. She called on Mr. Wm. Graff of the Public Library, to address the meeting. He spoke on "County Libraries." He also showed the film "Huron County Library." This was followed by the film on Holland—showing the celebration of the Queen's birthday in 1948, her abdication and the coronation of her daughter Juliana. At the conclusion of the pictures, lunch was served and with the singing of the National Anthem the meeting was brought to a close.

Court Rejects Motion For Dismissal

By BILL BOSS

SEOUL, Jan. 14 (CP)—A defence motion for dismissal of a charge of attempted murder against Gunner Lawrence Lang, Toronto, was rejected by a court martial today.

Maj. Hugh Gillis, Antigonish, NS, counsel for Lang, accused of wounding a Korean civilian during a shooting incident last Sept. 30, argued that a prima facie case had not be established.

He said: "No case has been made to support the allegation . . . except a statement Lang allegedly made and which he yet has neither affirmed nor denied that he was 'with Stirling the night he shot a gook.'

"As far as this court knows, shooting of Koreans might have been a hobby of Stirling's."

Same Incident

Gunner Robert Stirling of Vancouver last month was convicted of charges of attempted murder and of molesting Korean civilians, the same charges Lang is facing, arising out of the incident. He was sentenced to seven years.

Gillis said the fact that Lang pleaded guilty to the charge of molesting Korean civilians was not an admission that he was or was not in a particular place at a particular time. It was to shape his defence in a particular way and the charge "will be dealt with in the proper way at the proper time."

The court required almost two hours to decide that evidence warranted the trial continuing.

Mercurys Trip Stratford 5-2 As Marlboros Blank St. Michael's

By The Canadian Press

Owen Sound Mercurys made up for their 9-0 Friday night defeat at the hands of the Ontario Association Senior A Stratford Indians when they tripped the first-place club 5-2 Saturday in Owen Sound.

In OHA Junior A play, Toronto Marlboros increased their league lead with a rough and ready 3-0 win over Toronto St. Michael's on Sunday in Toronto.

Whip Spitfires

Saturday night, Waterloo Hurricanes climbed back into seventh place by whipping trailing Windsor Spitfires 5-2. Galt Black Hawks moved into a third-place deadlock with St. Mike's with a 5-3 win over the St. Catharine Teepees.

At Oshawa, second-spot Guelph Bilemores ran true to form and dropped the Generals, reposing in ninth place, by a 6-3 score.

In Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior play, Sudbury Miners slipped into bottom spot in the four-team loop when they bowed 10-4 to the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, and North Bay Black Hawks upset second-place Sudbury Wolves 6-2.

At Owen Sound, the Mercurys won on two goals by Buck Forslund and singles by Mike Bukacheski, Ray McCallum and Roy Leckie. Jack White and Jack Thaler scored for Stratford.

Hockey Player's Condition Unchanged

COBOURG, Jan. 14 (ENS). — Condition of Jack Wilcox, popular Cobourg hockey player who was badly injured last week, continues about the same. He sustained a broken cervical vertebra, which compressed the spinal cord and caused paralysis of his legs. His fracture was attended to and the compression of the spinal cord relieved, but the original effect upon the spinal cord continues and recovery will depend on the outcome of the treatment. This was the information given out last night by his doctor.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

There were many strange happenings in sports during 1951 but none to compare with the 20-second big league career of Eddie Gaedel.

Eddie, in case you've forgotten, is the three foot, seven inch 50 pound midget Bill Veeck pulled out of a cake and made into a big leaguer.

The mite's short and hilarious career in the major leagues was the overwhelming choice of sports writers and sportscasters as the sports oddity of the year in The Associated Press' annual year-end poll.

Veeck, owner of the St. Louis Browns, had a huge cake wheeled into Sportsmans Park in St. Louis during the intermission of a Detroit-St. Louis doubleheader on Aug. 19.

When the cake was cut, out hopped Gaedel, togged in a Browns' uniform with the number ⅛ on his back. The crowd of 18,369 laughed. But Eddie came to bat for the Browns in the first inning.

Four times Bob Cain threw the ball at diminutive batter. Four times the umpire called "too high."

Eddie tossed aside his bat and jogged to first base. Another player was sent in to run for him. Eddie ran back to the dugout, his major league career over.

Will Harridge, president of the American League, struck out Eddie. The league banned playing midgets "in the best interests of baseball."

Some of the National Hockey League's former greats practiced Sunday in Toronto for a charity exhibition game they'll play Jan. 25 at Bala. Their efforts were hailed as a huge success. No one was hurt.

Taking part in the workout were Charlie Conacher, Busher Jackson, Lionel Conacher, Cy Wentworth, News Stewart, Roy Worters, Flash Hollett, Lorne Duguid, Billy Taylor, Reg Hamilton, Jack Church, Red Heron, Jack Draper, Whitey Farrant, Eddie King, Andy Bellemar and Bert Conacher.

Richard E. Miller, general manager of Indianapolis Capitals demanded Sunday in Indianapolis that the American Hockey League give him a hearing on charges of "laying hands on referees." General manager Jim Hendy of Cleveland Barons made the accusation against Miller to reporters Saturday in an exchange of blasts with the Indianapolis manager.

Arete, the favorite mount of Olympic chumping, winner Col. Humberto Mariles of Mexico, will have a rare bone operation today in Mexico City. Arete broke a bone in his foreleg Saturday.

The United States Professional Golfers' Association ban against non-white players fell on former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis Sunday in San Diego, Calif.

Louis, who arrived as an invited player in the San Diego open tournament next week, was advised by the PGA that the rule would bar him.

Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday in Brooklyn announced that Roy Campanella, the National League's most valuable player last year, has signed his 1952 contract. It is believed to call for $24,000, an increase of $5,000 over last season.

Jim Conacher, 30-year-old winger who suffered a cracked knee cap early in the National Hockey League season, has rejoined New York Rangers.

Easy-going Jimmy Demaret, flashiest dresser and best crooner among the touring golf professionals, Sunday won the Bing Crosby $10,000 national pro-amateur tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif. His 36-hole score was 74-71—145.

Frank Royle's Nickel Coin, the mare that won last year's Grand National Steeplechase on a diet of duck eggs and Irish beer, finished last Sunday in its first race of the season at London's Lingfield Park.

Flyers Take Game

KEENE, Jan. 14 — (ENS). — In a close pee-wee game at the Otonabee Rink in Keene on Saturday, the Flyers came out on top of the Eagles by a 4 to 3 score. Eagles held a one-goal lead until late in the second and the Flyers came on in the third to squeeze out a win. Grant Shearer, Don McCarthy, Gordon Steele, and Barry Comrie scored for the Flyers, while Johnny McIntyre with two and Norman Godfrey got the Eagle counters.

The teams:

Flyers — Goal, Fletcher; defence, Comrie, Scriver, Steele; forwards, Don McCarthy, Grant, Shearer, Lorrie Shearer, Dickson, Bill Shearer, Wismer, Thompson, Hawkes.

Eagles— Goal, Pete Nelson; defence, Godfrey, W. Nelson, G. Nelson, Stillman; forwards, Pete Shearer, Paul Nelson, McIntyre, Renwick, M. Maloney, L. Maloney, D. Nelson.

Rugged Times

EDMONTON (CP). — Thomas Ferrier, retiring recently as Edmonton transit superintendent after 43 years' service, recalled that in the early days power was so low that street cars were sometimes left on the street overnight instead of going to the barns. Street cars here now have been replaced by trolley coaches and buses.

OLDEST CITIZENS of Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. William Davy cut their cake at the celebration Saturday of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Bancroft's Senior Citizens Feted On Golden Wedding

BANCROFT, Jan. 14 (ENS).—Bancroft's senior citizens, Mr. and Mrs. William Davy, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Sherbourne St. on Saturday.

Sixty years ago William Albert Davy and Eliza Hannah of Tamworth were married in Napanee Methodist Church by the Rev. C. O. Johnston. At that time Mr. Davy was 22 and his bride was two years younger. Their first home was a frame house that young William Davy had built for his bride. Later they moved to another larger house to the right of their original dwelling. During their married life they have lived in these two houses, built side by side.

Mrs. Davy's parents were Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah, Tamworth, and Mr. Davy's parents were Mr. and Mrs. William Davy Bancroft.

In speaking of his early life Mr. Davy said: "I was born in Queensboro in 1869. In 1875 my father decided to move with his family to North Hastings and after a two day trip from Queensboro we arrived at what was later known as the Vankleek Settlement. During the summer of 1876 my father and the family moved to L'Amable. In 1879 we moved to Bancroft, then called York River.

"My father, William Davy, was hired by the late Senator Billa Flint to install machinery in his saw and grist mill. Later he placed wool working machinery in the upper storey of the sawmill. When Senator Flint retired from active business in the Bancroft area during the closing years of the last century father took over the sawmill."

Lost Two Sawmills

"I have always been a lumberman, a mill worker and mill owner. Two of my sawmills here have burned. The first in 1909 and the second in 1945. After the second fire I decided not to rebuild and to retire from a regular job. Besides this work I was superintendent for the Hydro Electric Power Commission when they were cutting pulpwood in Bruton township from 1917 to 1930."

Although he is 82 years of age Mr. Davy does the necessary repair jobs for the six houses he now owns in Bancroft. This summer, with the aid of one helper he built a house on South Hastings Street. He drives his own car and can read without the aid of glasses. And of course he can shovel snow and split wood as fast or faster than many of the younger members of his family.

Mr. Davy's first recollections of Bancroft were that the present main street was just a narrow trail running through a mass of tag alders and that some people were just starting to build the old Methodist church on the site just back of the present United church.

The power development was to him the greatest change and improvement in the village in the past 60 years. He has been a lifetime advocate of harnessing the falls in the York River to the extent of their capacity. He still forcefully maintains that the present power plant on the west side of the river should have been built on the east side as more power could have been generated there.

Many Associations

Among the offices in the village held by Mr. Davy have been: public school trustee, village councillor, member of the board of sessions of the Methodist Church and later the United Church, and secretary-treasurer and assisstant-manager of the baseball team during the 1880's and 1890's. When Bancroft was incorporated as a village in 1904 he was its first reeve.

Today he rates among the best checker players in Eastern Ontario. In 1947 he won the championship of this section of the province during an open tournament. He has been a competitor for more years than he can remember and has announced that he will again compete for the Eastern Ontario checker championship that will be held in Belleville or Kingston this spring. Most card games, and bridge in particular, are now one of the principal hobbies of both Mr. and Mrs. Davy.

Like her husband, Mrs. Davy has been an active worker in many village organizations and societies. She is especially interested in the Women's Auxiliary of the United Church and the local chapter of the Eastern Star.

Mr. Davy is a member of the Masonic Order and belongs to Bancroft Lodge No. 482, AF and AM, and Madoc Chapter No. 161, RAM.

To celebrate their anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Davy held open house on Saturday afternoon. Dozens of friends visited their home to offer their congratulations and talk over old times. Receiving with Mrs. Davy were her daughter, Mrs. Marguerite McColl, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Davy.

Relatives present from a distance were Flight-Lieut. and Mrs. S. W. Nichols, of Trenton, and L. B. Davy, of Port Arthur. During the day they received long-distance telephone messages from a number of relatives and friends who were not able to be in Bancroft for the anniversary.

Mrs. Davy has two brothers and two sisters; George and Edward Hannah, of Odessa; Mrs. J. Keluskey (Hattie) of Bancroft, and Mrs. Agnes Keller, of Vancouver. Mr. Davy has one sister, Mrs. Fred Orser (Ethel), of Verona.

Their children are George Davy, of Bancroft; Mrs. Olga Burgi, of New York City; L. B. Davy, of Port Arthur, and Mrs. Marguerite McColl, of Bancroft.

With pardonable pride, Mr. Davy stajes that he is Bancroft's senior citizen as he now is the only person living in Bancroft who was living in the village in 1879.

6-Year-Old Girl In Critical Condition

SARNIA, Jan. 14—(CP)—Six-year-old Jacqueline Knudsen was in critical condition in hospital here today suffering from burns received early Saturday when fire destroyed her home at nearby Wanstead.

Her three brothers — Leland George, 5, Stuart William, 3, and David Frederick, 2—died in the fire. They will be buried today.

Donations of food, money and clothing have started to come in to their father, Stuart Knudsen, 25-year-old Great Lakes seaman. All the family's belongings, including Knudsen's last $380 in cash, were lost in the fire.

Wanstead, a railway ghost town of 38 persons, is 20 miles east of Sarnia.

Millbrook plays in Sunderland next Friday. Teams:

Keen Contests To Mark Annual Derby

OTTAWA—(CP)—A record entry of 26 contestants—their sights aimed at the gold challenge trophy and $5,000 in prizes—will compete this year in the third annual 100-mile International Dog Derby, Feb. 7-8-9.

Donald Reid, Derby chairman of the Ottawa Junior Board of Trade, which sponsors the race, predicts that United States mushers will provide keen competition for Canadian drivers, who have romped home winners the last two year. At least 10 US teams will enter the event.

The race is run in three daily thirty-three and one-third mile heats. The course starts on the frozen Rideau Canal in the heart of the capital, cuts through the city and loops cross-country in a southerly and south-westerly direction before swinging back to the starting point.

Heading the Canadian competitors is Emile Martel, 48-year-old lean, six-foot Loretteville, Que., musher who last year drove his dogs across the finish line with a combined winning time of nine hours, one minute and 11 seconds.

Out For Trophy

Martel, runner-up in 1950, will be out to gain permanent possession of the trophy. To do this a driver must finish first three years running.

Perhaps the most dangerous threat from the US is Big Bill Shearer, a furniture dealer from East Jaffrey, NH. He will hit the trail with 11 highly-trained Siberian huskies. Shearer last year finished in the runner-up spot, one minute, 29 seconds behind Martel.

Other members of the US continent include Dr. Roland Lombard and Dr. William Belford, both of Deersfield, Mass., Bill Belletete, Helena, Mont., and Frank and Dexter Sears, of Lake Placid, NY.

OTTAWA, Jan. 14 (CP)—Hector Davis, 17-year-old army private of Aylmer, Que., was arrested by RCMP officers Saturday and charged with arson in connection with a small New Year's Eve fire at the army's central ordnance depot in Ottawa.

Officials said the arrest resulted from a combined investigation by army and RCMP officials.

Davis was a member of the depot staff.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 60c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life!

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES —By Edgar Martin

IT'S HARD TO BEAR, the way this weather runs hot and cold. John, the 500-pound black bear at Montreal's Lafontaine Park zoo, is having the toughest hibernation a bear could have. He hasn't had more than four or five days sleep at once, and how can a bear lose fat that way? His keeper says if the weather doesn't settle down and let John sleep for a few weeks, he's have a nervous breakdown.

Lack Of Weather Knowledge Would Hamper Russ Attack

By CLARKE BEACH
Associated Press Staff Writer

As far as weather is concerned, Russia would have the edge in case of war against North America—for the first day.

But for the first day only. After that the Soviets would be at a great disadvantage.

This is true both in the old-fashioned military concept of weather, involving rain, clouds, surface winds and ice and from the new view-point, which rates high-altitude winds as the No. 1 military weather problem.

Weather moves from west to east—both surface weather and the pattern of the upper winds. North America's allies lie in the path of Russia's weather, but Russia is not in a position to know what weather is brewing for North America.

The international exchange of weather information, in which even Russia co-operates, now gives practically every country in the northern hemisphere complete weather data every day. These would promptly cease if war started, and the Russians would fight thereafter under the handicap of their geographical position.

Important Information

If they wished to unload atomic bombs on North America, they would have to make minute calculations as to the fuel load their planes would need. If they sent planes from the east, unexpectedly strong headwinds could eat up the gas load before the target was in sight.

And if the air armada ran blindly into something called the "jet stream" it might be scattered or stopped dead.

If it came from the west, from air bases such as those on the Kamchatka Peninsula, northeast of Japan, it could ride the western tailwinds, and particularly the jet streams, to save fuel. But Russian flyers would have to know where the jet streams were that day and what the general wind conditions were aloft.

The jet stream is the newest of the discoveries of meteorology. They were detected through Second World War high-altitude bombing and now are crucial in the whole theory of flight at very high levels.

One or several jet streams flow around the Northern Hemisphere all the time. They are narrow wind currents found at about 20,000 feet in the latitudes between central Mexico and northern Alaska.

Have High Speed

They are from 100 to 300 miles wide, about one mile deep and from a thousand to several thousand miles long. Like ribbon-shaped snakes, they streak around the globe at 100 to 300 miles per hour.

The United States Air Weather Service, with headquarters at Andrews Field, MD., near Washington, issues daily forecasts of the position and strength of the jet streams and the force and currents of other high altitude winds.

The upper winds now are considered so important because in this age of atomic warfare the carrier of the super weapon is a high-altitude, long-range bomber. All preparations for attack must be based on calculations of fuel and bomb load.

IRAN (long known as Persia) made headlines and increased world jitters when she evicted Britain from her fabulous oil concessions, challenged the UN to keep hands off and played cozy with Russia, while trying to scare the West into dealing on her own terms. Ancient Persia was the land of Omar Khayyam and Marco Polo. Since 1900, black oil magic has transformed much of Iran from a land of nomadic tribes, sheep and goat herders, into an oil colossus, with wealthy cities, giant oilfields and refineries. Abadan, where the British bowed out, is the world's largest refinery, but was idled by loss of its skilled European technicians. During World War II, Russia and Britain occupied Iran, after Nazi fifth-column efforts to take over, and Iran became the great lend-lease "back door" to Russia. It was then that the constitutional monarch, the Shah Reza Khan, abdicated in favor of his young son, the present Shah. Under UN pressure in 1946, Russia reluctantly withdrew its troops from Iran, and a Red puppet government in Azerbaijan collapsed. The Kremlin still eyes its southern neighbor greedily across the 800-mile frontier. Stalin could use Iran's oil, its warm water sea outlet, its strategic location on the flanks of India and Turkey. Iran's aging Premier Mossadegh has been in the U. S. seeking aid. Hounded by extreme nationalists and religious fanatics, Mossadegh stands in grave danger of seeing his government topple unless the shattered oil business can be revived.

Trinity College Observes Its 50th Anniversaryy

TORONTO, Jan. 15—(CP)—Trinity College will celebrate its 100th anniversary Wednesday.

Founded in 1852 by Bishop John Strachan, rugged pioneer of Anglicanism in Upper Canada, the centenary observance was preceded by a thanksgiving service in St. James Cathedral Sunday. A full program of special events is planned for the centenary year.

Federated with the University of Toronto in 1903, Trinity has a proud record of achievement in arts and theology. It was the second college with Anglican affiliations started in Toronto by Bishop Strachan. The first was King's College, granted a royal charter in 1827 and secularized in 1850.

Trinity is one of three Canadian institutions of higher learning celebrating their centenaries in 1952, with observance for which famous guests will travel to Canada from many countries, representing state, church and academic life. The others are Laval University in Quebec and St. Michael's in Toronto.

Wealth Of Tradition

A wealth of tradition clings about the handsome grey stone buildings, erected in 1925, one of the group of colleges that form the university area in the heart of Toronto.

Present head of Trinity is the Rev. R. S. K. Seeley, a Cambridge man who on coming to Canada in 1938 joined the staff of St. John's College, Winnipeg. He served as Dean of Ontario and rector of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, from 1943 until 1945, when he was appointed to succeed the Rev. F. H. Cosgrave as Provost and Vice-Chancellor of Trinity.

Of its 550 students, 48 are enrolled in the college's divinity course. Nearly half of the students live in residence—135 men and 100 in St. Hilda's, the women's affiliated college.

For undergraduates, Trinity offers courses in Arts. It retains the religious tradition by making compulsory one course a year in religious knowledge.

11 Rhodes Scholars

This year, Ronald Watts, 23-year-old honor student, was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship. It was the 11th such scholarship awarded to a Trinity student, a tribute to the school's high scholastic standard.

Following the celebrations on Founders' Day, a centenary concert will be given in Strachan Hall on January 26 and in April Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey will deliver the centenary lecture. In May, Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, will attend a special convocation, and in September the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, will be guest lecturer.

Three distinguished Primates of the Church of England in Canada have been graduates of Trinity—Archbishop Clare L. Worrell of Nova Scotia, Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen of Toronto, and Archbishop George F. Kingston of Nova Scotia.

The first Trinity man to become a Bishop of the church was the Rt. Rev. Maurice S. Baldwin Bishop of Huron from 1883 to 1904.

The Dean of Christ church, Oxford, is the Very Rev. John Lowe, Calgary-born graduate of Trinity. Dean Lowe became vice-chancellor of Oxford University in 1948.

A number of Trinity graduates also became famous in the United States Protestant Episcopal Church, including the Rt. Rev. Charles Brent, former Bishop of the Philippines and later world-famous as Bishop of western New York.

Sir William Osler, Canada's most famous physician, studied at Trinity and another distinguished graduate was Archibald Lampman, noted Canadian poet.

Living graduates include Sir Leonard Outerbridge, Lieutenant-Governor of Newfoundland; R. C. Berkinshaw, vice-president and general manager of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Ltd. of Canada; Dr. J. G. Althouse, Ontario's director of education and Dr. J. B. Collip, dean of medicine at the University of Western Ontario.

MARMORA, Jan. 14—(ENS)—Sister Eva Post, as installing officer, installed the following officers of Marmora Girls' JOL 329 for 1952.

Worthy president, Helen Empey; worthy vice-president, Jean Moffatt; recording secretary, Joyce Stone; financial secretary, Jane Fox; treasurer, Arlene Campion; chaplain, Helen Bishop; first standard bearer, Donna Osborne; second standard bearer, Earla Moffatt; first lecturer, Phyllis Jones; second lecturer, Eva Keating; first guard, Mildred Moffatt; second guard, Kathleen Stone; past president, Dorothy Deline; senior guardian, Eva Post; junior guardian, Clara Pack.

Medical Plan

TORONTO, Jan. 14—(CP)—Dependents of Canadian active service personnel soon may be covered by a prepaid hospital and medical care plan—valid anywhere in Canada. Dr. A. D. Kelly, Deputy General Secretary to the Canadian Medical Association, announcing the plan today, said it would put the government in the status of an employer, and as such would probably contribute 50-per-cent of the premium for the servicemen.

Search For 2 Men

MONTREAL, Jan. 14—(CP)—RCMP said Saturday they seek two men, believed recent arrivals from Europe said responsible for passing counterfeit United States bank notes in Montreal within the last few weeks. The notes—in denominations of $20, $10 and $5—are not new and have circulated in other parts of Canada in recent years, police said.

TOO MUCH HARD WATER—Two firemen battling a blaze at the Eastern Thomas Paper Company warehouse in Philadelphia Pa., look disgustedly at a pumper that isnt pumping. Some of the water they had been pouring on the fire fell on the equipment and promptly froze. To thaw it out all they have to do is start a fire and—or is that where they came in?

Storm Strands 226 On Flyer

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1. (AP)—Rescue trains, bucking the worst snow banks the mountains have had in a half century, inched today toward a passenger train stranded in the Sierra with 226 persons aboard. R. D. Spence, Southern Pacific trainmaster at Crystal Lake, in the high mountains, reported to San Francisco headquarters that he reached the train at 7:50 am PST, walked through all the coaches, and found no one in desperate plight. All had blankets and there was enough food for the day, Spence said. The rescue trains were working toward the streamliner, City of San Francisco, from both sides of the Sierra.

A new storm centred near the mouth of the Columbia River brought more rain to California's lowlands, and piled up more snow in the mountains. It was the worst storm in 50 years, the weather bureau said.

The two rescue trains driving through the drifts toward the stranded Streamliner were equipped with snowplows. Both carried doctors.

Army Sends Help

Three army Weasels — amphibious jeeps with carterpillar treads—and two radio-equipped highway patrol cars were on flat cars of a train boring east from Colfax, about 25 miles from the snowbound Streamliner.

The second relief train, carrying dogs, dog sleds and medical supplies, plowed west from Truckee, 31 miles from the City of San Francisco.

Following the eastbound rescue train is a 16-car passenger train with 12 Pullman cars.

The stranded passengers are to be taken to Sacramento on this emergency train.

The swank westbound train was a victim of a mighty storm which lashed the west coast from Canada to Mexico. The howling gales piled deep snowdrifts in the mountains, dumped flooding rains on already sodden lowlands and sent towering waves smashing against sea walls.

Hundreds of persons—travellers and residents—were marooned. Exactly how many was anybody's guess.

Three killed

Communications were disrupted in many places. Some communities were cut off. Avalanches roared into canyons, killing at least three persons.

The storm's toll— in life and property damage—could not be reckoned because of poor communications. Damage was expected to run into the millions, but causalties appeared to be at a minimum.

A rancher was missing and feared lost. A parson whose car was stalled in a snowdrift died of exertion after making his way up a steep grade on foot.

The Red Cross reported about 120 motorists were stranded by a blizzard on Highway 395 north-

Mother Of 8 Hits Jackpot Expected Twins, Quads Born

NASHVILLE, Ark., Jan. 15. (AP)—A surprised, 38-year-old farm wife who was expecting twins gave girth to quadruplets Monday night. The babies, three boys and a girl, were born to Mrs. Haggai Ponder, the mother of eight other children, at her small farm house 2½ miles north of Murfreesboro, Ark., 20 miles from Nashville.

The first child arrived at 7:10 pm CST. The others followed at 7:15, 7:30 and 7:45.

Dr. M. D. Duncan, who was with Mrs. Ponder at the time, said the mother was doing nicely.

Dr. Duncan said he was just as surprised as the mother. He also was looking for twins.

Mrs. Ponder didn't have much to say when she came out from under the anaesthetic. Dr. Duncan said her only remark when told she had given birth to four babies, "I was expecting two."

It was a different story for her husband, Leonard Ponder, 41.

Goes To Hospital

Accompanied by three women neighbors, Ponder drove to a Nashville hospital with the babies. He drove the auto, the women carried the infants.

Ponder reported to the night nurse on duty:

"I've got four little babies and they're all mine."

The infants were placed in incubators. They have not been weighed. A hospital attendant said they were doing well.

The Ponders have been married 21 years. Their other children range in age from 2 to 18.

The quadruplets present two problems for the Ponders:

1. How to house the family of 13 (one son lives in California) in their 3-room house.
2. What to name the new arrivals.

Charges West Ruining Plan

PARIS, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Russian spokesman charged today western powers are trying to give Russia's new atomic control proposals a "first rate burial" by shunting them from the United Nations general assembly to the new disarmament commission.

Kuzman V. Kisselev, Byelo-Russian delegate, told the assembly political committee that the new offer, made Saturday, "flows directly from directives of Joseph Vissarionovich Stalin."

The revised Russian plan calls for an international control system for atomic energy to begin at the same time the atomic bomb is banned and would permit continuous inspection of Russian atomic facilities.

Britain, France and the United States proposed it be submitted to the disarmament commission, which includes Canada and the 11 security council members, for intensive study.

Russia wants the full assembly to reach a decision on its offer at this session. She agreed earlier, however, to work in the disarmament commission which will study reduction of both atomic and conventional arms.

Warmest January Day In 112-Year Records

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (CP—Toronto today had its warmest Jan. 15 in the 112 years weather records have been kept when the temperature rose to 48 degrees at noon. The weatherman predicted a high for the day of 50.

But in case Torontonians think it's spring, the weatherman said temperatures will drop to their proper January level by tonight—about 30 degrees.

Reds Charge UN Bombed POW's

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Communists claimed today that UN bombs killed 10 Allied soldiers and wounded 60 in a Red prison camp.

A US Fifth Air Force spokesman said it wasn't so. But the UN command continued to investigate.

The Red report was made at Korean truce negotiations. One sub-committee argued over who was in what army. A second subcommittee got sidetracked from airfields to the North Korean birth rate.

Neither sub-committee reported progress toward an armistice.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang cho said the Kangdong prison camp, holding 1,591 Republic of Korea soldiers and one American, was bombed Monday night. He said casualty names would be supplied later.

The UN command in Tokyo ordered a full study of air operations "to determine whether there is any truth to the Communist allegations." This included flights by carrier-borne aircraft and B-29 Superforts in addition to Fifth Air Force planes.

The Reds did not invite the Allies to come to Kangdong and see for themselves.

While no progress was made in armistice negotiations Tuesday, spokesmen said negotiators were more even tempered than in recent days.

San Quentin Convicts Kill Two Guards With Scissors

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP)—Two San Quentin inmates using a 12-inch scissors blade, killed two guards Monday night. Two other guards and one of the convicts suffered knife wounds.

Guard Charles D. Wiget, 31, was waylaid in the prison library and stabbed to death. Guard Vern A. Mackin, 38, was killed in a prison movie projection room.

Richard M. Sims, Jr., Marin County district attorney, named Eugene Burwell, Los Angeles robber, and James Alonzo Rogers, serving a term for intent to murder in San Francisco, as the killers.

Sims said this is what happened:

Burwell and Rogers were plotting to escape. They had the scissors blade, a double-edged ax and a six-inch knife. They bound librarian-inmate Joseph E. Wolfe, 22, Los Angeles burglar.

Rogers climbed on a library table and feigned illness. When Wiget came in Rogers grabbed him and Burwell stabbed him. Burwell was stabbed in the lung in the scuffle.

Guards Ralph E. Dascombe and Virgil F. Stewart stepped into the darkened library seeking Wiget. The guards were beaten and slashed in the face.

Burwell and Rogers ran to the mess hall where a basketball game was in progress. They told guard Mackin they wanted some records from the motion picture projection booth. Mackin took them to get the records.

Mackin was stabbed three times and killed in the booth.

The attack on Mackin attracted other guards who captured the two in the booth.

Warden Harley O. Teets reported Burwell, a negro, said he "blew his top" and planned to kill Wiget for "discriminating" against him.

Fumes Kill 3rd Victim In 24 Hours

Stuck In Snowbank Gooderham Man Asphyxiated In Car

MINDEN, Jan. 15. (Staff)—Carbon monoxide fumes Monday morning claimed their third victim in 24 hours. William Thomas Barr, 43, of Gooderham, was found dead in his car at 10 am Monday. The car was stuck in a snowbank on the Irondale road, a half mile south of Gooderham.

OPP Constable Al Edwards, of Minden said that Barr was apparently driving home late Sunday night or early Monday morning on the old Irondale road. His car somehow ran off the travelled portion of the narrow Glamorgan township road and became stuck in a snowbank.

Unable to free it, Barr stayed in his car and kept the motor turning over to keep warm. There was a defective muffler on the 1937-model car and carbon monoxide fumes came up through the cracks in the floorboards and overcame him.

No Inquest

Coroner Dr. Agnes Jamieson, of Minden, said death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning. There will be no inquest.

Barr was found at 10 am Monday by Aubrey Maxwell who was driving along the road toward Gooderham.

Police found that the ignition switch and heater were both on. The motor had continued to run until it ran out of gasoline.

Barr was single and was employed as a laborer in the Gooderham district.

Two similar deaths occurred early Sunday. George Weaver, 23, and Gordon Hannivan, 21, both of Coboconk, died of carbon monoxide poisoning when they left their car running after getting stuck in a snowbank four miles south of Fenelon Falls.

They had taken two Lindsay girls home from a dance and were returning to Coboconk when they got stuck in a snowbank on Highway 35.

In both fatal accidents police reported defective exhaust pipes and the car windows were kept shut tight to keep out the cold.

Terrible Gale Strikes Orkneys

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands, Jan. 15. (Reuters) — The worst gale in living memory screamed over these rocky islands strung out north of Scotland early today.

Every one of the 28 inhabited Orkney Islands reported major damage in the 130 mile-an-hour wind. There were no lives lost.

Roofs were ripped off the solid square stone houses and hurled hundreds of yards.

Many buildings were demolished—few escaped unscathed.

Haystacks everywhere were picked up and smashed to pieces or dropped into the sea.

Fishing boats were sunk at their moorings.

Roads were blocked at many points with debris and telephone communications were cut off.

Templer Appointed Malay Commissioner

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The appointment of Gen. Sir Gerald W. R. Templer as Britain's high commissioner and military commander in chief for Malaya was announced today by the colonial office.

Sir Gerald, now commander in chief of the British army's eastern command, takes over the fight against Malaya's Red guerrillas fro mthe late Sir Henry Gurney, who was ambushed and shot to death last October.

The colonial office announced that John Fearns Nicoll, now colonial secretary for Hong Kong, will succeed Sir Franklin Gimson as governor and commander-in-chief in Singapore.

Sir Gerald, who joined Prime Minister Churchill in Ottawa for weekend conferences with top Canadian government officials, arrived in New York by train from Montreal today with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

They leave by plane for London at 5 pm EST.

ELECTED WARDEN—Reeve Richard Stewart, of Otonabee, was elected Warden of Peterborough County this afternoon on the first ballot. There were no other nominations. Waterman, of North Monaghan, and seconded by Roland Tedford, of Douro. All members were present.

Ask Provinces Not Revive 5% Corporation Tax

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 — (CP). — Finance Minister Abbott has asked provinces concluding new tax agreements with the Federal Government not to revive a 5-per-cent tax collected on corporation profits dropped last month.

Mr. Abbott, attending a conference in the United Kingdom sent his request to all provinces January 10, along with an offer to boost payments under new Federal-Provincial tax agreements. His letter was made public today by his department.

Legislation providing for a 5-per-cent corporation tax in provinces with taxation agreements expired in December. All provinces except Ontario and Quebec now have taxation agreements with the Federal Government.

The agreements are due to expire next March 31. Since last month the total tax on corporations has dropped to 43 per cent from 48 per cent in all provinces except Ontario and Quebec. In those two provinces the tax dropped to 45 per cent from 48, because they collected a 7-per-cent tax on corporate profits, while provinces with agreements collected only 5 per cent.

Eye On Budget

A Finance Department official said that should the provinces agree not to revive their five-per-cent tax, Mr. Abbott would be free to increase the federal corporation taxes by five per cent in his next budget. But Mr. Abbott indicated in his letter to the provinces that he does not propose to pin the provincial five-per-cent tax to the federal tax.

He said taxpayers in provinces which do not sign agreements will be given a five-per-cent credit on the corporation taxes they pay to the provinces.

Protest To Russians As Trio Still Missing

BERLIN, Jan. 15 (AP)—British authorities protested to the Red army in East Germany today over the continued absence of three men attached to Gracie Fields' soldier tour who disappeared in the Russian zone Saturday.

A spokesman said the missing trio was supposed to have been released, along with their British army automobile, on the west side of the Soviet frontier yesterday.

The missing men are Gordon Crier of the BBC, acting as manager for Gracie Fields on her tour of British troop units in Germany; Peter Wilson, publicity agent for Miss Fields, and a British army driver, L/Cpl. Levy.

The men apparently got off the Allied highway between West Berlin and West Germany Saturday morning and wound up in Soviet zone detention.

NIAGARA PLAN READY

BUFFALO, NY, Jan. 15—(AP)—A plan for federal redevelopment of power at Niagara Falls at an estimated cost of $268,000,000 has been forwarded to Washington, the district office of the army corps of engineers reported today.

Appraisers To Decide All Ceilings

Hope New Regulations Will Level Off Rates Too High or Low

TORONTO, Jan. 15. (CP)—Premier Frost announced today new rental regulations for Ontario that call for the levelling of rents considered too high or too low.

The Premier said in a statement the regulations do not introduce a province-wide formula of rental ceilings, but, intsead, maximum rents will be set in each locality. The amounts will depend on the general level of rents prevailing there in controlled dwellings at Jan. 1 this year.

This general level is to be determined chiefly by the two-year-lease agreement reached by landlords and tenants after the rent "freeze" ended last Aug. 1.

Since these agreements produced an average rent increase of approximately 20 per cent, the net effect of the new policy is expected to be a rental structure about 20-per-cent higher than that of a year ago, in premises which have been continuously subject to control.

In premises which have been freed of control through changes in tenancy, rents will be brought into line with the ceilings for comparable accommodation.

Couldn't Act

The new regulations will provide a means of deciding nearly 5,000 applications for rental-fixes from landlords and tenants. For lack of any formula to guide them the province's rental administrators have not been able to act on the pile of applications since the Ontario regulations first came into effect last August.

The Premier's statement said ceilings will be set up by appraisers. Cases in dispute will go to rental boards which will replace the courts of rentals appeals.

The boards, made up of two members of the local court of revision with a county judge as chairman, will first attempt to conciliate disputes between the landlord and tenant. They are empowered to fix ceilings should no agreement be reached between the parties.

Costello Verdict Not Reached Yet

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP). — A federal court jury trying gambler Frank Costello for contempt of the Senate returned to the courtroom after more than an hour's deliberation today, still without a verdict.

The jurors a few moments earlier had asked for the stenographic record of Judge Sylvester J. Ryan's charge to the jury.

The jurors spent most of Monday night locked up in a midtown hotel after six hours' deliberation failed to produce a verdict.

The stakes held by the panel were Costello's acquittal on 11 counts of contempt, or his first criminal conviction in almost 37 years.

If convicted on all counts the 60-year-old gambler faces a possible sentence of 11 years in prison and a fine of $11,000.

Carlsen's Crew Criticizes Captain For Staying Put

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Witnesses Monday criticized Capt. Kurt Carlsen and the Isbrandtsen Co. at an inquiry into the sinking of the company's freighter, Flying Enterprise.

Three of the crew, testifying before a Coast Guard Board, raised three questions:

1. Why didn't the skipper send a distress call immediately after the ship's deck and sides were cracked in a hurricane?
2. Why didn't the damaged vessel head for the nearest port after the seas had calmed?
3. Why was a heavy cargo of pig-iron loaded into two holds, while a third hold contained only light cargo?

The Flying Enterprise sank off the English coast last Thursday after all passengers and the crew except Capt. Carlsen abandoned ship. He stayed aboard to try to bring the ship in until it went down.

Clark E. Hall of Ashland, Ky., a seaman aboard the vessel, said he could not understand why more than a day passed before a distress call was sent out when the ship's plating was found cracked the morning of Dec. 27.

Arthur Janssens of Manhattan, the ship's boatswain, blamed the ship's cracking on what he called mis-stowage of 1,271 tons of pig-iron taken aboard at Rotterdam.

I didn't like to interfere with the company, but I fancied this cargo—that pig-iron—should have been stowed in No. 3 hold. It was not the mate's or the captain's fault—the orders came from the office. There was nothing in No. 3 hold except coffee. The heavy cargo was all in No. 2 and No. 4 holds. If the pig-iron had been in No. 3 hold, the ship would not have been cracked."

Britain Prepared Face Aggression, Churchill States

OTTAWA, Jan. 15. (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill returns to Washington today, leaving the promise that Britain and the United States stand ready to face "whatever aggression may fall upon us." In an address at a glittering state dinner climaxing his five-day stay in this capital, he hailed the Atlantic Pact as the West's "sure hope" of victory should war come once again and repeated his advocacy of a united Europe and the inclusion of Germany in an European army.

He would do all he could to further those two ideas—a federated Europe and closer German military co-operation—but at the same time he gave this warning:

"That does not mean that Great Britain will become a unit in federated Europe, nor that her army, already in line upon the continent and to grow steadily, will be merged in such a way as to lose its identity.

"We stand with the United States, shoulder to shoulder with the European army and its German elements. We stand under the supreme NATO commander and we stand ready to face whatever aggression may fall upon us."

Makes Five Points

He made these other points in a 35-minute speech which served as a warm-up to his address to the American Congress in Washington Thursday:

1. He deplored the fact that peace still is not "untroubled" six years after the end of the Second World War.
2. But, this time, "we are all united from the beginning . . . to defend the cause of freedom with all our strength and by that strength we hope to preserve unbroken the peace which is our heart's desire."
3. The Atlantic alliance is broadening out into a new concept for the betterment of the "welfare and happiness and progress of all the peoples of the free world."
4. Britain, in her economic troubles, faces a hard road, but is determined to earn her own living and pay her own way.
5. A "magnificent" future awaits Canada "if only we can all get through the present hideous world muddle."

BRITAIN PREPARED (Continued on Page 2)

Stiffer Import Cuts Planned By Britain

LONDON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Britain lays before her Commonwealth partners today a plan for them, as well as herself, to impose new and stiffer import cuts to meet her third grave financial crisis since the war.

The problem again is how to halt the rapid decline of British gold and dollar reserves, which finance the day-to-day trade in vital commodities which the country must have to live.

It is virtually certain that Britain, at least, is in for a period of really black austerity.

Prime Minister Churchill and his Conservative colleagues decided to call the Commonwealth financial conference soon after they come to office Oct. 25. Summoned to the London meeting today with Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Richard Butler, were the finance ministers of Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, India, Ceylon, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia and Canada.

Toronto Mayor Defeated In TTC Efforts

TORONTO, Jan. 15 — (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport figuratively threw up his hands today and admitted that he does not "know what to do" to settle Toronto's street car strike, now in its 12th day.

Renewed mediation efforts by Labor Minister Charles Daley of Ontario failed Monday, and the Mayor said he was "stymied temporarily."

He conferred Monday night and early today with Premier Leslie Frost. Both emerged from the conference "very disappointed that the dispute was not settled," said Mr. Lamport.

Both sides in the wage dispute remained adamant. The Toronto Transportation Commission stood fast on its offer of a 5-per-cent an-hour wage increase to $1.45. The striking Street Railway Employees Union (AFL-TLC) held out for 15 cents.

The TTC's offer is based on a Conciliation Board report, and James Robertson, union business agent, in a public address Monday night charged that the commission was "trying to force our union to its knees" by declining to move from that figure. "But hell will freeze over before they do," Mr. Robertson added.

No Real Offer

After Monday's abortive three-hour meeting with the TTC and union representatives, Mr. Daley said:

"Actually, neither side offered anything."

The breakdown of the talks bashed the hopes of Canada's second-largest city for early restoration of its publicly-owned

Abduct Railman With $8,000

WINNIPEG, Jan. 15. (CP)—A 62-year-old railways employee was abducted before the eyes of hundreds of fellow workers Monday in nearby Transcona, robbed of $8,000 and left blindfolded on a deserted stretch of highway.

The victim, Charles Joseph Heid, said he was forced into an old model car by two men who grabbed him as he was returning from a bank. Tucked between his shirt and underwear was the money in $1 to $10 bills.

No trace of the bandits or the money had been found late Monday night despite an extensive police search.

Heid, a machinist for the Canadian National Railways shops at Transcona, was taking the money to cash wage cheques of fellow employees at the shops.

Alexander Expected To Leave Canada Soon

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 — (CP). — An authoritative source said today Viscount Alexander will leave Canada "shortly."

Announcement that he has been relieved of his duties as Governor-General is expected soon from Buckingham Palace. He is understood to have agreed to become Defence Minister in the Churchill Cabinet.

Canada's Finance Minister Abbott called at the Palace today and may well have presented to the King the documents involved in such a resignation, believed to be the first by a Governor-General in this century.

Officials, both British and Canadian, have been tight-lipped here about the development, mainly since it involves the King's aproval of the resignation of his personal representative.

19 Miners Killed In Explosion, Worst In 11 Years

STELLARTON, NS, Jan. 15. (CP)—The 19 bare pegs at the pit-head mean that 19 men died in the coal deeps. Sudden, searing death came when exploding gas flashed through the slopes of McGregor mine here Monday. It was Canada's worst mining disaster in 11 years. "It was hell, just hell," said a draegerman, one of the miners pledged for rescue work no matter what the risk. "Where is my husband? Where, oh where, is he?" moaned an old lady at the pithead.

Tragedy was written on the faces of desolate knots of people, mostly women, at the mine mouth. Its mute story was told at the line of pegs where miners hang their helmets when they come out of the deeps.

The men who came up Monday hung their lamps on their own pegs as usual. The people looked again and again at the pegs. The bare pegs meant death.

Hope Abandoned

They clung to hope even after all hope had ebbed away. Finally, mine officials announced Monday night there was no chance that any of the 19 men nearest the blast would be found alive.

From time to time a bell echoed in the shaft, heralding the approach of the rake, or carrier, with its grim cargo. All the 19 bodies were brought to the surface, many so broken and charred they were difficult to identify.

In some cases the intense heat of the blast had fused the miners' headlamps to their skulls.

Two brothers, Albert and Arthur Moss, and Winston Sample, son of the mine superintendent, were among the dead. Arthur, who lived 15 miles from town, came in Monday on the off chance of getting a day's work. At first told there was nothing for him, he coaxed until he was sent below for what turned out to be his last drop to the deeps.

Two Sisters Widowed

Two sisters became widows. They had been married to Archie Hayman and William McLeod, both among the dead.

Draegermen found that all the men died in their tracks as they worked to seal off the danger they knew was there. The smell of gas had warned the miners of peril early Monday. Some were called out of the pit, leaving only about 100 out of a normal day working force of 200, below. Crews went to work to block off the affected area with concrete-bound hardwood.

Ordinarily, this was considered a routine task. But this time the disaster that always lurks in the mine shadows was unleashed, apparently just as the men were finishing the job.

Old-timers were puzzled about at least one aspect of the explosion. Usually, the time of greatest blast danger is when the barometer is falling. Today is was rising.

Three Men Lived

The casualties all were residents of the Pictou county industrial area. Only three men who felt the blast lived to tell about it. Two were taken to hospital and the other was able to go home following treatment.

Fraser Lorimer, 62, escaped with only a tiny superficial injury on his head.

"Flames, dirt and dust shook the whole place something terrific," he said.

His companion, Jim Hawboldt, an engine driver who also came out alive, yelled:

"There she is! We've had it."

The blast section of the mine was sealed off with "temporary stopping" and will be permanently blocked off later, an official said. There was no indication of when the mine would be reopened. It wasn't known whether the miners would go back into the undamaged part of the mine.

Besides the heartbreak of personal loss, the livelihood of many may have been endangered by the explosion. Once the biggest coal prodcer in North America, the Pictou area has lost ground in recent years and its main pit, the Allan shaft, was closed down last year because of dangerous gases.

Tourist Men Hear Fraser

How the Chamber of Commerce can help the tourist industry was the topic of an address given by James Fraser, manager of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, in Toronto Monday.

Mr. Fraser was a guest speaker at the first day's sessions of the annual convention of the Associated Tourist Resorts of Ontario being held in Toronto Monday and today.

The local manager outlined how the tourist operators' section of the Peterborough chamber had proved a great asset to this district as a stimulis in drawing tourists.

He explained that the tourist operators by their collective activity were able to carry more weight in matters such as highways, fish and game affairs and hydro. He also said that they had been able to convince the member businessmen of the chamber of the benefits of the tourist industry to the whole community.

Peterborough is the only Chamber of Commerce in the country that has a tourist operators' section. However, Mr. Fraser said today that many other chambers were beginning to pattern their setup from the one established in Peterborough.
